Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Tonight at the palais d'ice on the Rue Brock, the rugged Chatham Maroons mix it with the Petes in a senior playoff. Third playoff tussle for both teams, and each of 'em needs a win like country roads in March need a snow-plough. Both have lost twice, the Falls and Waterloo being double winners, so tonight's tussle is highly important if the Petes hope to stay in the senior "B" running. They've had plenty of tough luck in their last two starts, fading late in the fray before the Falls here and being nosed out in a heartbreaker by the Waterloo Tigers in Kitchener the other night. Beaten but not disgraced, and now they're full of fight and looking for the odd smile from Dame Fortune, and less coquetry by Miss Fortune, in this scrap this eve here.

* * * * * * *

On paper, the Petes should win tonight, having made a much better showing against Waterloo than did Chatham. The latter team on their own ice suffered a 6-3 reverse at the hands of the Tigers. While the Petes, tired from a long trip and a tough game the night before, barely lost a 5-4 nod to Waterloo on the latter's ice—and then lost on a break, having more of the play right to the end. However, games are played on ice, not on paper, and the locals will have to get out there and battle their heads off.

Speed and Strength

The Petes have lots of speed and durability. It's true that they seemed to slow up against the Big Roar boys under a heavy power attack in the last of the third frame here, but we believe it was more a case of being disorganized than tiring out. 'Cause they've shown more strength at the finish of a game than the Fliers, Belleville, Kingston and Waterloo this year. Too bad the folks here couldn't have seen that swell scrap in Kitchener—they would have gone for that, all but the final score. Just blazing speed from start to finish with thrill packed upon thrill, and a lot of fine hockey dished up by both outfits. Even if our boys got all the tough breaks and had a goal stolen on 'em. Though the same thing has happened here to rival clubs, we must admit.

* * * * * * *

Still ya gotta give the Buckland boys credit. They're bucking teams of senior "A" rating right now—and doggone near licked Niagara Falls here, the team that tied Goodyears twice in senior "A" (the present Ontario champs), who in turn rubbed Oshawa out easily. The Petes could just about take the cocky Oshawa GM-men right now! Chatham plays a senior "A" brand of hockey, though the Tigers did lick 'em, so they can't be setups, either. When you realize that Goodyears beat Toronto Maple Leafs the other day in a hard-fought exhibition game, and recall that the Petes almost licked the Falls, who had twice tied Goodyears—it sorta adds up to some smart hockey being played by these senior squads in the playoffs now, doesn't it?

* * * * * * *

First-Class Hockey

Yeah, they play good hockey in playoffs at this time of year, Not much difference betwixt the senior "A" and "B" ratings—which is a joke, anyhow. And not such a whale of a difference between these clubs seen here and the pros. Nope, and don't think we're goofy for saying it. Only difference to amount to anything is that these pro teams are full of star amateurs, whereas these playoff senior squads have only three or four stars aboard 'em usually. Don't forget Bailey stepped out of here and starred—not just held his own—in N.H.L. company. Sure, the pick of the O.H.A. seniors may be seen here (barring Goodyears) now in playoffs—though the north has a team or two quite a bit better than the rest of the province. And we recommend this Chatham-Petes' tilt tonight highly—it'll be a pip.

* * * * * * *

Vic McKenty of the Kitchener Record writes that Waterloo nearly met their Waterloo in compiling their 15th win of the season, that it was the best puck tilt seen there this year, and that the battling Petes matched stride for stride throughout with the speedy Tigers. He adds: "Regardless of what happens in remaining games, there'll always be some question of doubt as to whether last night's match was decided on its merits. We refer to that disputed goal in the third....The unfortunate part of the whole setup is that the Tigers did not win by a greater margin than a single goal....The Petes put up quite a protest but under the circumstances it availed them nothing. More's the pity if it was a legitimate score. One goal in a game like that could mean an awful lot."

* * * * * * *

Aces Hold Markham

Peterborough Aces, winners of the intermediate Omemee district loop, journeyed to Markham last night to open their O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdown round, and held the Markham men to a 5-5 draw. Played on sticky ice before 400 fans, and with several Aces on the sick list, the locals nvertheless held their own in a good game. Return of the two-game serial will be here Monday and it promises to be a nifty tussle. Wouldn't be surprised but some of the best hockey seen here this winter will be dished up by these dudes called the Aces—as they're scrappers and play a ganging-up, streamlined style of hockey like the Rangers. Don't forget, Markham vs Petes' Aces at the Brock on Monday eve.

* * * * * * *

Niagara Falls' scribe, Bill Gaynon, pens these lines: "In view of the inconvenience experiencedi n 1938, Peterborough cannot be blamed for staying out of senior ball the coming season. The once-powerful Central Ontario League fell on evil days last summer when Belleville and Napanee dropped from competition and Kingston suffered O.B.A. suspension in mid-season. This left the Petes and Oshawa to carry on and fans of both towns became tired of watching the same faces a couple of times weekly. After completing their league playoffs, Petes were forced to wait a month before meeting the Falls and they had another three-weeks delay while Stratford and Toronto decided semi-final honors. Without detracting a thing from Stratford, we think they received a break when the Liftlock club was forced into so many long rest periods, and the Petes showed enough against the Falls to convince us that, with constant competition, they would have been a cinch to take down provincial honors."

* * * * * * *

Observation Platform: Three Cobourg-P.C.I. cage contests on tonight at Collegiate gym... Maybe a trio of gals' loop tilts, too, at the new Y.W. gym tonight....And a pair of men's basketball frays Sat'day eve at the Y.M.C.A., whilst St. Paul's have an O.C.B.A. game in Toronto.... Lakefield ice carnival is on tonight, races, costumes, novelties, prizes.... Eighth junior church puck playoff betwixt All Saints and St. Paul's is Monday at the Brock—no, it can't be as Markham-Aces play then; well, it will be soon....Lindsay juvenile hockeyists, with four sick with the 'flu, defaulted their series to Oshawa last e'en; wasn't it Lindsay who didn't believe four Monarchs were sick recently and criticized the locals for a default?.. D. A. Houston of Toronto will referee tonight's senior "B" fray here; Dinty Moore handles the Waterloo at Falls game tonight ....Oshawa and Whitby have a return intermediate tilt this twilight.... The junior "B" Oshawa boys knocked Barrie out of further competition with a 7-4 swish last p.m. to take the round 10-4....And Aurora junior "C" club did a 4-2 job on Lindsay Midgets in the Scugog centre last night....Goom-bye, plizz.

Great Football Transfer Scramble Near

LONDON, March 10.—(CP Cable)—Football Cup warfare has been relegated to the background until March 25 when semi-finals are carded in England and Scotland. In the meantime league championship battles and the efforts to avoid demotion being made by low-placed clubs provide plenty of interest.

In England a great transfer scramble is expected next week. March 16 is the last day for the signing of players who will be eligible to play for their new clubs this season.

The team of the moment is Wolverhampton Wanderers—the gland-treated youngsters managed by Major Frank Buckley. Unbeaten since Dec. 31, the team is playing a brand of soccer that may lead to the league championship and victory in the English Cup competition.

At the weekend the Wolves play at Birmingham and are likely to capture another brace of points at the expense of the league's tail-ender. At the same time, Everton, leader in the championship race by two points over Wolverhampton, has a hard battle at Middlesbrough whipped 6-1 yesterday at Wolverhampton.

Another Great Battle

The struggle between Blackburn Rovers and Sheffield United for leadership of the second division is even more intense.

Both teams have 39 points and the Rovers will be able to concentrate on league play as a result of their elimination from the cup yesterday by Huddersfield Town. Speculation favors the United in Saturday's games. The Yorkshire squad plays Swansea Town while Blackburn opposes Coventry City, another promotion candidate.

Newport County and Barnsley loom as certainties for championships in the two sections of the third division. The Welshmen may suffer a setback Saturday at Brighton but the Yorkshiremen should experience no difficulty in a home match against Carlisle.

Up in Scotland Rangers need only a point or two to clinch the championship but several clubs are scrambling for second place. Following midweek games Celtic went into second place with 39 points, 11 less than Rangers and one more than Aberdeen and Hearts. The Celts may retain their perch on the ladder in a match at Ayr. Albion Rovers, fighting desperately to avoid relegation, tackles the mighty Rangers at Ibrox Park while Queen's Park, also in the danger zone, face Clyde at Shawfield Park. Raith Rovers, cellar occupants, may come through successfully against Kilmarnock at Kirkcaldy.

Norwood Team Is Shut-out By Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 10. — Before close to seven hundred spectators the Campbellford Oilers came within one goal of tying it up with the fast-skating Norwood outfit, who began the second game of the play-offs here with a four point lead. Although they blanked the visitors 3 to 0 the locals lacked on the final punch which would have tied up the round. Norwood was out to play a defensive brand of hockey in an effort to hold their four-goal lead.

It was a real show, with the locals forcing the play right from the opening bell and carrying it into enemy territory for at least seventy per cent of the evening. Brennan and Webb starred on the Norwood defence line, breaking up the combination plays of the locals time after time, but nevertheless the homesters pressed in hotly around the Baker net, peppering him with shots from every angle. Turner earned his first shutout of the season, and he got plenty of support from the C. Couch and Wilkes defence line. S. Puffer played a shining game for the visitors, rushing in on several occasions to test Turner, but was never able to outguess the Campbellford net minder with his sizzling shots.

Brennan played defensive hockey during most of the evening, and when he did break away for a rush, was invariably met at the blue line by either Couch or Freen and skated into the corner. There was plenty of hard body checking, with both sides giving it as well as taking, but if referee O'Malley missed the occasional offside, he otherwise held the game in check, even if the locals did collect five of the eight penalties.

Turner made the most sensational save of the evening, when he outguessed S. Puffer, flashy Norwood centre man, who coasted in on him while Campbellford was down the ice early in the second stanza. Brennan was sent to the cooler for cross checking and Manager West sent out five forwards to turn on a power play, but they failed to get organized and Brennan came back with the score still 1-0.

Perhaps the best goal of the evening was scored by Charlie Couch on a perfectly timed pass from Don Couch half way through the second and this put even more life into the locals who had now cut the Norwood lead in two with most of the game yet to play. Close checking by Brennan and Webb, however, ended the scoring for the period, and rushes led by Atkinson and Free were stopped inside the blue line until the locals again resorted to the plan of shooting it over which may have kept the play down the ice, but it failed to give them scoring opportunities.

After seven minutes of the third had ended, with the locals still carrying the play Ernie Wilkes got the final counter on a shot from the blue line which trickled past Baker's stick, much to the surprise of everyone. It was an easy shot headed right for the centre of the net, but somehow Baker failed to get his stick on it, apparently misjudging its speed. For the rest of the session four and five man attacks were sent in by the Oilers who left their defence wide open in their final efort to get the equalizer and even when Toey Ibey was shot to the hoosegow, leaving the visitors a man short, the locals failed to tally and were eased out of the Trent Valley League play-offs by a one-goal margin.

ONTARIO RINK CAPTURES CANADIAN CURLING CHAMPIONSHIP

Kitchener Four Beat Manitoba In Playoff Game 12-10 After Dropping One To North

By Louis V. Hunter
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Mar. 10 — (CP). — A seasoned rink from Kitchener stacked brooms to-day on top of the Canadian curling world after an arduous two-year drive to relieve Manitoba of the title it has held eight times in 13 years.

The white-sweatered Kitchener quartette, led by Bert Hall who learned his curling as a boy by sneaking into a rink and playing while no one was there, withstood Manitoba's challenge last night and brought to Ontario for the second time the prized Macdonald's Brier Tankard, emblematic of the Canadian championship. Gordon Campbell's Hamilton rink won the Brier in 1935. The Hall rink tasted Brier play last year for the first time.

Tied for first place with one loss each after a nine-game round-robin with sectional champions from the rest of Canada Kitchener and Manitoba met before a tense gallery of 1,000, and battled through 12 ends of curling as exciting near the finish as the most keenly contested hockey match. Ontario won 12-10.

Fall to Northerners.

Ontario was favored earlier in the series after defeating the defending champions from Manitoba. The Hall four advanced to the ninth round without a defeat ,but in an erratic match fell before the superlative curling of Dan Millar's Northern Ontario rink.

Hall, after dropping a two-end at the start of last night's match, edged ahead gradually to lead Ross Kennedy's Strathcona club four from Winnipeg 9-3 after six ends, the half-way mark. Then Kennedy paced his rink on a rally, scoring two on a raise that drew applause from the gallery.

Kennedy dropped the next, Hall drawing nicely to the tee and in the ninth with Manitoba shot, Perry Hall, third, delivered a double wick which went for nothing when Bert Hall was short with his stone, leaving three for Manitoba in a houseful of rocks.

Hall dropped a point when he broke up on a guard but recovered to score two on the next end with a knockout shot that cleared the Manitoba rocks. Kennedy had a brace of draws but Hall eased them out nicely. In the 12th end Ontario bunched five stones with one each to come and Manitoba had the last stone so the skips called it a day and Ontario conceded a point. Kennedy could have drawn for shot but the point would noth ave given him victory.

The Coveted Trophy

The two rinks immediately were piped into the Granite Club lounge where Thomas Rennie, chairman of the Tankard trustees, presented the trophy to the winning rink. Manitoba as runner-up took second prize of four trays.

The rinks played exceptionally well right from the start but Manitoba had a heart-breaker in the third end. Ontario was lying one and Kennedy had a chance to come in for shot but the rock nicked one of his out and left Ontario with two. Billy McDonald gave Manitoba a two-shot in the next end but Perry Hall drew to the tee for a two-shot and his brother drew for another, freezing against his own stone, for the other three-end of the match.

Ontario appeared headed for another three-end in the fifth after Second Ernie Parkes rocked two Manitoba stones to lie alone. Hall raised it to three but Kennedy bumped it for one.

Kitchener recovered well in the sixth after Cam Seagram's lead stones ran into the hack. Parkes followed up nicely by clearing the house but McDonald and Kennedy raised and drew two. Hall knocked them out with one stone to lie three and recovered two after another Kennedy draw.

The Ontario win marked a new achievement in the sports sphere for Ernie Parkes who practised in curling the steadiness and precision he had as a member of the Kitchener Allan Cup champions of 1918 from whcih he graduated two years later to professional hockey with Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League.

The two Halls were active athletically as youths and learned their curling at Plattsville, Ont. Cam Seagram, lead for the rink, is an all-round athlete and went to England a few years ago with a Canadian cricket team. He played his first game of curling only four years ago.

First In Brier Play

Though it was the 41-year-old Kennedy's first experience in Brier competition, he played at Glenboro, Man, with Ab Gowanlock who skipped last year's Brier winner. Kennedy skipped a rink at 16 and learned the game before the stones of today were introduced. Billy McDonald, his third, skipped the rink to the British Consols final this year while Kennedy was ill. He played once with Ness Wise's famous Manitoba rink. Kennedy, McDonald and R. A. Hume, the second, have been playing together three years.

The two rinks topped eight others in the round-robin, winding up ahead of British Columbia and Northern Ontario, each with seven wins and two losses Saskatchewan won five, Alberta four, Nova Scotia three, New Brunswick two and Prince Edward Island one.

Quebec was the hard luck rink of the competition, winding up without a victory. Bob Cream's rink from the Quebec Curling Club forced British Columbia to an extra end and lost out in another match with Alberta in the last end after leading all the way.

The Brier will be held next year at Winnipeg. It always has been held here and will return to Toronto in 1941.

Remember When—

Thousands of sport fans filed past the body of Howie Morenz when it lay in state in Montreal Forum, scene of his greatest triumps, two years ago to-day. Making a comeback at the age of 35, the super-star centre of Montreal Canadiens was playing some of the best hockey in his 14-year National Hockey League career when he broke a leg in a game against Chicago and later died of a heart attack. More than 25,000 persons attended his funeral.

BASKETBALL MAKES BOW

LONDON—(CP)—First basketball played in Harringay Arena attracted 1,000 spectators. The floor was laid on top of the ice surface and raised after the game to permit public skating.

Canadiens' Capable Sub-Goalie

When Wilf Cude, regular netminder with the National Hockey league's Canadiens, sustained a cut eye in a game against Americans, Claude Bourque, ABOVE,, sprang into the breach and has been turning in great games with the usually short-handed Habitants, as they make a great late-season drive for the last playoff slot. Bourque had seen action in a number of games earlier in the season, but like the rest of the team at that time, looked none too good.

Canadiens Climb Into Fifth Place By Trouncing Wings 3-2; Bruins And Rangers Win 9-6, 8-3

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

What price fame, form and past performance as Montreal Canadiens go winging their way into hockey's Stanley Cup playoffs, the hottest team in the National League?

Two months ago Cecil Hart, recognized everywhere as one of the game's great leaders, was managing the Canadiens and they were threshing about in last place. Hart was fired and the fumbling Habitants were put under the direction of the club secretary, Jules Dugal, whose closest association with big-league action had been his front-office job.

Last night the Canadiens whipped Detroit Red Wings 3-2 at Montreal and climbed over the Wings into fifth place in the standings. With only three games to go, Dugal has the team almost safely inside the six-team playoff circle. The Flying Frenchmen, despite a run of injuries, have lost only one game in their last nine.

It is an awkward outlook for Hart, under whose guidance Howie Morenz became a peerless forward, Babe Siebert a great team leader and the Canadiens one of hockey's most colorful combinations. He was the restless type of manager, a hard loser and a conscientious strategist who lay awake nights when things weren't ging right. Dugal takes things more in stride and lets the players devise a good many courses.

Jimmy Ward

Blake the Pace Setter

But then the club has had Hector (Toe) Blake, the league's pace-setter in scoring who has brought back to left-wing play the art it lost when Harvey Jackson of Toronto began to slip. Blake has battled through everything and his work has taken its greatest effect since the rest of the team bgan to rally.

Toe was in with another valuable goal last night. It proved to be the winning one when Detroit scored the only third-period goal. Jimmy Ward, back in the lineup after a long absence, scored first for Montreal and Polly Drouin got the other Canadien counter after Hec Kilrea broke the ice for Detroit in the second. Kilrea fired the second Red Wing goal, too.

Montreal got the benefit of another good goal-tending performance by Claude Bourque, subbing for the injured Wilf Cude. All in all, Canadiens looked ready to do some spilling in playoffs. They can make sure of their place when they play in Detroit Sunday.

Tommy Anderson

Scoring in the night's other two games was away out of bounds. Boston Bruins and New York Americans set a season's record when the champion Bruins took down a 9-6 decision at New York, while New York Rangers drubbed the Black Hawks 8-3 at Chicago, driving them deeper into the cellar.

Bruins and Americans, usually hot duelists, didn't draw a penalty all night. They concentrated on fattening scoring totals, though Roy Conacher and Gordie Pettinger of Boston and Tommy Anderson of the Americans, were the only players to get two goals.

Clint Smith and Bryant Hextall picked up two goals each for Rangers and Johnny Gottselig got assists on all Chicago's goals, which came in the first nine minutes of the third period.

Havelock United Squad Whips Anglicans 6-4

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 10 — The Uniteds grabbed a two-goal lead to take into the second of a two game series with the Anglicans, for the Norwood district Sunday School league championship, when they defeated the latter squad by a 6-4 score, last night at the Norwood arena. The last game will be held sometime during the next week.

Closely matched the two youthful teams battled on even terms for three periods, the Uniteds tossing in two quick goals in the last few minutes of the final stanza for their slight margin.

The goalies were kept busy throughout both, O'Brien and Parcells pulling off some great saves. H. Rogers with three tallies, Johnson with two and Cole with one were all good for the Uniteds. D. Lemon, Godin, Webb, Rusaw and Andrews were most effective for the losers. Their goal-getters were D. Lemon 2, Innes and Godin.

The Uniteds got a soft goal early in the first stanza, H. Roger's shot being deflected into the net by D. Lemon's stick. The latter retaliated soon however to even it up on a passing play with Godin and Webb. A goal by Godin put the Anglicans in the lead by the end of the initial period.

Johnson tied it up again on a solo effort shortly after the start of the second. A penalty to Gardiner for tripping Rusaw, gave the Anglicans the advantage and they came back with another counter by Innes, following Godin's spectacular rush. This came with less than a minute to go in the middle frame, and the Anglicans were once more in the lead going into the final stanza.

Two quick goals by Cole and Johnson reversed the count early in the third. The squads were again deadlocked however on D. Lemon's tally halfway through the period. Battling for the breaks the Uniteds finally broke loose again scoring two quick ones just before the end of the game, H. Rogers notching both.

The Teams:

Uniteds: goal, O'Brien; defense, Gardiner, Darling; centre, Johnson; wings, H. Rogers, R. Rodgers; alternates, A. Brooks, Fennell, Longhurst, Cole.

Anglicans: goal, Parcells; defense, Andrews, Innes; centre, Rusaw; wings, Godin, Webb; alternates, H. Lemon, D. Lemon, D. Reynolds, R. Reynolds.

Referee: R. Ennis, Norwood.

Summary

First Period
Uniteds — H. Rogers.
Anglicans — D. Lemon (Godin, Webb).
Anglicans — Godin (Webb, Rusaw).

Maroons Here To Play Petes

Chatham Maroons meet the Petes here tonight (Friday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink in an O. H. A. senior "B" round-robin playoff game. Both teams need this win badly to stay in the senior running, each having dropped two of their scheduled six playoffs recently. The Petes feel they can knock off Chatham since the locals only lost a 5-4 tilt in Waterloo on Wednesday, while Chatham at home dropped a 6-3 decision to the Waterloo Tigers a week ago. Both clubs were beaten by the Falls by two goals. On paper, the Petes should shade the Maroons a trifle, but it is likely to be a sizzling struggle throughout, a typical senior playoff, and should draw a full house at the Brock St. arena this evening.

The probable Chatham lineup is: Goal, Haggerty; defence, Sadlier and Stoddart; centre, Lemski; wings, Burnell and Wilson; subs, Morrell, Merilees, Hinnigan, Ward and Hales. The Petes will likely ice the same squad that appeared here against Niagara Falls. The Maroons play rugged hockey in a lengthy Mich.-Ont. circuit against London, Stratford, Windsor and two Detroit outfits. They will play a bruising game in all probability here but the Petes showed they could take it against the Falls and Tigers, and they are desperately determined to cop this win. It'll be a grand game.

Cattle, Calves Ease Off But Hogs Go Up

TORONTO, March 10.—(CP). — Cattle prices were down about 25 cents cwt. on a slow Toronto livestock market this week with a moderate run cleared out by the close, the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves dropped 50 cents after a steady opening. Hogs were 15 to 25 cents higher with lambs 25 cents lower and sheep steady.

Weighty and heavy steers were slowest movers on the cattle division and some good steers were sold. Small lots of medium to good steers traded at $6.50-$7.25 and a small lot of choice heavies brought $7.75. Butcher steers and heifers made $5.50 for common up to $6.75 and $6.85 for a few tops, while bulk of butchers were from $6.50 downward.

Butcher cows were 25 cents lower at $3.50-$5, with canners and cutters at $2.50-$3.25. Good butcher bulls were steady at $5-$5.50 with bolognas holding at $4.50-$4.75. Fed calves ranged from $7-$8.50 with occasional tops at $9 cwt.

A few lots of stockers and feeders moved at $5-$6 cwt. according to quality. Milkers and springers remained dull at $40-$75 each for tested kinds.

Calves Up To $10.

Calves held to a general top of $10 until late Wednesday. The close was 50 cents off at $9.50 for tops with common lights downward to $5. A few heavy rough calves made $4.50 cwt.

Hogs opened higher at $9.15-$9.25 off trucks for bacons and gained to a general $9.25 Tuesday with a few up to $9.75, holding to the close. Sows were $5.25-$6.00 off truck.

Sheep and lamb receipts included 2,000 western offerings. Lambs were steady to 25 cents dow nat $8.50-8.25 for western, with one load at $8.75. Small lots of Ontario lambs went at $6.50-$6.75 according to quality. Sheep brought $2.50-$5 cwt. with light western ewes at the top figure.

Livestock branch, weekly summary:

House Approves

opened the debate on Feb. 14 and argument for and against the party has continued ever since, except for private members' days and the past week when other government business was advanced.

All Liberals who spoke of the agreement and so did most of the C. C. F. and Social Credit members who entered the debate. The Conservative speakers all attacked it.

Hon. H. H. Stevens (Con. Kootenay east) said the attitude of the House of Commons during debates was a serious reflection on democracy. He was speaking in the treaty debate and complained that Justice Minister Lapointe and Finance Minister Dunning, the only two Ministers in the House, were carrying on a conversation during his address.

"We were just discussing one of your points," said Mr. Dunning.

This did not satisfy Mr. Stevens who declared Mr. Dunning had a "bored expression on his face."

"I can't help it if my friend bores me; but I was listening to him," said Mr. Dunning.

"All right. I am satisfied with the Minister's answer; he is bored by my remarks," said Mr. Stevens. "I will just say this, that I have not seen such evidence of an attempt to howl down fair discussion by force of numbers in all my parliamentary experience as I have seen this session."

When the trade agreement was negotiated, the whole question of Canada's economic relations to the United States should have been opened up, said Mr. Stevens. If Canada continued as in the past, sooner or later this country would be completely shackled to the United States. Year by year Canada bought more from the United States than was sold to the United States and at the same time owed that country heavy interest charges.

"We have the right as one business man talking to another," he said, "to tell the United States that the only way we can maintain a liquid position is to sell them more goods."

Canada was the United States' best customer and the best debtor, and if the United States Government was approached in the proper way there was no reason why it should not give consideration to the situation. Unless the present relationship was reviewed, Canada would come under increasing economic strain as the years went by.

It was time Canada scrapped the most favored nation policy in making trade agreements, said the former Minister of Trade and Commerce. Under that principle 38 other countries obtained the same concessions in Canadian markets as the United States without giving any concessions in return.

Denton Massey (Con. Toronto-Greenwood) resented what he described as a suggestion from Prime Minister Mackenzie King that those who opposed the treaty were unpatriotic. He intended to vote against it but would take second place to no other member in "patriotism, love of the Empire, and love of peace."

The trade treaty would deprive countless Canadians of their jobs, he continued, citing the possible effect on a patent leather factory in his riding employing 150 persons.

"In the name of patriotism must these men give up their jobs?" asked Mr. Massey. "Must pet political theories and patriotism be mixed when men's jobs are involved, especially at a time like this?"

He submitted the Government would be making a real contribution to world peace by more closely uniting with the "Family of Emptre," giving the United Kingdom assurance of loyal support.

criticized for seeking action from the Federal parliament.

Recently there had been organized by the editor of a national newspaper a movement calling for leadership to deal with unemployment and other vital issues.

No Lack Of Leadership

"May I proudly say to the members of this House that there has been no lack of leadership in Ontario since the election of 1934," he said.

The editor of the Globe and Mail was congratulated "on his efforts to awake the citizens of this country out of their lethargy and indifference in respect of government."

Governments were criticized for not providing work for young people but, asked Mr. Hagey, were the managements of great industrial concerns doing their share or were they too much concerned with dividends? They might find themselves without trained help in the future.

"It is not inconceivable to believe that youth in desperation will seize upon a form of government not in keeping with the present system of dividends," he said.

Brantford was spending this year practically 5¾ mills on relief and payments of charges on obligations incurred because of the relief problem. He quoted figures on Brantford's spendings.

"And now what is our position? The evil effects of this system are being felt. Despite the present housing scheme, real estate development has come to a virtual standstill, real property has been taxed to the point of confiscation."

The taxation policy amounted to "nothing short of a penalty' 'on the small home owner who is endeavoring by thrift and saving to provide himself with a home. Social services and the relief of the unemployed is a common responsibility. There is no logic by which it can be argued that one section of our tax-paying public, the owner of real property, should be called on to pay these charges."

Scotia Tractor Plow Is Imported To Open No. 7A And Kawartha Road

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, March 10.— After several weeks of accumulating snow the Newcastle-Lindsay highway and No. 7A from Port Perry east was opened over the week-end while soft weather prevailed. Owing to the extreme depth of snow the large county plows were useless and an immense caterpillar tractor plow was secured from Nova Scotia.

Onlookers were amazed at this sample of modern invention which required a sixteen wheel trailer to convey it to this district.

The plow worked continuously night and day to finish the job. The banks of snow on either side of the road are so high that a man standing on a cutter cannot see over them and residents are wondering if during the spring thaws the roads will be raging rivers.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM J. RAY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 10 — After a lengthy illness, William James Ray, late residence between the Second and Third concession Sidney township, passed away in the Belleville General Hospital, on Wednesday.

Mr. Ray, who was in his 75th year, was born in Sidney township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Ray. For some years he resided at Melrose and for the past 30 years, he made his home in Sidney township. In religion, he was a member of the United church and highly esteemed in the community.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Emma Morden; one daughter, Mrs. Blythe Lehman, Nigeria, Africa; three sons, Edgar O. Ray, Sidney township, Kenneth R. MRS. THOMAS GUNTER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 10—A resident of Thomasburg, who went to the West and pioneered in Saskatchewan, Mrs. Elizabeth Gunter, wife of Thomas Gunter, Shaunavon, Sask., passed to rest on Thursday morning. She succumbed to complications following pneumonia, in the Shaunavon Union hospital, where she had been a patient for six weeks.

The late Mrs. Gunter was born at Thomasbur gon March 11, 1864, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Horton, who came to Canada from Dublin, Ireland. On March 5, 1884, she was married to Thomas Gunter, at Coe Hill, and they made their home in the vicinity of Thomasburg until going to Saskatchewan in 1913. They first engaged in ranching and later farmed in the Hillandale district of southern Saskatchewan, residing there until 1935, when they moved to Shaunavon. She was a member of L.O. B.A. and in the course of her lifetime, made a host of friends.

MORE RADIO CASES

Radio inspectors have not yet completed their work in this district and Thursday informations were issued against several county residents, charging them with operating sets without the necessary licenses.

WHITE GLOVES DAY

It was a case of white gloves for Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning. There were no city or county cases on the docket and the court attendants wandered away disappointed at the failure of the show to go on.

TRIAL TOMORROW

Arrested here last Sunday on a charge of stealing chickens, S. Mitchell and Arthur Langton face trial before Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in Cobourg on Saturday. The two were arraigned on Monday and at the request of the crown there was a remand until tomorrow.

HAS SECOND OPTION

That Cobourg is but one of two, if not more, places under consideration for the location of the new plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada is quite evident from the fact that the Company has taken options in Kingston Township (near the City of Kingston) and that the Council of that Township is submitting a bylaw to its property owners on March 27 authorizing a fixed assessment of $100,000.

RECORD SUPPORT FOR BYLAW

Property owners in Hamiltoh Township bordering on the town of Cobourg gave overwhelming support this week to a bylaw which would grant a fixed assessment to the Aluminum Company of Canada. The company plans to erect a large plant on the eastern boundary of Cobourg soon. There were 527 votes cast, and of this number 524 voted in favor of the fixed assessment, only three dissenting.

TRUCK AND CAR COLLIDE.

Meeting on a curve on the narrow road between Buckhorn and Lakehurst shortly before noon Thursday, a car driven by Max Kerneghan, and a Stock's Bread truck driven and a Stock's Bread truck driven by Burton Boomhower, 218 Sherbrooke Street, collided head-on and the fronts of both vehicles sustained considerable damage. Neither driver was hurt. The accident happened at a spot where there was only room for one car and no place for either vehicle to turn out. Fortunately, however, both outfits were moving slowly.

WORKED FOR SIR JOSEPH.

James Lynch, Hunter Street druggist, is among the old guard in Peterborough who well remembers the early days of Sir Joseph Flavelle. Mr. Lynch has special reason to do, inasmuch as he while a small lad, attending school, worked for Sir Joseph on Saturdays in the Flavelle produce store on Simcoe Street, where the gas department of the Utilities Commission now stands. Mr. Lynch says that Sir Joseph was a man of strong views on temperance and other matters and that he was courageous enough to always let the world know where he stood on these questions.

The local police department is not yet ready to begin the registration of revolvers and pistols under the Dominion regulations and the public will be given notice when the local listing of these weapons will commence. Owners of pistols and revolvers have until July 1 to register.

SELL-OUT EXPECTED.

Advance sales at Brock Street Arena this morning pointed to a complete sell-out by the time tonight's game with Chatham begins. Rink officials said that interest is at its highest pitch of the season despite the Petes' two previous losses. Crowds are apparently anticipating a break in the local team's play-off jinx.

NO CRIMINAL CASES.

Although no criminal cases are listed for hearing at the Supreme Court Jury Assizes, which open at Cobourg on Monday afternoon next, there are five jury civil cases and two non-jury civil cases. All indications are that the assizes, with His Worship Mr. Justice Kelly presiding, will take almost the entire week.

LINE-UP FOR LICENSES.

Chief Gimblett as president of the Peterborough branch of the Canadian Legion referred today to the manifesto issued by the National Veterans' Organizations calling for a nation-wide survey of "our ex-service personnel in Canada to reveal their number, location," and other details, and requested that all veterans in this area "get in touch" with him as soon as possible. Details of the survey and its purpose are published elsewhere.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS

Under new regulations for entrance class standing it is expected that many more county students will be required to write tests this year than has been customary. The examination consists of two groups and up to this year the first included hygeine, nature study and art and usually pupils were passed on these subjects by recommendation. Now, geography, history and other subjects have been added to the first group, making it more difficult and pupils who do not obtain standing in this group will not be allowed to write in the group two tests.

County Grant For Park Was Not Passed

There was a faint rumble of thunder on the horizon today when it became known that the County Council had failed to pass the usual grant of $100 to the city to assist in maintaining Victoria Park for the current year.

During the meeting of the Council in January so little was said of the grant that the significance of the move was lost but at the time it will be recalled the members expressed annoyance over the manner in which a large tree had been removed from the park. They also said at that time that another valuable tree had been materially damaged during the removing process.

Enquiry at the county clerk's office confirmed the rumor that the grant had not been passed but no record was written into the minutes as no motion was made during the Council meeting on whether any action would be taken or not. It was merely passed over and the usual motion granting $100 forgotten.

Further enquiry reveals the County Council members feel they have done their share in giving the city the use of the park and providing any permanent improvements that might be necessary, such as was carried out in 1938 when repairs were made to the concrete steps. Because of this the members evidently believe the city should bear any cost of maintaining the park, as the use made of the park by county residents is negligible.

Miss Batten, county clerk and treasurer, telephone S. R. Armstrong, city clerk, this week to notify him the grant had not been passed. She did not write a letter because no motion was put in the minutes of the County Council, and her action in telephoning was merely a gesture of courtesy so that the City Council could make provisions in their park appropriation for any additional sum which might be necessary.

Merely Oversight.

Alderman Walter Stocker, chairman of the Parks Committee, when advised of the action, was of the opinion it was merely an oversight and would be passed in the regular way at the summer meeting.

Commenting on the county councillor's reference to the removal of the large tree, he said two prominent citizens had notified him the tree constituted a hazard and on examination it was found the tree was rotten right up through the centre, and in danger of being blown down at any time.

"We removed the tree in the interests of safety and to eliminate any danger of someone being injured, and the county having to face an action for damages. In the spring of the year all being well we will plant four young saplings on the brow of the hill to replace the tree we removed," said Alderman Stocker.

He explained that the cost of removing the tree exceeded the grant given the city by the county for maintenance of the park.

Haggerty Sent To Nova Scotia

John F. Haggerty, who for the past few years has been a Dominion Department of Agriculture poultry fieldman for Central Ontario, has been appointed Senior Poultry Products Inspector, Marketing Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture for the Province of Nova Scotia. Mr. Haggerty who took over his new duties a few days ago, has his office in Truro, N.S.

Mr. Haggerty succeeds A. F. Curran, transferred to Toronto as District Poultry Inspector with the Province of Ontario as his territory.

Born in West Huntingdon in 1895 the son of Mr. and Mrs. R ichard Haggerty, the new Nova Scotian inspector served overseas for a period of four years with the Canadian Signal Corps. Shortly after his return from the war he became engaged in commercial poultry farming at West Hutingdon and in 1931 was appointed by the Dominion Depatment of Agriculture to the position of poultry fieldman for this district. Mr. Haggerty's duties in the maritime province wil linclude the administrataion of the egg and poultry grading regulations and directing the associated marketing activities in connection with poultry products. He is a nephew of County Treasurer James Haggerty.

Marmora Couple Wed 58 Years

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Mar. 10. — Mr. and Mrs. George Wellman, who have been residents of the village for over a quarter of a century, quietly celebrated the fifty-eighth anniversary of their wedding on Thursday. When residents of Lawdon Township they were married at the old Methodist parsonage, Marmora, by the late Rev. Mr. McCullough, who was resident pastor at that time.

In her younger days Mrs. Wellman, whose maiden name was Sarah Reid, was renowned as a cheesemaker and in later years when hostess at the Bell View Hotel at what is now Bonarlaw and also at the old St. James' Hotel, Marmora, was well known as an excellent cook.

A coincidence occurred near Bonarlaw on the eve of the fifty-eighth wedding anniversary, namely Wednesday evening of this week. A log house on the property of John Brown and occupied by John Arnold, burned to the ground. Its erection was commenced on the actual wedding day of Mr. and Mrs. Wellman.

Pioneer Passes 88.

On Wednesday of this week, Mrs. James Moffatt, who has resided near Cordova for the past ten years with her daughter, Mrs. William Hamilton, attained unto her eighty-eighth birthday. Her maiden name was Margaret Sharrow, and with her husband, the late James Hamilton, she was one of the pioneer settlers of Marmora Township.

In spite of her advanced age, Mrs. Moffatt is enjoying comparatively good health and takes quite an interest in local affairs. Her friends unite in extending congratulations and wishing her several more years of health and happiness.

Miss Bygott Wins

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 10. — Miss Kae Bygott was prize winner at the monthly meeting and social evening held by members of the Bemmerside Chapter I.O.D.E. on Wednesday evening. Miss Grace Irwin, Front street very kindly loaned her home for the evening and those who assisted the hostess were Mrs. C. Howard Davidson, Mrs. E. C. Roberts, Mrs. P. M. Locke, Mrs. S. A. Anderson and Miss Thelma Lowery. It was announced that the next meeting would be held at the home of Miss Eleanor Ferris, Saskatoon avenue.

Child Has Unusual Affliction

Three year old Donna Paton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Paton, McClennan street, has presented physicians with an unusual affliction. For some time she has been unable to swallow solid foods because of a constriction of the gullet. Doctors have tried various methods to dilate the throat opening. The little lady has no trouble speaking and today her mother said the child seems to be gaining in weight. The latest diagnosis is that the constriction is spasmodic and is caused by a nervous condition. X-ray pictures revealed her throat to be perfectly normal.

Every Farmer In Province Could Spend $1,000 Things He Needs Monaghan Man Says

The council of Hull county, Quebec, approved a resolution by the Rouville county council appealing to the federal government to fix the minimum price of butter at 25 cents a pound, and the minimum price of pork at 9 cents a pound. This petition is regarded as a reflection of an increasing sentiment throughout the agricultural industry to seek guaranteed values of their products with resulting increase in income.

"Every farmer in this province could spend $1,000 on things he needs and some other things which he is entitled to have," a North Monaghan man remarked to the Examiner today. "With 200,000 farms in Ontario that would mean an expenditure of $200,000,000, and think of what the effect of that injection of money into the busines sof this province would mean. The only reason it is not being put into circulation is because the farmers haven't got the money to spend. They need new machinery, improvements to their houses and barns, then general farm plant, new clothing for their families, yes and new cars, new radios and other things for their homes to which they are entitled. At present prices of products the farmer generally is barely existing, some of them are going behind, and that is the basic reason why they are turning to the idea of pegged prices. I am not saying that I am fully in agreement with the idea . I am simply not expressing an opinion, but merely pointing to a 'trend.'"

Small Girl Is Recovering

Three year old Donna Paton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Truman Paton, 15 McClennan street who has presented a problem to local doctors because of an unusual throat condition is believed now on the road to recovery.

Last November the child developed a sore throat and it was feared at first that diptheria might follow. The usual precautions were taken but the child was of such a nervous disposition that it is feared, swabbing of the throat and the child's fear of this practise brought about periodic constriction in the gulet, that is the gullet contracted in size so mugh that the child was unable to swallow solid foods. Living only on liquids she has lost considerable weight.

Yesteday she was taken to the Clinic where X-ray pictures revealed the throat was normal, and that has led physicians to believe the attacks are nervous spasms and that at times the gullet may be perfectly normal. They are treating the child and today she was able to eat some solid food by nibbling away for more than two hours at the noonday meal.

The child outside of being very restless is quite normal and cheerful and her mother told a reporter today, she believes the physicians are making good progress. She is an only child.

Lakefield Woman Recognizes Eighteen Of 24 Flowers At Sight To Win Prize

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 10. — "Dick, the amateur gardener," noted horticulturist of Hamilton, addressed a large gathering in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the local branch of the Women's Institute.

Dick, the Gardener, broadcasts daily from Hamilton, and is an authority on the care of flowers, plants, lawns, and shrubbery. He illustrated his talk at Lakefield with some really beautiful slides in natural colors.

Mrs. A. Davis introduced the speaker, who commenced the program by throwing on the screen twenty-four pictures of familiar garden plants which the members of the audience were asked to name. A prize for the most plants correctly named went to Mrs. T. W. Chaplin, who recognized eighteen out of the twenty-four varieties shown.

Stresses Food and Soil.

The horticulturist then gave an informative talk on garden plants, stressing the necessity of having the proper kind of food and soil. He spoke of many varieties of roses and those suitable for growing in this locality. He threw on the screen pictures of many dahlias, including one which had been named after himself, and of many beautiful gladioli.

He discussed the care of shrubs, explaining how to trim them properly, showed how houses can be made more home-like by the judicious selection of shrubs, vines, and flowers.

Hamilton's Rock Garden.

Beautiful views of the rock garden at Hamilton were thrown on the screen, as well as views of smaller private rock gardens. Dick the Gardener showed how the addition of evergreens greatly improves a rock garden, making it attractive both in winter and summer, how pools may be installed inexpensively.

The meeting concluded with a question box, in which members of the audience stated their plant problems.

Following the problem, Mrs. (Rev.) W. B. Walker moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, seconded by Miss M. Sanderson.

Lucky door prizes were won by Mrs. W. B. Walker, Mrs. J. Huddlestone, Mrs. Ivan Madill, and Arnold Graham.

German Is Given Title Of Father Of Radio

"Marconi is vastly overrated when he is spoken of as the father of radio," said J. R. Dunn, of the test department of the Canadian General Electric Company, Toronto, in his paper on "Radio Aids to Aerial Navigation" to the Engineering Institute here Thursday night.

"In my opinion Marconi was an opportunist who realized the advantages of radio and its possibilities, jumped into the picture and succeeded in its practical development. We owe Marconi a great debt because of his vision and also for his energy in pushing forward his efforts resulting in the development of radio in our time."

Mr. Dunn said the German scientist Heinrich Hertz probably deserved the title of father of radio. Preceding Marconi by many years he proved the correctness of mathematical deductions made before his own day as the basis of a theory that there must be electromagnetic energy and the medium to transmit it.

Mr. Dunn shared the program of the annual junior branch night with B. K. Scarlett of the engineering department of the C. G. E. in a three hour session of complementary addresses on the subject of radio. Mr. Scarlett spoke on "Radio Fundamentals". Arthur Girdwood, chairman of the students and junior branch of the Institute, presided.

Riding Radio Beams

Both young men presented their subjects in an exceedingly thorough manner, Mr. Scarlett explaining with numerous drawings the technical facts and details of electric energy, electrons and protons; magnetic fields and so on through the features of radio transmitting and receiving apparatus, vacuum tubes, grids, plates, selectivity and all the other phases of radio practice today.

Mr. Dunn's address was an application of radio principles to aviation. At the outset he explained by analogy that radio energy is transmitted into the ether by antennae somewhat after the manner by which light is radiated from an electric bulb. By shifting a shade over the bulb its light can be projected in any desired direction.

"Rays from an antennae do almost the same thing with radio energy," Mr. Dunn said. Loop antennae were adopted because it was found that the radiation from the old straight type was not uniform, just as an electric bulk cannot project light in the direction of its base.

As another analogy Mr. Dunn said that a ship at sea at night could determine its position by triangulation from three beacons on shore, if they could be seen, and by radio beacons and beams airplanes could be located or locate themselves, with al lthe marvellous development of remote control by which planes could be brought in by robot pilots. Plans are guided today in regard to three dimensions in space, their lateral relation to the landing field, their distance from the field and also their altitude, and how all that is done, is too technical for any layman to attempt to explain, and besides it would require a whole booklet.

"With such juniors," said W. T. Fanjoy, president of the Peterborough branch of the E. I. C., "the seniors will have to look to their laurels." He congratulated both Mr. Scarlett and Mr. Dunn on the broad scope and interest of their addresses.

Banquet Is Held By Ushers' Club

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 10. — "If I had a Scripture basis for my talk it would be 'where there is no vision the people perish'" Rev. G. R. Duncan, Warkworth, told a gathering of youths at the Young Ushers' Club Banquet held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday evening. Rev. Duncan, clerk of the Peterborough Presbytery was principal speaker at the banquet staged as a preliminary to the organization of the club which is to meet either fortnightly or monthly and will form an outlet for the discussion of topics of vital interest to young men as well as offering limitless possibilities for work in the Church itself. "Boys of this age should be visionary and should realize the part that is expected of them trying always not to have this trust misplaced." The speaker made quite clear that he did not share the view held by many that the present generation is hopeless declaring that "most youths are wholesome and circumspect" and many of them are taking a keen interest in the things which really matter.

Rev. B. Simpson Black, the chairman of the evening extended a hearty welcome to the boys and to the guests of the evening.

Speaking on behalf of the Municipal Council His Worship Mayor F. F. Long brought greetings from that body and wished the newly formed organization every success. He felt that an organization of this type would be of real value to the boys. Councillor J. R. Battisby who was also present briefly offered some good advice on character building, and R. N. Morrison gave an interesting address in which he re-counted his experiences on his recent visit to the West.

The toast to the King was proposed by Hector MacMillan and the toast to the club made by Morley Peeling and R. E. Rutherford.

Defence Minister

General Casado, defence minister in the new Spanish Loyalist government, headed by General Jose Miaja, veteran defender of Madrid, announced that the revolt of Communists in the Loyalist ranks had been quelled. General Casado declared that the revolt had been inspired in an attempt to prolong the war in opposition to General Miaja's proposal for "a worthy peace."

Plan To Adjust School Fairs To Curriculum

Plans for adjusting school fairs to the new school curriculum of studies that went into effect a year ago were considered at a conference of district representatives of the Department of Agriculture and Public School Inspectors from the same area of central Ontario at the office of F. C. Paterson here Thursday.

School fairs are to become a joint enterprise of the two Departments, and are to be brought into closer practical relation with agriculture and rural life, Mr. Paterson told the Examiner today in a report of the meeting.

Chief Inspector Present

Twelve School Inspectors attended, including R. F. Downey and Leo Copp of the Peterborough district and the agricultural representatives were E. A. Summers of Durham, Ian MacLeod of Northumberland, Fred J. Webster of Prince Edward, H. L. Fair of Hastings county, C. W. Buchanan of Lennox-Addington, M. H. Winter of Victoria and Mr. Paterson, with V. K. Green, Chief Inspector for the Department of Education, and Norman Davies, Inspector of Agricultural classes.

Individual competitive classes for grain, roots, livestock, poultry, flowers, vegetables will be continued as formerly, but not for ordinary school class work such as writing, art, sewing, cooking, scrap books which are to be shown in future only as part of the school exhibit.

Non-competitive exhibits will be arranged to cover one or more of such subjects as health, natural science, arts, crafts, English social subjects and so on.

Suggested Discontinuance.

The Department of Agriculture has been considering a change in school fair policy for the last year, and at one stage it was suggested that they be discontinued entirely. However, the Minister Hon. P. M. Dewan disapproved of that proposal, and agred that increasing the responsibility of the School Inspectors, and linking up the fair objectives more definitely with agriculture features are to be supervised by the Agricultural Representatives, and academic features by the School Inspectors.

DIED

SCOLLARD, William.—On Thursday, March 9, 1939, at his home at 189 Mark Street, William Scollard, beloved husband of Catherine Harrington, in his 64th year. Funeral on Monday at 8.45 a.m. from the family residence to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Requiem High Mass at 9 a.m. Interment at St. Martin's Cemetery, Ennismore.

Wm. Scollard Dies Suddenly In His 64th Year

Widely known in this district for his work in the interests of the Liberal party, William Scollard died at his home at 189 Mark street late yesterday afternoon. He had been in failing health for the past five years, but his death was unexpected, coming after a sudden attack Thursday morning. He was in his 64th year.

Mr. Scollard was born in Ennismore and spent all his life in this district, where he had countless friends. He was a son of the late James Scollard and Mary Ann Young of Ennismore, and grew up in that community. He farmed near there for some years, coming to Peterborough in 1914. In this city he was first agent for the International Harvester Company, and later travelled for the same organization throughout this district, becoming widely known in the rural section of the county through this work. Later he was a salesman for the Carbo Engineering Company. His health failed five years ago and forced his retirement from active business life, although he continued his deep interest in politics. It was in this phase of his life that perhaps more people knew him than in any other. He was a staunch Liberal, and worked in the interests of his party to the utmost of his ability.

He was a member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of the Holy Name Society and of the Knights of Columbus.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Catherine Harrington, and eleven children. His six daughters are Mrs. H. J. Denault, Mrs. Peter Ayotte, Miss Agnes Scollard, Miss Joan Scollard, and Miss Marie Scollard, all of Peterborough, and Mrs. H. J. Thomas of Cleveland, Ohio. His five sons are William F., Claire, Gordon and Paul, all of Peterborough, and James of Ottawa. Also remaining are nine sisters, Mrs. William Harrington, Miss Mary Scollard, Mrs. W. D. Cavanagh, Mrs. John P. Flood, and Mrs. T. T. Crough, all of Ennismore, Mrs Charles Connelly of Calgary, Alta., Mrs. William Hoolihan and Mrs. M. A. Spang, both of Grand Rapids, Minnesota, Mrs. Patrick O'Connor of Toronto; and one brother, Frank Scollard, R.R. 9, Peterborough. Three grandsons also survive.

The funeral service will be conducted on Monday morning at 8.45 o'clock from the family residence to the Church of the Immaculate Conception for Requiem High Mass at 9 o'clock. Interement will be at St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

1,278 Fur Farms Listed In Ontario

OTTAWA, March 10—(CP).—Fur farming in Canada reached unprecedented heights in Canada during 1937, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics said in a report issued yesterday. Fur farms increased from 8,142 in 1936 to 9,179 in 1937, more animals and pelts were sold and despite a decrease in prices total revenues rose to $6,810,386 from $6,359,210.

All provinces except New Brunswick and Quebec reported a greater number of farms. The number of farms with figures for 1936 in brackets showed Ontario 1,278 (1,170).

Ontario was the leader from a value standpoint. Value of fur-bearing animals on Ontario farms was $2,085,875. Quebec following with $1,797,806.

Number of pelts sold from fur farms totalled 259,870 valued at $5,779,498 compared with 215,950 for $5,708,438 in 1936.

British House Hears Echo Of Bren Case

LONDON, March 10—(CP Cable)—Canada's Bren Gun inquiry was mentioned in the House of Commons last night when Lieut.-Commander Reginald Fletcher, Labor, spoke on the army estimates. He expressed doubts the machine-gun is as efficient as war office officials have stated.

Mr. Fletcher wanted to know what royalty was paid to the Czecho-Slovakian firm which holds the patents on the Bren gun. He had seen £5 (approximately $23.50) mentioned.

"Previously in this House," Mr. Fletcher continued, "I have quoted a cost of £76 a gun and a profit of £53,400 on an order of 7,000 guns placed by the Canadian Government and I was not contradicted. These figures are colossal.

"Are the cost and profit on guns manufactured in this country of the same magnitude? Who receives this money, these royalties? Are any of them (recipients) British subjects? there have been changes recently in Czecho-Slovakia. Are any of these individuals Germans? Are these royalties now going into German pockets?

"As these guns are being manufactured in Canada for the Canadian Government and British Government, as well as in this country, it would be interesting to know the difference between price and profits in these three separate categories of orders.

"Could we have the results of the judicial inquiry which has been held in Canada into charges of profiteering on Bren Gun contracts?

"Has the Company which received the contract on 7,000 guns for Canada and 5,000 for Great Britain been found a reputable firm? Has this firm contracts with the War Office now? If so, is everything satisfactory?

"The Times reports of the debate in the Canadian Parliament really hinted at more than dishonesty having been revealed in the judicial inquiry in Canada.

"My information is that the Bren Gun was adopted hastily when it suddenly was realized in 1932 that the army still was equipped with the obsolete Lewis Gun."

Proud Parents See Their Quads For First Time

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Badgett, wearing antiseptic masks, are shown here as they were permitted to see and fondle their quadruplet daughters, born a month ago at St. Mary's Infirmary in Galveston, Texas. Mrs. Badgett is holding little Jeraldine, while Joan, Jeanette and Joyce ignore the performance in their cribs. The quads were born a month before schedule, but have thrived steadily since birth.

Debate Enjoyed By Marmora W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 10.—Marmora Women's Institute held their March meeting on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. H. W. Sabine, with an attendance of twenty-nine, which was particularly good in view of the prevalence of colds.

Mrs. James Gordenier, president, occupied the chair, and conducted the business portion of the meeting. It was decided to hold the April meeting on the first Wednesday instead of the second, so that the reports necessary to be made before the annual May meeting might be completed. It was also decided to write Mrs. Chester Sills, the district president, to be present for her yearly visit at the May meeting.

Mrs. Gordon Jarvis gave a splendid account of the month's current events, after which Mrs. Urena Pinner, the local Institute's oldest member, acted as chairman for the remainder of the program. Incidentally March 18 is the eighty-fifth anniversary of her birth. A paper on the motto for the month, "Make new friends but keep the old. The new are silver, the old are gold," was given by Miss M. Brown.

A lively debate, "Resolved that the grandmother was better fitted for housekeeping than is the modern girl," followed, resulting in a win for the negative side, with Mesdames F. N. Marett and E. I. Gale acting as judges. Mrs. Pinner sang a solo, "Grandmother's Advice," and it received hearty applause. As she took her seat, an address was read to her and a box of candy presented as a birthday gift. Seven grandmothers next gathered around the piano and sang "When You and I Were Young Maggie." Mrs. F. N. Marett followed with an appropriate reading, "What She Remembers," and a game. "What grandmother missed," closed the program.

The committee served lunch and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Homer S. Martin, one of two rival United Auto Workers' presidents, is carried on shoulders of admiring delegates at a convention called by Martin in Detroit. He was wildly cheered as he denounced John L. Lewis, C.I.O. chief. Martin said he would let the convention decide whether the U.A.W. should return to American Federation of Labor.

Hon. Robert Weir Taught In Marmora

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 10.—News of the death of the Hon. Robert Weir was received with deep regret here. About thirty years ago he was a teacher at the Marmora Public School, and among the middle-aged residents of the village to-day are many who recall him for his kindliness of manner and leadership in juvenile sports. While in the village he boarded with Mrs. Hugh Jones.

His visit to Marmora during the period he was Federal Minister of Agriculture, after an absence of many years, was one of the red-letter days in the history of the village, all his former friends availing themselves of the opportunity of his handshake and the sharing of reminiscences.

Red Revolt Rises In Five Zones

HENDAYE, France, March 10—(AP)—The Spanish Communist revolt against the peace-seeking government of General Jose Miaja was reported today to have spread from the Madrid zone to five other centres of Republican Spain while snipers still harassed the capital.

Confused reports reaching the border indicated the four-day Red Revolt was far from being suppressed despite an announcement last night by Miaja's defence council that the Communist General headquarters had surrendered.

A Madrid radio station interrupted a program of recorded dance music to broadcast the official announcement of capitulation by the headquarters and 14,000 Communist soldiers who survived aerial bombardment by Miaja's planes.

But advices early today indicated Miaja's troops and Communists were fighting in Guadalajara, Murcia and Ciudad Real, while isolated groups of Reds were holding out at Valencia and Cartagena.

The government, in censored dispatches from Madrid, acknowledged that fighting still was going on in the Capital. Troops from other sectors had been called to Madrid to aid in suppression of the revolt.

Dispatches from Burgos, Nationalist Capital, said fugitives from the war-within-a-war at Madrid still were filtering through the machine-gun cordon Miaja had posted.

Upon reaching Nationalist siege lines just outside Madrid, they reported the Miaja - Communist struggle had taken a heavier toll than Nationalist shellings.

Snipers, barricaded in houses in the centre of Madrid, were said to be picking off members of Miaja's patrols. Miaja's soldiers and their enemies, erstwhile comrades in the defence of Madrid against Nationalist siege, were virtually the only persons on the streets.

Havelock H. & S. Play Nets Society $9

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Mar. 10. — Need of co-operation between religion and education was expressed by Rev. D. K. Perrie during his address to the Havelock Home and School Association at their meeting on Tuesday evening. Mr. Perdue's inspiring talk was listened to by an appreciative audience.

With Mrs. George Rigby, president, in the chair, the meeting opened with the singing of "O Canada" and the Lord's Prayer. During the short business session it was reported that $9.00 had been realized from the play. Mrs. H. Pollock offered her home for the purpose of quilting the High School quilt, which the ladies of the H. and S. have undertaken.

The following numbers were included in the interesting program: Vocal solo, "Marching on Parade," Miss Verna Isaac; reciation, "Months of the Year," pupils of Miss L. Wing's class; song, "Night Caps," pupils of Miss M. Roche's class; drill by Miss Roche's class, accompanied by piano ("Pop Goes the Weasel").

Inspector of Public Schools L. W. Copp stated that he was pleased with the work of the Home and School Association, saying that they were of assistance to the school in general. Bernard Smith, chairman of the Public School Board, also spoke to the assembly.

A program committee appointed during the evening consists of Mrs. A. McLauchlin, Miss L. Wing, Miss M. L. Roche, Mrs. H. B. Puffer and D. C. Wrinkwalter.

The monthly Parent Attendance Shield went to Miss N. Watson's class, and was presented to her by Miss V. Robinson. The question box, a regular feature of the meetings, introduced several interesting queries, to which different opinions were voiced.

The meeting concluded with prayer by Rev. D. K. Perrie. Guest speaker next month will be Rev. Father Carroll of Norwood.

Threshers Rally

SARNIA, Ont., March 10.—(CP).—Delegates to the convention of the Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen continued their sessions today with a varied agenda including demonstrations and talks. Reports of committees and election and installation of officers were listed near the end of the program.

Mayor Norman Perry extended an official welcome to delegates last night. Response on behalf of the association was made by E. S. Down of Shedden.

Harvey Council Borrows $5,000

BUCKHORN, Mar. 10—(Special).—The March meeting of the Harvey township council was held on Saturday in the True Blue hall with all members present, Reeve Wallace Shearer in the chair.

By-law 530 was passed giving the reeve and treasurer authority to borrow the sum of $5,000 from the bank in Bobcaygeon to meet current expenditures of the township.

On motion of Councillors Brock and Haines the treasurer was authorized to pay the auditors $10 each and ten cents per mile one way.

The clerk on motion of Councillors Irwin and Elliott was instructed to write the Old Age Pension Board in connection with a Harvey township pensioner.

The council accepted the offer of Rev. Mr. Gillion for timber on Concession 19, between Lots 29 and 30. Three years was given to remove the timber.

On motion of Councillors Haines and Irwin it was decided to hold the council meetings in the future on the first Saturday of the month.

The following accounts were ordered paid: W. R. Thompson, voucher No. 2, $123.15; Municipal World, supplies, $25.41; Dr. E. E. Willis (medicine for Mrs. B.), $8.00; M. B. Hall, salary, $1500; W. A. Nesbitt & Sons (funeral expenses re Mrs. Sheldon), $55.12.

Stage Door Fracas Leads To Court

LOS ANGELES, March 10 (CP)—Stories of a stage-door slapping involving two dancers and a Hollywood promoter came under the eye of the city attorney's office today.

Cliff Henderson, who promoted the first national air races here, was ordered to answer tomorrow charges of Vivian Coe, a chorus girl, that he knocked her down outside Earl Carroll's theatre restaurant.

Henderson said he had been to dinner with another dancer in the show, Louis Burnette, who also does a whistling specialty and is known for her long, dark tresses. They returned to the stage entrance and were conversing, he said, when Miss Coe walked by.

"A moment later Miss Coe returned," he continued. "She said something about wanting to give Miss Brrnette and me a piece of her mind, then hauled off and tcok a swipe at my chin. I raised my arm to protect myself. As I did, she ran off screaming that I had hit her."

Miss Coe, who hold such titles as "Miss Los Angeles," "Queen of the National Air Races," and "Queen of the International Festival and Water Sports Carnival," said that as she passed the couple, she observed Miss Burnette was wearing a sweater which belonged to her (Miss Coe) and stopped to protest. Henderson, she charged, slapped her.

Holm Challenges Rand To Contest

NEW YORK, March 10—(CP)—A curve-and-contour contest between Eleanor Holm, orchidaceaus swim star, and Sally rand, eye-catching nude rancher, was proposed by the former today to decide which is the fairest attraction for the New York World's Fair.

"The tape measure will tell the bare truth," declared the former olympic swim champion.

Eleanor is scheduled to headline an aquacade at the fair. Sally's "D-nude ranch" is packing them in at the San Francisco fair but it appeared this week she had failed to interest the New York Fair in a bevy of Rand rancherettes (undraped).

Revealing her challenge to the Press, Eleanor said: "This is to be a streamlined fair and Sally undoubtedly knows I can appear in daylight and don't need two 24-foot fans to hide my figure."

While the controversy raged and everyone admitted it was swell publicity for all concerned, the aquacade promoter wired Dorothy Lamour of the films an offer to appear in the role of a mermaid at the fair. The suggestion was that she swim in a glass tank, sans bathing-suit. The last word from the svelt Miss Lamour was that she "wasn't sure."

Cottesloe Society Finishes Bale Quilt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COTTESLOE, March 10. — Mrs. Johnson Blakely was hostess to the W.M.S. on Wednesday afternoon when they quilted a quilt for the bale, and held their March meeting. The theme of the meeting was "The Church of the Warm Heart," in charge of the president.

The roll call was answered by twelve ladies and two visitors.

An invitation to attend a meeting in Norwood on April 20, when a missionary from Africa will be present, was read.

The study book was taken by Mrs. McDonald, parts given by Mrs. Freeburn and Mrs. Forsyth.

Mrs. John Gallagher rendered a solo, after which Mrs. George Barr gave the Bible reading, with an explanation of it by Mrs. Joseph Golloher.

Arrangements were made for the April meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. John Gallagher, the roll call to be "An Easter Verse."

The meeting closed with a hymn and prayer, after which a pot-luck supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Blakely, Margaret and Evelyn, of Campbellford, were Wednesday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Blakely.

Mr. and Mrs. George McNaughton and family, of Peterborough, have moved to their farm at South Dummer.

Badminton Club's Social Gathering

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 10. — Over twenty members of the Garrison Badminton Club were out on Monday evening for the usual play, followed by the monthly social gathering in the club lounge upstairs.

Hostesses were Misses Thelma Ball, Ruth Thorndyke, and Gladys Williamson. the tea table being covered with a lace cloth centred with a pot of pink petunias in full bloom on the reflector, with tall pink tapers burning in bronze holders, and the service entirely of silver.

Tea was poured by Miss Thelma Ball, the gentlemen assisting the other hostesses in the service of the guests being Jack Turner and Howard Lancashire. The social evening on the first Monday in April will conclude these special features for the current season.

Detroit Fights Bill For "Free" Bridge

LANSING, Mich., March 10 (CP).—Detroit city council representatives today fought a bill before the Michigan legislature that would have the state purchase the Ambassador bridge, across the Detroit River linking Detroit and Windsor, and eventually turn it into a toll-free bridge between Michigan and Ontario.

The Ambassador Bridge Company now is in process of reorganization and its shares are valued at about eight cents on the dollar. The bill would pay about 25 cents on the dollar for the shares.

Detroit is opposing the bill because the city would lose $4,700,000 in tax revenue during the 894-year life of the bridge.

Library Books Left Scarlet Fever Homes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 10. — More than ten dollars worth of books belonging to the Public Library may have to be destroyed as a result of the scarlet fever epidemic which quarantined 14 houses and closed schools here for two weeks. Discussing the subject at their monthly meeting members of the board felt that although the matter rested with the M.O.H. it was deemed likely that he would order the books which were in homes where there was any infection destroyed. A resolution was passed recommending that the books in question should not be returned to the library until instructions from the M.O.H. were received. It was decided that applications for the position of caretaker would be received. Chairman of the board, Harry Townsend presided for the meeting and other members present were A. T. Linton, E. Brunelle, R. Weston, Rev. J. V. McAuley, and Rev. B. Simpson Black.

Lindsay Resident Dies Suddenly

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 10 — "I wonder if Andy got his World's Fair going," were the last words of James Windrum, seventy-year-old Lindsay resident, who died suddenly as he was listening to his radio on Tuesday night. The deceased, who a few minutes before had been to a neighbor's for a pail of water, was sitting with his granddaughter before the radio when he was seized with a heart attack. He resided in Lindsay practically all his life, and is survived by his wife and two sons.

Agent Resigns.

A. F. MacDonnell, who has held the position of local freight and passenger agent for the C.N.R. in Lindsay for the past twelve years, has resigned his position. He commenced his railroad career 47 years ago as a weigher, moving to Brechin and thence to Stirling. He is succeeded by W. R. Thomas, former Mayor of Deseronto.

Children's Coughs Quickly Relieved

It is hard to keep the children from taking cold; they will run out of doors not properly clad; have on too much clothing and get overheated and cool off too suddenly; they get their feet wet; kick off the bed clothes at night. The mother cannot watch them all the time, so what is she going to do?

Mothers should never neglect the child's cough or cold, but on its inception should procure a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. It is so pleasant to the taste the youngsters take it without any fuss.

Boy Survives 20-Foot Crash Onto River Ice

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 10 — Suffering from a badly fractured left thigh after he had broken through the guard rail on the Lonsdale bridge over the Salmon River with his sleigh early Wednesday evening, and crashed through the ice twenty feet below, tiny Angus Haight, six years old of Lonsdale, retained sufficient presence of mind to crawl from the water through the hole he had made in the ice, and shout feebly for help.

A nearby neighbour, Wm. McGuinness, hearing the weak cries of the lad, assisted him to his home where first aid was immediately rendered. He was later removed to Belleville General Hospital.

The boy had been riding down the steep hill near the village of Lonsdale and had been unable to negotiate the turn at the bridge. Racing onto the bridge, the sled which became out of control coasted through the protective railing precipitating the youthful rider to the ice below. Though knocked breathless, and almost unconscious from the shock of concussion, the boy retained his feeble hold on the jagged edges of the hole made in the ice by the impact of his body, later managing to crawl to the surface, and shout for help.

Considerable surprise was expressed by the residents over the fact that the boy survived the shock of plunging through the solid ice into the water, then having strength with which to rescue himself.

Injured In Crash

When the automobile in which he was riding skidded off the icy highway a few miles south of Madoc on Wednesday afternoon, Herman Woodcock, Bancroft resident sustained serious spinal injuries and was removed to the Belleville General Hospital. The injured man is suffering from a dislocated neck at the base of the skull and a fractured neck in a position slightly below the dislocation.

The accident was investigated by Chief Danford, who found the highway slippery at the point where the automobile had left the road and turned over.

Curses Nearsightedness

Nearsightedness is preventable by minor changes in diet—in some instances with only greater use of table salt, according to Dr. Emanuel M. Josephson, of New York. He says glandular disturbances are the prime cause of the affliction.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—(Advt.)

Scared By Bell On Neck Gobler Vanishes, Gets Hanged In Bush

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Tweed, March 10—THE MYSTERY of the disappearance last spring of a pure bred bronze turkey gobbler from the farm of George Campsall of the Enterprise district has at last been solved.

The gobbler was in the habit of straying from the Campsall barnyard, and it was decided to put a bell on his neck.

No sooner had the turkey been released with the bell on him, when, frightened to took to the air and flew out of sight. A search was made all over the locality but no trace found.

Working in the woods on the Campsall farm not far from where the frightened bird sailed away, hired men found the body of the gobbler hanging by the neck from the branch of a tree. A small dead limb had slipped under the strap which was holding the bell as the turkey came down and the bird had hanged.

MILLBROOK

Group Leaders Are Announced

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Marche 10—Taking up the theme, "Learning to live together," Mrs. Irwin Hatherly took charge of the program at the March meeting of the W. M. S. of St. Andrew's church on Wednesday at 3 p.m. Mrs. L. W. Smith reading the parable of the Great Surprise (Matthew 25), and the leader covering the chapter from the study book on the subject mentioned.

A duet, "The Church by the Side of the Road," was sung by Mrs. P. Stinson and Mrs. Hatherly, as a fitting climax to the study period, while in the devotional section, under the caption, "The church of the Warm Heart," Mrs. Muspratt led in the special season of prayer, after silent prayer for one minute by all present.

Mrs. Stinson received the offering, and Mrs. J. McKnight offered the dedicatory prayer, and also brought a message on Christian Stewardship, reading the story "A previous engagement."

Leaders Named

The president, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, took the chair for the business period, reading the names of the groups as rearranged at the recent executive meeting under the leaders; A. Mrs. I. Hatherly; B. Mrs. M. McDowell; C. Mrs. J. W. Hamilton; D. Mrs. T. H. Aiken; E. Mrs. W. C. Fallis; F. Miss Mary Widdis; and G. Mrs. P. Stinson. Group B. will take the April meeting.

The matter of securing an assistant leader for the Mission Band was left with Mrs. Stinson, and the president and two vice-presidents were appointed a committee to arrange for a speaker for the Easter thankoffering service.

Mrs. Spence, supply secretary, sent word as to the meeting of the requirements for the bale, which must be ready for June first, including three sweaters, mufflers, and pairs of mittens; new and second hand clothing, and quilts; also Christmas gifts. Arrangements were made for the work on the articles mentioned, and the meeting closed with the benediction by the leader.

Janetville Guild Has Fine Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILE, Mar. 10.—The meeting of the Young People Guild was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wright on Monday night, with twenty members present.

The president, Bryce Capstick, was in the chair and after the devotional exercises the topic, "Fellowship with Jesus," was ably dealt with by Mrs. H. Solverson. "Have Thine Own Way" was the title of a vocal duet sung by Misses Verna Wright and Norma McGill. A humorous reading was given by Jimmie McGill and a solo, "I'll be a Sunbeam," was sweetly rendered by little Verna Mae Allison.

The program closed with a guitar and mouth organ selection by Leonard McNeil, followed by a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

Y. P. U. Meeting.

"Radio Programs and What They Do To Us" was the subject of an interesting address given at the regular meeting of the Y.P.U. at the United Church on Monday night by Percy Hamilton, principal of South Janetville Public School. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Muriel English and the comment given by Miss Audrey McKay.

During the business session it was arranged to have the next meeting in the form of a St. Patrick's party and social evening. The president, Roy Marshall, principal of Bethel School, presided.

Company Seeks To Build Lines

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, March 10. — A bylaw was given first and second readings at the monthly meeting of the Manvers council permitting the Woodbridge and Vaughan Telephone Company to erect and maintain telephone lines in the township of Manvers. On motion of Councillor Payne and deputy reeve Boggs third read was laid over until the next meeting of the council.

On receipt of a letter from the clerk of the village of Omemee about an indigent who formerly came from Manvers on motion of deputy reeve Boggs and councillor Payne the clerk was authorized to notify the treasurer of Omemee that Manvers would assume 40 per cent of the charges made.

The treasurer of Fenelon township wrote asking what the township intended doing about relief for the Bell family who formerly came from Manvers. The council decided to notify Fenelon that it has reconsidered its decision to move the family and will pay its share of the relief as ordered by the deputy minister of Public Welfare which will be 40 per cent for January, February and March and 20 per cent for future months if family is actually in need.

H. R. Ryan wrote re a survey of the township for better conservation of soil and water supply and on motion the letter was laid on the table.

On motion of councillors Gray and McGill cheques were ordered drawn on the municipality to pay the following accounts.

Municipal World, seven subcriptions $6.86; Barnard and Co., dog tags $11.88; Ed. Youngman, trustees requisition, S.S. No. 8 $200.00; Jas. Cruikshank, trustees requisition, S.S. No. 9 $250.00; John Payne shovelling snow for the county $21.88; H. M. Richardson, relief for indigents $31.86; W. H. Hooper $8.00; A. McMahon $16.00; Lorne Brown $8.00; Treasurer of Omemee $7.10; Treasurer of Fenelon township $8.28; A. B. Sisson, Rd. Supts. vouchers No. 314, $447.50; W. Jas. Boggs, expenses to municipal convention $12.00.

The council adjourned to meet again Thursday April 6th.

Overheated Pipes Blamed For Fire

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, March 10 — The house occupied by Marvin (Johnnie) Arnold one mile North of Bonarlaw on highway No. 14 burned to the ground on Wednesday night. The cause was apparently overheated stove pipes. Many neighbours attracted by the flames were soon on the scene and a score or more men assisted in carrying out the contents which were mostly saved. Mr. Arnold was eating a lunch when a crackling sound drew his attention to the fire, but for lack of plenty of water he was unable to extinguish the flames. The house is owned by John E. Brown of Springbrook.

Letter Comes Back

STROUDSBURG, Pa., March 10. —(AP).— A letter dispatched by carrier pigeon from Chester, Pa.—some 100 miles away—returned by mail, because somewhere en route the pigeon was killed by a hawk. Peter Devore saw the hawk on a fence and killed it with a rock. He found the pigeon in the hawk's claws and returned the letter.

Degenerate Changes Produced By Use Of Alcohol

Degenerative changes are produced in the brain, kidneys, liver and heart by the chronic use of alcohol, Dr. Bob Young told members of the Kinsmen Club in an address on "Alcoholism" in the Empress Hotel Thursday night.

"Overindulgence in youth is an attempt to throw off restraint and in old age it is a disturbance of the psychic senses and personality" said the speaker. He went on to tell the audience of the different forms of alcoholism putting them in two general groups, the acute and the chronic forms.

"Persons who take over one or one and a half ounces of liquor daily will develop chronic alcoholism, and degenerative changes are produced in the brain, kidneys, liver and heart, but in some individuals the degeneration centres on certain organs."

Mental Sluggishness.

"Other results from regular use of alcohol as in chronic cases is mental sluggishness, a gradual change in character. A few have morning sickness due to chronic gastritis and some an unsteadiness in gait and a trembling of the hands. This is sometimes cleared by taking more alcohol".

"The dipsomaniac is the fellow who goes on periodic sprees and the next most severe case is the patient who develops delirium tremens. The latter is an acute insanity characterized by a delirium, marked restlessness and hallucinations of sight and hearing. The danger lies in the fact that pneumonia often develops while they are in this condition. The cure is to provide sedatives until the patient sleeps and does not wear himself out with restlessness. Other medicinal products are used to counteract the alcohol in the patient and sometimes the medicine is given intravenously." Dr. Young said that 90 per cent of the pneumonia cases which develop delirium tremens die.

Disease of Liver

Speaking on the ill effects of alcoholism, Dr. Young pointed out that the chronic drinker invariably develops cirrhosis of the liver, a condition which cannot be cured and which eventually causes death.

He dealt briefly with the recent use of tests in police work to determine the alcohol content in the blood stream of a motorist suspected of being intoxicated. "The intensity of intoxication is roughly in the ratio of the amount of alcohol in the brain.

The brain content of alchol is not above the blood content so that the content in the brain can always be judged by the amount of alcohol in the blood stream. Individuals having below 0.1 per cent alcohol in the blood show no intoxication. A real narcotic effect is seldom seen until the blood content is 0.25, although the effects of intoxication rises gradually as the alcohol is increased from 0.1 per cent.

The speaker was introduced by Emmett F. Sheehy, who headed the professional men in the club in looking after the evening's program.

Dr. Harold Worton and Ted Borbridge spoke in expressing the thanks of the club, and the speaker of the evening answered all questions directed at him by the members.

President Don Scott stressed the fact only ten days remain for the selling of tickets and he exhorted the members to bear down and put the objective across. Sale of tickets judging from the reports was very brisk.

Pasteurization Has Fight In Montreal

MONTREAL, March 10—(CP). — Compulsory pasteurization of all milk entering the city will result in hardship to a number of farmers and dairies and deprive customers of the opportunity of obtaining "special" milk, a delegation protesting proposed changes in the milk by-law told members of the Montreal executive committee yesterday.

The delegation, including farmers, doctors, lawyers, dairymen, a Roman Catholic brother and a provincial agronomist, asked that special unpasteurized milk be allowed to continue to enter the city.

Alderman J. H. Delisle of the executive committee, who introduced the group, said enforced pasteurization would put a number of men out of work and would react to the benefit of the big milk companies.

"Our family lived in the country —we were 14 children—and we were all healthy and never sick on unpasteurized milk," he said.

"I am a farmer's son," said Senator Andre Fauteux, adding pasteurized milk was not to his taste. "On conditions of surveillance, I fail to see it is in the interests of the city to impose pasteurization on special milk."

Brother Aloys said he was not against pasteurization, but did not think the special milk, coming from a few farmers near Montreal, should come under the ban.

"Our farmers have enough hardship without having a campaign against them," he said. "It is a crime to pasteurize our good special milk. That is not progress, but a backward step."

U.S. To Push Training Of Plane Mechanics

WASHINGTON, March 10—(AP). —The United States government's plans are complete, authoritative sources said today, to train additional aviation mechanics to build and service the thousands of new warplanes provided in the country's defence program.

The army expansion bill voted by the Senate and the House of Representatives contains sufficient authorization to go ahead with the instruction as soon as President Roosevelt signs it.

Supplementing proposals to train some 20,000 pilots annually in selected colleges, the mechanics program has been delayed largely because a half dozen government agencies besides the army and navy were involved.

Details were withheld, but well-informed administration and congressional sources reported far more mechanics than pilots will be required in expanding the army air corps to 5,500 or 6,000 planes and building up the navy's force to 3,000 aircraft.

Senate and House have authorized an increase of 25,000 enlisted men in the army air corps. Plane construction in the next two years will require doubling or tripling the 27,000 skilled workers now employed in plane factories, it was estimated by Major General Henry Arnold, army air corps chief.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FORTY-NINE

"WHAT EXACTLY happened after I fainted?" I asked Phil and Mac.

"You darn near ruined the works, girl!" Mac rebuked me. "Ellis and Phil and myself were hiding across the hall, in the drawing room. When the gun went off we rushed out and you fell on top of us. Horace then turned the gun on himself. Before he registered the fact that the bullets were harmless we had him. But," he added ruefully, "it wasn't for long. He must have had the cyanide capsule concealed in his pocket. He swallowed it before we knew what he was doing."

"What made you suspect him in the first place?" Phil wanted to know.

"He was the logical candidate for suspicion, Benson. In fiction the murderer is always the character with no apparent motive or opportunity. In real life this is not the case. I never believed Richard guilty, though for a time I had doubts about Daphne. I think I began to suspect Horace from the moment he hired me."

"But why," I questioned, "did he hire you if he were guilty?"

"Because, Elsie, he was clever. He was positive I'd never unearth enough evidence to convict him. If he had let well enough alone, he would be alive today. But the cleverest killers overdo things. They get to stewing and fussing and to thinking that maybe they have overlooked something. Horace thought that if he could fix it to look as if he, too, were a victim, he would automatically be crossed off our lists of suspects. Again, aside from confessing his own guilt, there was no other way in which to free his son. He knew that if he could make it appear that the murderer was still in the house, Richard would be freed."

I sighed: "At least Daphne won't have to marry the count now."

"No." He smiled. "The last I saw of her she was weeping in Jeffrey Todington's arms."

"Mac!" I said. "What about the cigaret tissues?"

"Ah! The tissues were a puzzle. They weren't cigaret papers, and that's where we made our mistake."

I regarded him in amazement: "Not cigaret papers?"

"I hold that mistake against you, girl! A beauty expert—not to recognize their significance!"

"Oh!" My eyes threatened to pop from my head. "I know!"

"It's about time!"

"They — they're lipstick tissues! Women use them instead of their fingers to smooth rouge on their lips!"

I demanded: "Where did you find them?"

"Where do you suppose? Who was a nut on cosmetics in this house? I found them in the top drawer of the dressing table in old Mrs. Witherspoon's room!"

"Old Mrs. With—" My eyes did pop from my head.

"Yes, sir, Elsie! That's where I found 'em!"

"And Count Orsini? How does he fit into the picture?"

"He's explained all that. It seems that the count was in the room one day when Horace called to pay his respects to his mother. The old lady was painting her lips. She asked Horace to get the tissues from the dressing table. Orsini claims he saw Horace slip the packet into his pocket. And," he added, I think Eliza saw, too. She was present at the time."

"I have an account to settle with visiting royalty!" Phil rubbed his head. "How did he happen to be so handy the night he tapped me on the beano?"

"According to his story, he 'accidentally' overheard you two in the salon. I have my own opinion, but that's his story and he's stuck with it."

I questioned: "Did Mr. Horace put the tissues back in the dressing table—afterward?"

"He must have done so, Elsie," Mac replied. "He probably figured that he wouldn't be looking for them in his mother's room and he was right."

"What about Eliza?" Phil asked presently. "Was she on to his game?"

Mac nodded. "Eliza, who never came into the case, was a key factor, nevertheless. She had been with the family for years. She knew that Mrs. Witherspoon was a sick woman, and she knew why she was a sick woman. But she did not know how. So she watched over her and refused to allow a doctor to examine her charge. She had a misguided sense of family loyalty."

"I don't understand." I was becoming more and more confused.

Mac explained: "Mrs. Witherspoon, Elsie, was being poisoned. For a period of many months she was being slowly poisoned by her son."

"Then she didn't die of cyanide fumes?"

"Oh, but she did! Circumstances arose that made it necessary to kill her off at once. Originally, I think, the plan was to have her die a slow and apparently normal death. The slow poison method has its advantages. Day by day the old lady grew weaker. The family believed that she was dying of heart trouble. It believed this so implicitly that even when she died suddenly beneath the drier there was no suspicion that her death was other than normal. Eliza doubted; she paid for her doubts."

I shuddered. "Then Mr. Horace killed her, too?"

"Yes. I think she must have been on her way to tell us of her suspicions when she was killed. Horace saw her heading for the first floor. He had no weapon at hand, and he was worried. He had to take a chance that a fall down the stairs would kill her. He pushed her and fled; unfortunately Richard appeared on the scene at the wrong moment.

"Of course Horace knew all along that Eliza was dangerous; but he counted on keeping her quiet until the police left the house. He was doping her. Unfortunately for Eliza the dope wore off before Horace got around to giving her another shot."

"Oh!" I exhaled loudly. "He must have been panic stricken to find her alive at the foot of the stairs!"

Mac agreed. "I fancy he spent a bad hour or so before she died. Of course she did give us a hint, but the police took it for granted that she was accusing Richard when she whispered: "He did it!"

"This slow poison method," said Phil. "How was it worked?"

"At the autopsy, Benson, Didmore found, along with the cyanide, traces of arsenic in the body. Particularly, these minute particles were in the skin tissue. It wasn't until I put two and two together, or, in other words, until I connected Daphne's midnight visit to the salon, the missing bottle of beauty mask and the arsenic in the skin that I had the solution to that part of the mystery."

"Clever!" Phil wagged his head. "Damned clever!"

"Please," I begged, "please won't you begin at the beginning. I'm all muddled."

"All right, girl," Mac consented, smilingly. "Here's the story, and it goes back a long way. It goes back to the birth of the murderer. Horace was an only child. His parents were strong, stubborn individuals; he was a weakling. He was reared by nurses; he was educated by tutors. At eighteen he waged a losing battle to enter medical school. He lost as you know. Later his mother built a laboratory for him. It was not enough.

"When he was twenty-one his mother married him to a mate of her choosing. It was an unfortunate marriage, for his wife was as weak as himself. The years passed. Horace, Sr., died. And he left his millions to his widow—in trust for his son! Thereby he sowed the seeds of murder!" Mac paused a moment, then continued:

"True Mrs. Witherspoon was generous according to her lights. She made Horace a suitable allowance, but she insisted upon regulating not only his life but the lives of his children."

"Nice old gal!" Phil threw in.

"Go on!" I urged. "What then?"

"Well, Elsie, a man can store up steam for just so long. Horace got tired waiting for his money. He began to poison his mother. Then, as I have already mentioned, circumstances arose that required desperate measures. Horace was in the habit of making periodic trips to New York. On one of these trips he met Della Craig. Now Della insists that she didn't know Horace was in love with her, but I'm inclined to think she's lying. A woman usually can tell when a man is in love with her. At any rate, she was sure enough of his affections to approach him for backing for her play.

"Horace attempted to borrow the money from his mother. His son, Richard, meantime, was playing HIS game. The old lady refused to grant either request. And thus she signed her death warrant! The occasion of the house party afforded a perfect opportunity for the crime."

Far in yon azure deeps,
Hide, hide your golden light!
She sleeps!
My lady sleeps!
Sleeps!"

And how gaily in "Jenny Kissed Me" Leigh Hunt writes of love:

"Jenny kissed me when we met,
Jumping from the chair she sat in;
Time, you thief, who love to get Sweets into your list, put that in!"

For sincere, vital affection—"All Paths Lead to You" by Blanche Shoemaker Wagstaff. It ends—

"All paths lead to you
Where e'er I roam.
You are the lark-song
Calling me home!"

DOROTHY DIX

WE WERE discussing the unfaithful husband, which is a topic that is as old as the first marriage and as new as the last wedding. A woman who had a calm and philosophic face and weary eyes said:

"Every one sympathizes with the wife who has a philandering husband, but I think he is the one to be pitied. Take my case, for instance. As you all know, I am married to a woman-chaser, who is always in the midst of some messy love affair out of which he frequently extricates himself with difficulty and danger. He has lost my love, although I once adored him. His children are ashamed of him because they think he makes himself ridiculous by acting like a lovesick boy. Every one who knows him looks upon him with contempt, for fat, middle-aged Romeos are figures of fun instead of heroes of romance.

"When he grows old he will come crawling back to me, but he will be an outsider in his own home, and there will be between us none of the love and faith and nearness that a husband and wife should have. So I say I have the best of the bargain, because I have the devotion of my children, the respect of our friends and acquaintances and the solace of a clear conscience. Believe me, the philandering husband is more to be pitied than the forsaken wife. He throws away so much for so little."

True, of all of the losing trades that a man ever makes with the devil, the one in which he gets the worst end of the bargain is when he exchanges loyalty to his wife for extramarital love adventures.

Aside from all question of morality and honor and honesty and the sufferings that are inflicted upon an innocent victim, the man himself is sure to have to pay so high a price for his folly and is so certain to lose out in the end that it is a marvel that any one is stupid enough to make such an unequal trade.

For every one of us knows that the finest, cleanest happiness that ever comes to us lies in our domestic relationships. The poorest man who goes home at night, after his hard day's work, to a happy, cheerful, peaceful home has the thing that counts most in life. The millionaire whose home is a place of strife and bickering has nothing.

The man who has the devotion of a wife whose whole heart is bound up in him and who would stand by him though all the world turned away from him has the best gift that God can bestow. The man whose wife has ceased to love him has not even a broken reed upon which to lean in time of trouble. The man whose children are proud of him and look up to him and boast of him drinks the headiest brew of fame. The man whose children despise him and are ashamed of him sips gall and wormwood.

Every man knows these things. He knows the price he has to pay for philandering. He knows how men scoff at the amorous weaklings who fall for every petticoat that crosses their pathway, and how they ridicule the Sugar Daddies who still think they are romantic Romeos after they have only become meal tickets to gold diggers.

He knows that the philanderer lives in constant anxiety lest his hole-in-the-wall love affairs be discovered and he figure in a messy scandal and divorce suit, lose his home, his children and his prestige in his business or profession.

He knows that the philanderer breaks his wife's heart by his infidelities. That he tortures her with jealousy. That he kills her love for him and her faith in him. That he makes his home a place of tears and recriminations and reproaches and robs it of all happiness. That he slays his children's respect for him and makes them ashamed of the name they bear.

The philanderer knows that at last the time comes when every philanderer tires of the love chase, when he is too old and stiff to dance and boughten kisses have lost their flavor. He would like to return to the bosom of his family and be loved and cherished through his old age. But he finds a cold welcome. He has put out the fire on the hearthstone with his own hands and he cannot blow the dead ashes into flame again. His wife has grown indifferent to him. He has no part in his children's lives.

And he is left a lonely old man who is merely tolerated by the family he has neglected. So you are right in saying that the philanderer is to be pitied. For his follies he has to pay and pay and pay.

DEAR MISS DIX—When I was 15 years of age I was influenced by some girl friends to run off with a man I absolutely knew nothing about and marry him. My parents had the marriage annulled and I finished school and business college and got a good job. Seven months ago I married a man with whom I am desperately in love. I still hold my job, do all my housework, pay my share of the bills and take care of him as if he were an infant. We would get along all right together except that he continues to nag me about my being divorced, which he knew all about before we were married, until I am a nervous wreck. Please advise me what to do. I would like so much for my second marriage to hold. DISCOURAGED.

ANSWER:

All you need is to spunk up and have enough backbone to read the riot act to your husband. Tell him that you are not going to be nagged to death for your childish escapade, and that the very next time he mentions divorce to you you are going to put on your hat and leave.

Just call his bluff. He doesn't want you to leave because you are too useful to him and make him too comfortable. A working wife who not only babies her husband, but does the cooking, the washing and scrubbing and pays most of the living expenses is a treasure that any man would stick to. Besides which, you furnish him with a target on which he can vent his spleen when he feels ill-tempered or lacks diversion. Then he can stir up the animals by reproaching you with your divorce.

Don't stand for it. If you submit to it now it will get worse and worse as time goes on. If you don't stop it now you will have to endure it the balance of your life, and there is no sense or profit in being a martyr.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Things aren't always what they appear to be," Mr. Punch was saying to Knarf and Hanid the other night in the playroom. It was after bedtime and the children were already fast asleep. But Knarf and Hanid were the children's shadows. They hardly ever slept.

"What do you mean by that?" Hanid asked.

"Well," said the puppet — that was Mr. Punch—"take a piece of coal, for example."

"You mean coal that burns in a fire? Regular coal?" Knarf said. Piece of Coal?

Mr. Punch nodded. "That's exactly what I mean. Now you'd think to look at a piece of coal that it was nothing but—h'mm, a piece of coal. Isn't that so?"

"So you see, my dears—"

The two shadows said yes, that's what they thought a piece of coal was.

"And there's where you're wrong, my dears. A piece of coal is nothing more or less than a piece of wood."

"A piece of wood, Mr. Punch?"

"Long ago," said Mr. Punch, "long ago that piece of coal was part of a tree growing in a great forest. Maybe it was the root of the tree, and maybe it was the trunk or one of the branches. But whatever it was doesn't matter. What is important is that one day that tree fell over and lay on the ground. A great many other trees in that forest had also fallen over and also lay on the ground. Some were old trees and some had been blown down by the storms. Then little by little the ground covered them, more and more and more, until finally they were deep, deep under the ground."

"And they just stayed there?" Hanid asked.

"Yes, they just stayed there. And the ground over them was so heavy that it pressed down on them with a terrible weight. And they were squeezed hearder and harder until gradually they became as hard as stone, black stone. And that black stone which used to be a piece of wood in a tree is what we now call—"

"A piece of coal" the two shadows shouted.

Mr. Punch smiled. "So you see, my dears, things aren't always what they appear to be. Which is what I started to say in the very beginning."

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 11.

Another extremely lively and eventful day, judging by an interesting chain of astral aspects, is forecast. There may be drastic and decisive action in business, as well as high pressure excitment and activity in the private relations. All pertaining to writings, publishing, promotional enterprises, selling and contracts are under high stimuli, and in the home there may be the excitement and stimulation of social or romantic festivities.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for an extremely happy, joyous and possibly hilarious year. Business should move at high pitch. The private life may be the scene of festive and exciting adventures, probably in connection with marriage, engagements or other romantic experience. It is a very auspicious time for literary or publishing endeavors.

A child born on this day may be splendidly gifted in the realm of art, music, literature and even business of a commercial nature where such talents are assets.

Looking Back On This Date

Sir John Macdonald never lost an opportunity to play a card which he thought would help him in winning public support. An illustration of this is given in a letter written by the then prime minister to Archbishop Taschereau of Quebec, on March 10, 1886. Having heard unofficially that Monsignor Taschereau was to be created a cardinal, the first in Canada, Sir John first tendered his congratulations and then took credit that in "my humble way I had something to do with calling the attention of the Vatican to the subject. When I spoke to the Marquess of Salisbury, then prime minister, he entered warmly into the proposal, and advised me to see Cardinal Manning, with whom I had the honor of a previous acquaintance. He at the same time told me that through the Duke of Norfolk, the leader of the English Catholics, he would move Cardinal Howard, who was then at Rome, to press the claims of the diocese of Quebec and of your grace as the incumbent of that historic diocese, to the position of cardinal."

Sir John was at that particular time facing the full effect of the agitation in the province of Quebec against the execution of Louis Riel the previous November and needed all the support he could secure, and could not resist adding a sentence to his letter quite plainly intended for dissemination: "I hope that all the good Catholics of the Dominion will appreciate the honor conferred upon them by your elevation."

But though the sentiment was widely published in Quebec province it did little to stay the flood of that nationalism which the next year captured the government of Quebec and brought plenty of trouble for the Conservatives, both federal and provincial.

China reports that while Japanese captured 15 railways, China still has seven.

Lemons Check Pain of Rheumatics in 48 Hours

Oh, what joy awaits the sufferer from rheumatic or neuritis pain who uses this simple inexpensive home recipe. Just get a package of the RU-EX PRESCRIPTION from your druggist. Mix it with a quart of water, add the juice of 4 lemons. It's easy. No trouble at all and pleasant.

You need only 2 tablespoonfuls two times a day. Often within 48 hours—sometimes overnight — pain leaves, stiff joints are limbered. Try this doctor's prescription. Feel good, years younger, enjoy life again. Costs only a few cents daily. Money back if it does not help you. For sale and recommended by McDermid & Jury's Drug Store.

Nervous? Headaches?

WOMEN who are nervous, weak, or have headaches or backaches may need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It calms the nerves, benefits the female organs, improves nutrition. Mrs. Harry Simon, 9 Walter St., Brantford, Ont., says: "I was weak, didn't sleep soundly and at times my stomach would become so upset that I could hardly eat. I would have nasty headaches and be so nervous sometimes that I could cry. But Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription made me feel like a new woman. It stimulated my appetite, I had no more trouble with my stomach and regained my normal weight and strength." Get it in liquid or tablets from your druggist today.

We Noticed

....That looking ahead to spring needs, an enterprising button and novelty jewelry house is working with some fabric manufacturers to develop buttons which harmonize with prints that will be used in spring dresses.

....Examples of the co-ordination include colored metal buttons with hand-painted flowers on them, the colors and the flowers adjusted to harmonize with selected prints. Plaid buttons, in colors taken from this season's new plaids.

...Silver-colored buttons painted with "subject" motifs such as tiny checks, masks, human figures, etc. Pottery buttons in authentic Mayan designs colored in shades to go with the grounds of summer prints. Sound interesting, don't they?

St. Patrick's Tea Is Delightful Event

A delightful St. Patrick's tea was held at the new Queen Elizabeth school on Thursday afternoon under the auspices of the Home and School Association. Guests were received by the president, Mrs. A. Brown, and Mrs. O. Deyell.

The tea table was covered with an Italan out-work cloth, and gay with a silver basket of spring flowers. Tea was poured by Mrs. R. Parnell, Mrs. L. M. Richardson, Mrs. R. Batten, and Mrs. H. Tremain. Mrs. W. Frise acted as tea room hostess, and Mrs. E. W. Boyer was in charge of the home cooking booth.

General conveners were Mrs. S. Christmas, Mrs. H. O'Neill, assisted by Mrs. S. Davis, Mrs. T. Davies, Mrs. A. Gray, Mrs. Wm. Rome, Mrs. E. E. Brumwell, Miss M. Jackson.

WONDERING WHAT

SINGAPORE—(CP). — With the Sultan of Johore building himself a new palace Singapore gossips are wondering whether he is about to take a new Sultana, in place of Lady Helen, whom he divorced last year by saying "Talak" ("I divorce") three times.

REPEATED BY DEMAND

You won't saunter in the monastic dress. There's something about generous, unpressed pleats which enlivens your step, makes you feel days younger, and look it.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The monastic dress has passed its nightshirt days. Spring's versions have no hint of bulkiness, due to thin, chiffon wools, clinging jersey, sheer monotone or printed silks, and cleverer detail in design. Still in all, there's lots of swish to the skirts, perfect under the new coat silhouette, which is on smooth-shouldered, loose lines.

The frock sketched buttons down the back, and has an accommodating neckline for costume jewelry. It's made in all of the materials mentioned above, and in scads of colors. A shirting edition is due this summer.

Golden Wedding Is Observed At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, March 10. — Fifty golden roses in a large bowl formed the principal decoration at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Saunders Free, Hastings road, who on Tuesday celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Free were married in Seymour township at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. James Sloggett, and have resided here since that time. Countless friends visited the celebrants at their home during the day to offer their hearty congratulations, and each guest was registered in a book in the hall, where Mrs. E. Sloggett met the guests. Mrs. H. O. Richardson conducted the guests to the living room and Mrs. Henry Free assisted in pouring tea from a silver tea service on a table laid with a beautifully embroidered cloth with pink tapers in silver candlestick at either end, and a profusion of spring flowers. Others assisting in serving were Miss Grace Payne, Mrs. Marshall West and Mrs. Fred Free. Mrs. Walter Goven received the guests at the door.

Fashions

Here's the wool jacket suit that is a leader in spring fashions. You can wear it right now under your winter coat....or take it south, or for cruise wear. It's a perfect all-around jacket with its action-pleat back to pair off with other skirts or sports frocks. All your lovely sweaters will make grand toppers for the skirt. Such infinite variety to answer all your needs for an active country or town life....at a budget price. The pattern can be used again and again for separate jackets or separate skirts of wool, linen, sharkskin, hopsacking, etc.

Style No. 3332 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 2¾ yards of 54-inch material with 1⅝ yards of 39-inch lining.

Mothers' Auxiliary Plans Social Evening

A successful business meeting was held by the First Company Mothers' Auxiliary to the Girl Guides in the Lyceum Thursday evening. Arrangements were made for a social evening to be held in the Lyceum April 13, the proceeds to be used for Girl Guides and Brownies. Mothers and Guides are asked to note that in the plans for this evening the Auxiliary needs their loyal support.

Mrs. P. Hooper delighted the mothers with several violin selections. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke. Regrets were expressed of the illness of the district captain, Mrs. R. Whalon. Refreshments were served after the meeting by the Girl Guides.

Eldorado Wins Hastings Cup

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Mar. 10.—In the final of a three game play-off series, Eldorado defeated Queensboro by a 3-2 score in the Madoc Arena to take the Central Hastings Hockey Cup for the second time in as many years. Queensboro took the first game 2-1 and Eldorado the second by a 3-0 count.

Playing a bruising type of hockey in which anything can happen, the winners had slightly the edge of the play on the night's game. Martin in goal for the winners deserves a good deal of the credit for the win, while the local High School line of Stewart and the Thompson brothers, along with Morrison were standouts. For Queensboro, K. Rollins, Sexsmith, Groves and G. Sager went best.

After the game, the cup was presented by H. Rollins to A. Martin, the manager of the Eldorado team.

E. Alexander and K. Heyworth handled the game, in which no penalties were handled out.

Summary:

First Period

Queensboro—Groves (Barry) .. 7.00
Eldorado—Empey 19.30

Second Period

Eldorado—F. Stewart 3.00

Third Period

Eldorado—F. Stewart 12.00
Queensboro—Sexsmith 18.00

The teams:

Eldorado—Goal, Martin; defence, Hagerman and Blakely; centre, F. Stewart; wings, Morrison and Pegden; alternates, F. Thompson, J. Thompson, Empey, Holmes, D. Stewart, Latondress, Shaw.

Queensboro. — Goal, Lapam; defence, K. Rollins and Groves; centre, F. Thompson; wings, Sexsmith and G. Sager; alternates, Love, Genereux, Albert Sager, Allan Sager, E. Rollins, Bery, McMurray, Allare.

Goodyears Meet Devils Saturday

TORONTO, March 10—(CP).—The Ontario Hockey Association, convinced it has something better than anything it has turned out in years, sends two great clubs at one another in Maple Leaf Gardens tomorrow to determine a representative for Dominion playdowns.

The O.H.A.'s senior "A" champions, Toronto Goodyears, take on the loudly-heralded representatives of the association's affiliate, Kirkland Lake Blue Devils of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association. They meet in a best-of-five series that will open before the biggest crowd to watch senior hockey here in many winters.

There will be a second impact here Monday. Then the teams move to Kirkland Lake for a third game Wednesday. Fourth and fifth games, if necessary, will be played in Kirkland Lake Friday and Toronto the following Monday.

CURLING

By HERB. MARTIN

By eleven o'clock to-night we expect to reach the finals in the vice-skips' bonspiel. It has now become a wide-open event and you can pay your money and take your choice.

When last night's games were concluded it was found that two of the rinks that won group honors in the schedule were eliminated. Some of the rinks that were conceded a good chance were also retired—and on the other hand rinks that have not been going so well all season are in there fighting for supremacy.

The finals of the Sturgeon Trophy (primary event) is being played this morning between Miss Littlefield's rink and Miss Russell's rink.

In the consolation, the semi-finals are on, with probably the finals being played this afternoon. The draw is:

Mrs. R. Turner—Mrs. H. Dulmage.
Mrs. G. Wood—Mrs. J. Bruce.

Don't forget the 'spiel to-morrow at 1.45 p.m.

The best one we've heard for some time was pulled yesterday morning. First curler: "And how did you make out in your last game?" Second curler: "Oh, we played and lost. How did you make out?" First curler: "Oh, we just lost."

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS.—Manager Oscar Vitt said today he was giving Roy Weatherly, speedy Texan, first chance at the Cleveland Indians' centre field job. Earl Averill, who patrolled the centre garden until an injury forced him to give way to Weatherly late last season, is still a holdout. Jeff Heath of Fort William, Ont., is sure of left field and Ben Chapman is likely to start in right if Weatherly makes the grade, Vitt indicated. Otherwise, Chapman will go to centre and Bruce Campbell or Julius Solters will be in right.

LAKELAND, Fla.—The Detroit Tiger squad is to be split into two sections today with the first intra-game being staged. Manager Del Baker said the contest would be six innings. The Tiger squad was expected to be complete with Shortstop Billy Rogell and Outfielder Red Walker due in.

TAMPA, Fla.—Manager Bill McKechnie is not one to worry over Johnny Vander Meer's wildness just yet. In yesterday's family party Vandy worked three innings, pitched to 14 men, walked five and went to three-two on five others. McKechnie only remarked that it took the double no-hitter of last season a long time to warm up and said he would have better control this year than last.

SARASOTA, Fla.—There wasn't a drink of water to be had on the Boston Red Sox bench today. "What's the sense of sweating-off two pounds or so in a hot workout and then putting it right back on by drinking water every five minutes?" asked Manager Joe Cronin. Athletes can have water but only if willing to walk to the distant clubhouse.

PSYCHOLOGICAL SCORES

STOKE, England—(CP). — Relegated to the reserves because of lass of form, Freddie Steele, Stoke City's international centre-forward, tried auto-suggestion treatments and regained his position, scoring nine goals in four soccer games.

Whitby Defeats Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 10. — Harold Dunk's Midget hockey squad dropped a 5 to 3 victory to Whitby in the first game of the home-and-home series which will decide which of the two teams will go on into the finals for the Harry Nixon Trophy. Playing a breezy style of hockey both teams gave a good exhibition, and although the locals drew first blood the visitors pulled into the lead at the end of the first and held it for the balance of the game.

During the opening stages, the visitors looked the best, keeping the edge on the play which was carried well into Campbellford territory by MacCarol, Johnson and Burkart. It appeared as though Dunk-coached team had forgotten just about everything they had been taught about playing combination hockey, and the solo efforts of Lambert and Storie were unrewarded. A somewhat looser defence than the visitors was partly to blame for the visitors scoring, while the efforts of Brown and McLean, burly Whitby defencemen, saved the day for them as they broke up the O'Rourke, Fraser rushes with flashy forward and back checking.

Summary.

First Period.

1—Campbellford, Thompson .. 6.35
2—Whitby, Johnson (McLean) 14.00
3—Whitby, MacCarol (Willis) . 17.42
Penalties—Hendricks, Moore, Burkart.

Second Period.

4—Whitby, MacCarol (Willis) . 4.15
5—Whitby, Johnson (B. Burkart) 15.23
Penalties—None.

Third Period.

6—Campbellford, Dunk (Storie) 6.18
7—Campbellford, Storie 7.32
8—Whitby, Willis (Burkart) .. 18.13
Penalties—Burkart, Dunk, Johnson.

Referee—Jack Sleightholm.

Whitby — Goal, D. Freeman; defence, Brown, McLean; wings, B. Burkart, Willis; centre, MacCarol; alternates, P. Burkart, Johnson, Dalby, Town, Lynn, Spratt.

Snow Boys Win From Hurons

The Peterborough Canoe Shop League ended up the 1938-39 hockey season Wednesday evening at the Brock street rink when the fast Snow Boys defeated the Hurons for the league title 7 to 5.

The game was a fast and lively battle all the way, both squads playing with all they had. The heavy checking combination of the Snow Boys completely baffled the Hurons. Many times through the struggle the score was tied and both goalies had their hands full. The Hurons put on the pressure in the second stanza, to keep the Snow Boys defence busy but the brilliant playing of Boulter, Richardson and Ego for the Snow Boys, saved many a bad situation.

Reader, Miller, Willshaw and Mongraw, starred for the Hurons making some goal getting displays but lacked the punch to capitalize on them at the right time.

Both Hunter and Bullied the two net-guardians stopped some hot ones through this hectic struggle.

J. Dunkerly did a swell job of refereeing. Teams:

Alternates, Butler, Northey.

Alternates; Willshaw, Reader and Mongraw.

Credit for this well balanced shop league goes too Russ Wildman, and his energetic Sports Committee.

Canadian Curling Champions

Bert Hall's rink from Kitchener, Dominion curling champions, who brought the curling crown to Ontario for the second time in thirteen years. Hall's rink won its first eight games and then lost the ninth to Northern Ontario, hence being forced into a playoff with the Manitoba rink. The score of the final game was 12-10. The rink shown from LEFT to RIGHT, are C. A. Seagram, G. E. Parkes, P. G. Hall and Bert Hall.

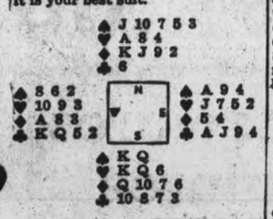
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

THE BEST GET BLUFFED

CHUCKING A BLUFF seems to be just as effective today as when the game was young. We all know the old story of the badly outnumbered troops whose commander ordered them to advance. When the powerful enemy saw them coming, he retreated, thinking he was seeing the skirmish line of an immense force. The same gag works sometimes in bridge, when you lead the suit you dread most and thereby scare the defenders away from repeated leads of it, in the fear that it is your best suit.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

Fishing for his favorite No-trump contract, South opened here with 1-Club, North bid 1-Spade, South 1-No trump, North 2-No trump and South 3-No trump. West picked the unbid major as his best defense and led the heart 10.

South saw that the crisis was at hand. The opponents could run either four or five clubs against him, depending on how the suit was divided, and two aces. His only chance was to keep them away from clubs, which might be possible if the honors were fairly well split. So he took the first heart trick in the North and led the club 6. East played low, South put on his 10 and West won with the Q.

Feeling sure that South had the ace-jack, West naturally did not return the suit, but repeated hearts, with his 9. The Q won and the spade Q was led, then the K, which East captured. He would not lead a club, being sure South had the K and would have to lead up to him at the end. So he played a third heart to the K. West won the lead of a small diamond and still refused to lead clubs. He returned a diamond, and South got the rest of the tricks, making an overtrick when he could have been set two.

Slovak Crisis Eased By Moderates

Berlin Is Reported Regarding Situation Serious

PRAGUE, Mar. 11 — (AP). — Moderate Slovak elements rallied behind the Federal constitution today, appealed for calmness, and thereby eased a situation that had engendered fears for the stability of the Czecho-Slovak Federal union.

Energetic measures taken yesterday by the Czecho-Slovak Central Government to frustrate what Prague charged was a plot to separate autonomous Slovakia from Bohemia and Moravia were being relaxed today in anticipation of a new Slovak Cabinet faithful to the constitution. (Berlin, however, still took a serious vie wof the situation.)

Karl Sidor, Vice-Premier of Czecho-Slovakia, and the Slovak spokesman in the Central Government, promised such a government by nightfall. He rejected alignment with Separatist agitation, which had caused President Emil Hacha to impose martial law in Bratislava, the Slovak capital, and remove three Slovak ministers, including Premier Joseph Tiso.

Want Peace for All.

Sidor said he, Tiso, Martin Sokol, chairman of the Slovak Parliament, and others had decided to present to Hacha as Cabinet possibilities the names of leading Conservatives and "fighters for Slovakia." Hacha has the last word, and can reject the Cabinet proposals. It was understood, however, that Sidor, a leader of the Slovak People's Party, was working in close contact with the President.

"The new government will foster peaceful relations with all peoples in Slovakia," Sidor said.

Czech troops sent into Slovakia from Moravia yesterday were recalled, but many of the 300 Radical Hlinka Guardsmen (Slovak Storm Troopers) and Separatists rounded up by the swift Central Government action early on Friday remained in custody. A faction of the Guards has been demanding an independent Slovakia.

Hitler Stalls.

BERLIN, Mar. 11 — (AP).—Germans took a strong view of the conflict in Czecho-Slovakia to-day, but a government spokesman suggested Chancellor Hitler would observe events in the neighboring republic for a while before committing himself.

Hitler to-morrow will attend memorial day exercises at the state opera and listen to a commemorative address by Admiral Erich Raeder, chief of staff of the navy, in honor of the first anniversary of the annexation of Austria. Vienna on Monday, the actual anniversary, hopes to see the Chancellor in its midst for the celebration of Anschluss.

German authorities apparently wanted these two events to pass off smoothly before taking an active hand in the situation in Czecho-Slovakia. Hope also prevailed that the Czechs in the meantime would yield fully to Slovak demands, thereby obviating any necessity for forcible action by Germany.

42 Years In Jail For Two Spies

LOS ANGELES, March 11. —(A. P.). — Two native Russians faced terms of 42 years in prison—convicted as spies despite their claims that they acted for the mutual benefit of the United States and Russia in exchanging information regarding Japan. They will be sentenced today.

Mikhail Gorin, 34, Pacific coast manager of intourist, a Russian travel agency, and Hafis Salich, 33, a naturalized United States citizen whose ability as a linguist earned him appointment to the Intelligence service three years ago, were convicted last night of obtaining confidential information, transmitting it to the Soviet and of conspiracy to obtain the data.

The Federal Court jury deliberated 2½ hours before returning its verdict, which found Natasha Gorin, 32, wife of the travel bureau official, not guilty of conspiracy.

150 Emigrants Sail For New Homes In Ontario, Alberta

Liverpoo, March 11.—(AP). A party of about 150 emigrants from European countries sailed for Canada aboard the liner Montclare yesterday. They are going to Alberta and Ontario under the colonization department of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. Poles, Czechs, Hungarians, Yugoslavs, Dutch, Belgians and Swiss were included.

Arms Contracts To Limit Profits To 5 p.c.

By Frank Flaherty
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, March 11.—(CP). — Competition where possible and limitation of profits to five per cent. on capital where competition is not possible are keynotes in the Government's new defence policy contained in the defence purchasing board bill before Parliament.

The measure was introduced last night by Defence Minister Mackenzie, who described it as a more drastic measure of a control over the profits of private industry than any yet attempted in democratic countries.

The bill will set up a four-man defence purchasing board to handle all contracts for the National Defence Department, involving an expenditure of more than $5,000 and limits profits on contracts not awarded by public tender to five per cent. on the capital employed in performance of the contracts.

The bill met with a favorable reception from the House of Commons. Spokesmen for the Conservative and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation expressed qualified approval, the qualifications depending on the carrying out of the Government scheme in the terms set forth by Mr. Mackenzie. The only opposition came from within the Liberal party as J. F. Pouliot (Lib. Temiscouata) advised the Government to scrap the plan and give the Minister of National Defence a free hand in running his department.

Mr. Pouliot said there was a rumor Hon. Wesley Gordon, former Conservative Minister of Labor, and Tom Moore, former president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, would be members of the board. He wanted to know if there was any truth in this.

Not Naming Board Yet

Mr. Mackenzie said he was in no position to say who would be on the board.

"I warn the Minister against falling on slippery ground by appointing people who are unworthy of the confidence of the Canadian people," said Mr. Pouliot.

"I strongly object to the creation of this board. I find it absurd because I believe in the principles of Liberalism. I believe the Minister of National Defence is a good min-

British Shipping Subsidy Looms

LONDON, March 11—(CP Havas)—Development of "some new form of organization" sponsored by the governments of the British commonwealth to fight shipping competition in the middle and far eastern waters is recommended in a report of the imperial shipping committee published last night.

The committee, noting increased competition from subsidized Japanese, German and Italian lines in the far east, recommended financial assistance to British companies to enable them to modernize their fleets and meet operating costs.

"Japanese shipping," the report declared, "and most other principal competitors of British lines shipping in the Orient receive subsidies, whether for operating or building, or both, on a fairly substantial scale, and German and Italian, and particularly Japanese, subsidies enabled their mercantile marine to be modernized with fast and efficient vessels. German and Italian lines are state-controlled. The tendency is for the subsidies to grow."

Apart from subsidies, the report continues, the cumulative effect of currency depreciation and the different standard of living make it possible for Japanese vessels to be operated at a cost which in 1936 was perhaps more than 10 to 15 per cent below the cost of operating comparable British vessels.

2 British Destroyers Nip Franco's Piracy, Take Freighter From Rebel Warship

LONDON, March 11—(AP). — The Royal Navy to-day swiftly backed up Foreign Minister Halifax's warning that Great Britain would give immediate armed protection to British merchant ships against General Franco's blockade of the coast of Republican Spain.

The 1,3700-ton destroyers Intrepid and Impulsive, answering calls for help this morning, went to aid the British freighter Stangate, 1,289 tons, which was detained by a Nationalist warship 23 miles off Cape San Antonio and was being forced to proceed to Palma, Mallorca.

Without firing a shot, the destroyers released the Stangate from arrest and escorted her to Gibraltar.

The Stangate had penetrated the blockade Thursday and slipped into Valencia port, where she discharged a cargo of food.

Lord Halifax on Thursday warned Franco that "if action is taken" against British shipping, "The British Government would be obliged to resist."

5 Great Years Of No War Seen By Hoare

Says End Of Poverty New Living In Grasp Of Leaders

LONDON, March 11 (CP). — A period of five years in which there would be "neither wars nor rumors of wars," is envisaged by Sir Samuel Hoare, Home Secretary, as a means of starting the world on a new "golden age."

Addressing his constituents in Chelsea, Sir Samuel yesterday suggested that with war scares ended the modern inventions and discoveries might be devoted "to the creation of a golden age in which poverty could be reduced to insignificance and the standards of living raised to heights that we have never been able to attempt before."

The Home Secretary called for cooperation among the heads of Europe's five major powers which, he said, with the support of President Roosevelt, would "transform the whole history of the world."

Sir Samuel said "five men in Europe, the three dictators and the Prime Ministers of England and France," could make themselves eternal benefactors of the human race "if they worked with a singleness of purpose and a unity of action."

It was assumed that by the three dictators he meant Chancellor Hitler, Premier Mussolini and Joseph Stalin, Secretary-General of the Communist party in Russia.

"I cannot believe," Sir Samuel said, "that other leaders of Europe will not join him (Prime Minister Chamberlain) in the high endeavor in which he is engaged."

Eternal Benefactors.

He added that the five European powers, "blessed in their efforts by the President of the United States, might make themselves eternal benefactors of the human race."

"The new strength of the democracies will not make them blind or rigid to problems that call for remedy," he said in a reference to Germany's colonial claims and French-Italian differences over Fascist agitation for territorial concessions.

But after claiming Britain could not now be defeated in a short war by a knockout blow from the air and promising victory in a long war, he declared:

"Never in our memory has there been so fundamental a unity or so firm a resolve in all three of the democracies (Britain, the United States and France), each differing from the other in every respect and each forming its conclusions in its own way, but all three inevitably impelled upon the same program of national defence.

"The American democracy will go its own way and no one here will try to deflect it. But that is not a significant fact at the moment. The significant fact is the simultaneous rejuvenescence of democratic strength in each of the three great democracies, and the equal determination of all three to resist and to resist victoriously any and every attack upon its life and liberty."

Eight-Foot Giant Loses In Court

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 11.—(A. P.) — The parade of giants through this city's Federal Court Room, streets and hotel lobbies was ended last night when a jury decided against eight-foot-eight-inch Robert Wadlow in a $-100,000 libel suit.

The 21-year-old Alton, Ill., giant had sued Dr. Charles Humberd, a self-tyled "giant expert." Wadlow's parents asserted an article by the physician published in the Journal of the American Medical Association reflected unjustly on their son.

All seats were filled for the trial. But all the seats were'nt enough. A specially constructed chair had to be moved into the courtroom for its principal attraction.

An ordinary hotel bed or even one of the specials held for occasional tall guests wouldn't do. Two beds were linked together.

Through the crowds that followed the huge visitors about the streets there circulated at mid-week a rumor that two other giants were secretly in town. The rumor was true.

On the stand to testify for Dr. Humbert appeared one man seven feet, six inches tall. Another "over seven feet."

A basketball tournament brought three high school centres more than six-foot, four, to a six-foot, seven-inch sports editor who wired to reserve a long bed, one hotel replied: —"we've got the room. You bring the bed."

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, testified on cross examination by the defence:

"We accept that term (freak) as fitting any person who is out of the ordinary. The Dionne quintuplets, giants . . . anyone extraordinary because of growth, appearance of deviating from the normal."

"Do you call Robert Wadlow a giant?"

"Yes," Dr. Fishbein said.

George Filion, Peterboro's Oldest Resident Is Celebrating His 100th Birthday

George Filion, French-Canadian inmate of the House of Providence, is one hundred years old to-day. He was born in the little French settlement of Baie St. Paul on March 11th, 1839, of humble parents, and his five-score years has been spent in single blessedness, making him perhaps Canada's oldest bachelor.

Filion possesses one of the greatest gifts, a cheerful disposition, which he believes contributed materially to his long life. He is a happy and healthy old man, still able to walk around and to sit in the sun on the south verandah of the House of Providence, and his only celebration to mark the fact that he has reached the one hundredth mark will be the smoking of a big cigar.

He was born two years after Queen Victoria ascended the British throne, and just as her reign was, comparatively speaking, a peaceful one, so was Filion's life. Looking back down the vista of time, the old fellow recalled that he had very little trouble, and the friendly chap with a noticeable twinkle in his eyes, contends that he enjoyed peace because he remained a bachelor.

"Well, I'll tell you a secret. I have always been afraid of women. They make a lot of noise and never stop talking," he replied.

A little regret, however, crept into his remarks as he went on to say that if he had his life to live over again, he thinks he would risk marriage. One of the main requirements, however, would be that the woman should be able to cook like a master chef, because George is, above all, a lover of good food, and his appetite has not diminished with the passing of time.

Frowns on Divorce

Mr. Filion believes divorce is the greatest evil of modern times, and in the course of the conversation, said if a man and woman can't take the knocks along with the happiness they should never get married.

"And do you think a man should beat his wife?" he was asked.

"Sure, sure; he could give her a clout now and then if she was so contrary she deserved it," was the astounding answer from the meek old fellow who a few minutes before had admitted he was afraid of the weaker sex.

He was one of a family of nine children, seven boys and two girls, all of whom have passed on. He began life on a small farm at a time when Quebec was the centre of activity in Canada. At 17 he left home determined to make his way in the world, and obtained work in a logging camp. Later he worked at railroad building, then wandered down into the Maritimes. He spent a year at Halifax on construction work and some time in Boston,

"Democracies Fomenting War On Russia"—Stalin

MOSCOW, Mar. 11 — (AP). — Joseph Stalin in one of his rare addresses said to-day that Great Britain, France, and the United States had ceased to resist world aggression in the hope it would lead to a ruinous war against Soviet Russia.

The hope, particularly of Britain and France, the Soviet leader told the opening session of the 18th All-Union Congress of the Communist Party, was that a German or Japanese war against Russia would weaken and exhaust the combatants whereupon the democracies would step in to dictate peace.

Only this and an accompanying fear that another Great War would lead to a victorious revolution in other countries like that which established the Soviet in the last war, could account for "concession after ssconc neatgog lo shrdlu hmb dwd concession to aggressors," Stalin said.

Even though "open re-division of the world and of spheres of influence is taking place before our eyes at the expense of the interests of non-aggressor states" Stalin declared that the democracies were looking on "without the least attempt at resistance and even with a certain amount of connivance...."

He argued that the peace of Munich was a part of a scheme for fomenting war "with Germany without a visible basis" that the Germans got Czecho-Slovak Sudetenland as a "reward" but now "refuse to pay this obligation."

Not Going To Fight

Russia would not be a cat's paw now, he continued, to aid Britain and France under the turn of events by which "instead of moving farther east against the Soviet Union" the Germans "turn westward and demand colonies for themselves."

In its emphasis on a lack of any genuine basis for war between Germany and Russia, the speech sounded to foreign overserves almost like a rapprochement between those two countries.

Economic reverses of the past five years led to the "sharpening of relations between the powers," Stalin said, but the struggle has passed beyond "competition for markets" to the present "question of new redivision of the world, of spheres of influence and colonies by military action"—which led Italy into Ethiopia, Japan into China, the German drive for colonies.

In the face of this, Stalin continued, "non-aggressor countries, primarily Britain and France, have abandoned a policy of collective se-

Liquor As Cold Cure Ruled Taboo After Wife-Beating

Windsor, Ont., March 11 (C.P.). WHEN Jack Smith gets another cold he mustn't try liquor as a remedy. He was released on suspended sentence on a charge of assault—laid by his wife, who said he got drunk while trying to recover from a cold—by promising to try another remedy.

Kitchener Ends 6-Week Strike

KITCHENER, Ont., Mar. 11 — (CP). — Employees of two Kitchener rubber company plants, their six-weeks' strike ended, will return to their jobs "as soon as necessary arrangements can be made," according to an announcement by the companies' managements.

The announcement was welcomed last night by the companies, the strikers, the Ontario Labor Department, and Kitchener merchants alike. Keeping idle 1,300 employees of the Dominion Tire and Rubber Company and the Merchants' Rubber Company, the walkout confronted conciliation officers of the Labor Department with frequent blank walls and cut deep into the business of Kitchener stores.

Four hundred employees celebrated the end of the deliberations with a parade through city strets. All principals in the prolonged attempts at settlement issued statements expressing gratification at the outcome.

Still to be decided upon was the workers' demand for a five-cent increase in the hourly wage rate. That will be dealt with by a three-man committee; one member will be appointed by the companies, another by the workers, and the third by the two representatives.

After many weary hours of meetings, Louis Fine and O. C. Jeanette of the Labor Department submitted a proposed form of settlement yesterday to the two factions. The companies agreed to it late in the day.

Russia claims to have 24,000 ocnsumers' co-operatives with 37,000,000 members.

Y.M.C.A. Accepts 80,000 Women Members As "Good Influence"

Nuncio To France Papal Secretary

VATICA NCITY, Mar. 11 — (AP). —Pope Pius XII. to-day appointed Cardinal Luigi Maglione, former Nuncio to France, as Vatican Secretary of State—the position which, as Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, the Pontiff himself had filled under Pius XI.

Cardinal Maglione, an experienced diplomat, is 62, one year younger than the Pontiff. He is one of the Pope's intimate friends.

Both the Pope and the new Secretary are diplomats. Both are Italian. The Pontiff has a first-hand knowledge of Germany. Cardinal Maglione has a first-hand knowledge of France. They, therefore, were considered in foreign circles particularly qualified to ease by diplomacy the stresses between the Vatican and the political dictatorships, as well as to make the voice of the Catholic Church heard on behalf of peace whenever a crisis develops among the nations.

The appointment was announced as part of a busy morning for the Pontiff, who to-morrow will be crowned formally with elaborate ceremony after Mass in St. Peter's.

Receives Valera.

War in Africa and League of Nations sanctions occupied Monsignor Maglione in Paris while the late Pope Pius XI. was conferring the red hat on colleagues named with him in the Consistory of December 16, 1935. He was one of the personages whose talks with Premier Pierre Laval of France were linked in the world press with the Franco-British proposal to end the Italo-Ethiopian War late in 1935. Pope Pius sent his red hat to him for presentation by President Albert Lebrun.

He was born March 2, 1877, at Casoria in the Archdiocese of Naples. He was baptized the following day in the parochial church of San Mauro by his own brother, Domenico, a priest who died in 1908.

Franco Opens His Assault While Gen. Miaja Is Busy Fighting Reds

Fierce Machine-Gunning Drives Communists From Madrid Square Stronghold Into Maternity Hospital With 1,000 Patients

MADRID, March 11 (AP).—Booming guns on the regular civil war front along the western margin of Madrid today indicated that General Franco's troops had launched an attack against the city while Republican General Miaja's forces still were mopping up Communists within Madrid.

Resumption of bombardments along the old siege lines indicated that the nationalist forces, which had withheld their fire during the six-day revolt against Miaja's "peace with honor" program, had resumed the attack.

Within Madrid fierce machine-gun fire through the night drove the Communist rebels from what Miaja's national defence Junta called their last major stronghold, in Independencia Square near the centre of Madrid.

But the communists merely retired to set up a new resistance centre in a maternity hospital in O'Donnell Street. The hospital contained about 1,000 women, expectant mothers and others with new-born infants.

Elsewhere in the city Communists were being dispersed and groups of them were surrendering. Troops loyal to Miaja also attacked a Communist "provincial" headquarters with field guns. During the bombardment fire developed in the buildings. Miaja troops finally broke in and seized a few Communists.

A mobile force loyal to Miaja, brought in from the east, played the major role in driving the Communists from Independencia Square.

Members Favor System Of Scholarships

By Ross Runro
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, March 11—(CP)—Assistance through national scholarships to Canadian youths wishing to continue studies at universities and agricultural colleges is being seriously considered by the government.

Many members of the House favor giving aid to deserving students who have not the financial resources to go on to college. Considering it part of the general youth problem with which parliamentarians are coming to grips, half a dozen members have taken a vital interest in the scholarship plan.

Take for example Paul Martin, B.A., M.A., L.L.M., educated at University of Toronto, Osgoode Hall, Harvard, Cambridge and Geneva. This aggressive, 35-year-old lawyer who has represented Essex East as a Liberal since 1935 has been advocating a system of national scholarships for the past three years and is its chief champion in the Commons. Again this session he is sponsoring a resolution urging the government to investigate the desirability of such scholarships.

He feels that modern industrial nations cannot afford to neglect assisting brilliant young men and women to obtain adequate academic training so they may take their proper place in industrial, agricultural, professional and public life. He aims particularly at training for leadership in Canada. The scholarships would be worth from $500 to $1,000.

Has Many Friends

There is wide sympathy for the proposal among the Liberals, including cabinet members, and the Conservative platform includes scholarship plan. The C.C.F. and Social Crediters are friendly to the scheme.

"If it went to a vote in the House, I'm sure it would be accepted," says Mr. Martin. "Right now I'm hopeful the Government will do something."

Petitions from various youth and student organizations flood Parliament Hill urging national scholarships. The Essex East member has received petitions containing 15,000 names. Many others have received hundreds. The Canadian Youth Congress made a submission to the Cabinet. The scholarship movement grows and optimistic predictions are

6,000 Jews Wait Rome Action

ROME, March 11—(AP).—An estimated 6,000 foreign Jews watched with anxiety the approach of the deadline at midnight tonight of an order for them to leave Italy. Most of them lack permission to enter other countries.

After midnight they are subject to arrest for violation of the expulsion decree issued last fall when they were given six months to wind up their affairs and leave.

About 2,000 non-Italian Jews were estimated to have complied. Beginning tomorrow the others will continue to live here only on the sufferance of the Italian government.

It was indicated that the government would not take immediate action against most of the refugees.

Foreign Jews more than 65-years-old have been exempt from enforcement of the decree.

Strip Tease Gets 400 Arrested

TORONTO, March 11. —(CP).— Police were confronted to-day with the knotty problem of scheduling court appearances for the 400 men and a girl arrested last night in the biggest raid in the memory of Toronto's oldest desk sergeants.

Until two o'clock this morning, the patrol wagons were pulling up before downtown police stations with protesting men from a large-scale stag party. At the scene of the party, a Front street auditorium, constables stood guard and loaded the men into the wagons, 13 at a time.

Into the stations the men crowded. Some of them were allowed to go after submitting certified addresses and being told they would be summoned later on charges of consuming liquor in an illegal place. The others were kept in the cells overnight.

Protesting just as loudly as the men was Romana Rattoff, who said she didn't strip at the party even if Constable Harry Sutton did say she was a strip-tease dancer. She was charged with doing an indecent dance.

Beer and Dancing.

Thomas Gordon was arrested on a charge of breach of the Liquor Control Act and Herbert Crouchman on a charge of obstructing police. Police said Gordon was acting as a waiter and serving beer from a carton while Romana did her dance.

Romana, a brunette, didn't know Constable Sutton was among those who had paid the 25 cent admission charge when she started to do her number. Sutton, who had watched a series of comparatively tame floor-show program, sprang into action when Romana finished her bit. He said afterward she was wearing a girdle when she came from the dressing room. Pretty soon she wasn't, he declared.

Sutton ran backstage and bustled Romana into a dressing room. The rest of the gathering realized then that something was amiss. But the tables didn't start to fall and yells didn't pierce the air until the 200 police officers walked in. Then it was 10 minutes before order could be restored.

America Should Be Ready To Defend Canada —To Save Itself, Claims U.S. General

NEW YORK, March 11—(CP). —Major-General J. F. O'Ryan, in a broadcast address last night on national defence, declared that as a part of defending the United States, Americans should be ready to aid Canadians in the event their Dominion was invaded by a foreign power.

He deplored what he termed the short-sightedness of those who adopt the idea they would fight only if the United States were invaded.

"If we adopted such a policy," said Maj.-Gen. O'Ryan, then we 'stand-by' and permit a strong military and naval power to invade Canada without military action on our part for Canada's defence.

"If that were our policy a potential aggressor against the United States could pick a quarrel with Canada, invade its territory without interference from our navy and by successive supporting expeditions concentrate in Canada a vast army with which to invade or raid the United States."

Maj.-Gen. O'Ryan said it was "obvious" the most effective self defence the United States could make in the event of an attack would be to engage the enemy's first expenditions when it "was on the high seas, enroute to Canada."

Loyal Address Adopted By Legislature

TORONTO, March 11.—(CP)— A form of loyal address to be presented to their majesties in the legislative chamber May 22 was adopted by the Ontario legislature yesterday on a unanimous standing vote and was ordered to be inscribed on parchment.

The resolution was moved by Premier Mitchell Hepburn and seconded by Conservative Leader George Drew, making his maiden speech in the legislature. Col. Drew urged that Ontario school teachers between now and the time of the royal visit should emphasize the teaching of the principles on which the empire has been founded.

Those arranging the royal visit should keep in mind that all facilities should be afforded for the greatest number to see their majesties. Especially should children be kept in mind, said Col. Drew. Official functions in which only a few would participate should be kept to a minimum.

R. D. Arnott (Con. Hastings West) urged school textbooks should give more attention to the deeds of the Canadian Corps during the Great War. There should be more specific attention directed to the teaching of loyalty.

The best way to engender loyalty to Canada on the part of young men and women would be to see that they had the opportunity to work, said Mr. Arnott. He would not criticize defence estimates and was surprised that some should, yet it was understandable that young men should ask why equal sums couldn't be voted for their welfare.

"Fortunate In Our King"

J. A. Habel (Lib. Cochrane North) said he was wholeheartedly behind the resolution. "We as French-Canadians are absolutely loyal to their majesties. We are most fortunate to have a king like the one we have."

It was to be regretted that Canada had no flag of her own to greet their majesties. While the Union Jack was the flag of Canada, French-Canadians were loyal to it, but it was to be wished that Canada had a distinctive national flag.

Other British commonwealths had flags of their own and they were an inspiration to their youth, said Mr. Habel.

"George VI was crowned the king of Great Britain, but also the king of Canada. Let us have our flag to salute the king of Canada."

Attorney-general Conant said he wished to dissociate himself from a reference made by William Duckworth (Con. Toronto-Dovercourt) to a European leader as "the mad dog

Rome Enjoys Report Her Army Weakened

ROME, March 11—(AP).—Virginio Gayda, Fascism's chief newspaper spokesman, retorted today to statements published in Great Britain that the Italian army had been weakened by distribution of large numbers of its troops in Spain, Ethiopia and Libya.

In the event of war, Gayda answered, Italy and her allies "will proceed to their defence in every sector of the world against all enemy interests with all available military, political and national resources."

Writing in the newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia, the Fascist editor declared it was "infantile" to expect Italy to be alarmed by descriptions of military forces which the democracies might align against Italy, Germany and Japan.

"Italy can enrol in he rown army alone more than 1,000,000 men," he said. "To these can be added large colored forces."

CONSTIPATED? Help BIG BOWEL!

Don't Upset Whole Bowel Tract, Just Move Body Waste Those Last Few Inches

Most constipation occurs in the big bowel (marked X), right when waste has almost reached the point where bowels should m-o-v-e.

So it's only sensible —when constipated, draggy, headachy— to take a laxative that works where the waste has jammed; one that won't upset other parts of the bowels, or the whole intestinal tract.

Doses like calomel do most of their work on the other end of the bowels, more than 20 feet away! Salts flush from end to end; may leave you weak and worn-out. Oils act chiefly on the small intestine.

To relieve constipation fast, make sure your laxative works first where the waste has piled-up! That's the action you get from Chocolate Flavor Cascarets. They work on the big bowel—move waste those last few inches, bring blessed relief overnight. They can do this because each tablet contains cascara, said, to give nearest to natural action of any cathartic, which acts to cleanse the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours.

Try this sensible form of relief. Each foil-wrapped Chocolate Cascaret tablet is a gentle, effective dose, pleasant to take because of the fine milk chocolate flavor. All druggists, or write Dept. F-12, "Cascarets," Windsor, Ont., for free sample.

Strangler Hangs

BALTIMORE, March 11.—(AP)—Fred L. Brown, a farmer who said he once served in the Canadian navy, was hanged early today for strangling his young wife—the first white man executed in Maryland in a decade. He collapsed as the hangman approached with a black hood.

The 47-year-old Vienna, Md. farmer walked to the gallows with the expressionless mien he bore throughout his trial in Cambridge last July while recounting details of how he strangled 17-year-old Elizabeth Avery Brown, an expectant mother, and dropped her body weighted with plough shares into the Nanticoke River.

Seven Bombers Get Long Terms

MANCHESTER, England, March 11—(CP-Havas).—Long prison terms were given yesterday to six men and a woman convicted of possessing explosives and participating in the campaign of terrorism ascribed to the outlawed Irish republican army.

Twenty-year sentences were imposed upon five. Michael Rory Campbell, 21; John Glenn, 33; Patrick O'Connell, 23; John Cavahan, 32; and Denis Duggan. Patrick Diviney was sentenced to 14 years. Mary Glenn, 22, the woman, received a seven-year term. Patrick Walsh was acquitted.

The accused received the judgment with shouts of "God Save Ireland" and "up the republic."

The judge described the explosions which killed one man as "a diabolical conspiracy."

Worthless Forms Of Goodness

Some worthless form of goodness will be the subject of the address in St. Andrew's Church next Sunday night. Some people are quite satisfied when they are able to say about another person, he is a good man, or she is a good woman. What exactly do they mean by the term "good". It is one of those words that is in everybody's lips, and yet that so few of us take the trouble to define.

It is generally believed that any form of goodness is better than evil, but still there are some forms that are utterly defective, and few people are aware of the defect, least of all those who possess the type of goodness that is imperfect.

Take for example the people whose goodness is isolated from others. They live apart in a little cubicle of their own, and take a pride in the fact that none of the coarser vices enter into their lives. They do not relate their goodness in any way to the sin and sorrow of the world around them. They have no vision no visibility in their lives, and the world is very little better because they are in it. Some of them are sheltered by the position in which they find themselves, they have an affluence and comfort, which shield them from the bitter blasts of the wintry wind.

There are some forms of goodness, which one must hesitate to call good in any intelligent or moral sense. They have this quality in common that they come quite easily. There is a sin in being good. According to some popular misconceptions of that term. There are a number of worthless forms of goodness, it is well for us to know what they are so that we may avoid them.

Splendid Talk Given At Fairmount Y.P.U.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRMOUNT, March 11.—The Y.P.U. was held held on Wednesday evening with a good attendance, Mr. A. Hill of Fraserville being guest speaker.

As Mr. C. S. Morgan was unable to be present Rev. C. L. Brown took charge. Scripture reading Matthew 5:38-48 by Miss Flora Dunford was followed by a reading by Stanley Allin, prayer by Miss Elizabeth Westington and a reading by Kenneth.

Mr. Hill was then introduced by the chairman and gave an interesting talk on "Hobbies". In his introductory remarks he told how he became interested in mechanical and wood-working which was done while teaching school, north of Belleville, getting the pupils interested and helping to improve themselves. He strongly emphasized the fact that anything accomplished by a boy or girl is more appreciated than anything given to them. Referring to music he said it was also a splendid hobby.

He illustrated his talk by showing several samples of wood work, reed weaving, fret work and woven work which were taken in manual training at his school. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hill and a few games were then enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Byres of Cavan spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. Kemp.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Sanderson were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. McIndoo on Sunday.

HUMAN NATURE

The boycott of the motion picture, "Jesse James" by the Humane Society is apparently having a stimulating effect. Even at the afternoon performances the theatre has been well filled, and it is reliably reported that a member of the Society executive even strayed into the Capitol. The picture is exceptionally well done, has a good plot, plenty of action and the color photography is excellent.

Royal Sidelights.

Government officials arronging for the Royal tour receive dozens of incredible letters from unusual people. One man in the Maritimes writes that he and his wife closely resemble the King and Queen offers their services as "stand-ins" during the visit. He suggests that he and his spouse could take Their Majesties' place for the more tiresome processions.

More than 1,000 applications have been received for accommodation on the press train for the tour. Newspapers and news services the world over want to have their writers aboard.

Cabinet Ministers' wives and socially prominent Ottawa women are being bombarded by mail from all over the country for invitations to some of the social functions in connection with Their Majesties' four-day stay in this Capital. Hundreds of social aspirants will be disappointed, for it has already been pretty well decided by Ottawa's social arbiters and the Government authorities who will attend the various affairs.

Vacancy Problem

The growing list of vacancies in the Senate and in senior civil service posts is a worrying problem for the Government master minds.

There are nine empty seats in the Upper House and all probably will be filled before the general election. Choosing a senator for the $4,000-a-year position is not an easy problem, and for the most part it will be just nine individual headaches for the Cabinet.

The $6,000-a-year parliamentary librarian's job is open and a new Deputy Minister of Fisheries is needed. There is no Canadian Minister at the Tokyo legation, but Hugh Keenleyside, who is taking a prominent part in arranging for the regal visit, is still prominently mentioned for the post.

Three well-known civil servants are to retire. Georges Gonthier, the auditor-general, will step out in November, slaving a $15,000-a-year position. J. O. Patenaude, the King's printer, is slated for retirement from his $8,000-a-year post, and Dr. A. T. Charron, assistant Deputy Minister of Agriculture, probably will retire shortly.

Under the Tower

The straight black pipe of Finance Minister Dunning seems to give him as much solace as the famous understung brier gives Earl Baldwin. There is not a Chamberlain "peace umbrella" in the Canadian Parliament.

Intimates of the late Hon. Robert Weir recall many incidents in his career that gave a sidelight into his character. A few years ago he bought a carload of purebred cattle at the Toronto Royal Winter Fair. A great admirer of the fine stock, he rode in the cattle cars all the way to his Weldon, Sask., farm with them. His former private secretary says that when he was away from home he would write his little daughter every night before retiring. Known as "Weir of Carrot Valley," where his farm is located, he was an inveterate reader of Western stories of the pulp magazine variety. He found he could relax with them best. Few men had such power over farm audiences through simple, direct speech. . .

The Speaker in the Senate is Parliament's forgotten man. In the Commons every member refers to "Mr. Speaker," and address his remarks to the chair. But in the Upper House the Senators merely say "Honorable Senators" and scarcely ever even look in the direction of Speaker Walter Foster.

Conservative Leader Manion has one of the House's most remarkable speaking stances. He braces himself against the desk behind him, leans forward, chin out, and rattles along sometimes at the rate of 225 words a minute—which is some speaking according to Hansard reporters. . . The Parliamentary Cafeteria where political trivia and gossip pass over porcelain-topped tables is known familiarly as "The Doggery." . . .

Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett is enjoying his retirement in England immensely and is looking quite healthy according to Alice Miller, his secretary, who has returned to Canada for a while. The former Prime Minister is still living in a London hotel and will not move into his Surrey home for several months. . . . Members of Parliament have the privilege of an audience with Lord Tweedsmuir every Tuesday and Thursday morning.

While formally this policy might be described as one of "let each country defend itself against aggressors as it likes and well as it can," Stalin said that in actual fact it is "tantamount to connivance at aggression to unleashing war—consequently to its transformation into world war."

As Stalin Sees It

"Through a policy of non-intervention there runs eagerness of a desire to prevent aggressors from perpetrating their black deeds, not to prevent, say, Japan from becoming involved in a war with China, or still better with the Soviet Union; not to prevent say Germany from becoming enmeshed in European affairs, from becoming involved in war with the Soviett Union;

"To allow all the belligerents to sink deep into the mire of war, to stealthily encourage them to follow this line, to allow them to weaken and exhaust one another and then, when they become sufficiently weakened, to appear on the scene with fresh forces, to come out, of course, in the interests of peace, and to dictate their terms to the belligerent nations."

With sarcasm he referred to the German - Italian - Japanese anti-Comintern pact which the Fascist countries have declared was not a military alliance.

"The military bloc of Germany and Italy against the interests of Britin and France in Europe? Really, that's no bloc at all," Stalin chided.

"'We have no military bloc of any sort,'" he paraphrased. "All 'we' have is a harmless 'Berlin-Rome axis,' just a certain geometrical formula dealing with axis.

"A military bloc of Germany, Italy and Japan against the interests of the United States, Britain, and France in the Far East? Nothing of the kind! "We," have no military bloc of any sort. 'All 'we' have is a harmless Berlin-Rome-Tokyo triangle,' that is a slight penchant for geometry.."

OBITUARY

MRS. EDWARD FENNELL.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Mar. 11. — Attended by a large number of friends and acquaintances, the funeral was held on Friday afternoon of the late Victoria Fennell, beloved wife of Edward Fennell, Havelock. Although Mrs. Fennell had not been in the best of health for some time past, her death on Tuesday evening following a heart attack, was entirely unexpected. The service was conducted at the Havelock United Church, of which the deceased was a prominent member, by the Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, assisted by the Rev. C. W. DeMille of Toronto, Rev. S. A. Kemp of Oshawa, and Rev. R. E. Lemon, rector of St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock.

Surviving her besides her husband are two daughters, Miss Barbara and Mrs. James Keffer (Helen) of Toronto, and two sons, Denike of Timmins and Van of Toronto. There is also an older sister, Mrs. Fred Woods of Campbellford.

Flower-bearers were: Messrs. D. Miller, W. McLauchlin, J. Voyer, G. Kemp, K. Hill and J. Covert. Interment took place at Maple Grove Messrs. T. P. Lancaster, E. J. Leeson, G. Denike, E. Chiles, Charles Roberts, and J. Davidson.

Race With Time

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP).—A campaign for "moral re-armament—the battle for peace" was outlined last night by Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, founder of the Oxford Group movement, on his arrival from a two-year absence abroad.

"Moral re-armament is a race with time for the re-making of men, of our nation and the world," he said.

The 60-year-old Lutheran clergyman, a native of Pennsburg, Pa., said he expected to embiason the movement's insignia of M.R.A. or "moral re-armament" from coast to coast in the United States.

Lindsay Youth Draws Year For Car Theft

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 11—Abbie Crimmons, a local young man, pleaded guilty in police court Friday morning before Magistrate Gee, to the theft of a car, the property of a local insurance agent, and was sentenced to one year in the Ontario Reformatory. The accused entered a local garage and took out the car, driving it towards Toronto. Police said. "It was ditched near Greenbank and badly damaged. Crown Attorney Anderson stated that he felt it was liquor that was responsible for the position in which the young man found himself and that the minimum sentence would be amply sufficient.

A Fenelon Falls youth was remanded in custody for sentence when he pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking, entering and theft from a store in that village. Officials are endeavoring to have the accused enlisted in the permanent militia force, and if this can be done the sentence will likely be suspended.

It was unofficially announced today that the local force of Provincial police will be increased by the addition of two more officers. One, it was stated, would be stationed at Lindsay and the other at Coboconk, to cover the northern part of the county.

Notwithstanding the fact that the opening of the tourist season is several month away, proprietors of lake resorts in this district are already receiving enquiries from parties in the United States relative to reservations during the summer months. The Examiner was in touch with a number of owners of tourist resorts in Victoria and Haliburton Counties on Thursday, and they are planning for a record tourist season. Carpenters throughout the district, it is learned, have received contracts for the erection of summer cottages as soon as the frost leaves the ground. Parties from the United States recently acquired a number of desirable sites on some of the northern lakes, where they plan to have lodges erected.

MORE ABOUT—
George Filion

Mass., working in a brickyard.

Worked as Lumberjack

About three-quarters of a century ago he went to Haliburton and the northern part of Peterborough County to work in the shanty, and for many years led the carefree life of a lumberjack and river driver. Fifty years ago he was a sawyer in the big mill at Nassau, then known as the Red Mills. He worked from daylight until dark in the huge mill where thousands of feet of lumber and square timbers were turned out each year.

One incident which is apparently clearly etched on his memory is a trip he made from Buckhorn in the Kawarthas to the city of Montreal on a timber raft. The logs were hewn into large square timbers which were then formed into a raft, and floated down the river over rough rapids and across quiet lakes to Lake Ontario. River drivers piloted the huge raft by means of long paddles set in uprights at the back of the timber, and Filion was one who made the trip. At Montreal the timbers, which had been towed by a tugboat from Lake Ontario, were placed on ocean-going boats for England where much of the timber was used in boat building.

About forty years ago he went to Lindsay and started to work as caretaker of the church and school, working for the late Monseignor Laurent. In later years he worked for Monseignor McColl, former parish priest at the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Ashburnham. Three years ago he fell and fracturd his hip bone, and doctors feared his death would be sure to follow shortly. Old George, however, surprised everyone by making a complete recovery, and today is as fit as he was prior to the accident.

Has Birth Certificate

He is chubby, healthy looking and good humoured and the Sisters at the House of Providence say he is no trouble at all, but obeys readily and never gets out of sorts. He certainly does not look his age but his birth certificate which is in French proves beyond doubt that he is one hundred years of age.

The centennarian's formula for longevity is a contradiction of almost every established rule. George says that one must work hard, and that hard work helps rather than impairs one's health. He says he never kept regular hour but went to bed when he pleased and always got up early. He smoked all his life and took a drink of liquor when he could get it and is confident that neither of these two latter habits had any ill effect on him.

He is a little hard of hearing now, and his eye-sight is beginning to fail but he retains his good humour and never gets moody. Almost daily when the weather is fine he may be seen sitting on a rocking chair on the south balcony at the House of Providence with rosary entwined on his fingers and he recites his prayers aloud. His mind is quite clear and his answers are quite intelligent but he slips a little in the matter of recalling dates and the passing of so many years seems to have confused him. During the conservation he mentioned events which happened fifty years ago, just as though happened last year.

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW

WINNIPEG, March 11—(CP). — Wheat futures lost ground on the Winnipeg market this week. Improved political atmosphere in Europe, more optimistic crop news from producing countries and continued absence of export and investment support influence the receding price trend.

Quotations at the conclusion of Friday's session were 1¼ to 1¼ cents below the previous week's close, May at 60¾, July 61¾ and October 62¾ cents. The October future touched a new seasonal low and all futures at Liverpool, quoted in Canadian funds per bushel, also made new lows.

Only scattered export buying was uncovered during the week, some apparently covering old sales. United States milling interests were credited with light purchases but the reason for this support was not determined.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at les sthan 500,000 bushels, while Argentine found buyers of Plate wheat. At least two cargoes of Australian wheat and flour were taken by Shanghai.

Importing countries showed only minor interest in competitive wheat and prices, c.i.f. Liverpool declined 1¼ to 3¼ cents a bushel, with Australian wheat afloat suffering from greatest loss. Pressure of arriving cargoes from the Commonwealth apparently was responsible for the decline.

Market Review

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO, March 11 (CP). — The Abitibi issues were hammered down severely in the two-hour session of the Toronto Exchange today, weakened by the growing conviction that the stock holders have little to hope for from the re-organization plans now on foot. The preferred weakened 4⅜ to 8¾, and the common dropped to 1.10 for a loss of 75 cents overnight. Other industrials were steady and the mining and western oil issues were a bit heavy.

Brazilian Traction continued in active demand and profit-taking was absorbed without price impairment. The close was practically unchanged from Friday's final price. United Fuel Preferred firmed a point and Gatineau added a minor fraction. Steel and building shares maintained an upward slant. Page-Hersey and Algoma gained ¼ and National Pipe A advanced 1½. Canada Bread A added 2 points and Fanny Farmer gained ⅝ to the 24 mark.

Senior base metals held up by small fractions while the cheaper issues were narrowly lower. Falconbridge and Waite-Amulet declined 15 to 25 cents. Sherritt held unchanged. Silvers held steady.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP). — Leading stocks shifted over a slightly irregular route in to-day's brief market until a last-minute selling flurry in steels and motors brought declines running to a point or more among recent climbers.

A handful of favorites edged into new high territory for the past year at the start, but most failed to hold.

Dealings, fairly slow the regular part of the proceedings, picked up at the last and transfers approximated 650,000 shares for the two hours.

SERVICES IN PETERBOROUGH CHURCHES TO-MORROW

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

THE PRIVILEGE OF THE CHRISTIAN.

Ye Are Our Epistle (letter). 2 Cor. 3; 2.

St. Paul, the great missionary of the Church, is charged by his enemies as one who had not the authority to teach and preach the Gospel. Unlike Apollos, who received letters testimonial from the Church, he had none. St. Paul claims that the proof of his authority is in the lives of his converts. "Look at these men and women" he cries. By the Spirit of God he has written upon them something of the character of God. All men could read goodness, gentleness, long suffering, self restraint, honesty and purity.

This is the principle upon which Our Lord worked. Mohammed wrote Koran, which he claimed was dictated to him from heaven. It is the authoritative book. Our Lord did not write a book. He called a handful of men to Him; plain, simple, everyday men. They were responsive to His call, fascinated by His character. They were with Him day by day. They say His goodness, gentleness, compassion, patience. Slowly they realized that He was revealing to them the character of God. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." "He was the express image of the Father." They wanted to be like Him and after His resurrection and ascension He sent them forth to tell others about Him and how they could become like God. Men saw their gentleness, compassion, goodness, purity, courage, longsuffering and faith. They knew the Spirit had written upon their lives the character of God and men saw God revealed in them.

He sent them forth upon the greatest and most tremendous task that men ever undertook—to preach Christ, to live Christ and to show in their lives the character of the incarnate God.

They faced a world regimented against purity, goodness and gentleness. They lived, they died and in dying they conquered. Men say that these men had something supernatural in their character which gave them power to overcome sin and to reveal God. During those terrible years thousands died fearful death. Multitudes watched them die i. the great amphitheatres of that day. They died and in dying they conquered. They simply, clearly, revealed the character of God—the handwriting of God and His Christ and slowly, gradually men were fascinated by that character. They accepted the Christ and asked for the help of the Holy Spirit to reveal Christ in their lives.

A great modern scholar tells us that Christianity conquered the pagan world because of its high living, living on a high spiritual plane. Its high thinking, the deep things of God gripped their minds and imaginations and made them strong to face the awful tortures; above all, their high dying, they died as men and women who believed and trusted in an unseen supernatural power. Men marvelled at their fortitude and courage and recognized the hand writing of God.

To-day some tell us that religion is dope, an anaesthetic for emotional, drawing room Christians. Of course, there are many such. Such chaff would soon be separated from the wheat in the day of the tempest.

When men see you live the life of the child of God they are quick to recognize God's hand writing. In yourself you must fulfill the prophecy:— "that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called a son, a daughter of God." This is the work of the Holy Spirit. The Christ must be seen in your life. His goodness, gentleness, compassion and patience must be seen and known by your friends.

Many a man is an orthodox believer in the Divinity of the Christ but very little of Our Lord's Divinity is seen in Him. If you are a child of God you must resemble Him. The likeness of the father must be seen in you. Men are looking for such likenesses in this terrible age.

BEHOLD, WHAT MANNER OF LOVE THE FATHER HATH BESTOWED UPON US THAT WE SHOULD BE CALLED THE SONS OF GOD; AND WHEN HE SHALL APPEAR WE SHALL BE LIKE HIM.

A National Message

THE DUAL GOSPEL

We shall turn to the text of the New Testament and show that it carries forward the two phases of the Gospel with quite as much clearness of demarcation between the two phases as is found in the Old Testament.

Let us take the Gospel of St. Matthew to begin with. First we have the genealogy of Jesus Christ, born to be the King of Israel. Next we have the birth of Jesus the King, and the testimony of the wise men, the scholars of the day, of the priests, who had charge of the Oracles of God, and of the sacred Scriptures which were produced and read as forshewing where Christ the King should be born. Then we have the narrative of the finding of the Christ child, and of the offering to Him as to the King by divine right, of tribute "Gold, and frankincense, and myrrh."

In Luke we have the Angel testimony to the fact that "the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne His father David; and that He shall reign over the House of Jacob for ever." Now here are two material entities. They had both been in existence, the one for a thousands years and the other for nearly two thousand years, at that time. No Israelite and no Jew but knew full well what were the Throne of David and the House of Jacob. Neither is there any need for us to be a moment in doubt as to what both these material entities were and still are, for they are both to continue "for ever."

Thus we have here: (1) The House of Jacob; (2) The throne of David; (3) Jesus born to receive that throne and to rule upon it for ever over the House of Jacob.

Let us pass on to the sermon on the mount. Read this as one would read other literature and it at once becomes clear that is is the Manifesto of the Kingdom. It deals with the same matters with which all national codes must deal. It identifies the Kingdom absolutely with the same kingdom over which Moses and David ruled. It identifies the law as the law of the Kingdom, which law was given through Moses to that same House of Jacob or Israel.

When we read the statement of law as contained in the four books of the Pentateuch: Evodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy — and compare it with the codes which were in existence in Egypt and in Assyria, we are struck with the fact that the law of Moses was a new thing.

An Eel Bites

ANNAPOLIS ,Md., March 11. —(AP).—One legislator was bitten by an exhibit, but the lawmakers wound up by eating the display just the same. Arguing a conservation measure, the legislators had placed before them an exhibit of fresh fish. When the discussion ended, they grabbed. One lady member came out of the rush with bruised fingers —nipped by an eel.

PETER EXHORTS TO CHRISTIAN LIVING

Golden Text—"But as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in manner of conversation"—1 Peter 1:15.

Scripture Lesson: 1 Peter 3:8—18, 4:1—6.

1. The Spirit of Christianity (vs. 8, 9).

There can be no question but that there is a very marked contrast between the qualities which are mentioned in these two verses and the qualities which are most often regarded as contributing to worldly succes. Take humility, for example. There are those who would contend that the high place given to humility by Christianity is a sign of weakness in the Christian faith. There are those who would contend that humility is not a virtue at all, but the opposite. Whatever may be said, however, Christ made it plain what He thought about humility. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." "Many that are first shall be last, and the last first." But one thing we must always remember, and that is that humility is never to make an excuse for evading responsibility or leaving undone the service which God summons us. Humility does not consist in burying our talent in the earth.

When we stop to think it over, we must surely realize how much that makes life unpleasant results from our neglect to set a watch upon our lips. There are the sins of angry speech when in fits of bad temper we utter words which, often very soon, we wish we could recall. Some who are naturally clever take a delight in saying things which are smart but which wound others. There is the temptation which comes to most of us to pass on to others the idle or even malicious gossip which we have heard. More often than not we do not really mean any harm. But the harm results nevertheless. Even the truth ought to be spoken in love. Plutarch tells us that when Demaratus, the King of Sparta, was asked whether he held his tongue because he was a fool or for lack of words, he replied that a fool cannot hold his tongue.

This verse suggests that no real harm can ever come to the man who does what is right. That does not mean that he will escape suffering, as we see in the verses which follow. Some of the best men who have ever lived have had to suffer very severely, and sometimes their suffering has been the direct result of their doing what they believed to be right. But such suffering does not really harm them. For, all the while, they have the reward which is the greatest of all rewards: they have the approval of their own conscience. On the other hand, the man who does what is wrong may meet with material success; but, all the while, his own character is deteriorating.

IV. The Captain of Our Salvation (v. 18).

It is the great privilege of the Christian to find help and guidance and encouragement in the example of Christ. It is true that we have to live in circumstances which are different from those in which the Savious lived in Palestine in the days of His earthly ministry. And yet the example which He gave then is an example for all time. As Bishop Hall once wrote: "Whatever I am about to do, or speak, or effect, let me think, If my Savious were now upon earth, would He do this that I am now putting my hand unto? Would He speak these words that I am now uttering? Would He be thus disposed as I now feel myself Let me not yield myself to any thought, word or action which my Savious would be ashamed to own."

Pope Pius XII Well Known Air Traveller

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
Associated Press Staff Writer

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli—pronounced "Pachelly"—is alert to the challenge of the power age, a modern pope in every sense, except in his personal life. In private, he leads an almost Spartan life.

But he's long been sold on the idea of testing and using for the church the great scientific advances of the times. Back in the '20s while assigned as the papal diplomat in Berlin, the then nuncio suddenly decided to use the airplane at his disposal by the German government.

And it wasn't curiosity that drew him to wings, but that old determination of his youth to know and understand the things around him. Thus it was he boarded his plane one day as calmly as he would have taken a carriage, deaf to all the pleas of his subordinates. He attended a religious meeting far from Berlin, then flew back to the capital, smiling and impressed.

The nuncio lifted his long hands outward from the elbow, and with a graceful shrug and smile, replied: "But you know, they save time!"

And nobody could find an answer arresting enough to keep him out of the sky every time the opportunity offered itself. He's still an enthusiastic plane rider.

His friends say he will be a travelling pope; that even another visit to North America is not an impossibility.

Faces The Power Age

First inroads of the power age were made into Vatican City under Pius XI, whom Cardinal Pacelli succeeds, but it was the cardinal. himself, as secretary of state who arranged all the innovations. Automobiles and telephones first made their appearance within the walls of the sacred city, then the radio. Now the Vatican radio station is no longer a curiosity. It makes regular broadcasts.

It is a power age of governments, too, he faced as secretary of state and continues to face as Pope. Hitler and the rise of the Nazis; Mussolini's conquests; anti-Semitic propaganda; wars in Spain and China; attacks on the church in Russia, Germany, Austria and Mexico have give him tremendous problems.

Nazis charged once that he had commanded German bishops to challenge the validity of Nazi neo-pagan ideas. Pacelli did not reply, but a short time later in France he warned the church would never make peace with "enemies possessed by superstition of race or blood."

His personal correspondence with churchmen of all ranks in all parts of the world was prodigious, intimate, and always painstakingly handled, letter for letter signed in his copy-book style handwriting. The letters seemingly are as perfect as copy-book writing today.

The new pope is an impressive teacher. His voice is a bit on thin side, but soft withal, and persuasive. He seldom speaks without a plea for world peace.

Cathedral Musings

Sometimes we wonder who first framed the term, "common-sense", and why, for it would appear that common-sense is the most uncommon thing in the world. We see this especially in connection with the problems of life. The trouble is that we "cannot see the wood for the trees." Immediately we are confronted with a difficulty we translate it into terms of self-interest. We have not acquired the innate sympathy which enables us to se the other's viewpoint. Our agreement, or disagreement is rarely impartial, but is more often based on our personal interests and prejudices. As long as we retain this attitude, so long will we continue to muddle along in danger and difficulty. In this so-called Christian land, by what are we motivated? To what end are our desires? Do we, in common with the majority, drift blindly on the surface, content with the trivalities of the day, content with saying ('Lord, Lord" and thinking that this will fit us for a higher and a happier life?

In short ,do we apply common sense to both our spiritual aspirations and our social difficulties? The two go together, you know. Or do we expect that a miracle will be wrought for our special benefit, contrary to all the laws of the universe, by which our self-centred natures will be changed, without effort on our part, into something superhuman, and that conditions of this world be instantly transformed into those of a Paradise? A great many apparently think so, but Our Lord did not. He taught exactly the opposite. The finding of the Kingdom of Heaven and the realization of it on earth, demands effort, real hard work, and a single-mindedness of vision, rare indeed, today.

While it is very true that all who ask, receive, and to all who knock, the door will open, yet, the asking must be done with a burning, selfless sincerity, and the door opens only to those who approach it in a pure self-less love. Perhaps this is why there are comparatively few in each generation of incarnation who really find the beginning of the Way, for none can tread the Path in self-desire, but only in the love for others. For if we have not love, how can we brethren in the Christ of God, or, by His grace, be channels for His Love?

LIFE OF POPE PIUS XII. - - - - PART I.

POPE PIUS XII was born in Rome March 2, 1876, as Eugenio Pacelli, descendant of an ancient Roman family. His father, Filippo Pacelli, was dean of consistorial advocates of the Vatican. His mother Donan Virginia Graziosi, was a Roman noblewoman.

ORDAINED in 1899 at the age of only 23, young Pacelli within two years had so demonstrated his outstanding ability he was summoned to the sacred congregation of extraordinary ecclesiastical affairs to serve apprenticeship in diplomacy.

NOMINATED professor of common law at the Vatican's seminary, St. Apollinarius, Pacelli performed his task with such zeal that the Monsignor Gasparri urged the young priest to give all his time to ecclesiastical diplomacy, which he did.

FATHER PACELLI thus became a "writer of minutes"—that is, copyist at the congregation's offices. In this fashion, the young priest began his brilliant diplomatic career at the very bottom of the ladder.

Peter Delivered From Prison — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 12:5-17.

Herod puts Peter in prison and plans to keep him there until after the Passover, then have him crucified, but an angel comes at night and releases him.

Peter goes to the home of friends, who have been continuously praying for him; he knocks but is not admitted at first because they think he is his own spirit.

Daniel, prophet of old, also suffers imprisonment, and is thrown into a den of lions, but his prayers are heard and the lions do him no harm.

In the morning the king, Darius, comes to the lions' den and calls Daniel, who comes forth unharmed.

Should Know In Advance

In British Columbia there exists the Provincial Coal and Petroleum Products Control Board Act. That we admit is a long title but it sets forth in a general way the purposes of the Board brought into existence by the Provincial Legislature. Its method of operation is demonstrated by a recent order which said that the retail price of gasoline should be reduced three cents per gallon. Nine firms in Vancouver brought suit in order to test the validity of this order and of the power of the Board to make it.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson has presented his decision and it is to the effect that the B. C. Board does not possess the right to regulate prices. That is a Supreme Court finding and is based on the general contention that the sole right to regulate trade and commerce is vested in the Dominion government. British Columbia will probably carry the case to the Privy Council, but at the moment it means that the Board with the long title has not the power to regulate the price at which gasoline shall be sold to the consumer.

The finding if it means anything at all, indicates that no provincial government has the power to regulate prices. That wide claim may be open to specific argument, but in a general way it fairly enough states the case. British Columbia is a province the same as Ontario, and it would bear the same relationship to the Federal government as that of our own province. And yet in Ontario our provincial government regulates the price which one shall charge for cutting hair. We realize that cutting hair and selling gasoline are different operations, but basically they are the same as they both are examples of services or materials which the consumer has reason to purchase.

The strange feature is that the announcement saying that a new law or a new regulation is wrong and cannot become operative always comes after the law has been passed. Why could the decision not be made before that? The situation and all the facts and circumstances are exactly the same before assent is given to the legislation as they after such legislation becomes effective. A man who builds a house does not go ahead and finish the structure and then find it is so wrong that it cannot be used. Could our law makers not know as much in advance about their business as the man does about building a house?

Visit The Inglis Plant

Public Accounts Committee at Ottawa argued for two hours about the Bren gun affair and then decided to go and have a look at the John Inglis plant in Toronto where it is proposed to make the guns. Some of the members appeared to be hesitant fearing the newspapers would say at once they were joyriding instead of attending to business. We know of one newspaper which will say no such thing, because the Examiner believes it would be quite the right thing for the Committee to go into the John Inglis plant, see what is being done, and get some sort of an intelligent idea of what it is all about.

If there were a few qualified mechanical experts at the plant who would make it their business to explain to the members what is being done, and why it is being done then there would at least be some slight knowledge gained of what a munitions plant does. Coming in contact with practical men if only for a short time would give to the Public Account members a bit of information and atmosphere which at the moment they do not possess.

It would be something like a jury which adjourns and goes to visit the scene of an accident. After being on the spot it becomes much easier to proceed toward reaching an intelligent and adequate conclusion.

They Talk Of Peace

Britain has speeded up her plans for building more war planes, and told in terms of dollars it means that the present speed is $1,000,000 per day and that is more than $100,000 above what it costs to operate a city the size of Peterborough for a year.

It may be that such excessive cost for one branch of the service has caused more talk about holding an international conference to see what it is all about. And there is talk of that very thing being done. What it will amount to we do not know, but admittedly it is pleasant reading in the meantime.

It is known that Germany cannot pay her own manufacturers who have delivered great qualtities of war material. The Berlin government has had recourse to "acknowledgment vouchers" which is perhaps a more dignified phrase than I.O.U. but it means exactly the same. The German banks have accepted a number of these as collateral for loans, but at best they are unwelcome. Too much like a frozen asset.

London feeling is that France and Italy will settle their colonial differences at the conference table, and that peace in Spain is not far distant. The same school of thought—or hope—says Hitler might find his colonial demands considered if he were prepared to call it a day in the business of rearmament.

Whether one can place reliance on such reports we do not know, but there are formidable reasons why some degree of truth should exist in their fabric, and chiefest of these is that some of the world powers have reached the point of financial exhaustion before ever starting a war. The mad race of recent months has been paid for at a staggering price. We may have an extended peace because the world cannot afford to travel farther in the opposite direction.

Sudetens In Canada

Hon. T. A. Crerar spent a little time in the House of Commons doing some explaining, and when he concluded it was plain enough he could have stopped a fair volume of talk and apprehension had he made his statements previously.

It had to do with the coming to Canada of some of the people driven out of Sudeten territory. For a time that is all that was known—a number of these folk were coming to Canada.

Then it was stated there were more than 3,000 of them.

They would become a charge upon the people of this country.

They were a bunch of Communists and would play hob in the district where they settled.

We have no money to spend bringing in such people.

The number coming would not be more than 1,500.

The movement is being financed by the governments of France and Britain, and each settler must have $1,500.

Fully 95 per cent. of those coming are Roman Catholics so they are not Communists. Quebec members and newspapers have been having quite a lot to say on this point because they did not know for sure what they were talking about.

It appears that these Sudetens are not particular where they go as long as they can find a place to live and work where they will be free from the dictators. If they want to come and settle on the land in this country and pay their own way the restrictions to prevent them are few. If the whole thing had been plainly stated at the inception it would have headed off a deal of useless and wild talk.

As It Was On The Tenth

We noticed at a meeting of a Women's Institute—none better—it was announced at the next meeting the subject would be "Preparing for Spring," and members will respond to the roll call by giving short suggestions as to what should be done about it.

Such preparation has been going on for a long time, and it was so even on the Tenth Concession. One never had to look at the almanac there to see when Spring arrived. Inside the door of the drive shed there was a spot which caught all the sunshine that was going, and right in there the speckled hens used to find a place to dust, the first spot on the farm. Looked like spring even if the snow banks were yet in the lane.

Then the preparations started and the young folk had to be attended to. When the buggy came back from the Saturday shopping in the village and we saw a package from the drug store we knew it was sulphur without prying off the wrapper, and where the sulphur was the molasses were not far off. Then there was a tonic as well, but it was mostly made at home; it stewed and simmered on the back of the kitchen range for the best part of a full day.

All the homes along the Tenth took to sulphur and molasses when Spring was in the offing, and most of them also took to tonics of one kind or another. There were no printed rules as to how much one should take, although in a general way it was well to take sulphur and molasses until one could shake his socks over the kitchen range and see the sulphur flicker when it hit the hot stove. Then they knew for sure that the sulphur had gone clean through.

Just why there was so much spring dosing needed was never clearly explained and we weren't supposed to ask too many questions. One was supposed to have a degree of confidence in the elders of the tribe and give visible evidence of that unshaken confidence by doing what he was told. In a general way the theory seemed to be that we were somewhat run down in the Spring and the system needed to be tuned up or toned up. If there were germs in the system which might become active when the weather turned warmer then the sulphur attended to them and the tonic added another notch or two of fortification against malady or affliction.

When that had been attended to then came the little bag of camphor with the strings to tie around the neck, with the little bag nestling close to the epidermis—which we believe is just another word for skin. No person ever questioned the little camphor bag; it was accepted with the same blind faith which in adult years we extended toward the British North America Act, and with a degree of non-resistance which is much the same as we exhibit toward taxing officials who operate until they leave lumps on the hide. The camphor was supposed to complete what the sulphur and molasses and the tonic had commenced; the germs which had been within us had been exterminated and the camphor was to keep other germs from roaming in and taking their place If there were germs perched on the rim of the tin cup which was chained to the school-house pump then they sniffed the camphor and hopped off and went on their way—defeated.

Possibly the Women's Institutes of today have something better than the methods of the Tenth. We shall watch and see if their Spring suggestions contain anything in the nature of new armament to carry on the long battle against germs.

NOTE AND COMMENT

There is a good turnover in the restaurant business as figures show that one out of every two in United States goes out of business each year.

Farmer at Lynden has a pig with five feet, so the porker can be polite at meal times and stand with four feet on the ground and still put one in the trough.

The big fair in New York has cost $150,000,000, and the need to get that money back may be one reason why there will be no passes.

Orders have been placed for the building of 15 cabooses for the C.N.R. in the shops at London. Wouldn't they be classed as trailers?

Hon. H. C. Nixon says he will bet his hat the Dionnes will come to Toronto as requested by invitation. Never having seen Mr. Nixon's hat we do not know whether the bet is worth taking up.

One man in Brantford says he counted 24 baby buggies passing a given point in less than one hour. Or it may have been the same child being wheeled around the block.

During the royal visit Indians are to appear in native dress at Port Arthur, Calgary, Vancouver and Brantford. The one thing to be settled is where some realistic scalping is to be done.

Reports tell us tourists spent $269,000,000 in Canada last year, and after trying to collect a couple of little bills we fell to wondering where all the money went.

They are getting ready as soon as the ice leaves to carry motor cars from Detroit factories on ferry boats. In our province we put the ferry boats on wheels and run them along the highways.

Stratford creamery man has found he cannot sell buttermilk to feed pigs unless it has been pasteurized. Possibly we are near the point where the law will declare a pig must have two curls in its tail and keep its nose clean.

Mr. King and Manion each blame the other for holding up the business of the House at Ottawa, and after they get through with that said business is just about where it was before they started the argument.

Lake Ontario measured at Kingston is 13 1-2 inches lower than the average record for 79 years, but in February it was 1-2 inch higher than January. So this year it's doing a little better than holding its own.

Bomb-proof shelters are being provided in England, but the one drawback seems to be that no one knows how bomb-proof they are as they have never been tested with people inside, nor does any person seem inclined to become a resident while the experimental bombing is being done—a form of hesitancy with which we have very great sympathy.

COUSIN EZRA

(By A.R.R.)

¶ My Cousin Ezra had the flu, laid up he was a week or two and he was pretty sick; he shovelled snow out in the yard, and he got seized there rather hard, it hit him pretty quick.

¶ The doctor came and looked at him, his head ached bad likewise each limb, he sent some pills and stuff; his wife mixed bitters like she should, but Ezra took them none too good, and he was rather gruff.

¶ He needed nursing all the time, his wife complained not as she'd climb, he couldn't sleep at night; his medicine he shoved away, and awful things you'd hear him say, was mad enough to fight.

¶ The widow lady just next door, you've heard me speak of her before, heard Ezra had the flu; she feared that he might yet grow worse, years back she'd trained to be a nurse, so something she might do.

¶ She mixed the bitter doses there, and Cousin Ezra did not glare, nor did he grunt and roar; he swallowed stuff like how he should, as though it tasted rather good, and licked his lips for more.

¶ Now Ezra's sitting up a spell, in no time he'll be feeling well, he's resting in a chair; but when the widow's name was heard, his wife nor he said not a word—a coolness in the air.

Lamplighter's Column

SALUTATIONS come and go—from the casual "hi-ya, babe" of the modern youth to the formal curtsey, at a Royal drawing-room, from the slap on the back to a twenty-four gun salute, yet kissing goes on as an accepted and a welcome custom! Seldom do we stop to consider that it is an unknown practice to at least half the world, that in many parts it would be as repulsive as rubbing noses would be to us! Still less frequently do we stop to consider why we do it at all!

Our forefathers had to go a long, long way along the difficult road toward civilization before the kiss became a part of everyday life. It was a great step forward when the individual, nomadic tribes first learned to live together in peaceful communities for the sake of protection, for affection was no part of their philosophy—it was a tremendous rise in the scale of their thinking to be able to suppress the urge to kill. And probably the first kiss arose, as it so fittingly might do, between mother and babe, when the cries of the infant had to be hushed lest passing animal or enemy might discover them. Her arms around the child, what could be more natural than for the mother to press the little wailing mouth against her cheek to stifle its cry—just as we have seen mothers do many, many times since. And maybe maternal instinct woke into mother love in just such a way, for even an aged lamplighter is not ashamed to admit that a baby, when it is clean, is not in the least hard to kiss.

In the monuments of Egypt, the oldest civilization of which we have complete records, there is no mention of the kiss. Strange as it may seem, the two great lovers of the Nile, Anthony and Cleopatra, probably knew nothing of the kiss of affection. At all events, there is no historical basis for believing that they did.

Very early in our own Bible we read of kissing. "Esau ran to meet him (Jacob) and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kissed him". But, even at that, we are not entirely sure that the word translated "kiss" meant, then, what it does nowadays.

THE first kiss of which we have record was a symbol of subjection and obedience, and Xenophon tells us that it was a national custom among the Persians to kiss those whom they desired to honor. Usually, however, it was only permitted to imprint the chaste salute on the personage's foot. In Greece, in the classic period, it became customary to kiss the hand, breast, or knee of a superior. Kissing on the mouth or eyes as a form of dignified greeting was practised among the early Romans. Mention of the kiss is also found in the memoirs of Pomponius, a Latin poet of the first century, B. C., who suffered his lips to be kissed by worthy and deserving nobles, his hands by less worthy nobles, and his feet by the least worthy nobles. Presumably anybody beneath the rank of a noble was out of luck.

Strangely enough, but none the less true, the kiss as a mark of greeting probably originated with the early Christian Church. Many were their secret signs, in those perilous times when it was death to be identified with the new religion of the Meek and Lowly One, by which Christian might identify Christian, and yet remain unknown by those outside the ever-growing circle. Even today, we remember some of their signs, and repeat them unknowingly — as we "touch wood", or "cross our fingers", for luck. And Paul bade them "greet all the brethren with an holy kiss". It is rather a precious thought that the symbol of greeting should have passed into the symbol of affection through its use by those who loved one another through their common faith in their crucified leader.

From the early Christians, Rome carried the kiss of greeting — as she did so many other things that still survive — into England. Erasmus tells us that he found it in use everywhere, and that when a visitor entered the house he kissed his host and hostess, all their children, and even the dog and cat. It sounds almost like a politician just before election day!

Apparently it was France who first found out that there was more to this business than met the eye! Once introduced there, again from Rome, the custom became immediately popular. Montaigne tells us that any person who was able to keep three lackeys was privileged to kiss any woman he pleased. When dancing became popular, almost every dance figure ended with a kiss. And according to one writer Louis the Twelfth is credited with having kissed every woman in Normandy. But perhaps Normandy wasn't as large a country as it is now.

The old custom of being kissed under the mistletoe is a recollection of the Druids of Ancient Britain, by whom this plant was regarded with the utmost veneration. They cut it with a golden knife and hung it over doors to keep out the woodland spirits who stole young girls and took them away to be servants of the wood gods. Since they could not pass the sacred berries they lurked near them, so as to catch any maiden who came out of the door. From this old belief comes the Christmas custom of "capturing" any attractive damsel who is found beneath it. In these days, any girls who has to fall back on the pretext of mistletoe, especially at Christmas, is in a bad way.

The sign "X", indicating a kiss, dates back to the days when knighthood flowered, when oaths were taken on the sword-hilt, because it was shaped like the true cross. The sword-hilt was kissed in veneration, just as we today kiss the Bible.

And, as we leave the subject let us give one backward glance to the vast and shadowy army of long ago lovers, who plighted their troth by oak and ash and thorn; by sun and sea and stars, so that the gods might witness that they loved each other; yet who never knew the sweetness of the betrothal kiss. And then let us pay our mute tribute to the first couple — wherever their dust lies, may it rest softly — who first found out!

WOULD HE!

"Oh, Dick, as it's such a very foggy evening, would you terribly mind showing Brenda the way to the post office?"

—Humorist.

• Palestine Has Been Overdone

Frederick G. Clapp, in Christian Science Monitor.

ARTICLES continue to appear in the daily press indicating the expectation of the Jews of the world that sooner or later large numbers of their race will be admitted into Palestine for settlement on the land which many of them envision as of unlimited extent and fertility. The writer is familiar with the lands of that country and finds it necessary to correct some of the misunderstanding regarding it.

Palestine can absorb little additional immigration. When the Israelites first came to that country they did not find it a "land of milk and honey" as would appear on superficial Bible study. Palestine was a rich country only in parts, relatively speaking.

With continued desiccation of the desert belt which extends from western Sahara eastward across Africa and central Asia, it was inevitable that Palestine should become even less suitable for occupancy than it was originally. Some of the first settlements lie in places which are now quite barren and devoid of water.

When, after the World War, the Zionist organization was allotted a permanent place for its "home for the Jews," Palestine was naturally the first country to hold in prospect. Probably not one of the interested individuals in ten thousand has studied its geologic or climatic conditions. The world tried to do the Jews a kindness in assigning them to Palestine under a British Mandate which at the time evidently seemed a remedy for all their troubles, and no Zionist leader or enthusiast need be blamed for making the most of an opportunity for which they had all worked so diligently. Even the Palestinian Arabs may have supposed they were doing the Jews a favor by selling them land on which to settle.

The truth is that the fundamental conditions do not justify even the immigration which has taken place to date —no matter what the nationality, race and religion of immigrants might be. Although a fair area of rich land borders the Mediterranean Sea, this has now been largely settled; it has in fact been intensively developed by farms and settlements.

Most important, the groundwater level in the farming areas has tended to decline for years past. Water, which constitutes so essential an element in all settlement and cultivation, does not exist on the surface or below ground in amounts adequate for unlimited expansion of the necessary irrigation.

The main inducement held out by enthusiasts to Palestinian settlement is for farming. Few other industries can be expanded. Thus if Jews or other immigrants are counting on farming for a living, Palestine is no longer their "promised land." A few manufacturing opportunities may exist, but this business is better suited to any country from which immigrants intend to move. Palestine factories are a long distance from the world's best markets; consequently a large immigrant population cannot subsist mainly by manufacturing. Even the banks are overdone in Palestine; there are more of them than warranted by the size or future expectations of the country.

Thus, although wishing to do no injustice, even in thought, to either Jew or Arab, I am forced to the conclusion that the only way to put an end to the Palestine controversy is to stop immigration. The Arabs did not offer hostile opposition to the presence of the Jews until the latter arrived in great numbers. Frederick G. Clapp New York.

THREE MILLION MOTORS.

AN increase of 120 percent. in the number of private cars within the last 10 years is recorded in the annual return of the Minister of Transport. The figures for the quarter ended September 30 show that the vehicles for which licenses were current under the Roads Act, 1920, totalled 3,093,884, compared with 2,938,485 in the corresponding quarter of the year before. Private cars were 1,944,394 compared with 1,798,105 in 1937, and with 884,645 in 1928. A notable increase occurs in light cars of the 10 h.p. class, though the 8 h.p. class remains the most numerous.—London Times.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands; neither is worshipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things.

Forasmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man's device. And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent; because he hath appointed a day, in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained.—Acts xvii, 24, 25, 29-31.

KIDNAPPING.

ACCORDING to the facts disclosed by the police, on February 20 Charles Mitchell of Brooklyn was $4,300 in debt and Solomon Schwartz of the same borough owed $2,300. They had a mutual friend, George Katz, another resident of Brooklyn, who had a son, Michael, aged 4. Mitchell and Schwartz kidnapped their friend's son and held him for ransom, putting him in the care of Schwartz's sister, Mrs. Nellie Resnick, of Manhattan.

Having the child in custody, the kidnappers demanded $7,000 from his father, who did not have that much money. Under these circumstances, the kidnappers accepted $180 on account. Of this sum Schwartz kept $135, giving $40 to Mitchell and $5 to Mrs. Resnick. The kidnappers then attempted, unsuccessfully, to collect the balance of their original price from Mr. Katz.

The police soon got on the track of the kidnappers, and on February 28 they and Mrs. Resnick were arrested. There has been no tabulation of the expenses they incurred in their enterprise. The Penal Law provides that kidnappers may be sentenced to imprisonment for from twenty years to life, and accessories may be sentenced to imprisonment for from five to fifteen years. Prisoners are lodged, clothed and fed free of cost by the State. It is probable that the authors of this affair will have sufficient leisure to enable them to figure out exactly how much it benefited them.—(New York Sun)

COLORED CROSSINGS.

AMONG the many suggestions for reducing traffic accidents, an original one is being tried in some English towns.

Pedestrian crossings on busy streets are being laid in colored concrete, instead of in the usual road materials. The colored material is more visible, both to the pedestrian and to the motorists, it is claimed, and the concrete is said to give a non-skid surface.

Crossings of the brighter variety have been laid so far in three towns, says the County and Municipal Record, of Edinburgh. The results would seem to be satisfactory, as a number of other places in the British Isles are reported to be considering putting in the new protection for pedestrians.—Winnipeg Tribune.

WHY NOT?

If France chooses to strengthen herself by buying planes here, for cash on the barrel head, we have no grounds, either military or political, for objecting. Should war break out, the situation would change radically. But even then our neutrality act does not ban trade in many items which could be used for war, including plane parts, provided the belligerents paid cash and carried the goods away in their own bottoms. The German air fleet has been built up with American help. France is beginning to build hers. To put up the bars at this moment is a strange perversion of the neutral ideal.—(New York Post)

The only mechanical equipment Mr. Veneranda used then, was a Singer patching machine, the majority of the work being done by hand as shown in number one picture. The ladies then wore high top shoes. Also may be seen wood lasts which were used to make made-to-measure shoes. Mr. Veneranda's business expanded to such an extent that in one year he moved across the street to his present location, 166 Simcoe street. More machinery was then added to his shop. Increasing business each year demanded the addition of new and modern equipment. His present equipment now includes over thirty machines for rebuilding shoes, which enables him to give you factory-finished repairs.

Mr. Veneranda believes in the use of machinery, which helps give quicker and better work. The volume of work which can be handled makes it necessary to employ six helpers.

In the basement of the shop is equipment for dying shoes all colours. Also a stock room in which is all the necessary leather and findings for rebuilding shoes. The Model Electric Shoe Rebuild Shop is the largest and most modern in Peterborough, and one of the best in Canada.

TERRIERS DEFEAT COMBINES 6-3 IN FIRST OF THE T.V.L. FINALS

Tweed Took Lead First Period Then Continued Throughout With Strong Offensive Playing

(By JAMES COVERT)
Examiner Correspondent.

NORWOOD, March 11. — The speedy Tweed "Terriers" handed the Norwood "Combines" a 6-3 defeat Friday night at the Norwood arena, to cop the first in a three out of five series between these two squads to decide the Trent Valley Hockey League championship. Packed to the very rafters with cheering fans the game produced some of the fastest hockey witnessed here this season. The largest crowd in some years, over seven hundred, were present for the tussle. The second game will be in Tweed on Monday, with the third back at Norwood on Wednesday.

The Terriers, a smooth-skating aggregation, kept the play moving at a swift pace throughout the whole three sessions. Closely matched by the Combines who were also travelling, they managed to take advantage of the breaks, having considerably less difficulty in finding the net than the locals. Two soft goals scored from the centre ice zone, in the final stanza, was the turning point in the game, which up to this time had been fairly even.

Goalie Out of Game.

The Combines were greatly weakened by the loss from their line-up of Baker, their star netminder, who received a broken bone in his hand during the Wednesday night struggle in Campbellford. Beavis, replacing him in the cage at the last moment, tried hard, but lack of practice kept him from displaying his usual efficiency.

Starting with a bang the two teams battled on even terms for the first fourteen minutes of the initial period. Orr then broke the ice for Tweed, drifting one from the blueline, which glanced off the edge of Beavis' pads into the twine, for the first goal of the night. Ibey missed two swell chances to even it up just before the end of the stanza, getting in alone twice on Reeves.

Battling for the breaks both sides came close during the first half of the second. A penalty to W. Webb, the first of the game, for tripping B. Leal, gave the visitor's an advantage; good backchecking by Chuck and Gordie Puffer kept them off the score sheet. At the fifteen minute mark Wager combined with Meraw for the Terriers second counter, going in close on Beavis to pick the right-top corner. Four minutes later Rathwell picked up the Combines initial goal on a pass from Ibey. Norwood tried the ganging act when J. Tummon drew a penalty for spilling Bud Webb, but failed to get even. Webb, in falling to the ice, struck his mouth, and had to retire from the game with a front tooth knocked out. His presence on the second line was sadly missed during the last frame.

Home Team Pressed Hard

Norwood pressed hard going into the final session, keeping the play almost entirely within their opponents territory. At the three minute mark Roddy Webb finally tied it up at 2-all, on an assist from Pepper Rogers. Less than a minute later J. Tummon dampened their hopes with a tally from near centre ice. In the space of another minute Orr's shot, also from outside the blue line, glanced off Beavis' stick into the cage, and Tweed had resumed their two-goal lead. From the face-off Elsbury increased this to three, W. Leal making the play. Rattling home these counters in the space of four minutes the visitors practically had the game chinched, but they still continued to press the attack. When Rathwell got the gate for tripping, they practically stormed around the Norwood net, and only a smart display of stickhandling by Doug Brennan saved the day. Ibey and Meraw went off together for highsticking, and while they were warming the bench, G. Puffer notched the Combines third goal.

Cutting down Cournyea as he went in on goal, G. Puffer drew a penalty and Tweed were given a penalty shot. J. Tummon's drive failed to leave the ice, and Beavis made an easy stop. Shortly after this Elsbury notched the visitors sixth and last goal. A penalty to Meraw for slashing failed to make any difference in the 6-3 count.

The teams:

Tweed: Goal, Reeves; defence, Orr, J. Tummon; centre, Cournyea; wings, W. Leal, Elsbury; alternates, Wager, Meraw, B. Leal, Maguire.

Norwood: Goal, Beavis; defence, Brennan, Webb; centre, G. Puffer; wings, C. Puffer, N. Rogers; alternates, Richardson, Ibey, W. Webb, W. Rogers, Rathwell.

Referee, J. Sabatino, Lakefield.

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

Digging o/t the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

And you can pretty well kiss the Chatham Maroons good-bye for this year in O.H.A. senior "B" playoffs. That 10-5 reverse they suffered at the hands of the Petes here last eve about knocks their chances of a round-robin playoff berth down the street a good distance. Maybe still a mathematical chawnce, but it's slimmer than a break in taxes for ye poor motorist! The Petes are a long way from being out of the woods yet, too, but they still have a fighting chance, and they plan to keep on fighting. Gotta grab off about three more wins, or pretty nearly—depending on what the Falls and Waterloo are doing the next week. Waterloo Tigers are here next Wednesday, and the Petes play in the Falls Friday and Chatham Saturday.

* * * * * *

Wasn't much to it at the Rue Brock yesterday gloaming, the Petes playing good hockey and not having too much stiff opposition from last year's senior "B" champs. Maybe the Mich.-Ont. loop isn't as strong as they say, and not as rough, either, or maybe the Maroons just weren't clicking up to par after a long train trip Anyway, Chatham didn't bother the locals too much—barring a 10-minute dash they put on in the second period. Petes had an early lead and held it nicely, with no signs of folding up near the finish this time. In fact, they outscored the visitors in the third, too.

* * * * * *

Not Too Exciting.

Quite a crowd ankled into the arena and apparently enjoyed proceedings okay, though the game wasn't nearly as exciting as the Falls-Petes' tilt here or the Petes-Waterloo thriller in Kitchener. Still a win's a win for a' that. The Buckland boys were stepping on the gas last eve and playing pretty neat combination to go around and through the Maroon defence frequently. Goalie Haggerty was a haggard gent indeed at the end, getting banged about a bit and seeing a lot of rival sweaters on his doorstep all evening. He looked okay and had little chance on those that beat him, but the locals were hot in this fray. As one of 'em remarked: "Well, we can't have tough luck every darned game!"

* * * * * *

'Twas a remarkably clean contest. We expected a Mich.-Ont. team to play a rugged brand of hockey like Niagara Falls, slashing and bumping opponents about with abandon. But these Maroons didn't. They seldom tossed the torso and then with an apologetic gesture that amazed the battle-scarred Petes. Only penalty that amounted to anything was one to Bun Kingdon, a misconduct, for tossing the puck hard at the referee. Bun didn't think, just shot it hard in a momentary peeve—ye ref having missed a bad one on an offside. Though he is a pretty good arbiter all around.

* * * * * *

First Trio Clicks

Our starting line snapped back to form this tussle and played some good hockey most of the route. And the second trio, though not clicking quite as well, worked hard and showed flashes of real form. Defence checked 'em up effectively most of the time, and Harding again was steady in goal. Big Lambki (No. 18) played a neat game for the losers, but was kinda wild-eyed in the third and inclined to push Mr. D. A. Houston around—but was yanked before he talked himself into the cooler. This Chatham team may be tougher on their own ice, with the Petes doing the heavy travelling that day, but we believe the locals can take 'em again—and beat Waterloow here. We hope, we hope, and hope.

* * * * * *

Niagara Falls on home ice last gloaming took a 6-3 win over Waterloo Tigers. It was the third straight smirk for the Falls and first loss for Tigers. First in 16 games this season, and we have a hunch the Petes will slip 'em another here on Wednesday next. Since there is a chance of Waterloo and the Petes winding up in a second-place tie (always provided the Falls don't surprisingly enough drop one to the Tigers) the goals scored by these teams count a lot. And the Petes' 10 last e'en may mean a great deal yet. They now have 17 goals in three games, whilst Waterloo has 14. Incidentally, a group of several fans asks us to inquire in this column why the Petes use five forwards when they're several goals up, claiming the locals lost two playoff tilts this way. Maybe it's for forechecking purposes, or maybe to pile the score up—we dunno.

Aces In Omemee

Markham and local Aces will stage their return O.H.A. intremediate "B" playdown game—first one was a 5-5 tie—in Omemee, not here, next Tuesday. It was first slated for the Brock on Monday, but plans have been changed and it'll be Tuesday in the Omemee arena at 8.30, Red Creighton being the referee. This is a good break for fans around Omemee, where the Aces were playing in a district loop all winter, but tough on local puck followers who haven't had a look-see at this squad all season. Guess the Aces and Brock St. rink couldn't get together on financial terms. The Williams' gang claim they'll take Markham on Tuesday and advance into the next O.H.A. round, maybe against the strong Whitby crew.

* * * * * *

Gals' basketball made its debut in the fine new Y.W. gym last night with three tussles. C.G.E. copped a 16-14 win over Westclox, Quaker Debs yanked out a 6-5 verdict over "Y" Gym and the Aces took a 19-11 verdict against Quaker Maids. Up at P.C.I. gym last e'en, a big flock of fans witnessed three lively Cobourg-P.C.I. melees. Senior and junior boys of Peterborough won handily and the local senior lasses tied their cage rivals. This lets the P.C.I. damsels out for the season, but the other two local teams are tied up in the race yet. Tonight in Toronto, St. Paul's of here try to protect a one-point lead over Parkdale Invietus in an O.C.B.A. intermediate "A" number. And here at the Y.M. gym, C.G.E. plays St. John's and Hecias meet Dominions in senior men's frays.

Picking 'em off the Grapevine: Sorry, pal, but that cage item missed connections yestiddy in ye gasette....Church junior puck playoff Monday e'en in the Brock....Oshawa intermediates fell before a redhot Whitby "B" band on home ice last p.m., 8-3, with Whitby taking the round 11-7....This is the Oshawa team that the Quinte scribe felt should be playing in senior "B" ranks....See by the Tely that Eddie Murphy still has hopes of the Petes, as well as Oshawa, in a Toronto senior ball circuit this summer....It'll take some financial inducements ere any Toronto club will come here, and maybe not even for oughday ....Gray didn't feel well before last night's game, Nichol's leg still bothered him, Gardner got bumped hard once, and Harding was temporarily dazed during the tussle....Referee Houston arrived in town at five a.m. yestiddy, coming up from Ottawa where he worked the eve previous....What occurred at the grid meeting in Toronto last night, or does it matter yet?....Nope, that fray here didn't indicate the N.H.L.-ers had too much to worry about yet....And here's the spot to sign off for now.

P.C.I. Cagers Win A Pair And Tie A Tilt

P.C.I.'s trio of basketball teams won two and tied one in their Lakeshore League, C.O.S.S.A. triple-header with Cobourg Collegiate, last night, in the P.C.V.S. gym before the biggest crowd of the season, the Senior and Junior Boys trouncing the visitors handily and the Senior Girls finishing dead-locked at 21-all. The pair of wins by the boys' teams kept them in the running for group titles, the Seniors and Juniors finishing their schedules tied with Bowmanville and Cobourg respectively and forcing a play-off, while the Senior Girls' valiant effort in gaining a tie, was not enough, Cobourg having previously whipped P.C.I. and so winning the group title.

After battling on even terms through the fast opening quarter and most of the second period, P.C.I. junior boys began to go to town and piled up substantial margins in the last two quarters to win handily 35-15. A sudden death game to declare the group champions will be played probably next week.

P.C.I. had a small margin to go into a 16-7 lead at the half and piled it up from then on. The winners had better passing and more polish under the basket, to lead all the way from the first quarter in, winning handily and looking well doing it. P.C.I. had 16 fouls to Cobourg's' 14, the homesters making 5 free throws and the losers 5, Clarke, Scott and Gillespie starred for the winners and Ewart and Platt for Cobourg. The teams:

C.C.I. (15)— Centre Ewart (6); forwards, Drewry, Platt (5); guards, Wildon (2, King (1). Subs, Earle, Bobster, Bulger, Benson.

P.C.I. (35)—Centre, Clarks (6); forwards, Gillespie (12), Amys (7); guards, Scott (5), Moore (3); subs, Rogow, Hall (4), Kay, Dundas.

Referee— Dr. Morton, Peterboro. Umpire, G. Dufton, Cobourg.

Cut Lead Down.

A desperate Cobourg rally in the final half of the girls' game cut down what looked to be a safe P.C.I. lead at the half, and tied up the game at 21-all just before the final whistle. Garnet and Gray lasses had a substantial lead at the halfway mark, being in front 19-10 but the C.C.I. girls out-playing the homesters in the second half.

M. Charlton, the left forward, led Cobourg, with P.C.I.'s points being split up, no one player getting more than 8. Cobourg made one free throw out of four and P.C.I. one out of three. M. Charlton and F. Spooner were C.C.I.'s stars, with E. Saunders, E. Craig and R. Dalliday leading P.C.I. The teams:

C.C.I. 21)—M. Charlton (14), K. Shorey, E. Nichol, H. Gibson (3, F. Spooner (4), H. Minnie, B. Dufton, M. Henderson.

P.C.I. (21)—E Saunders (6), J Ottewell, M. Juby, J. Coleman (3), R. Dalliday (4), E. Craig (8), D. Glover, L. Reed, H. Beatty, A. Richardson.

Referee—H. McGregor, Peterboro.

Seniors Win.

After battling on even terms throughout most of the first half, P.C.I. senior boys jumped into a 21-16 lead at the half, starting slowly again in the second period and then beginning to roll in the dying minutes to win 45-25. It was hard and fast in the opening minutes with scoring even until mid-way in the opening period when P. C. I. jumped into the lead, maintaining their margin from then on, though never being far ahead till near the end when they began to pile it up. In the closing minutes of the game Cobourg trying to pull up even with the winners were caught on the floor often, P.C.I. shooting long passes and the forwards scoring in quick succession to lengthen their lead. Cutting, Moorhead, Foster, Johnston and Gillespie starred for the winners and Lucas and Ravensdale for Cobourg. The teams:

P.C.I. (45) —Centre, Foster (5); forwards, Cutting (13), Harle; guards, Gillespie (15), Johnston (2); subs, Taylor (2), Moorhead (9), Ferguson.

C.C.I. (25)—Centre, Lucas (13); forwards, Guy (2), Thomas (2); guards, Bennett, Ravensdale (3); subs., Mallory, Parkinson.

Referee—Dr. Worton, Peterboro. Umpire, G. Dufton, Cobourg.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Miss C. Littlefield, playing a good brand of curling and supported by a rink that curled equally well, defeated Mrs. J. Russell's quartette in the final game for the Sturgeon trophy yesterday morning.

Playing on a sheet of ice that was exceptionally fast the game soon developed into a draw game. Miss Littlefield's rink took the lead right on the first end and was never headed. It was a real game for the first five ends and after that the winners had it pretty well their own way, finishing seven up.

The final game of the "consolation" was a little closer but not much. The winners always holding the whip hand.

It was the first time that Mrs. Dulmage ever skipped a rink and she did make a good job of it. Some of the older skips can support us in that respect.

It was a good 'spiel with lots of interesting curling. The suggestion has been made that next year's committee might well consider the adoption of the bigger mixed bonspiels, that of playing the ladies, lead and vice—as it is now, it is more or less of a joke—too mush interference on the part of the male members of the rinks.

Budge Whips Perry Three Straight

NEW YORK, March 11.—(AP)—The growing business of professional tennis is being stunted by J. Donald Budge, the red-headed monopolist who is almost unbelievably good.

Donald put the crusher on the second opponent of his professional career last night. He whipped Fred Perry of Great Britain, at one time the world's No. 1 amateur.

From the moment Budge paddled his first service over the net in the first game until Perry double-faulted 23 games later, Budge was the master, in command all the way. The scores, 6-1, 6-3, 6-0, hardly indicate the margin of his mastery.

PETES GRAB 10-5 SENIOR VICTORY OVER CHATHAM MAROONS

Locals Stay In Playoff Running With One-Sided Decision Over Last Year's Champions

Pasting Chatham Maroons with a 10-5 reverse here last night, the Petes kept in the running for an O.H.A. senior "B" round-robin berth. A big crowd of fans saw the locals cop their first game of the series, with the Maroons being practically eliminated with their third straight loss.

It was a lively, wide-open and clean contest, with the locals grabbing an early lead and looking better than their rivals all the way through. They had a 4-1 lead in the first period and made it 6-2 going into the third, having a scoring margin on the Maroons in every frame. For a time in the second, the visitors crowded the Petes plenty and forced the play but they faded again in the third.

The Petes turned on the heat at times to flash more speed and their fine combination all evening bothered their opponents, the goalie having a tough night of it all around—suffering a five-stitch gash inside his mouth early in the second heat. Only five penalties were drawn, one a misconduct to Kingdon for shooting the puck at the referee when he called an offside wrong.

A Fine Showing

All the Petes turned in a sparkling performance, there being no individual standouts over the whole route. The first line of Kingdon, Starr and Tompkins clicked well most of the way, and Red Creighton figured in on three tallies in a nice showing. The defence worked good and Harding knocked aside a bunch in a neat showing. For the visitors Stottard on defence and Lemski, Hinnegan and Wilson up front looked best, with the goalie having little or no chance on the shots that beat him.

Burnell made Harding hop early in the first, and Tompkins returned the compliment with a neat rush. Creighton counted the first with a smoking shot that nearly knocked the goalie over, as Red rounded defence. Starr came right back to score another on a snap angle shot on Kingdon's pass in close. The Petes looked superior all through the first with speed and passing plays taking them in through and around the defnce often. A Kingdon-Tompkins rush case close and later Nichol was robbed. But Nichol came back a minute later to score, after checking a defenceman in his own area and giving Haggerty no chance. Tompkins pulled a fine lone rush right through to make it 4-0, but Hales got one back on Merilees' pass a few minutes before the period finished up.

Fairly Even

The locals showed more class the first half of the second stanza though the Maroons rallied the last part and forced the play. It was clean, neat hockey throughout. A Coughlin-Nichol drive almost dented the twine, and then Morell's snap shot around defence beat Harding. The rival goalie was hurt in a scramble and the game held up for a time. Lemski dashed down for a neat try later as Chatham started to strut their stuff in dangerous manner. Wilson got right through for a dandy stab at the net but the goalie blocked him. Four Chatham players went on the attack and rushed the homesters plenty till Stottard was gated for charging, and then the Petes pressed. They scored when Creighton banged home a short forward pass by Kingdon. Later Starr scored another nice one on Tompkins' assist at close range. Lemski was chased for tripping at the bell.

Gray and Tompkins got in close to open the third but Gardner was sent off for tripping and the Maroons pressed hard till they tallied. Stevens from Burnell inside the defence. Later, the Petes held their own with Chatham still trying to gang up but afraid of breakaways. Coughlin pulled a swell solo rush through defence to counter and then Creighton counted on Nichol's rebound with the goalie flat on the ice and hurt for a few seconds. Kingdon nearly notched one and Lemski rushed right back to blast one home on Stottard's assist. Gardner pulled a fine rush, with Kingdon later taking Gardner's rebound inside to tally. Hinnegan scored on Stottard's pass on a nice play and Tompkins came back to counter on a passout from Starr, play swinging up and down fast. Starr was thefted by Haggerty and Kingdon was gated for firing the rubber at the referee when he mistakenly called an offside. Lemski was chased right after for boarding, and Creighton and Nichol combined on a swell rush. Play slowed up considerably and was ragged near the finish.

The teams:

Chatham: Goal, Haggerty; defence, Stottard and Hales; centre, Lemski; wings, Wilson and Stevens; alternates, Morell, Hinnegan, Burnell, Merilees and L'Heureux.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Gray and Gardner; centre, Kingdon! wings, Starr and Tompkins; alternates, Creighton, Coughlin, Nichol, Weir and Crowe.

Preston Ladies Beat Haileybury

PRESTON, Ont., March 11—(CP).—Preston Rivulettes, perennial winners of the Canadian women's hockey championship, defeated Haileybury Northern Marvels 5-0 here last night in the first game of a semi-final Ontario Ladies' Hockey Association series. Second game of the total-goal series will be played here tonight with the winner meeting Ottawa in that city next week for Ontario honors.

Haileybury presented the most consistent back-checking club the Rivulettes have tackled this season. The visitors, however, lacked scoring punch. The winners scored once in the first period and added two more in each of the second and third periods.

Ruth Dargel scored twice with Mamy Schmuck, Helen Ranscombe and Gladys Pitcher completing the total. Mary Brough, Haileybury netminder gave an outstanding exhibition in making many difficult stops.

Be No Surprise To Toe Blake Not Win Crown

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MONTREAL, Mar. 11 — (CP). — Hector (Toe) Blake, a rather discouraging factor so far to National Hockey League goaltenders, imparted the information to-day that he does not expect to win the league scoring crown although he has been out in front for most of the season and still is in the lead.

But it does not worry the stocky fellow who patrols a left lane on a line with Paul Haynes and Johnny Gagnon for Montreal Canadiens. He has his reasons, and they seem good ones, too, for saying that it would not disappoint him in the least if he fails to pick up the title won last year by Gordon Drillon of Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Naturally, I want to win that scoring title," he said here to-day. "But the darn thing makes you a marked man. If I win, what happens, eh? Next season every team in the league will be making special efforts to keep me from scoring. And what if I have a bad season after winning the title? Well, I'm just a bum then because I couldn't keep it up."

At present Blake is one of three men in the league who have 20 or more goals to their credit. Alex. Shibicky of the New York Rangers and Rookie Roy Conacher of Boston Bruins each have 21, while the Montrealer has 20. But he also has handed out 22 assists, for a 42-point total, which gives him a two-point edge over Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of New York Americans.

Blake thinks Schriner has a good chance of forging into the lead in the few games that the N.H.L. schedule still has to run. But he also considers Bill Cowley of the Bruins and Clint Smith of Rangers as "dark horses." Smith now has 35 points, while Cowley has 36.

Inside Sportin' Dope

by A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, it looks like the Petes pulled a awful bloomer when they didn't arrange to have this here round robin playoff serious made up of 40 minute games cause if they had the Buckaroos right now would be riding out in front of the field and making every post a winning 1. The boys had a 2 to 0 lead over Niagara Falls here Tues. nite at the end of the 2nd period and at the same stage in the game at Kitchener the next nite they was 3 to 2 in front. Unfortunately however the 2 fixtures was the regulation length and when the final returns was in the lads was behind 5 to 3 and 5 to 4, close enough but still leaving the locals holding the well known gunny sack.

A Real Heart-Braker

That battle with the Falls here Tues. nite was a heart-braker,, old timer. When the teams come on the ice the Kataract Kids with their big helmeted defence looked like the Boston Bruins and some of them checked like it too but the home team went ahead and for more than 2 periods had a distinct edge on the invaders and seemed to be in until all at once a penalty to Mister Gardner of our forces and a bullet drive from the blue line that eluded the clutches of Mister Harding between the pipes seemed to alter the whole picture. It's easy to do second guessing but at that it looked like a little sound defensive play by the Petes at that stage might a saved the day. As it was the Cataracts come to life and breezed in for enough goals to put the game on ice. And they done it so goldarned smooth that the homesters seemed to think the visitors was doing it with mirrors or something.

"We Wus Robbed"

Wed. nite at Kitchener, so the scouts report, we wus robbed and outlucked. The Waterloocrs got a couple of fairly soft goals and on top of that our lads shoved 1 into the hemp and didn't get no credit for it when the Waterloo umps failed to turn on the light. In spite of the tough game the nite before and the long car ride to Kitchener the Buckaroos put up a great battle, realizing a win would put them in great shape for a group playoff berth.

As it is now the lads will have to get in there the hard way. This is being wrote Fri. afternoon on the eve of the battle here with Chatham and of course before this epistle gets into print the customers will know all about it. I'm picking the local entry to come through with their 1st win in the round robin serious and thus stay in the running.

The Hawks Goes Out

The cash and carry circuit is running down the stretch and right not it looks like the Black Hawks is the team that is going to be read all about the Stanley Cup doings. And won't Mister Bill Stewart, waiting for the opening of the ball season, laugh right out loud. They tossed him to the wolves half way home and haven't done a thing since while last year after stumbling around all season Mister Stewart took them into the cup serious so hot that they copped the historic mug. If they is anything in form the Boston Bruins should win the honors this year standing on their heads but the history of the annual struggle for the Stanley mug shows that form don't count a bit. Anybody is libel to win this year and at the present writing 2 of the hottest teams in the league is the Canadiens and the Detroit Red Wings. Either 1 of them outfits could and may breeze home a winner; the Stanley cup competition is just that screwey.

Well plenty is enough and so I'll be leaving ya.

Sportfully Yours
A Wise Cracker.

Owen Sound Hockey Team Uses New System Of Securing Talent

By Central Press Canadian

Something different, something new, in that age-old business of importing hockey talent to bolster the local team, has come to light in Owen Sound, Ontario. Maybe you thought all the possible systems had been used up long ago as the amateurs trot from one section of the country to another.

Adopting what was described in the local press as a "unique plan," the management of Owen Sound Greys, a team that twice has won the Memorial Cup, brought to town a hand-picked squad from Hamilton for an exhibition game with the Greys.

Advance notices told the fans about this, plus the information that each fan would be supplied with a ballot as he entered the arena. After watching the game he was to jot down on the ballot the names of the three players he best would like to see playing for, instead of against, the local prides. Adding up the votes for the players nominated, the Owen Sound management would then go out and bring 'em in for the following hockey season, 1939-40.

"Import,' 'a standard part of the amateur hockey vocabulary in these enlightened days, will not be attached to the Hamilton youths who caught the eyes of Owen Sound fandom. The team brought in to show its wares was made up of juveniles, youths of 17 and 18, who had not previously taken part in Ontario Hockey Association competition, and therefore escaped the horrible stigma of the "import" label.

The exhibition game (as it was billed) between Hamilton and Owen Sound, proved that at least the talent-hunters had their eyes on the right people. The visitors handed the natives a fancy walloping as they registered a 6-1 victory, and the fans dutifully marked their baloits When the counting was over three players had found a predominence of favor, a centre, a left wing and a defenceman.

It would appear that now the only thing needed is for advances to be made the three favorites, have them accept, and then transport them to Owen Sound and keep them contented until another hockey season rolls around. After which they will just need to play up to the form they displayed in the game in which the fans voted for them, and then if the team goes on to bigger and better things fickle fandom will be able to shout "We did it! We sure can pick 'em."

Or should the season be a sad one in the way of results innumerable fans will be able to get in a word about "Now if they'd only brought in the guy I picked...."

Anyway, it's a novel system of recruiting next year's hockey team.

All Star Team

Following is the 14th in a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star teams selected by hockey writers in N.H.L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later.

Closer Check Is Planned On Seasonal Wages

Men on relief, obtaining seasonal employment, will be expected in future to spend their earnings on necessities for their homes and not for cars, radios and other articles that are not regarded as essentials, the relief committee unanimously decided last night.

Purchase of automobiles with their consequent cost of operation is considered by the committee as a dissipation of wages that will not be encouraged, and this new ruling is intended to be broader in its effect than the mere banning of cars by persons who in the past apply for relief the day after employment ceases, "and sometimes on the very day they are through."

"We have every sympathy for the man who obtains work, thereby takes himself out of the relief class, and uses his money for the actual needs of his home," Alderman Dutton said. "We don't wish to inflict injustice on anyone, but with the increasing cost of relief to the ratepayers they naturally expect that seasonal earnings will be wisely used."

That was the general statement of the committee's purpose as expressed by other members in supporting Alderman Dutton's summary of experiences in relief distribution during the last few years. Following the Government's policy of discouraging shirking of work, the committee is determined that men receiving relief are not going to get assistance if they refuse work that is offered to them, and some minor penalties have already been applied in some cases since the first of this year. The general idea the committee now contemplates is that men shall be expected to accept any work that is available, and to make good and proper use of the money they earn.

The resolution embodying this policy of granting relief was moved by Alderman Bradburn and seconded by Alderman Stocker. It was said that men who get work and buy necessary things for their homes will receive every consideration from the committee. Even an accounting of the expenditure of earnings will be required, and those men who have made no attempt to save any part of their wages but have bought such things as cars, radios and articles of that class will not get much sympathy if they head for the relief office in the event of their employment ending.

A letter from the Peterborough Workers and Unemployed Association requested that men engaged in snow shovelling and other city work be given an additional allowance of 30 per cent of their vouchers to buy extra food needed for labor of that kind. This communication was discussed at some length, and on Alderman Gordon's motion, seconded by Alderman McCannan, it was decided to reply that the city did not receive any extra contribution from the government, that relief costs had steadily mounted, and that the government was cutting off its grant for quite a number of articles to which their allowance had applied in the past.

Prop Cuts Power Line 2 Fliers Have Miraculous Escape

Orillia, Ont., March 11 (CP)

MEMBERS of the Orillia Flying Club and town electrical experts agreed today club instructor Robert Goldstein and William Holden had "phenomenal luck" when an airplane in which they were flying struck a high-tension power line. Neither was injured.

The accident occurred when Goldstein, about to land on a field between Ardtrea and Washago yesterday, changed his mind and attempted to rise again. The plane was unable to clear a power line carrying 8,000 volts of electricity and with a blinding flash of flames the propeller sheared off the wires.

"They were pretty lucky," said S. R. Walinshaw, Power-Company Superintendent here. 'There was nothing to stop them from being electrocuted'.

Hunt Former Friend In Woman's Murder

MINEOLA, N.Y., March 11—(AP)—A former friend—turned robber and killer—was sought by police today in the hammer slaying of Miss Louise McKee, 55-year-old spinster and Republican party county committee-woman.

Her skull crushed by blows from a hammer, her body was found lying on the floor of the living room of her Long Island home yesterday by her brother Charles. The assailant, police believed, obtained entrance under the guise of friendship. Several valuable rings had been stripped from her fingers.

Detectives were checking the whereabouts of a missing Mineola resident, befriended several years ago by the slain woman.

Westwood Society Lays Party Plans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, March 11. — The March meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was well attended on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. R. B. Lobb and an interesting and instructive hour was enjoyed.

he fourth chapter, "Learning to Live Together' of the Study Book, 'The World in Canada,' was ably presented by the following ladies: Mesdames R. Douglas, W. Morris, C. Brackenridge, F. W. Newell, A. Wood, E. Sargent and Miss Mary Cameron.

In the worship period the Bible reading, Matt. 25:31-45, and "The Parable of the Great Surprise" were read by the president, Mrs. E. W. Sargent, after which prayer was offered by Mrs. John Hope. Two appropriate missionary readings were given by Mrs. J .Clysdale and Mrs. W| Morris, and two readings on temperance were read by the temperance secretary, Mrs. Hugh Cameron.

Dainty 'holiday coin bags' prepared by Miss Jessie Davidson were distributed among the ladies.

Plans were discussed for a crokinole party to be held during Easter week, fnal arrangement to be made at the April meeting.

The hymn, 'Breathe on Me, Breath of God' was followed by the benediction, pronounced by Mrs. F. W. Newell.

The first quarterly tea of the year was served in the dining room, where a pleasant social time was spent. A vote of thanks was moved to Mrs. Lobb for opening her home.

He Sees Caddy

VICTORIA, Mar. 11 — C.P.). — E. C. Jamieson once thought the story of Cadborosaurus—British Columbia's sea serpent—was a joke, but not now. He saw "Caddy" yesterday in the mouth'ser's old haunts around Victoria.

Jamieson, who came here from Ontario a few years ago, said he was delivering a grocery order when he saw "this thing" in Foul Bay.

"I should say it was going at least 35 knots," Jamieson said.

U.S. Seeks Information On Jap Island Forts

WASHINGTON, March 11—(CP)—The United States Senate Naval Committee, studying the proposal to improve Guam Harbor, sought new information today as to whether Japan has prepared some of her mandated islands in the Pacific for emergency military use.

The committee has asked the State Department whether it has information on possible violations of a bi-lateral treaty between the United States and Japan in regard to free access to the mandated islands.

Senator Johnson (Republican California) raised the question as he urged restoration in the naval air base bill of the $5,000,000 Guam item previously cut out by the House. Guam is in the Pacific.

Rear Admiral Arthur B. Cook, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, has testified that the navy has no information on the Japanese islands because Americans have not been permitted there. The bilateral treaty guaranteed Americans access to the islands and included an agreement that the islands would not be fortified.

Most Threshing Fires Said Carelessness

SARNIA, Ont., March 11.—(CP).—The majority of threshing fires are caused by carelessness, although some are of incendiary origin, C. W. Caskey, an inspector of the Ontario Fire Marshal's Department, told the Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen at their convention here Friday.

The inspector said there had been 49 threshing fires in the province last year with a loss of $120,000, of which $105,000 was covered by insurance. "There must have been incendiarism in some of these fires," he added.

The speaker also drew comparisons between Ontario and the western provinces in the matter of threshing fires. He said that in the west they average only three or four a province each year.

On Tuesday last Mr. Harry Shearer with a party of friends left on his annual trip to Texas. He was accompanied on the first stage of the journey by Wm. Shearer, who afterwards returned home to Hall's Bridge.

Thursday morning Bert Boomhower and Frank Kerneghan had a bad crash on the Lakehurst road. Boomhower was driving a Stocks bread truck and Kerneghan a sedan. While both vehicles were badly damaged, fortunately no one was injured.

Bruce Is Appointed To U.S. Commission

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt has appointed Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, former lieutenant governor of Ontario, as the American non-national commissioner on the international commission provided for under the terms of the treaty of conciliation between the United States and Albania of Oct. 22, 1928. The appointment was announced yesterday.

By joint action of the United States and Albania, Count Michael Rosiworowski, distinguished Polish jurist, has been appointed joint commissioner of the international commission.

French Chief Surveys Marseille Defenses

MARSEILLE, France, March 11—(AP) — The chief of staff of the French armies, Maurice Gustave Gamelin, accompanied by two senior generals, began today an inspection of this Mediterranean port's preparedness for seat and air attacks.

The safety of Marseille in time of war would be vital to the defence of the French empire since it is the principal mobilization centre for Southern France.

General Gamelin was attended by General Antoine Besson, commander of Alpine troops along the Italian frontier, and General Jules Buehrer, chief of the general staff of colonial forces.

Shaw Note Treasured Though Embarrassing

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., March 11—(AP)—Mrs. Anna Blanchfield, a director of a little theatre group here, treasures a note she received from George Bernard Shaw even if it did embarass her.

Writing to the British playwright for permission to stage one of his plays, Mrs. Blanchfield enclosed a stamped return envelope.

She said that G.B.S. answered:

"American stamps are not, as all Americans believe, current on the entire earth. To the British postoffice they are merely scraps of paper.

"Other nations use international coupons, but they are not necessary with me, as I pay my own postage and write this to instruct you in future transactions."

CHIEF IS BETTER.

Chief Constable Owen D. Friend, of Oshawa, who has been a patient in hospital for seven weeks, is now able to return home and is much better.

TAGS ARE MOVING.

Although new dog tags are not required before May 1 there is a steady demand at the police station for new licenses, showing that a section of the public believes in preparedness. Over a score of tags have been issued since they first went on sale a few days ago.

REMOVING SIGN

The large Neon sign above Neill's Shoe store front was taken down Friday and it is understood some repairs will be made and the sign placed in front of another store at Kirkland Lake. The local store will be equipped with a smart modern illuminated sign in the near future.

FUNERAL TUESDAY.

The funeral of Brig.-General B. R. Hepburn, C.M.G., who died suddenly in London while on a visit to England, will be held at Picton on Tuesday, a day later than originally announced. General Hepburn was well known in Peterborough.

THEY STAY LONGER.

Police report that since the issuing of meal tickets was resumed there there is a tendency on the part of transients to return to Peterborough more frequently and to stay in the city longer than was their custom. Anywhere from a dozen to twenty or more wanderers ask for shelter at the station these nights.

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUGH.

Bill Calladine, the Peterborough hockey star who incidentally is himself giving his home community considerable advertising by his feat in setting up a new scoring record as a member of the Baltimore Orioles in the United States' Eastern Amateur League has been nicknamed Canoe by the Baltimore fans and sports writers. The title is a compliment to Peterborough as it recognizes this city as the home of the canoe.

VETERAN CHAUFFEUR

Al Spencley, veteran workman with the Utilities Commission dug an old certificate out of his pocket at the rink Friday night which revealed he had been granted a first class license as a chauffeur at New York in 1906. The license was issued b ythe New York School of Automobile Engineers on June 20th, 1906. During the 33 years since receiving the certificate Al has only had two accidents, and one of these another motorist hit his car broadside.

HOCKEY CASUALTIES.

Goalie Haggarty of Chatham, was on the injured list twice in Friday night's game at Brock street rink. On one occasion he was hurt in a jam around the nets and sustained a cut inside his mouth that required five stitches from Dr. D. W. Clark to close. Later he was hit on the forehead by the puck and cut again. He was not the only casualty for a young boy standing at the rail was struck in the cheek by a flying puck and had to have a sitch in the wound.

NEW NEON SIGN

Brock street took on a brighter appearance this week with the erection of a new Neon sign at the Windsor hotel.

DOES EXTRA WORK.

Alderman McCannan reported this morning that Herb Withers had agreed to include removal of tins from the incinerator in his tender of $10,500 for the collection of garbage for the next twelve months.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC FAN

Peterborough has some enthusiastick hockey fans and one of them—evidently one of the few folk who realize that newspapermen work long hours—called The Examiner at 10 minutes to 2 o'clock this morning to inquire as to the score of the senior B game between Waterloo and Niagara Falls.

RINK CLOSED

Jackson Park rink has been closed for the balance of the season. Attempts by workmen to clear the ice after a sleet storm some time ago, resulted in a broken scraper and injuries to the horses and the work had to be abandoned. No funds are left for this work, so the committee rather regretfully had to postponed activities until next year.

CARS COLLIDE.

Icy and rough conditions of the road is blamed for a collision between two cars on Water street near Park Hill Road Friday. Conant Myers, 7 George street, Oshawa, was driving south when his automobile met that of Lawrence Charlton, R. R. 4, Peterborough, who was coming north. The front fenders on both machines were damaged.

MAYOR IN ACCIDENT.

As Mayor James Hamilton was moving his car out from the east curb of George street, between Simcoe and Charlotte streets Friday night there was a collision with a north bound automobile driven by Douglas Morrison, 504 Aylmer street. The right front fender and running board of the Mayor's machine were damaged by the impact.

ARRESTED IN RESTAURANT.

Arrested in a restaurant Friday night by Constable J. A. Rogers and Provincial Constable D. M. Carruthers, a local man pleaded guilty to a drunk charge before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning. "Accidents will happen in the best regulated families," remarked the magistrate as he fined the accused $10 and 75 cents costs.

THIRD MAN APPREHENDED.

Word was received by the police department this morning from Provincial Constable Menie of Cobourg that a man named Lamble, sought by local police at the request of Constable Richards of Millbrook, had been arrested in Toronto. Lamble was wanted in connection with the theft of chickens along with Arthur Langton and S. Mitchell arrested here last Sunday.

CAMPBELLFORD

Old Home Week Idea Definitely Shelved

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 11.— The proposal to hold and Old Home Week was definitely shelved for the present year at the citizens meeting held Friday night. Mayor F. F. Long who had been previously elected chairman of the nominating committee stated that he along with other members of the committee had found it impossible to get anyone to act as either chairman or vice chairman for the event. He claimed that the general feeling of citizens he had approached during the past week was that the affair should be cancelled for another year. J. O. Benor, chairman of the Water and Light Commission moved at the meeting that the whole matter be referred back to the council which has already voiced the opinion the matter was for citizens to decide, will not likely take any further action.

Only One Tender Is Received To Draw Garbage

Herbert J. Withers' tender of $10,500 for the collection and removal of garbage for the year beginning April 1 was accepted by the Property committe of the council, last night, providing that he agrees to inclusion in the contract of the additional service of taking away the residue at the incinerator. Only one bid was received, and Mr. Withers' tender is $1,100 more than he received last year when he was given the contract at $9,400 with $400 extra for removing the burned cans and other material from the incinerator.

Alderman McCannan, presiding, read Mr. Withers' first price of $10,800 for collection and removal of garbage, contained in a sealed letter, and then explained that that he had heard what Mr. Withers was likely to quote for the job this coming year and advised him that the amount appropriated for the work was only $10,200. As a result of that inform..tion Mr. Withers "went half way" and reduced his original tender to $10,500, "to show that he was willing to cooperate with the Council, although he considered that his first bid was a fair one, based on wages, upkeep and other items of expense.

Acceptance of the Withers' tender was moved by Alderman Wilson and Mayor Hamilton, and it was suggested that he might consider the supplementary job of carting away the incinerator's residue in consideration of the increased cost represented by his bid, and also the increasing number of oil burners throughout the city with consequent reduction in the quantity of ashes to be handled.

Alderman Stocker estimated that there were 2,000 tons of hard coal burned now less than three years ago. His information was to the effect that approximately 500 oil burners had been installed in Peterborough. "Make it 300, and that that means 600 fewer collections to be made weekly."

"But the contractor has to go over the streets just the same," Alderman Dutton remarked, and Alderman Bradburn said that there was at least a saving in time. He suggested that the men working for Mr. Withers should make more general use of tarpaulins on their wagons in the removal of ashes, and Alderman Stocker said the Sanitary Inspector should make a more thorough "check up" in an effort to prevent ashes blowing from the wagons.

"I have spoken to the men about it and they practically told me to jump in the lake," Alderman Stocker said good humoredly, "and the chairman himself has said just about the same thing."

Alderman McCannan quoted from the records of his department showing that the garbage removal tender in 1928 was $10,060 and in 1929 $10,000, indicating that the increased cost for this year was not out of proportion with the growth of the city's population.

Sir Joseph's Body Is Brought Home

TORONTO, March 11.—The body of Sir Joseph Flavelle was brought home to his Queen's Park residence on Friday. A Canadian ensign waved at half-mast from the top of "Holwood," where the baronet had lived for many years. He died suddenly at Palm Beach, Florida, last Tuesday. A motorcycle escort preceded the funeral coach as it drove from the Union Station to Queen's Park. The remains were accompanied from the Florida train by Sir Joseph's son and daughters, Sir Ellsworth Flavelle, Mrs. Frank Y. McEachren and Mrs. Wallace Barrett.

Until noon to-day the body remained at "Holwood." Following a private service for members of the family, it was carried to Sherbourne Street United church, where a public service was held a 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Active pallbearers at the funeral were the four grandsons, David Flavelle, Flavelle Barrett, Frank McEachren, Jr., and William Barrett; his son-in-law, Wallace Barrett, and a close friend from England, John Wheeler Bennett. Honorary pallbearers were Sir Thomas White, Dr. H. J. Cody, W. E. Rundle, Chancellor Rev. E. W. Wallace, J. M Macdonnell, Howard Irish, Miller Lash and Dr. Horace Speakman.

Just Practising

WINDSOR, Ont., Mar. 11 — (CP) —For a while police thought a smuggling plot had been uncovered when an airplane landed at dusk and a man hopped out and fled. A check showed the pilot was Art Denis, who was practising forced landings. The field was so muddy he had to drop his passenger to get off again.

George Street Y.P.S. Presents Play

One of the most popular amateur plays to be presented here this season had its first showing Friday night at George Street United church. It was "Lena Rivers", three-act comedy presented by the Young People's Society, under direction of Mrs. C. R. Wasson, and played before a large audience. Members of the cast are seen here. In the front row, from left to right, are June Armstrong, Arthur Roberts, Irene Constable, Joan Fletcher, Ethel Dobson, Mrs. Lloyd Ash, Muriel White, Adele Armstrong. In the back row, left to right, are Henry Winslow, Alvin Metcalfe, Melville Akers, Wally Crouter, and Roy Hudson.

George Street YPS Presents Favorite Of Years Ago

It was like a return of old times for several hundred people at the Sunday school auditorium of George Street United church Friday night, when that old favorite of the Marks brothers, "Lena Rivers," played to a capacity house. The play was presented by the Young People's Society of the church, directed by by Mrs. Cecil Wasson.

For "Lena Rivers" was no new show to most of the audience, at least to older folk. Always a favorite of the old stock companies, it had many a showing here fifteen, twenty and thirty years ago when the Marks brothers were top-flight 10-20-30 artists. But in the last decade and more, with the trend moving toward jazz, hotcha, and swing, Lena Rivers has fallen by the wayside, and its title brought nostalgic memory flooding back to many an oldster.

The plot of the play is almost as familiar as its title. It is a dramatization of a once-popular novel of the same name. It deals with the plight of young Lena River (Adele Armstrong) and her beloved Granny Nicholls (Joan Fletcher), who are compelled to leave their New England home and seek refuge with Granny Nichol's son, John (Alvin Metcalfe), who has changed the family name of Nichols to Livingstone because of social aspirations of his dominating wife, Matilda (Mrs. Lloyd Ash). Arriving in Kentucky where the Livingstones have a large plantation, Lena and her grandmother are subject to the sort of treatment usual to poor relations in fiction. Mrs. Livingstone insists that her husband's relatives live in a small room which formerly housed servants, and she and her daughter, Caroline (Ethel Dobson), tremble with fear at the thought of their wealthy friends' reactions to the awkward country girl and Granny Nichols. But there is one of Caroline's friends who sees Lena's potential worth—he is Durward Bellmont (Melville Akers), whom Mrs. Livingstone plans to marry to her daughter, Caroline. Durward becomes enamoured of Lena and starts to pay her attentions, much to the astonishment of the wealthy Livingstones, who do everything they can to place Lena in a false position. The younger Livingstone daughter, Anna (June Armstrong) and her brother, John Junior, (Wally Crouter), become Lena's firm friends and champion her cause, and Lena in return aids Anna and helps along her romance with Malcolm Everett (Henry Winslow), a tutor in the Livingstone household. In the last act, when it looks as though Lena were to lose Durward, fate steps in and the denouement at the end of the play is startling indeed.

Ably Presented.

The play was pleasingly presented by an able cast, and perhaps best note of all was that the juvenile leads were extremely attractive in appearance when they were supposed to be. The ability with which each actor took his and her part was a tribute to the director, Mrs. Cecil Wasson, who had her cast thoroughly coached. Also in the cast are Roy Hudson as Frank Graham, a southern gentleman; Irene Constable as his jealous wife; Muriel White and Arthur Roberts as two colored servants.

Stage manager for the play was Cecil Wasson, and his handiwork resulted in one of the most attractive stages to be seen at an amateur play this season. The action was supposed to take part in the living room of a palatial home, and the stage was arranged so tastefully and neatly that it needed no great stretch of the imagination to find it so. Costumes were by Loretta McDougall and makeup was under direction of Lillian Hardie, Kay Edwards, Helen Wellman, Rollie Rennie.

Two Legal Offices Are Being Brightened Up Books Dusted Off As Spring Approaches

City Solicitor Huycke has been working in an atmosphere of difficulty this week. His office is being housecleaned and he has been chased about from pillar to post after the immemorial manner of Spring disturbances to which men become accustomed as they grow older. But, Mr. Huycke is concerned about the possibility that when the dusters and painters get through he may walk past his own office and not recognize it.

And overhead, T. J. Carley, K.C. is also at the mercy of the vacuum sweeping brigade, two signs of a brighter Spring in the menages of local barristers. Clouds of dust arise by day, and there may be bulbs of fire by night as these two sets of offices renew their youth, and presently will come up shining with new permanents, facials and great expectations of new business. Those expectations are indicated by the thorough dusting off the long rows of law books in both offices are getting. They are handled one by one, and expertly, too, a reversed vacuum blower puffing the dust out the window as pages are riffled and every crevice gets a mighty draft in this windy cleaning process. Presumably Mr. Carley and also Mr. Huycke have hopes of using al lthose books in pursuit of establishing the rights of clients, looking forward like farmers and other optimists to bigger and better cases ahead. It may be that in the cause of feeble rhetoric the disappearing dust layers are made to appear deeper than they actually were, but after the great disturbance is over these two offices are going to be sitting pretty for a new inrush of Spring business. And, reverting to the rural ideology again, it is said that as you sow so you also reap; and all indications point to a bright outlook in the Huycke and Carley offices.

David Jones Is Named Manager

BELLEVILLE, March 11.—D. J. D. Jones, who has been accountant in the Belleville branch of the Bank of Montreal for close to five years, has received notice of his promotion to the position of manager of the bank's branch at Little Current, Manitoulin Island, Ont.

Mr. Jones, before going to Belleville, was accountant at Water Street branch of the bank in Peterborough, and also a member of the Peterborough Kinsmen Club.

Mr. Jones has had an extensive experience in banking, having been engaged as a banker in England, South Africa and with the Bank of Montreal in Mexico. During their residence in Belleville, Mr. and Mrs. Jones have made many friends who will sincerely regret to learn of their departure from the city. In the parish of St. Thomas' Mr. Jones served as Church Warden for a term and at the present time he is a member of the Council to Vestry and a representative to the Diocesan Synod.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones and their young daughter Suzanne, will leave next week for their new home and will take with them the good wishes of many friends.

OBITUARY

JOHN ROGER GOODFELLOW.

The death of John Roger Goodfellow, 583 Park street, occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Friday evening after a short illness. Mr. Goodfellow became ill on Tuesday and sank steadily. He was in his 4th year.

A former railroad man with the old Grand Trunk company, he was a farm worker in early days. Born in South Monaghan, he was a son of the late Robert Goodfellow and Hannah Laing, and he lived in this district all his long life. In Peterborough, where he has lived for many years past, he was a gateman at the old Grand Trunk crossing on Charlotte street.

His wife, formerly Marian Scollie, died about seven years ago and he was the last member of his own family. He leaves five children to mourn his loss. They are Harold and Donald Goodfelow, both of Fort William, George Goodfellow, Mrs. Harry Barrett, and Robert Goodfellow, all of Peterborough.

The funeral service will be conducted on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Goodfellow was a member, officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Two Covered Wagons Remaining All Week On Market Must Find Other Locations

Those two mobile and individual substitutes for the covered market the city is not going to build this year, a pair of trailers owned by Roland R. Dixon of Otonabee and the Snowden fruit people from Bowmanville, are going to be thumbed off the market between Saturdays. Their owners have been leaving them on the market all winter, and on their arrival here every weekend they have some flimsy shelter against the weather. Mr. Dixon even has an oil stove in his portable booth.

But these two shops on wheels offend the aldermanic eye, and if several of the aldermen are indifferent about esthetic reactions they are more opposed to the occupation of the two market pitches every day in the week. And they raise one point that is not easy to answer when they say that if all the farmers brought trailers in to the market and left them there, there would be scant room left for parking cars. So, the decision by the Property Committee was that the two covered wagons will have to find some other resting place on week days after April 1 when another year of toll collecting begins.

Cattle Sell For $60

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11. — Grade cattle, mainly holstein, brought up to $60.00 at the auction sale conducted at the Seymour township farm of Mr. P. B. McKenzie today The bidding was keen and fifteen of Mr. McKenzie's T.B. tested herd were sold under the hammer. Three-year old cattle brought from $30.00 to $45.00, with the mature cows bringing up to the $60.00 mark. A considerable amount of farm machinery was sold, all at fair prices.

Four Lots Sold For New Homes By City Council

Prices for four lots owned by the city were accepted by the Property committee of the council Friday night. Three of them are in a row on the east side of Stewart street, near its north end, two of them fifty feet frontage and the other forty. The purchasers are Lloyd Hiscox, Robert Kitchen and Gordon Kennedy. They agree to build three houses of not less than $2,500 in value within a year.

E. H. Adderman offered $400 for a lot on Lansdowne street, on the north side and west of No. 84. It has a frontage of 95 feet. Mr. Adderman proposes building a house worth $5,000 this year.

Outside Workmen

"Isn't there something we can do," Alderman Bradburn enquired, "to demand that local men be employed on work being done here by outside contractors. There have been quite a few jobs going on here of late, and you don't mind the contractors bringing in their foremen, but when you see outside carpenters, plasterers, cement men and so on, it means that local men who are able to do the work are not getting it. And then, of course, these people expect that Peterborough is going to do business with them."

"And when they open up you won't be able to get near them for crowds."

"Any time I hear of a local contract, I ask them to employ local men as much as possible," said Mayor Hamilton. "They have always said they would."

"But they don't," Alderman Bradburn added.

Both Alderman Gordon and McIntyre said there was no way of insisting that local tradesmen be employed on such work. Alderman Stocker said "If you want to see an extra fine sample of what tradesmen can do go up to the Bell Telephone office in their new building. There's nothing like it in this city."

Rev. Gordon Porter Is Given Gown

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 11. — Rev. Gordon W. Porter, pastor of St. Paul's United Church, Milton, and son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Porter of Lakefield was honored by the official board of his church recently when they presented him with a ministerial gown.

An extract from a recent copy of the "Canadian Champion"—Milton newspaper—describes the ceremony of gowning the pastor.

"At a meeting in the schoolroom of St. Paul's United Church the official board presented to their pastor, Rev. Gordon W. Porter, a ministerial gown.

F. H. Gilroy was chairman and John Irving, chairman of the steward's board, made the presentation. The minister was gowned by Dr. G. A. King, clerk of session, and Jas. E. Bell secretary of the board. Rev. Mr. Porter thanked the members of the board for their fine gift expressing his heartfelt appreciation for the gown which was used for the first time on Sunday."

MAGISTRATE ILL.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., is a victim of the local current epidemic and has been confined to his home for the last two days. Magistrate Gee of Lindsay took over court duties here this morning.

Upholstery Man Lectures To Friday Nighters

The Friday Night Supper Club delved into the mystery of upholstery fabrics under leadership of Bruce W. Young, of Toronto, last night and bachelor members learned many of the things they will need to know when marriage comes their way, while rueful married members found the reason their chesterfields have taken on a frayed appearance.

Last night was mothers' night at the club and the subject was appropriate, and one that was of concern to all present. The speaker was introduced by H. L. Garner, chairman.

Types of upholstery fabrics were fully explained with the aid of a moving picture and talking machine. Upholstery fabrics can be divided into two general groups of weaves, namely, velvets (three dimensional fabrics) and flat fabrics or two dimensional fabrics, such a denims, homespuns and tapestries.

The durability of upholstery fabrics is astounding it was demonstrated. They are tested on abrasion machines which produce friction and wear equivalent to that experienced in actual use. There is no upholstery fabric that wear as well or as long as velvet, because each upright fibre must be worn down to its entire length before there is any sign of wear. Generally speaking flat fabrics are not as durable as velvet.

Mr. Young illustrated the fade-resistance and cleanability of upholstery fabrics. Light is broken up by the thousands of upright fibres in velvet and it is also comparatively easy to clean of dirt. These fabrics, explained the speaker, have many and varied uses. They are used in cars on trains, buses, aeroplanes and extensively in the home.

The club's approval of Mr. Young's informative address was loud and long.

Preceding the guest speaker, Mrs. Oliver Cameron accompanied by Mrs. D. T. Diplock at the piano, sang two well chosen songs, "Mother of Mine," and "Boy of Mine." Don Diplock proposed a toast to the mothers and Mrs. Rogers responded.

Mission Band Meets

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Mar. 11.— The Girls' Mission Circle of Trinity United Church met at the home of Mrs. Grant Sine on Tuesday evening. Twelve members were present and the vice-president, Miss Claudine Hoard, presided. Miss Margery Scriver read the Scripture and Miss Claudine Hoard gave an interesting account of a chapter from the study book.

Plans were made to hold a spring tea. A quilt was pieced, after which dainty refreshments were served, with Mrs. H. Edwards, Mrs. F. Crate, Mrs. W. Orr, and Miss Jessie Lamb as hostesses.

QUITE FREQUENTly individuals make their own funeral plans. It is a growing custom.

Mines And Airplanes Promise Bright Future For Yukon

(Written for The Canadian Press by A. A. Gillespie.)

MAYO, Y.T., March 11—(CP)—The high price of gold, development of silver mines and the airplane today add together to promise a bright future for the Yukon Territory, once famed only for its gold-rush era.

The territory has undergone a face lifting and its people are rolling up their sleeves as of yore and digging in to shape a new destiny.

The modern Yukon is no longer primarily gold producing. Silver mining has made such rapid progress during the past 15 years that it ranks second only to the placer industry.

The Mayo silver mines are 150 miles east of Dawson, but the formation and topography of the areas in sharp contrast.

In Dawson district the mountains are low and sweeping, valleys long and narrow and broken with low passes. The divides are low and rolling. Rivers and streams spread fanwise from th foothills.

Wide Flat Valleys.

The Mayo country, on the other hand, spreads for miles in wide, flat valleys, surrounded on all sides by towering mountain ranges. The country is studded with lakes.

Mayo camp leaped into the limelight as a silver producer in 1920 when Keno Hill, Limited and the Treadwell Yukon Company and several smaller concerns began production, especially on Keno Hill. Since then the camp has shipped silver ore and concentrates to a conservatively estimated value of $30,000,000.

In 1938, 10,000 tons of high-grade ore and concentrates were shipped to outside smelters by the Treadwell Yukon Company, largest company operating in the district. The 1939 output of the company will be about 8,000 tons.

However, there is some doubt as to the immediate future of the silver operation here. Livingstone Wernecke, general manager of the Treadwell company, said temporary reduction in output might be necessary if silver prices drop to an unprofitable level when the United States silver purchase act expires June 30. In the meantime, 180 men continue to work in the company properties, Silver King, Elsa and Hector mines.

Old Camp Is busy.

The second big factor in the Yukon's "comeback era" dates from the inception of the $35-an-ounce price for gold. Dawson placer district has boomed in proportion to the increase in the gold price until today the old camp, considered "worked out" by many five or 10 years ago, is experiencing one of its greatest periods of productivity.

Chief mining company in the Dawson area—the Yukon Consolidated Gold Corporation—has expanded operations on a gigantic scale. Five years ago this company operated four mammoth gold-digging dredges or "boats" as they are called in the north; this year it will have 10.

Dredges are working on virtually every famous old creek and tributary, including the Klondike, Hunker, Franville, Sulphur, Gold Run, Dominion and Bonanza. Three of the dredges are believed to be the largest of their kind in the world.

With gold at its present price, mining companies can re-dredge profitably old channels and old diggings and open up new ground which in former years was unprofitable to work.

Individual placer mining has also taken on renewed activity and many of the famous old creeks, unworked and lying dormant for years, have been re-staked from top to bottom. There are more individual miners on the creeks and benches than any time in the past 15 years.

The future of Dawson district looks brighter than for many years. Mining companies have increased payrolls 15 pounds and triple what they were five years ago or before the price of gold was increased. This has resulted in sharp upswing in business conditions generally throughout the Territory.

Within the past five years many new families have come into the country, new homes have been built, new enterprises started and new capital attracted. New district are being prospected and explored and in the heart of every true Yukoner is hope for the discovery of a new Eldorado or a new Bonanza.

Provided the price of gold remains at its present level, the Dawson district is, in the opinion of many experts, good for another 50 years of profitable operations.

Air of Permanency.

Dawson district is taking on an air of permanency and modernity. Homes and stores and other structures are being built, not as they were in the early gold rush days, hurriedly and temporarily, but with an eye to the future. Old buildings are being torn down and rebuilt or altered and remodelled along more stable and modernistic lines.

In the Yukon to-day concrete, finest outside lumber and new insulation materials replace native lumber and logs of the early days. Modern furniture, modern household equipment and appliances, modern lighting methods and more utilities make the Yukon home of the new era a place of comfort and charm.

Changes and modernization come slowly, though, in a town which for 40 years has been accustomed to the order of its stampede days. Dawson has scores of log cabins and old-fashioned frame buildings which from weariness of the years sag and lean, sometimes upon one another.

But in the earlier, hectic gold rush days when "nuggets flowed like water," money was no object and there still remain in Dawson City to-day large, frame buildings and other structures whose careful construction and expensive materials let them remain as proud landmarks of a historic past.

Tourists and newcomers find most of the hotels, restaurants, theatres, and other recreation centres are still in the old buildings which in stampede days reverberated with the gusty life and romance of the new-born mining town. Most of these places have been renovated along more modern lines.

But it is always a thrill to recall that in most of these places loiter the ghosts and memories of such renowned characters as "Swiftwater" Bill Gates, "Big Alex" MacDonald, "Skiff" Mitchell, "Diamond Tooth" Gertie, "The Malemute Kid," Jack London, Joe Boyle, "The Lucky Swede," and hosts of others.

New a Necessity.

Fifteen years ago automobiles were more a luxury in the North than a necessity. To-day cars, trucks and caterpillar tractors are used all over the Territory, replacing the horses and the dog team.

In the olden days it took days, weeks and even months to journey from one part of the vast territory to another. The outside world was a great distance away. But the Yukon frontier to-day is but a step from the outside world.

Whereas a trip from Dawson to Vancouver took from 10 days to a fortnight in former years, the same distance can now be covered in a modern plane in a few hours.

Mail, which in former years required from a week to a month in transit is now flown into the country within a single day, or two days at the most.

Three airplane companies operate in the Yukon Territory at present. United Air Transport of Edmonton flies the airmail to Whitehorse via Edmonton, from Vancouver. The White Pass and Yukon Route's airplane service flies the mail to interior Yukon centres. Also operating in the Yukon is another pioneer aviation firm — Northern Airways, Limited.

The two latter firms service all Yukon points and their operations range from interior Yukon to northern British Columbia and Alaskan ports as far south as Juneau. All three firms operate up-to-date planes, carrying from five to 12 passengers.

It is a rare day when planes are not droning across the northern skies, laden with cargoes and passengers for widely-separated mining centres.

Yukoners now fly from interior northern centres to the "outside" as casually and with as little concern as they would board a steamer or an overland stage. At least 90 per cent. of the people of the Yukon travel by plane and are the world's most consistent air commuters.

Few Jobs Available.

Although the Yukon is undergoing a great period of expansion, there are few jobs for those who might come in with the idea they can find work immediately. Much of the employment, especially in Dawson district, is seasonal and those who have worked all summer at certain jobs invariably return to those jobs when operations start up again in the spring.

There has been a heavy influx of people into the Yukon in the past five years. Most of these found gainful employment because they arrived at the psychological time, but the slack has now been taken up and the country has absorbed about all the people it can comfortably support at present.

For the adventuresome type of person, however, there is a chance. If a young man or young woman, or a pioneering type of family is willing to journey north, financially prepared to stick with the country until they can either make an opportunity for themselves or wait until work can be had, the chances are in their favor.

But to come north "broke" generally leads to disappointment and disillusion.

The country still beckons those who are unafraid of a vast and cruel land. It is a challenge to the type of person who is willing to put a pack on his back and head out into the hills to wrest from them a new Bonanza or Eldorado.

ACTS FAST TO BRING RELIEF FROM COLDS

This Simple Way Eases Pain and Discomfort and Sore Throat Accompanying Colds with Amazing Speed

1. To ease pain and discomfort and reduce fever take 2 "Aspirin" Tablets—drink a glass of water. Repeat in 2 hours.

2. If throat is raw from cold, crush and dissolve 3 "Aspirin" Tablets in ½ glass of water . . . gargle.

Just Be Sure You Use "Aspirin"—Do it the Moment You Feel a Cold Coming on

Try it. Then—see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with "Aspirin" because it acts so fast to relieve discomforts of a cold. And to reduce fever.

This simple way, backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the easiest, most effective way yet discovered.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

The other day both Knarf and Hanid, the two shadows with the turned-about names, went down into the Chinese Plate (for shadows have the wonderful power of being able to make themselves small and go visiting in all sorts of strange places) where they met their two little Chinese friends, Ting-a-Lingle and Ling-a-Tingle. I don't suppose you can tell from their names that they were girls. But that's what they were.

They were sitting on a flat stone near the bridge which goes over the little brook. Both of them had pencils and were writing. But there was only one sheet of paper.

They looked up and smiled when Knarf and Hanid came near.

Doing Arithmetic.

"We're doing our arithmetic lesson," they explained. They both held up the sheet of paper, which seemed to be filled with numbers. There was a lesson in addition and another less in subtraction.

"That's very nice, and the answers are right," Hanid said.

"Which one of you did them?" Knarf asked.

"Both of us!" the two little girls

They went down into the plate.

exclaimed at once. "We do everything together. That's because we're twins." Ting-a-Lingle smiled and so did Ling-a-Tingle.

"Ling-a-Tingle adds one number," said Ting-a-Lingle, "and I add the next one."

"Then whoever is last writes down the answer," said her sister.

"It makes arithmetic very easy," they both said, smiling again.

"But that isn't good for you," Hanid said. "You both should do your lessons separately."

But the twins were all finished with their arithmetic lesson. Then they started to do their reading lesson. Do you know how they did it?

Finish Quickly.

Ting-a-Lingle read one page while Ling-a-Tingle read the other. In that way they finished their reading lesson very quickly.

"But it's no good," Knarf broke in. "You only know half a lesson each!"

"Yes, but both of us together know our whole lesson. And that's what the teacher told us to do."

All at once Knarf had an idea. He took a little ball out of his pocket and threw it into the air. "Catch it!" he cried to the two little girls. "Whoever gets it can keep it!"

They both put out their hands. But though they both managed to touch it, their hands got so mixed up that the ball bounded away and rolled into the brook, and was lost.

The two girls were very sad. They knew that if they hadn't both tried to get it together, they might not have lost it.

And perhaps that was one lesson they really learned separately even though they learned it together.

Martin Planning Drive In Canada

DETROIT, March 11 — (CP). — Homer Martin will lead a campaign in Canada to swing Canadian members of the United Automobile Workers of America into the Martin faction and away from the faction headed by R. J. Thomas, which is recognized as the official section of the U.A.W.U. by the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

A press statement to-day from Martin's headquarters said the Martin group had no intention of forgetting the Canadian membership, although no Canadian locals were represented at the Martin convention which concluded this week.

"Our main fight now is in Detroit and Ohio, but as soon as we have that organized we will turn our attention to Canada," the press statement read. "We consider the Canadian workers are conservative trade unionists, and we consider we represent the conservative trade unionists."

The Martin convention did not name any regional director for Canada nor name any board member to represent Canada, because the Canadian locals all were pledged to send delegates to the Thomas-called convention on March 27 at Cleveland.

Board members of the Martin faction are in session now, the statement reported, but likely will not consider a Canadian campaign until they meet again later in the month.

Peterboro' Concert Association To Present Trudi Schoop And Her Dancing Comedians

For its final presentation of the season, the Peterborough Canadian Concert Association is to have the redoubtable Trudi Schoop and her Dancing Comedians at the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday, March 17.

Labelled throughout Europe as the "female Charlie Chaplin," Trudi Schoop is now on her fourth annual tour of this continent. Her clever characterizations and genial gibes at many of the foibles of this present age have earned for her and her troup the riotous applause of audiences on two continents. Behind her gay witticisms and droll antics are to be found penetrating commentaries on many of our everyday institutions. The gaiety and often downright hilarity with which the work of this clever mime is carried on precludes any sense of maliciousness, but behind the scant properties with which her sets are dressed is to be found that indefinable something that lifts it out of the ranks of buffoonery and places it in a class by itself.

Trudi Schoop was born in Switzerland, and started dancing when she was a little girl. Her first public performance was given before an invited audience of relatives and family friends when she was seventeen years old, and following that she travelled to many of the leading ballet schools in Europe, where her work in that field was perfected. But an inborn sense of hilarity soon asserted itself, and from small experiments carried on by herself she developed her present medium. Her company has recruited from many of Europe's chief ballet and operatic organizations, while the music and settings to which she dances have been worked out by her brothers.

Her performance in Peterboruogh, while a distinct departure from former concerts under Canadian Concert Association auspices, should prove a welcome addition to the series that have been held to date.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FIFTY

MAC CONTINUED his explanation of the murder.

"I don't know when or where Horace evolved his murder scheme. We do know that he had been studying poisons, as witness the volume in the library. Evolve it he did, however — and the cleverest part of the whole business to me is the way in which he secured the stuff. Sending his own wife after it!"

I interrupted: "How did he force her to buy the poison?"

"He didn't force her, Elsie. You see, it was a usual arrangement, Horace sending his wife for poisons. The clerk at the drug store told us about that. Mrs. Horace was in the habbit of making weekly shopping trips to Columbus. What was more natural than that Horace would request her to do his shopping for him? It was his habit to make a list of his laboratory needs, and for his wife to have these prescriptions filled for him in the city."

"How—how diabolical!" I exclaimed, horrified.

"Oh, it probably started out innocently enough," Mac assured me. "It only ended badly. Well, so much for the motive. Horace wanted money; he wanted Della. He murdered his mother. And he murdered his wife. He couldn't permit her to live; she knew too much. Besides, he wanted Della at once, before Reginald should get her."

"And so," he concluded, "we have the motive. We have the poison. That leaves the method."

"Yes, what was the method?" Phil queried eagerly.

Mac began: "Horace decided for obvious reasons to commit his crime on the night of the ball. To do this he must set the scene. He must know to the minute when his mother would appear in the salon; and he must arrange to have her use a certain drier to dry her hair. Thus the midnight visit to the salon. He was scouting, so to speak."

I put in: "Then it was he who upset the chair?"

"Yes. It took me hours of figuring to hit upon the reason for that excursion. It wasn't until I glanced through the appointment book in the lobby that I saw the light. He had to find out the exact time of his mother's appointment. He couldn't afford to murder the wrong party."

"Where did he get the key?" I asked.

Mac made a wry face. "It seems that the good Greely 'mislaid' her keys and mysteriously found them again."

"I'll be damned!" exclaimed Phil. "Why didn't she mention the fact?"

Mac snorted. "Why didn't she mention a lot of facts? Greely may be an excellent housekeeper, but she'll never make a detective! If she had opened her mouth concerning a number of things, we might have reached the truth sooner. But I'll explain that later on. To continue with the method: Elsie played into the murder's hands by dining downstairs the evening of the first murder. However, lassie, had you remained in your room," he turned to me, "Horace would have invented some excuse to get you out of the way. So don't let that worry you!

"During Elsie's absence Horace jimmied the three driers and attached his poison in the tissue to the fourth one. The stage was set! The murder machine was in order!"

"And I" — I stammered — "I — threw the switch!"

"You threw the switch, yes," Mac affirmed. "And then something else happened that worked to the murder's advantage. You left the salon for half an hour!"

I frowned: "I never did get the straight of that business. Why did Mr. Horace ask me to deny my absence?"

"He wanted it to appear that his mother died in your presence. He was being cautious. Of course he didn't think that her death would be pronounced other than normal; but he evidently thought far enough ahead to grasp that your absence, were it known, might create a question in the minds of the police. In other words, the fact that Mrs. Witherspoon died in your presence, before your very eyes, was testimony enough that she had met with no foul play. You could swear that no one aside from yourself had touched the old lady. On the other hand, should your absence come to light, Horace could insist that the old lady had been poisoned during your absence from the salon."

"I see!" I said. "How hard he was! He came to watch his mother die!"

"I suppose," Mac theorized, "that he was a little nervous in spite of his elaborate precautions. He had to see for himself how his plans were working. He could not know, of course, that his entrance was a signal for you to cut his victim's finger and so set, conclusively, the time of her death."

I drew a long breath. "And Mrs. Horace?"

"Mrs. Horace had to be gotten rid of at once. She knew about the purchase of the cyanide. In case Mrs. Witherspoon's death was questioned — well — Horace couldn't afford to take a chance on his wife putting two and two together. I rather believe she suspected him, anyway, of the arsenic poisoning. I mean, judging from her actions."

"But how," I wanted to know, "did he mean to explain her death? She wasn't in ill health."

"We can't be certain about that, Elsie. I'm of the opinion he meant to suggest suicide. He had no reason to believe we would ever discover the adhesive and the tissues."

"And it was he who suggested that she have a permanent?"

"Yes. Daphne has admitted it. She was present at the time. Mrs. Horace, it seems, was aware of her husband's infatuation for Della Craig. In her way, she loved Horace, at any rate, she wanted to keep him badly enough to decide to go in for beauty treatments at her age. Horace admired Della's hair; he remarked about its beauty in his wife's presence and suggested, quite casually, that a permanent wave might improve her own straggling hair. She made an appointment with you and told him of it."

"When you, Elsie, described Daphne's strange behavior at Ellis' question concerning the permanent, I immediately suspected the cause. Horace was the only person who could have made such a suggestion with the certainty that it would be carried out."

I sighed. "Poor woman! What a life—and what a death!"

Mac continued: "I was baffled when we found no second tissue following her death. I have recently learned that our mutual friend and helper, Mrs. Greely, carried it from the salon. She found it on the floor and put it into her apron pocket; later she burned it in her room when it fell out of her clothes while she was undressing. I think Horace meant to destroy both tissues, but luck there was against him. When the drier hoods were lifted, the air tore them from their fastenings and blew them away. He did remove the adhesive, and he counted on the tissues having no meaning for anyone if they were found."

I said weakly: "It's really very simple when you know, isn't it?"

Mac grinned. "Daphne and Richard created a good many tangles."

I recalled a forgotten perplexity. "Why did Mr. Richard insist that his mother's death was murder? He must have known that the police in the house would complicate matters for himself."

"I think he had a guilty conscience, Elsie. Perhaps, too, he had ideas of his own concerning his parents. Who knows? I'm quite certain that Horace insisted that it was not murder to protect Richard as much as himself. As soon as he learned of the missing emeralds he had a hunch who had stolen them. He knew more about that young man's affairs than Richard imagined."

"Mac!" Phil said. "One thing worries me! How did you know about the telegram Richard sent to Beeman?"

Mac grinned wickedly. "Benson, my lad, if I could claim omniscient powers I would! However, my conscience forces me to admit that the gods who guide detectives stationed me in the hotel lobby the morning young Witherspoon came in to send his wire. Naturally, I didn't attach any importance to the incident at the time. It was only later that I recalled how very nervous and upset the lad had been."

I had a further question: "What about the electrician and the second phone call?"

"Horace made the second call. Another oversight on Greely's part. She neglected to mention that she had reported the broken drier to her employer. Naturally, she didn't suspect him. And naturally he did not want the driers immediately repaired. He had further use for them."

"And it was he who hid the cyanide in the powder box?"

"It must have been, Elsie." And I lapsed into silence.

The detective rose and stretched his long arms. "Thus endeth the tale, children. No more rabbits. Tomorrow I go back to Chicago, where crime is open and above-board. Coming to town, Benson?"

Phil gave me a long look. He shook his head. "Now now, Mac. I have a loose end or two to tie before I leave."

Mac McIntyre smiled broadly; his blue eyes twinkled. "Remember what I always told you, Elsie," he said cryptically. "So long, redhead!"

"So long, Mac."

The door closed behind him for the last time. I got up and went to the window. It had stopped raining. The moon sailed, a silver sickle, in the sky. I turned. The moon was in the room. It was in Phil's eyes! I often think of that moon as I bustle around our Chicago apartment waiting for Phil to come home to dinner.

Lowes, wood, relief, $2.00. Total, $284.16.

On motion of Councillors Stephenson and Burgess the old age pension list was confirmed with the exception of one pensioner who had died. Council adjourned on motion of Councillors Burgess and James, to meet on April 3, at 8 p.m.

Hastings W.M.S. Plan Pot Luck Dinner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 11.—Mrs. A. M. Brooks entertained fourteen members of the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church on Thursday afternoon for their monthly devotional meeting.

A special combined meeting of the W.M.S. and Mission Circle was planned for April 6. During the month a quilting and pot-luck dinner will be held in the church basement.

Following the business, presided over by the president, Mrs. F. W. Newell, a well planned program was presented by Mrs. A. M. Brooks. Mrs. Alex. German, the temperance secretary, in her usual interesting manner, gave a reading, entitled "Can We Have a Good Time." Miss G. Lucas contributed a solo and Mrs. A. M. Brooks a reading. Rev. F. W. Newell gave a talk on "Breaking Down Barriers," basing his remarks on "God is made of one blood; all the nations of the earth." "Sweet Peace, the Gift of God's Love," was pleasingly rendered as a duet by Mrs. Gordon Fox and Mrs. H. Edwards. Mrs. F. W. Newell gave a paper on "God's Guidance."

After the meeting the members enjoyed a social half hour as a dainty luncheon was served by the members of Mrs. Brooks' group.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 12

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a rather conflicting one. There is high promise for achievements in church or state, but at the same time underhanded or sinister attacks from suspicious sources are possible. These may have an undermining influence with superiors or those in authority. With vigilance to this, perseverance and right action should prosper.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which much depends upon watchfulness, patience, sound judgment and wise action. There are fine prospects, but these are subject to deceit, subtle enmity and the machinations of those who would undermine standing with superiors and those in power.

A child born on this day may be steady, persistent, profound and able, but it may be subject to underhanded attacks of the envious and sinister.

For Monday, March 13

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a rather adverse and annoying one, with much depending on coll and definite self-control under probably very aggravating circumstances. Impulsive, rash and vicious reprisals would spell disaster and defeat. Also beware craft, treachery and subtle as well as open enmity and accidents.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should not be surprised at a year of storm and tempest, coming from hidden sources as well as from direct and vindictive attack at some definite success or perferment. Jealously and enmity reign, but these call for poise, deliberation and wise manipulation, rather than strife and passion.

A child born on this day may have fine energies and initiative, with insight as well as practical talents, but these may be offset by rash, headstrong, impetuous and quarrelsome actions, provoking open and secret enemies.

Looking Back On This Date

Gratification at an appointment to public office has been, and is manifested in many forms. As a rule the recipient is congratulated and settles down to the duties of his office. Seldom, indeed, does such an appointment produce insanity. Yet that is what happened to an appointee of Lord Elgin. In a letter to Lord Grey, colonial secretary, March 11, 1850, the governor-general stated that a Mr. Wetternhall, "a very good, respectable gentleman, educated at Cambridge, whom I had appointed to the board of works, has gone mad in the excitement of his election. He was sent to an asylum, and his opponent was named to his job "by the Clear Grits and the Orangemen," surely as strange a combination as the disaster to the unhappy scholar of Cambridge."

In the same letter, Lord Elgin wrote that negotiations with Washington for reciprocity were proceeding smoothly, but slowly, adding: "Legislation does not move rapidly at Washington. In reply to a remark upon the proceedings of Congress, which a Canadian correspondent of mine made to the president the other day, he observed: 'They get through a great deal of business, sir. They have been in session for three months and they have passed a bill giving the franking privilege to Mr. Polk!"

Miaja Mops Up Madrid Reds

MADRID, Mar. 11 — (AP). — Mechanized army units summoned to the aid of General Jose Miaja's government to-day smashed their way with tanks into Plaza Manuel Becerra, strategic square on the east side of Madrid, crushing Communist revolters in their path.

There was no indication immediately of the number of casualties, but it was announced officially that 14,000 rebellious soldiers had surrendered since yesterday.

General Miaja's supporters asserted they had uprooted "most" of the Communist nests which had been holding out, including the hiding places of Communist snipers who had been firing at the approaching loyal troops.

The troops moving up to Madrid into Plaza Manuel Becerra apparently trapped many Communists between Republican fire from in front and behind.

The Miaja Cabinet announced that numerous political hostages had been found imprisoned in the Communist nests and immediately released. Miaja supporters in the capital greeted the arriving motorized forces jubilantly amid stacks of surrendered Communist arms and deserted Communist sentinel posts.

Newest In Fox Skins Come At $5,000

NEW YORK, March 11—(CP).—Chinchilla and Sable, heretofore the world's rarest and most luxurious fur adornment for milady's ensemble have a rival today. It is platinum fox, four pelts of which appeared at a fashion show here yesterday. Each carried a $5,000 price tag.

After six years of experimenting with this new strain, 11 marketable platinum fox pelts were obtained this year. They represent the breeding of the rare albino fox with the finest light-toned Norwegian silver fox on breeding farms under sponsorship of the Norwegian government.

In the main the skins closely resemble fine silver fox, but the more spectacular bluish grey fur differentiates them greatly from the black and white of the silver strain.

It was reported the Duchess of Windsor and the Princess Faucigny-Lucinge were the first purchasers of the new skins.

We Noticed

....."Scents are surer than sights or sounds to make the heart strings crack," wrote Rudyard Kipling, and there is no doubt that scents have the power of recalling to the mind memories of the past. Every woman should set about deftly building an impression of herself through fragrance — to create for herself a definite "perfume personality" that will be as much a part of herself as the color of her eyes or the charm of her smile.

....To make this matter of being consistent about your perfume fragrances an easy one, there are lovely colognes with dusting powders to match that will establish your fragrance personality. If you are going in for sophistication and glamor, select your sachet and cosmetics as well as your perfume in a dramatic, exciting odor.

....If you want to capture the mood of carefree country life, choose a woodsy, wild flower fragrance to express that mood to perfection. And if you are playing a double role—you'll be wise to equip yourself with both cycles of fragrances, so that you can transform yourself from a city siren to a gay wood nymph whenever your heart desires.

Comments Made On Piano Recital

Commenting on the recital which Agnes Logan Green gave recently in the Toronto Conservatory concert hall, a Saturday Night reviewer says: "Her appearances as a little girl of rare promise are still fresh in the minds of many. Her precocious talent aroused the enthusiasm of such musicians as Sir Granville Bantock, Ossip Gabrilowitsch and Tobias Matthay. Their predictions have been verified by the beautiful quality of her pianism since she attained womanhood. Beauty of touch and wide technical efficiency are supplemented by intellectual grasp and poetic appeal.

Her program was of varied interest, embracing beautiful interpretations of one of Beethoven's later Sonatas, and numbers by Bach and Chopin. In addition she played with crisp and clean-cut beauty an Adagio by Browning's Galuppi. Delius is much better known to us as an orchestral composer and therefore his "Dance for Harpsichord" was a welcome novelty. Among other modern offerings were two pastels by Debussy played with fascinating delicacy and shading and a Prelude by York Bowen. Intimate charm is one of the most engaging factors in Mrs. Green's pianism.

Branch Notes

ST. JOHN'S, LAKEFIELD

The regular meeting of St. John's A.Y.P.A., Lakefield, was held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening. Owing to illness the attendance was only fair. Arrangements were made for the district Lenten rally to be held in Lakefield on March 20, also for the next corporate Communion and breakfast to be held on Sunday, April 2nd. After the business sides were chosen and a debate, "Resolve That Women Should Not Enter Public Employment or the Professions," was held. Many interesting points were given by both sides. The affirmative side won out by a few points. Rev. R. H. Howden then brought the meeting to a close with prayer.

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH.

The regular meeting of St. Luke's A.Y.P.A. was held on Thursday evening with the largest attendance present for some time. The meeting was in charge of Art Sayers and his group. Cecil Hope took the topic and discussion on "The Bible, the Book of To-day."

The branch was pleased to see Jack Davies back after his sick spell and was also glad to welcome several new members.

Miss Jessie Bell and group will be in charge next week.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" will be presented as a full evening's entertainment in the Collegiate on April 12. This is something out of the ordinary for the A.Y.P.A. and all are working hard to make it a success. There are about 25 or 30 in the cast.

The annual Lenten rally service of the district will be held in St. John's church, Lakefield, on Monday, March 20th at 8 p.m.

Spring Festival Demonstrates Music Importance

The important place which musical education takes in the Public Schools of Peterborough was strikingly demonstrated at the annual Spring Festival held Friday night before a large audience in the Collegiate auditorium.

The Festival, directed by Miss Marion R. Rannie, supervisor of music, and opened with brief words of welcome be K. S. Wightman, B.A., B.Paed., brought to a climax a year of distinguished work, and although fifty per cent of the children and a number of the teachers had been ill with colds or influenza during the rehearsal period, and many were unable to attend the performance, the concert seemed to lack nothing in the smoothness with which it was carried out.

The attention given to the leader; the harmony; the exceptionally clear diction; the fine tonal sweetness, gave evidence of efficient and careful training, and the shining faces of the children was adequate testimony of the thrill and happiness they were experiencing in having an important part to play. Gwen Craw was at the piano throughout the program.

The Festival Chorus, made up of grades five and six, opened the program; three unison songs by the Junior choir, Central School, trained by Miss O. Armstrong, "The Moon Road," "My Two Shoes" and See Saw," were sung with clarity and ease. Piano class work was demonstrated next, Earl Agnew playing Gest's "Puddles." A duet, "Birds in the Branches," was played with good technique by Catharine Graham and Barbara Browne, as was also George Green's "The Pretzel Band," played by a quartette consisting of Marjorie Pearse, Barbara Jean Craig, Ruth Brown and Marion Honour. Miss Macfarland was class teacher for the piano work.

The sweet voices of the Central School Choir children were heard to advantage in a folk song. "The Lark in the Morn," and "The Shepherd," conducted by Mr. C. D. Munro, and Queen Alexandra Choir was heard in "Come to the Fair," and "Ye Banks and Braes," sung with fine modulation of volume. Miss Ellen Eagleson, who was conducting, was presented with a sheaf of spring flowers as she made her bow.

Prince of Wales Choir was conducted by Miss Rannie in the absence of Mr. A. Noftall, who is ill. The "Song of the Jolly Roger," which ended on a note of hearty laughter, and "Little Lamb," a story with words distinctly pronounced by the sweet singing voices, were the two well chosen numbers.

Children from the six kindergartens, trained by Misses Gillespie, Wilson, Connolly, Lawrence and Tudhope, took part in a delightfully executed pantomime, "The Three Little Pigs," which was arranged by two Toronto kindergarten teachers, Miss Davis and Miss Harris. Miss Davis and Miss Harris, who had come from Toronto to see it presented, were introduced to the audience, and given hearty applause.

Four unison songs by the Festival Choir, "The Clock," "Pretty Caroline," "The Nightingale," "Land of Nod," were conducted by Miss Rannie. Following the last number a basket of flowers was presented to the gracious leader. Miss Roma Williamson was the young soloist in the song "Who Killed Cock Robin," and the mourners were members of the Prince of Wales Choir.

An old English melody and a 17th century melody was sung by the Festival Choir, and two numbers, Zamecmick's "Keep Smiling," and Creighton's "On the Way," were played by the Central School orchestra, conducted by Mr. Roy Rome, with Miss Marguerite Rome at the piano, Schuberts lovely "Cradle Song," and Percy Fletcher's "A Wet Sheet and a Flowing Sea," were sung with excellent effect by the Queen Mary Choir, conducted by Mr. O. M. Steer. The King George Choir, conducted by Miss M. Cox, sang beautifully "Little Shepherd Boy," and Handel's "Where'er you Walk" and the King Edward Choir, conducted by Miss M. Dickson, was "Weave We the Bridal Garland," heard to special advantage in (Handel), and a lilting number, "Czecho-Slovakian Dance Song."

Costumed in flowing, graceful gowns of floral pattern, pupils of Prince of Wales School executed a quaint folk dance. Miss M. Richardson was at the piano for this. The students were trained by Miss M. Green. An old English number, "Here's a Health," by the Festival Choir concluded the program.

DOROTHY DIX

Mothers Should Realise That Their Children Lead Different Lives And Not Insist On Living With Them And Going Every Place That They Go.

DEAR MISS DIX—Why do children treat their mothers as they do? I am a widow, alone and lonely. It is so heart-breaking to be left out of everything and to have my children find fault with me and accuse me of saying things that I never dreamed of. They think I should stay at home with the children when they could take me with them. I do not interfere or offer a suggestion, although I see many things I think could be improved upon. My daughter tells me that I don't speak the same language and belong to a different generation. I know my children love me and would come to me if I needed them, but why in everyday living do they leave me out when all I ask is their love, and to feel that I am wanted? I am financially independent and I am generous about helping them. — A MOTHER.

ANSWER:

I do not know of any problem that is so heartbreaking and so insoluble as that of the old mother who has no interest in life except in her children, and who wants to be always with her children and share their every thought and act. But the children are absorbed in their own lives, their own troubles, their own plans and amusements and have literally no time for Mother.

There are millions of mothers like the one who writes this letter. Women who have given their whole lives to their children and who have not had a single thought since Tom and Mamie were born that didn't center in them. They have no friends, no interests, no amusements of their own, no resources in themselves. The only happiness they can find is being right with their children all the time, doing what they do, going where they go. So they feel that their sons and daughters are cruel and ungrateful not to want to have Mamma always hanging around their necks.

The eternal cry of these mothers is: "I ask so little of my children. Only just to be with them.' They do not realize that in the great majority of cases they are asking their children to make the supreme sacrifice of giving up their whole lives to amusing and entertaining an old person.

It means listening patiently to Mother's reminiscence about dull times and places, and hearing for the thousandth time about when Johnny had the measles. It means deferring to her prejudices and not having meat on the table if she is a vegetarian. It means being tactful about all of her suggestions. It means being continually tagged wherever they go and having the edge taken off of every party because they have to drag Mother along, or else her feelings will be hurt. And, of course, Mother never sees that side of the picture.

Now children do owe a great debt of gratitude to their mother. It is not to be denied that they are often too remiss in showing their attentions and telling her how they appreciate her. But Mother should see their side of the matter, too, and realize that in these strenuous times the men and women who are wrestling with the problem of making a living and rearing a family have about all they can do.

All old people are lonely. That is one of the misfortunes of age. The best way to avoid that is for them to go and live in some family hotel or boarding house where there are people of their own age, with the same background and with the same memories that they have, with whom they can always find congenial topics of conversation.

In that way they preserve their own individuality, they have companionship, and they keep on good terms with their children and avoid the conflicts that are bound to occur if they live together.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I try to be a good husband. My wife is a good wife and a hard-working homemaker, but she has one fault that is eventually going to drive us to the divorce court. It is the slovenly way in which she runs the house and the fact that she does not even attempt to teach the children any manners. She prepares a good meal, but she slaps it down on the table helter-skelter and it is everybody for themselves. We have six boys from 13 years of age down and not one of them know how to eat properly, but when I try to interfere and teach them some table etiquette she hits the ceiling and we get absolutely nowhere. What should I do? — WORRIED HUSBAND.

ANSWER:

Children have a natural inclination to eat like pigs. If your wife encourages them in feeding that way, I am afraid there is very little you can do about it. Possibly you can have some influence with the older ones by talking to them privately and making them understand that they will be rated more by their table manners than by anything else.

No matter how famous, how important, how clever a man is, it does not offset his not knowing his way among the silver. I often think of a very brilliant and witty after-dinner speaker I once knew whose eloquence was always overshadowed by the fact that he grasped his knife and fork as if he were about to dig a ditch with them instead of using them as table appointments.

Perhaps your wife is one of the optimistic and lazy women who think tha some miracle will happen that will change untutored children into elegant gentlemen. But it never occurs. Children have to have good manners taught them in their childhood, or they never acquire them. It is only the children who have been brought up to believe that eating peas with a knife is a crime on a par with murder who ever have the perfect manners that come of habit. Certainly you should send your children away to school where they will be taught manners if their mother won't do it.

DEAR MISS DIX—How can lost time be regained?—MARY W.

ANSWER:

It can't. What's past is past and there is no recalling it. That is why it is so important that we should make the most of now and here.

Do You Know?

An excellent polish for the stove can be made by fixing equal parts of a good stove polish with kerosene and turpentine until the consistency of cream? Apply when the surface of the range is slightly warm. Then polish with a rough cloth. This treatment also prevents rust.

In painting window frames, a small, flexible brush should be used rather than the regulation size for wall painting? Protect the glass with a small card or blotter. Where paint has dried on glass, a safety razor will scrape it off quite easily.

Color and Design Emphasized In Room Decoration

The absorbing subject of interior decoration was discussed on Friday afternoon by Miss Vida H. Peene of Toronto when she spoke to the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room, and answered in a delightful yet practical way the questions and problems presented by the members. Of much interest also were striking examples of the newest and smartest materials which she had brought with her—one fabric, one hundred inches wide, had stripes running vertically and horizontally to create an unusual effect. A quilted material for use in chair coverings; sateens in 18th century design; handblocked patterns on linen; glazed chints, and an old English patern in a lovely combination of colors were notable in this collection.

Recently one of the important decorators in New York, rather surprisingly, compared decorating a room to making a cake. As in a cake, there are certain ingredients, certain amounts and certain directions which must be used. However, the speaker said, in cakes many combinations of ingredients may be combined to obtain variety, but in interior decorating we are limited to the four of color, form, line and texture.

The first ingredient mentioned by Miss Peene was color, which is particularly important and interesting at the moment. "We find that today people seem to be more prone to like colors tending to lighten the feeling of a room. The tendency during the last five years has been to gradually use lighter and lighter colors. We have been leaning towards clear light colors, and more subtle colors which are greyed a little, and softer. Dark colors have always been used a good deal, particularly for the foundation of the room, but today where dark colors are used you will find light colors combined with them to give a feeling of atmosphere and lightness. If you can limit your color scheme to two, with perhaps a third color for accent, you will find your room is more pleasant, more restful, and possesses a certain feeling of unity. One might also limit the color scheme to one," she continued, "which does not mean that one is limited to a single shade. Several tones of the same color can be used together to create a most pleasing effect. Using one color, however, means that one must depend particularly upon texture for effect."

Speaking further of color, Miss Peene emphasized the fact that a fundamental law in interior decorating is never to use an equal amount of two or three different colors in a room. New colors being used in New York this year were lemon yellow, lettuce green, and soft apricot colors, which might be used together, separately, or combined with several other shades. The neutral color that was used almost everywhere was a soft grey rather than the biscuit shades or tans so popular during the past few years.

The second ingredient mentioned was form, which has to do with the shape and pattern of everything in the room—not only shapes of individual pieces of furniture, but groups furniture makes, and the design of the room. Furniture is not as massive as it used to be. Shapes have narrowed down, and are designed to conform more to the scale of the room itself, and to the design. Design, both in furniture, materials and wallpaper, is definitely coming back into its own again, Miss Peene stated.

The third ingredient, lines, is just as important as the first two. The general feeling now is to simplify the room just as much as possible. Rooms are not cut up as much as they once were, furniture is not placed across corners, and rugs are laid at right angles to thew all. Occasional pieces are used to break up any feeling of stiffness.

The last ingredient mentioned by the speaker was texture, extremely important today because there is so little design. Both texture and color, she said, are stressed more than they have been for some time. In materials we have a much greater variety to choose from than ever before, they are more interesting, better made, and designs are of a much higher order than they were 10 years ago.

Margaret Gollop Winner of Coveted Diploma

Announcement has been made that Miss Margaret Gollop, who was brought up in Peterborough and taught to swim at the Y.W.C.A. by Miss Carolyn Littlefield, is one of the winners of coveted diploma of the Royal Life Saving Society, which makes the award from its headquarters in London, England, to those who pass difficult practical and theoretical examinations. The honor goes only to a few willing to devote a great deal of time to mastering the actual water tests in rescue methods, swimming strokes, diving and ornamental swimming and preparing a thesis of 4,000 words on the theory of swimming and life-saving.

Miss Gollop, after moving to Toronto, again took up swimming at the Y.W.C.A. under Miss Olive Bettle, McGill Street Y.W.C.A. Miss Bettle trained her for all the life-saving awards. Miss Gollop, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gollop, is a stenographer with the William Wrigley Company

BORN

TARR.—To Mr. and Mrs. F. G. A. Tarr, at Nicholls Hospital, on March 5, a son.

DIED

SEAMAN, Mrs. William.—At St. Joseph's Hospital on Friday, March 10, 1939, Mary Bolton, beloved wife of William Seaman, of Keene. Funeral on Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock from the late residence; Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Anglican Church officiating, assisted by Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Keene United Church. Interment at Keene Cemetery.

GOODFELLOW, John Roger. — At Nicholls Hospital on Friday, March 10, 1939, John Roger Goodfellow, 563 Park street, in his 84th year. Funeral on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water street; Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

MILLER. — In memory of George Loomis Miller, who died March 12, 1938.

A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is still;
A vacant place is in our home
Which none can ever fill."

—Ever remembered by his Family.

BUCHANAN.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Mrs. Robert C. Buchanan, who departed this life March 12, 1937.

The rolling stream of life goes on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of her who once sat there.
When for a while we part,
The thought will soothe our pain
That we shall still be joined in heart
And some day meet again.

—Lovingly remembered by Husband and Family.

Girls' Contests Open Y.W. Gym

C.G.E. defeated Westclox 16-14 in overtime. Quaker Debs nosed out 'Y' Gym 6-5, and Quaker Aces remained undefeated by trouncing Quaker Maids 19-11 in a Senior Ladies' City League triple-header Friday night, inaugurating the new Y.W.C.A. Gym. By winning, Quaker Aces maintained their league leadership, while St. John's and Westclox are tied on the second rung.

C.G.E. took a 9-3 margin over Westclox in the opening half of their game, but Westclox came right back and tied it up just before the final whistle and the teams went into overtime. I. Shadgett scored a field goal for C.G.E. in the extra period to give C.G.E. their narrow victory 16-14. H. Bradley and I. Shadgett starred for the winners and M. Allison and A. Flynn for Westclox. The teams:

C.G.E.—H. Bradley, J. Alexander, R. Devline, J. Bartley, H. Harte-Maxwell, I. Houghton, R. Milburn, M. Wright, I. Shadgett.

Westclox—V. Britnell, A. Flynn, N. Pammett, D. Dawson, J. Crowe, C. Metcalfe, J. Hair, M. Allison, C. Whatman, M. McFadden, M. Goldie, P. Wolstenholme.

Referee—H. Smith. Umpire—J. Cooper.

Quaker Debs took a 4-3 lead over Y Gym in the first half and then held the losers to a 2-all draw in the closing period to win. M. Duncan had a basket and a free throw in the first half and a basket in the second, and H. White a free throw to account for the Debs' scoring, and field goals by F. Craig and R. Sullivan and S. Zakos' free throw account for the losers' points. M. Duncan for the winners and S. Zacks and F. Craig were the stars. The teams:

Y Gym—D. Pearson, S. Zacks, R. Sullivan, V. Sullivan, S. Florence, S. Zakos, F. Craig, M. O'Brien, L. Ellis, B. DeMaio.

Quaker Debs—M. Duncan, E. Roberts, H. White, J. McLean, R. Farr, M. McGuire, B. Fenner, A. Laing, J. Metcalfe, A. Frizzelle.

Referee—W. Thirnbeck. Umpire—J. Cooper.

Shutting out the Maids 6-0 in the first half and then outscoring them 13-11 in the last, Quaker Aces defeated Quaker Maids for their 5th straight win. Each team was guilty of 8 fouls, the winners making 3 throws and the Maids but 1. H. Cole led the winners with 10 points and I. Young and M. Snowden were best for the losers. The teams:

Quaker Maids—M. Sullivan, E. O'Leary, E. Alexander, E. Harte-Maxwell, A. Frost, I. Young, D. Frost, V. Wood, M. Snowden.

Quaker Aces—P. Lawless, M. Hooton, H. Cole, J. Fowler, H. Howden, D. Weese, E. Kirn.

Referee—H. Smith. Umpire—W. Thirnbeck.

NEW YORK, March 11—(AP).—Last letter Doc Sutherland got before leaving Pittsburgh university as football coach was from a kid who asked for the seat of Marshall Goldberg's football pants. P.S., He got 'em by return mail....What would old Tex Rickard have said if he had blown into town last night and found tennis holding forth in the Garden and boxing in the Hippodrome?

All you got to do to get in the Indianapolis 500-mile race this year is drive 10 miles at 110 m.p.h. and live to pull into the pits....To guard against them catching the flu, Coach Gordon White has his Roanoke College Maroons quarantined in the gym until time to leave tomorrow for the New York invitation basketball tournament....If anything comes of that talk of buying a big league ball club for Mickey Cochrane, Leo Fisher, the auto magnate, will angel the syndicate....

Jack Doyle, the Broadway price maker, will ignore the Yanks entirely when he issues his 1939 major league odds....Add those doing all right: Doc Sutherland, who already has had two free meals on Pitt alumni since joining the unemployed, and Art Hillhouse, former Long Island university basketball star, who turned pro and now plays on two teams in two different leagues down in Pennsylvania. . . Ski Notes

Don't let the bare sidewalks and roads downtown fool you. There is lot of snow in the country and the recent snowfalls have put about three inches of powder snow over the old snow which makes the skiing just about perfect.

The road to Bethany is now open and the ladies' championships will be held there tomorrow. Don't miss this opportunity to witness the last competition of the season and to enjoy a good day's skiing.

If you require bus transportation to Bethany you must so advise the secretary in order that the necessary arrangements may be made.

We have only four more weeks of bowling, and there are several games to be played to catch up with schedule. All skips are asked to co-operate by playing games if at all possible.

We understand that the East City decorators are preparing a special glue size to stick up the auto trimmers with, and that the customs department are trying to put a heavy duty against same. Maybe the auto trimmers will be able to tear down the decorators the same as they do those auto tops. Who knows? See the game Wednesday and find out for yourselves.

If the decorators win maybe they will fill both cups to the brim with ??? (water not allowed).

The auto trimmers practised on the wee Scotties at the Legion the other night. Apparently they had their scissors sharpened because they won a double-header. Some going, what?

No news has yet been received regarding the postponed tournament at Trinity. Have had enquiries as to date from several old friends. Also see that St. Andrew's are holding a tournament on the 24th—a week from next Friday. How about giving them our support? Phone Mr. J. W. Morrison at 1985 and make arrangements to be on hand.

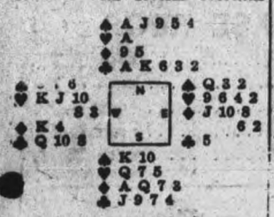
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

DANGER ON ONE SIDE

SOMETIMES THERE is no particular danger to the left of you, but plenty to the right, and vice-versa. If your job as declarer is such that you can afford to let one defender have the lead, but cannot dare give the other one the lead, you must concentrate every resource on that crucial factor. Successful handling of it can mean a difference between defeat and a successful contract with several overtricks



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North opened the bidding of this deal with 1-Spade, South called 2-Diamonds, North 3-Clubs and South 3-No trump. West led his heart J to North's ace, and it was South's turn to put on his thinking cap. First he saw that, if the clubs were evenly divided, he could get five tricks there, plus four top tricks on the side. So he tried the Club A and K. When East showed out on the second round, he knew that would not work.

His next count showed him that five tricks in spades would be enough to build him a game. So he played the spade K and finessed the 10. East won, returned a heart through the Q, and the defenders all told got four tricks in hearts, a spade and a club, setting him two.

South should have reckoned that his one great risk lay in letting East have the lead. Had he done this, he would have finessed the spade 10 immediately after winning the first trick. Following his spade suit, he could have thrown West in with the marked club Q, and the lead would have had to come up to his heart Q or diamond tenace for overtrick purposes. If the spade finesse toward West had lost, the heart Q still would have stood guard in the suit.

Britain Warns Franco On Sub Raids

LONDON, March 11—(CP).—The threat of Nationalist General Franco to attack foreign vessels trying to reach Republican Spain brought a stern warning from Great Britain yesterday that she was prepared to defend her merchantmen whether on the high seas or on Spanish waters.

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax told the House of Lords the Royal Navy had been instructed to protect British shipping and to retaliate against any attacks made by Spanish Nationalist submarines as threatened by Franco.

"Instructions have been given to His Majesty's ships," he said, "charging them to give all necessary protection to vessels which might be the objects of such attacks and to retaliate even inside territorial waters against any submarine taking such indefensibel action.

"I wish to make it plain that if action outside territorial waters were taken, His Majesty's Government would be obliged to resist such action in the same manner as they have done in the past. I must also make it perfectly clear that the government would regard as a serious matter the sinking of a British merchant vessel even within territorial waters, especially if due warning had not been given and adequate steps taken for the safety of the crew."

The warning was backed up by the arrival of the British cruiser Shropshire and the destroyers Ilex, Imogen and Ivanhoe at Gibraltar, following orders to leave the fleet manoeuvres in the Mediterranean.

Runs the Blockade.

At the same time it was disclosed that the British steamship Stagenate successfully ran the Nationalist blockade and docked at the Republican port of Valencia with a cargo of foodstuffs.

The ship reached the port after receiving a warning of the blockade extending from Sagunto to Adra, northern and southern limits of the Mediterranean coast held by the Republicans.

The foreign secretary said it was his understanding Franco had no intention of interfering with shipping outside Spanish territorial waters.

He also told the House of Lords that Britain would take a firm stand against any effort to keep foreign troops in Spain after the end of the war or to interfere with Spanish indepedence.

He announced Britain was prepared to make a "substantial grant" to the Red Cross to help maintain Spanish refugees in France.

The foreign secretary's statements were prompted by a motion from Baron Snell, leader of the Labor Opposition, censuring the government's attitude on Spain since the outset of the Spanish conflict.

Holsteins For The Duke

HALIFAX, Mar. 11 — (CP). — Bound for the English estates of the Duke of Devonshire, Arthur Furnel and George Hodgson and more than 100 thoroughbred cattle from the Belleville farm of Scott Brothers were aboard the freighter Dorelian to-day. The cattle, all Holsteins, will be used to build up herds on the estates.

of Europe." The legislature was not the place for remarks reflecting on or derogatory to the head of any state.

Because of the autonomy of the dominions, Canada's technical and official relation to the empire was in her loyalty to his majesty as the king of Canada. But there were wider bonds of sentiment than these.

There was another link of empire —appeals to the judicial committee of the privy council and Mr. Conant said he was opposed to abolishing these. Canada's constitution had been obtained from an act of the British parliament and it was fitting that the constitution should be construed by a tribunal set up by that parliament.

New Coroners' Act

Important amendment to the Coroners' Act were given first reading yesterday. Brought in a bill introduced by Attorney-General Conant the amendments are designed to reduce the number of inquests and cut their costs, and also to enable them to be held where the attorney-general directs, even though there may be no body on which to hold the inquests.

If the bill passes the legislature the number of jurymen required will be reduced to five from the present "seven to 12" regulation. Also the consent of a crown attorney or the attorney-general will be required for the holding of an inquest.

The amendments concerning direction by the attorney-general for an inquest are the outcome of the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, Racine, Wis., malted milk heiress, who died here in the home of W. Perkins Bull. Mr. Conant ordered an inquest but it was stopped by the courts on the ground there were no circumstances warranting it and also that the body was not available for the jury.

Centreville Farmer Captures Wolf Pup

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 11.—The district surrounding the little village of Centreville, five miles south of Enterprise, has had some excitement over the appearance of a wolf and her three young pups.

With the aid of his dog, Robert Shilly succeeded in capturing one of the young ones and it is now on display.

Kenneth Lockbridge, farmer, endeavored to capture another but gave up the attempt when the old wolf showed fight.

A party of eight hunters searched in vain for them on Thursday and are now waiting for a light fall of snow to track them to their hiding place.

Home Is Burned

Wednesday night about ten o'clock the house occupied by Marvin Arnold, one mile south of Bonarlaw on Highway No. 14, burned to the ground. The cause was apparently overheated stove pipes Many neighbors attracted by the flames were soon on the scene and a score or more men assisted in carrying out most of the contents. Mr. Arnold was eating a lunch, when a crackling sound drew his attention to the fire, but for lack of water, he was unable to extinguish the flames. The house is owned by John E. Brown of Springbrook.

West Conditions Told To W.M.S. In Bale Letter

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SPRINGVILLE, March 11—Miss Jessie Schaeffer was hostess to the W.M.S. on Wednesday afternoon for the march meeting. After the singing of "Rise Up O Men of God," twenty-two responded to the roll call.

It was announced that the section of the Presbytery including Fairmount, Cavanville, Millbrook, Bethany, Fraserville and Springville, will meet in Springville church on the afternoon of April 19. Miss Holliday, returned missionary from Africa, will be the speaker on that occasion. Supper will be served.

It was decided to have the Easter thank offering service on Sunday evening, April 16. Mr. Kenneth Mayer, who, during the summer is stationed on a western mission field, will be the guest speaker. The society will also be assisted in the service by the members of the Mission Band.

As the society has had no chosen missionary previous to this. Miss Greta Clarke was the unanimous choice of those present. Miss Clarke, at present in China, is a former teacher of the local school, and still occupies a very warm place in the hearts of the Springville people.

Miss Johnston brought a message on Peace. She read from Ephesians 5:9-20 and Gal. 5:22. She spoke briefly on the world outlook today.

Mrs. Jack Whitfield and Miss Esma Johnston brought reports from the Presbyterial, Mrs. Whitfield gave a brief summary of the address of Mrs. Thompson, and Miss Johnston of Miss Coutts.

Letter From the West

A letter which has been received by Mrs. William Whitfield in answer to one which she had enclosed in the bale to the west, was read. It explained the distributing of the clothes and said that the winter out there starts in November and wondered if the ladies could find it possible to have the bale there by that time. She said there was great need for children's clothing, as some families have as many as twenty children.

Mrs. C. L. Brown was in charge of the remainder of the program and certainly the members of the society felt more acquainted with our New Canadians when she had finished. Those assisting her were Mrs. Murray, Mrs. Cathcart, Mrs. Staples, Miss Schaeffer and Mrs. L. Whittington.

Mrs. Brown showed some handiwork done by Czechoslovakian girl, also Chinese newspapers printed in Toronto. In the discussion period at the close many of the members told incidents of experiences they had had with new Canadians of many nationalities. Mrs. Brown urged all to make these people who have come to our land, feel at home.

A social time was spent and a vote of thanks was extended to the hostess by Mrs. Walter Bowles.

$4,000,000 Rail Order

NEW YORK, March 11—(CP).—New York Central Railroad Company announced today it had placed contracts for 56,200 gross tons of new rail, together with necessary track accessories, at a total cost of about $4,000,000. The contract is divided among Bethlehem Steel Company, Carnegie-Illinois, Inland Steel Company, and Algoma Steel Corporation.

New Rifle Fires 100 Shots a Minute

As the gun's youthful inventor, Captain Melvin E. Johnson, stand by, Major-General J. C. Breckinridge, of the United States Marine Corps, examines the new Johnson recoil-operated semi-automatic rifle which was tested at the ranges of the marine base in Quantic, Virginia. This new arm which fires 100 shots a minute is said to be superior to the million-dollar Garand rifle recently developed by the ordnance department of the U.S. army. Johnson plans to sail for France and England to offer his sensational new rifle for sale to those governments.

Arms Contract

ister. He is the victim of one of the worst pieces of departmental intrigue in the history of Canada."

The reason for all the trouble and fuss over the Bren gun contract was the presence of one incompetent official in the Defence Department.

"I will not name him because it would give him too much prominence," he continued. "But because he belongs to the Rideau Club and one of the best families in Ottawa he will keep his job and it will be necessary to create a whole new organization to do the job he failed to do."

Pouliot Policy

Mr. Pouliot said he would support any Liberal policy, but would not "support any policy drafted by a Tory judge." The policy before House was based on the report of Mr. Justice H. H. Davis on the Bren gun contract.

Neither did he believe "in a policy of appeasement to the Conservative party by appointing prominent Conservatives."

So far as the method of obtaining supplies for Canada's expanding defence program is concerned, the bill marks no important change in policy. It represents a change in method. The policy of using Government plants so far as practicable but using private industry also, subject to safeguards against undue profits, will be continued.

Instead of contracts being arranged by the Defence Department, however, they will be made by a board of four men responsible to Cabinet Council through the Minister of Finance.

The position of chairmanship of this board, a full-time, salaried appointment, awaits some eminent Canadian who can command the respect of all parties and elements in Canada and will be above any suggestion of partisanship. Mr. Mackenzie said the success or failure of the board depends on its personnel. The other three members will devote part time to the work, being paid an allowance per day and expenses.

"There is no more important task in Canada than the great task to be entrusted to the proposed board," said Mr. Mackenzie. "I want to repeat most emphatically that there is no suggestion of any political appointments."

In connection with this important question we invite the co-operation of every member, belonging to whatever philosophy you like, in this House.

A Trustworthy System

"And let me add my fervent hope that out of the disputations and criticism of recent days there will emerge a system of which all in the Dominion may be proud, one which will get results for the Department of National Defence and which commands the rust, the support and the confidence of all Canadian people."

The board will handle all contracts for the purchase of supplies, erection and improvement of buildings, airports, dockyards, roads and fortifications for the defence department, involving an expenditure of more than $5,000.

Where competitive bidding for such contracts is possible that method is to be followed and, except in exceptional circumstances when the governor-in-council approves, the contract is to go to the lowest tender after public advertisement.

In other cases where artitcles must be made to secret specifications or where lack of past experience in manufacturing makes competitive bids impractical, the contractor's profit will be restricted to five per cent by the imposition of a special tax equivalent to the amount by which the net profit made exceeds five per cent.

The bill also provides for a 10-year plan of amortizing certain capital expenditures for defence purposes by authorizing the borrowing of money repayable in 10 annual installments which will be applied to the purchase of such capital equipment as aircraft, ships, heavy guns and transport units.

The capital upon which a five per cent profit may be calculated is defined as "the actual cost, less depreciation of the physical assets, including plant, machinery, equipment and working capital which are employed in the performance of the contract."

Butter Stolen From Creamery

Friday night, after midnight, thieves smashed the door leading into the Lakefield creamery and made a wholesale clean-out of a shipment of butter, totalling 450 pounds. They are believed to have backed a truck to the factory door and, working rapidly and quietly, piled three wooden boxes and seven cartons containing the butter on the truck. The loot is valued at $100.00.

Less than a year ago robbers jimmied open the front door of the office and carried off the safe containing $400 in cash and cheques. The safe was later found smashed open and the money missing on a side road. The system followed by the robbers has been practically identical in both cases and police believe the same men are responsible for both jobs. Chief Constable Wallace Hendren of Lakefield and Provincial Constable Don Carruthers are investigating the break-in.

Postmaster Misses Burglar In Gun Duel

STAPLES, Ont., Mar. 10—(CP).—Postmaster John Rivest, 52, staged a running gun fight today with a burglar who attempted to rob Rivest's General Store here. Staples is 25 miles east of Windsor.

Barking of Rivest's dog roused him. He donned underwear and shoes and sneaked to the front of the store. He saw the burglar, he said, and shot twice in the air with his rifle.

The burglar ran, turning to fire twice at Rivest. Rivest said he shot once more at the would-be thief, but missed. It was the fifth attempted robbery of the store in a year.

OBITUARY

MRS. WILLIAM SEAMAN

The death of Mrs. William Seaman, of Keene, occurred at St. Joseph's Hospital on Friday after a short illness.

A resident of Keene for the past five years, Mrs. Seaman was born in Duchess County, New York State, her maiden name being Mary Bolton. She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and one brother, William Bolton, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

The funeral will be on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence at Keene, Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson, of All Saints' Anglican Church officiating, assisted by Rev. J. S. Ferguson of Keene United Church. Interment will be at Keene Cemetery.

Robust Health For Young People

What a common sight it is to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidence of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anemic nature and require a preparation containing iron to help improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system, strengthening the nerves, and adding to your physical attraction.

Marmora Loses Pioneer In Robert Jones

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 11.—The last survivor of a family of ten children born to pioneer Irish settlers of Marmora township passed away on Friday morning, close to the place of his birth, in the person of Robert Jones.

The late Mr. Jones was born on May 8, 1853, his parents being the late Hugh and Anne Jones. His father was reeve of Marmora township according to directories of Hastings county for the year 1860 and 1864, and doubtless occupied the office in the years intervening. He was also a justice of the peace.

His mother, before marriage was Anne Keys. Her father, Royal Keys, a native of the County Fermanagh, Ireland, passed away on July 28th, 1871, at the advanced age of 107 years.

The late Robert Jones was proud of his Irish descent and the longevity of many of his kinsfolk and was quite an authority on events which dated back to his earliest years.

On January 17, 1872, he was married to Margaret Jandreau of Rawdon township, who was then the teacher at Marmora S.S. No. 2. She was a teacher of the days when teachers went to all families in the school section in turn for bed and board. Seven children were born of this marriage, of which one, Robert, is deceased. The others are Charles, clerk of Marmora and Lake township; Cyprus, Ottawa; Hugh, Belleville; Mrs. Julian Bedore, Marmora; Mrs. A. Kaiting, Kingston; and Mrs. H. Mitchell, Crediton.

Well Known Farmer

Mrs. Jones passed away about thirty years ago. For several years after, the late Robert Jones continued to reside at the old homestead, but later resided in turn with his granddaughter, Mrs. William Prest, Rawdon township, and his son Charles, Marmora township, at whose home his demise occurred, following a stroke sustained about a month ago. In addition to his children, he is survived by 37 grandchildren and 26 great grandchildren.

For the greater part of his life, he was one of the township's best known farmers, but for a period of about ten years as a young man he worked in lumber camps for the Rathbun Company taking goodly sized contract. He was assessor for Marmora and Lake townships for about fifteen years, and when in his forties laid out the first colonization money for his township, continuing to serve in that capacity for ten years. For many years he was school trustee in his own section. He was also a director of the Marmora Cheese Factory for many years.

In religion he was an Anglican and until more recent years, attended Holy Trinity church from the time of its erection onwards. He served as rector's warden for some years under the late Canon C. M. Harris. He was an ardent Conservative though not aspiring to any office in the local association. He was highly respected for his many fine qualities and his death will be mourned by a wide circle of friends.

The funeral cortege will leave the residence of his son Charles Jones, Marmora township, at 1.30 p.m. on Sunday, for service in St. Paul's church, which will be conducted by the rector, Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell. Interment will take place in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

Presentation Made Otonabee Couple

Approximately one hundred people, including friends, relatives and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McAdams who have resided on the third line of Otonabee for the past 28 years, met at their home on Thursday evening for a dance and presentation prior to their departure for their new home in North Monaghan township. During the evening they were presented with two easy chairs by Herbert McKay and Walter Garnet, and an Aladdin lamp by Thomas Hope. The following address was read by Mrs. George Fife: Mr. and Mrs. Thos. McAdams:

We, your friends and neighbors, have gathered at your home tonight, as we have learned with feelings of deepest regret of your intended departure from this neighborhood. You have always been willing to lend a helping hand whenever the opportunity came your way. And we all wish you and your family prosperity in your new home.

We will ask you to accept this Aladdin lamp and hope when you become over fatigued and need light you may sit in your chairs and turn on you light and let your memory wander back to your old friends in Otonabee.

Signed on behalf of the neighborhood, John Fife, Herbert McKay, Walter Garnett, Thomas Hope.

Mr. McAdams replied most fittingly, thanking one and all for their thoughtfulness in presenting them with the gifts.

The evening was spent in games and dancing, to music furnished by Jim Millar and his orchestra, with Donald Fife as floor manager.

Fishing Party Interrupted By Two Wardens

Fish and Game Overseers I. J. Lyons of Peterborough and Gibb of Havelock interrupted a March fishing party Friday afternoon when they attempted to swoop down on three men they saw fishing through the ice in McGregor's Bay on the north shore of Rice Lake.

The game and fishery officials were some distance away from the poachers when they first noticed them and had to make a long tour in the direction of Keene with their car before they could drive out on the ice. When they finally shot out on the lake their quarry had disappeared, leaving the holes they had been fishing through and a number of rock bass as souvenirs of the occasion.

Overseer Lyons states that there has not been as much through-the-ice poaching in Rice Lake and other district waters this winter as is usually the case, a number of patrols failing to disclose any signs of illegal fishing.

Muskrat Season.

"The date of the opening of the muskrat trapping season in this district will depend upon the reports we give the department as to local conditions" Fish and Game Overseer I. J. Lyons told The Examiner Friday in answer to an inquiry as to when the trapping season will start.

Overseer Lyons stated that the season would be fixed by order-in-council just as soon as the department was satisfied that the conditions were right. There will of course have to be a change from the present wintry weather before there will be any action on the part of the department.

"There is no sign of a break-up yet" Mr. Lyons said "and until it comes there would be no use in opening the trapping season.

W. G. MORROW IS VICTIM OF PNEUMONIA

Windsor's Brother-in-Law Names MacDonald As Bookmaker's Murderer

Saw Witness Shoot Victim In The Stomach Kick Him As He Lay Dying; Carried Largest Gun He Had Ever Seen

TORONTO, March 13 (CP).—John V. McDermott, an eye-witness to the murder of James Windsor last January 7, testified in police court here today Donald (Mickey) MacDonald, 31, was the gunman who discharged a revolver bullet into Windsor's stomach and then kicked him as he lay dying.

Testimony of McDermott, brother-in-law of the slain bookmaker, was given during preliminary hearing of Donald MacDonald and his 19-year-old brother, Alexander, on charges of murder. The hearing was adjourned from Friday and was resumed before Magistrate R. J. Browne today.

McDermott said the MacDonalds were two of three men who broke into Windsor's North Toronto home on the night of January 7 and shot the 47-year-old bookmaker when Windsor said:

"'All right, don't get tough about it.'" The witness described Donald MacDonald as a "tall gunman" who carried the "largest revolver I had ever seen."

A Graphic Tale.

Describing the events on the night of the murder, McDermott said members of the Windsor household were sitting at dinner in the kitchen when a knock was heard at the door. Three men entered, two holding handkerchiefs to their faces and guns in hand.

"Gunman No. 1 pushed my wife aside and said: 'Come on, Windsor, come on outside,'" McDermott testified. "Windsor looked up and said: 'What's this all about?' The gunman then said: 'Come on, come on. Open up the box. Come on out to the car.'

"Windsor said: 'All right, don't get tough about it,' and started up from the chair. The gunman said: 'All right, damn you. Maybe this will bring you,' firing at the same time."

McDermott said that after Windsor was shot he staggered about the room, his hands in the air, then fell down and "This tall gunman" kicked him.

The hearing is continuing.

Pope Is Crowned Before 500,000 In Solemn Pomp

By Richard Massock
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

VATICAN CITY, March 13 (AP)—Pope Pius XII opened his old summer estate in the Alban hills today to the envoys of 41 nations who saw him crowned with brilliant pomp and stately ceremony in St. Peter's yesterday.

Diplomats, prelates and princes were among the 500,000 or so persons who watched the resplendent scenes of religious pageantry and enthusiasm in the vast mother church of Catholicism when the great, golden, jewel-encrusted tiara was placed on the head of the 262nd Pope.

The envoys were invited to be guests of the new pontiff's secretary of state, Cardinal Maglione, for a tour of the 100-acre Lakeside papal estate at Castel Gandolfo and tea in the 310-year-old summer palace.

Scores of ordinary folk nursed bruises and rested over-strained nerves from the four-hour coronation ceremony and the crush when thousands rushed out from the Basilica to see the actual coronation, which took place on a St. Peter's baloncy for the first time in almost a century.

It was estimated conservatively that 60,000 persons jammed themselves to near-suffocation within St. Peter's. Thousands sat or stood for six hours.

Outside in the great square a throng estimated at 350,000 to 500,000 swarmed until it overflowed the

Czechs, Germans Clash At Brunn

By Melvin Whiteleather
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PRAGUE, March 13. — (AP) — Growing German displeasure with the central government of Czecho-Slovakia and the possibility of repercussions from Czecho-Slovakia and the possibility of repercussions from Czech-German clashes raised the question today of further German intervention in Czecho-Slovakia.

The question was asked whether Chancellor Hitler would move to upset the new regime for autonomous Slovakia and, as the Nazi press suggested, "establish order in the republic."

Today was the first anniversary of Hitler's annexation of Austria and the Fuehrer was scheduled to spend the day at Vienna, only a short distance from Bratislava, capital of Slovakia.

Three persons were injured yesterday at Brunn, in the Czech part of Czecho-Slovakia near the border of German Austria, when Germans paraded with Swastika flags in celebration of German Memorial Day.

In Bratislava Nazi storm troopers were reported to have fired on an automobile carrying Czech army officers.

It was reported unofficially that General Jan Syrovy, former premier of the general government and now defence minister, along with General Alois Elias, minister of communications, might resign under German pressure in a shakeup of the Prague regime.

Syrovy incurred Nazi dislike when as premier he ordered mobilization of the Czecho-Slovak army in the pre-Munich crisis last September.

Shortages Cost 5 Ontario Servants' Jobs

TORONTO, March 13 (CP). — A check on the cash accounts of all Ontario Civil Service departments being conducted by the provincial auditor, has brought the dismissal of five Queen's Park employees, it was learned today.

The alleged shortages for which the dismissals were made were in connection with accountable warrants. These warrants are issued for petty cash accounts and for anticipated expenses such as are incurred in travelling. Vouchers covering the expenditures must be submitted after the expenses have been incurred.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant said he had not received a report on the matter and the question of further action would await such a report.

Treasury branch auditors made surprise visits to various departments after reports had been circulated concerning the sums covered by the warrants.

Girl Stowaway Freed On Theft

TORONTO, March 13.—(CP). — Loretta Ecclestone of Hamilton, who made a trip to England recently as a stowaway on the liner, Queen Mary, was placed on a year's probation and sent home to her parents when she appeared in women's court to-day on a theft charge.

Miss Ecclestone pleaded guilty a week ago to stealing a dress, purse, necklace, chain and slip from Gladys Burge. Physicians reported that a mental examination proved she was responsible for her actions.

"Her people in Hamilton are waiting to take her back,' Crown Attorney Fred Malone said. "Her father is blind and unable to get her."

16 Lives Are Lost In U.S. Storms

CHICAGO, March 13 (AP). — Heavy rain, sleet snow and floods in the northern half of the United States during the weekend hampered traffic, crippled power lines and left at least 16 dead today.

Snow continued today in the eastern states, but rain and sleet had ceased in the middle west. Temperatures were rising in the plains states and the Rocky Mountain area.

About three inches of snow fell in New York City and three deaths were attributed to weather conditions there. Two died in upstate New York, where snow and ice covered the highways of the western and central portions. The heavy snowfall was being driven by a high wind in the upper central section. Temperatures were slightly below freezing.

The storm claimed six deaths in New Jersey and traffic was hampered throughout the state.

Industrialist And Financier Only Been Ill Few Hours

Wire Telling Of Death Follows Quickly Upon That Announcing Arrival In Hospital

William George Morrow, industrialist and financier and public spirited citizen of Peterborough for more than half a century, a former Mayor of the city, prominent churchman and sportsman, died suddenly this morning of pneumonia in Pasadena, where with his two sisters he was spending a winter vacation since the first week in February.

News of Mr. Morrow's critical illness and death was received here this morning by G. H. Thompson, the secretary of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company of which Mr. Morrow was Vice-President and Managing Director. Two telegrams in quick succession from his sister, Miss Emma Morrow, conveyed the first intimation of the illness that was to have so swift a fatal ending. Business letters of last week had mentioned pleasant incidents in the sunny holiday land of California, where Mr. Morrow had been a winter visitor for many years.

Victim of Pneumonia

No warning note appeared in correspondence to prepare his associates and friends for the shock of those two telegrams, the first bearing the information that he had been removed to a hospital in Pasadena gravely ill of pneumonia, and the other following in a little while announcing that he had died.

Circumstance accentuated the tragedy that overtook W. G. Morrow, in many respects Peterborough's most prominent citizen for nearly the last fifty years. His winter holidays in the southwest had usually been a reinvigorating period, and the sunshine of Southern California and its blue skies were regarded as an atmosphere of comparative security during the rigors of February and March in Ontario. As in other winters Mr. Morrow had written that he was enjoying the golfing and outdoor life around Pasadena and a general improvement in health. And it was out of those blue skies that the news of his shockingly sudden death came this morning, first to his business staff and associates and then to his many friends of a life time throughout the city, leaving a broad sense of loss to the business and civic interests of Peterborough.

Born In Cavan

William George Morrow was born in Cavan township about five miles southeast of Mount Pleasant, and to the west of that old landmark of the countryside, the Cavan swamp. Sixty-nine years old last November, Mr. Morrow was the son of the late William Morrow and Mary Hopkins, daughter of Daniel Hopkins. His father was a farmer in Cavan, but moved to Peterborough when W. G. Morrow was only a small boy. He received his education in Peterborough schools, and as a youth he was taken into the office of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company by his uncle, Senator George A. Cox, president of the Company. Hon. Mr. Cox had married a sister of Mr. Morrow's mother. In that early opportunity, Mr. Morrow displayed as a young man an ability in business management and finance that brought success to all his undertakings and stewardships.

At the time of his death he was Vice-President and Managing Director of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, President of the Peterborough Lock Manufacturing Company, Vice-President of the Imperial Life Assurance Company, Director of the Central Canada Loan and Savings Company, Director of National Trust Company, Limited, Toronto, and had various collateral interests.

30 Years President of Lock Co.

As a director of the Peterborough Lock Company for thirty-five years, and its president for the last thirty years, Mr. Morrow was best known as an industrialist to the employees of that company and also to his fellow citizens, and no phase of his business records stands out more brightly than does his management and direction of that plant. It is a link with the industrialism of the earlier days in this city and also in this province. Mr. Morrow succeeded his uncle, Senator Cox, who had been its president and one of its founders. It was essentially a Peterborough company, with ideals that remained with it through all the feverish mechanization and "experting" that produced the idea of men being relegated to the industrial scrap heap at forty or forty-five. The management of the Peterborough Lock Company not only kept abreast of mechanical progress, but in doing so under the leadership of W. G. Morrow it did not come upon any new necessity of tossing out its elderly employees. The atmosphere of the Simcoe street factory has always been homelike, its labor turnover was slight, and men who worked there virtually all their lives spoke with respect and appreciation of the kindly, con-

$100,000 Sleet Storm Rakes Ontario

Rising temperatures and a brightly shining sun that melted snowdrifts swiftly aided Ontarians today in clearing up after a damaging weekend blizzard that paralyzed highway motor traffic and disrupted communications.

But the meteorological service forecast indicated the respite would be brief. Colder weather tonight with more snow in Western Ontario districts was expected.

Meanwhile, thawing conditions aided road workers and telegraph and telephone linemen in opening up snow-blocked highways and repairing felled poles and fallen wires. Damage to wire systems in the western section of the province, hardest hit by the storm Sunday, was estimated at more than $100,000.

500 Poles Go Down

More than 500 poles were broken by the storm which reached its peak in Essex and Kent counties. Disruption of power services continued until early today when Brantford reported services to Simcoe, Port Dover and others towns in the district was halted for three hours.

Chatham, where several telephone poles were felled and power services disrupted by ice-coated tree branches falling upon wires, enjoyed bright sunshine today with temperatures well above freezing. Clear weather

Germany Prepares To Step In Czecho-Slovak Case; Goering Is Called Home

Nazi Press Rails At Czechs In Language Used During September Crisis; Hitler Receives Ousted Premier Tiso

Goering and his wife left Germany March 3 to stay at a health resort here on the Italian Riviera. His trip was represented officially as private and solely for his health, although he had been expected to go to Rome this week for talks with Italian authorities and later visit Libya.

BERLIN, March 13 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler received Dr. Joseph Tiso, deposed Slovak Premier, for an "extended" conference today amid acknowledgment by official sources that Germany would make some sort of intervention in the Czecho-Slovak situation.

Tiso, ousted from the premiership of autonomous Slovakia by the Prague Central Government Friday because of agitation for Slovak independence, arrived at Berlin's Tempelhof Airdrome late this afternoon.

Nazi Elite Guard troops, with a band, accorded him honors usually extended to a premier in office.

BERLIN, Barch 13 (AP).—Official sources acknowledged today that some sort of intervention would be made by Germany in the Czecho-Slovak situation, which involves agitation for the independence of Slovakia from the rest of Czecho-Slovakia.

The mildest form would be diplomatic representations but the possibility of "stronger action if necessary" was also mentioned by a Foreign Office spokesman.

The spokesman indicated that even if only a diplomatic step were taken, the language of a German note would be sharp and unequivocal. The spokesman would not commit himself as to whether the desired result of German intervention would be an "independent" Slovakia.

On Wednesday, the spokesman said, Chancellor Hitler will appear at a big parade in Vienna, just 34 miles from Bratislava, the Slovak capital.

When asked whether not only army units but also detachments of SS and SA (Nazi uniformed guard units) were moving to the southeast, he replied affirmatively, but insisted they simply were en route to participate in the Vienna parade.

He indicated that German officials were in constant touch with Italian officials, their partners in the Rome-Berlin axis.

He said also that nothing was known here about contentions made in Bratislava that a German emissary had made overtures to leaders of the Slovak separatist movement long before the present difficulties developed. He admitted, however, that because Bratislava and Vienna are close together there were frequent interchanges of views between Slovaks and Germans.

Press Waxes Bitter.

The controlled Nazi press used phrases like those employed in the September crisis, to describe what they called "brutal Czech terror" in Czecho-Slovakia.

Ontario's Mine Production Off $8,752,442

TORONTO, Mar. 13 — (C.P.). — Due mainly to lower prices for copper and metals of the platinum group, and also to a drop in value of structural materials and clay products, value of Ontario's mineral production in 1938 declined $8,752,442, according to preliminary report of the Ontario Department of Mines. Total output was $221,420,017 compared with $230,173,559 in 1937.

Value of production by groups was: Metallics $199,419,338 or 90.6 per cent. of the total, non-metallics $10,123,441 or 4.5 per cent., structural materials $9,982,369 or 44. per cent., and clay products $1,895,869 or less than 1 per cent.

Decrease in value of metals amounting to 2.6 per cent. was indicated more particularly in copper, price of which dropped from 13.02 cents, in 1937 to 6.695 cents per pound last year. Platinum metal prices were down by 10.6 per cent. compared with 1937.

Gold production—which reached its peak in 1938—showed a gain of 12.6 per cent. in value with figures of $101,915,564 against $90,508,669. Non-metallics rose from $10,055,177 to $10,123,441, structural materials declined from $13,241,344 to $9,982,369, and clay products decreased from $230,173,459 to $221,421,017.

Output of gold totalled 2,895,640 fine ounces against 2,587,084 fine ounces in 1937.

Engine Rolls Over Traps Crew Hour

BELMONT, Ont., March 13. —(C.P.). —A Canadan Pacific Railways engineer, fireman, and brakeman narrowly escaped death early today when they were trapped in the cab on an engine which was upset opposite station here.

The engine of train 73, a freight from Toronto to St. Thomas via Woodstock, was derailed and turned upside down. The there men of the front end crew were trapped in the cab for an hour by the scalding steam which belched from the engine but after an hour they were able to get out safely with only a few bruises and scratches.

Local C. P. R. offices refused to divulge names of the crew members or the cause of the derailment.

Dionne Accepts Ontario's Bid To Bring Quints See King Ignores Guardians—May Include Whole Family Of 12

CALLANDER, Ont., Mar. 13 — (CP). — Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, announced to-day he had accepted the invitation of the Ontario Government to take his famous daughters to Toronto to be presented to the King and Queen on May 22.

Dionne said he had a "keen desire" to have the girl, who will be five years old on May 28, meet Their Majesties and that he would take his entire family to Toronto if arrangements are made for their accommodation. The Dionnes have 12 children.

This would mean that Ernest, Rose and Therese Dionne, now attending school in Quebec Province, would return home to join the family for the trip. Daniel, Pauline, Oliva, Jr., and Victoria now are at home with their parents, living in the Dionne farm home across the road from Dafoe Hospital which houses the quintuplets.

Annette, Yvonne, Cecile, Emilie, and Marie will be taken by special train to Toronto, 180 miles south of here. The trip will be the first time the quintuplets leave their nursery grounds since being moved from their parents' home in September, 1934, little more than three months after their birth.

Only Mrs. Dionne Consulted

The father said Dr. A. R. Dafoe and Judge J. A. Valin, other member of the quints' board of guardians, have not yet been advised of his acceptance of the government invitation, forwarded last week by Provincial Secretary H. C. Nixon. He said he had acted on his own in the matter after consulting with Mrs. Dionne.

When he received the invitation, Dionne first said he did not favor the plan to take the children on the long trip to Toronto and said arrangements should be made for the King and Queen to visit Callander. The closest Their Majesties will come to this district on their tour of Canada will be when they skirt the shores of Georgian Bay enroute to Windsor June 6.

In issuing the invitation, Mr. Nixon gave assurance everything possible would be done to ensure the comfort and protection of the quintuplets during the trip. They will be presented to Their Majesties in the lieutenant-governor's quarters in the legislature buildings.

Pickets As Skeletons Go To Work On Cemetery Company

Indianapolis, March 13 (AP)

A SKELETON picketing force startled shoppers on downtown streets here. Two pickets of the United Cemetery Workers Union of the Congress of Industrial Organizations put on skull-and-bones suits to picket offices of directors of the Crown Hill Cemetery Association. The union also has been picketing the cemetery in a demand for better working conditions. The skeleton-costumed pickets carried cards which said: "I can't rest my bones in Crown Hill."

No British Pledge On Czech Border

LONDON, March 13.—(CP Cable.)—Great Britain has made no binding guarantee of the Czecho-Slovakian frontiers as suggested at the time of the Munich settlement, it was learned in official quarters to-day.

Sir Thomas Inskip, then Minister for the Co-ordination of Defence, told the House of Commons in October that Great Britain felt morally obliged to give an immediate guarantee to Czecho-Slovakia against unprovoked aggression.

Since then the Czech government, undoubtedly under orders from Berlin, has not asked Britain to give a binding guarantee.

When Prime Minister Chamberlain was in Rome Premier Mussolini told him Italy was prepared to accept in principle a guarantee for Czecho-Slovakia against unprovoked aggression, but the Duce believed three questions should be settled first—the internal constitution of Czechoslovakia, establishment of her neutrality, and demilmitation of her borders.

German Hero In 1929 Einstein Now Exile From Nazis

Princeton, N.J., March 13 (AP)

ON his 50 birthday 10 years ago Scientist Albert Einstein was hailed throughout Germany, honored by the gift of a summer estate by the city council of Berlin, and congratulated by the late German Chancellor, Herman Mueller.

Tomorrow, an exile in a foreign land, the noted Jewish scholar will observe his 60th birthday.

Through his biographer, H. Gordon Garbedian, Einstein issued a statement declaring that as an "active pacifist" he now believed war justifiable against "war-making brigands."

Moving Mountain Slows To Crawl

GILROY, Calif., March 13. — (A.P.). — The moving earth mass which for a week slid ominously toward the main coastal highway near here appeared today to have slowed down to a crawl.

Belief the rock and tree-encrusted slide, after advancing more than 1¾ miles in six days, would halt short of the highway was expressed by Thomas Joyce of Salinas, district superintendent of State Highways.

A large area of nearly-flat land and a ravine were in the path of the expansive mass and probably would stop the movement which had not progressed more than 10 feet since yesterday, Joyce said.

Thousands of automobiles extending eight miles along the Canada-to-Mexico highway brought sightseers to the moving mountain side yesterday, and taxed efforts of 25 state patrolmen to keep the way open for through traffic.

Disturbed In Time

TORONTO, March 13 (CP) — Shopbreakers failed in an attempt early today to steal a large safe from the office of the McCracken Coal Company. The safe was moved several feet but the robbers apparently fled when disturbed, leaving behind a stolen truck. Entrance was gained through a rear door.

Gale Sweeps Coast

HALIFAX, March 13 (CP) — A 40-mile easterly gale accompanied by snow swept this Nova Scotia capital today, forcing coastal shipping to remain in port and slowing up highway traffic.

The Halifax-Saint John planes were grounded here because of the storm.

Einstein Claims Key To Gravitation Riddle But He Keeps The Solution A Secret

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

NEW YORK, March 13 (AP)—Professor Albert Einstein, the scientist, announced today he had discovered a new solution of the riddle of gravitation.

The riddle is the unknown cause of gravitation and its connection with electricity, matter and magnetism. Professor Einstein kept the solution secret, explaining that it would be tested with actual experiments.

The announcement was made in a birthday interview—Einstein will be 60 tomorrow—to L. E. Levick of the National Association of Science Writers, and released through the association. Levick is science writer of the New York Journal and American and International News Service.

Einstein thinks he has discovered the clue to a long-sought single law that will explain the structure of the entire universe and all the mysteries of matter and radiation.

Gravitation is the missing link. Everything else, scientists have suspected, will become clear if someone can learn how gravitation originates.

Miaja Routs Madrid Red Forces

Leaders Captured, 3,000 Prisoners Are Given Freedom

MADRID, March 13.—(AP)—The defence council, as a precondition to seeking peace with the Nationalists, removed Communists from civil positions today to consolidate a military victory over them.

The council announced last night it had wiped out the six-day revolt of the Communists against the peace policies of General Jose Miaja, head of the council government. (Reports reaching the Havas News Agency in Paris said Communists had seized control of the seaport of Cartagena.)

Miaja's minister of interior, Wenceslao Carillo, ordered Madrid municipal Communists removed from office and replaced by men of other parties. It was understood that many Communists hunted by the council were in hiding. Some sought refuge in foreign embassies and legations.

The government reported two chief leaders of the revolt were captured: Lieut.-Colonel Francisco Bueno, former commander of the Second Army Corps, with his general staff, at Ciudad Lineal, five miles east of Madrid, and Lieut.-Colonel Jose Barcelo, former commander of the First Army Corps, at La Pedriza, in the Guadarrama Mountains north of Madrid.

The last Communist stronghold in Madrid fell yesterday when Miaja's troops followed up a 15-minute artillery bombardment with an assault on the unfinished government offices at the top of Castellana avenue. Three thousand Republican prisoners who had been in the hands of the rebels were reported freed when the revolt collapsed. These included the Socialist civil governor of Madrid, Josegomez Osorio.

As an employee of labor for thirty-five years, the late George Morrow modestly established a reputation for "fair and square" dealing, as employes termed it, of sincere thoughtfulness for all the men on the company's payroll, of maintaining the "golden rule" in so far as business conditions permitted it.

Succeeded Father

Mr. Morrow's public service as a citizen of Peterborough extended over a long span of years, and was marked by the same efficiency and thoroughness that was reflected in his career as a business leader. As a boy of seventeen he succeeded his father as secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education, and carried on that duty for twenty-three years, resigning in 1910 when he was elected Mayor. Prior to his success at the mayoralty polls Mr. Morrow had yielded to many urgings to offer himself as a candidate for the council, and was first elected alderman in 1907, continuing in that service through 1908 and 1909. He resigned from the aldermanic branch in 1910 to contest the mayoralty with E. F. Mason, was elected and retired at the end of two years of fine service to the community, including chairmanships of the finance and manufacturers committees.

W. G. Morrow's public activities affected Peterborough in many contacts and enterprises. He was first president of the Public Library Board, and was a trustee from its inception until his death. It is recalled that he and E. H. D. Hall were the two delegates from the city who went to New York to interview the Carnegie Institute and request a grant for the library building in 1910.

Ardent Curler

He was past president of the Peterborough Curling Club, a director of the Curling Company, the actual owner of the rink, donor of the Morrow trophy, for which there is annual competition, and was keenly interested in curling. Those successful open bonspiels of other years were largely encouraged by Mr. Morrow, and some of the happiest hours of his life were spent at the Charlotte street rink on nights when he was in the running for final honors after long grinds of several days, and especially when he won his own trophy against fifty or sixty rinks from all over Central Ontario.

Mr. Morrow was one of the first members of the Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club which was organized in 1901. He joined in the following year and was its captain for many years. He was a member of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club since its inception, and was also a member of its executive. He was also a member of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and of the Midwick Golf and Country Club, Monterey Park, California. He had also played occasionally at the Seigneury Club, Quebec, several years ago being a member of a Canadian team in a series of matches with Americans. He was an ardent golfer, a true lover of the outdoors, his summer cottage "Oakdene" above Boschink, Stoney Lake, having been one of his unfailing diversions.

Another of his primary interests was reflected as a member of Trinity United Church. As a young man he was actively associated with Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and his fellow churchmen said of him that he loved Trinity Church as one of the first attachments of his life. When it was being built he was a daily spectator of its progress. Since then he has been chairman of the trustee board, a member of the official board, and chairman of the pulpit committee. W. G. Morrow will be greatly missed by the congregation and officers of Trinity Church

He was a Past Master of Corinthian Lodge A.F.& A.M., a member of the National Club, Toronto, and until several months ago he was a member of the Canadian Club of New York. He was also a director of Little Lake Cemetery Company.

He was deeply interested in Red Cross work. In 1937 he was president of Ontario Division of Red Cross Society and until his death a member of the board.

Mr. Morrow is survived by his two sisters, Miss Emma Morrow and Mrs. Duncan Walker, who were with him in Pasadena. Arrangements for his funeral will be announced later. From one source it was learned to-day that the Morrow residence on Weller Street was built on the site of his mother's home, the home of his grandfather, Daniel Hopkins, and that nearby lived his father, William Morrow, perhaps suggesting a Weller Street romance of many years ago, represented to-day in the splendid home of their son.

W. G. Morrow was a loyal supporter of the Liberal Party, and at times had been mentioned as a prospective candidate, but his interests did not run strongly in that direction.

Tribute from Mayor Hamilton.

"He was a man who will be missed a great deal in Peterborough and the country at large," said Mayor James Hamilton. "He was so deeply interested in so many different phases of this city's life that it is impossible to realize at the present time just how much he will be missed. And his wider interests in other parts of Ontario he never allowed to interfere with his active interest in almost every local activity, whether it was a municipal, religious, or charitable nature. His help and advice was sought throughout the city and was greatly appreciated. Those of us who knew hm personally will miss him because we got to know him as he really was.

"In Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club he was an ideal captain. As a host he was kindly, thoughful, always considerate. He was a man who had made a great deal of money, yet his tastes remained simple. A great home-lover, he was happiest with his family and his close friends. He will be missed more than can be possibly realized at the present time."

"It is very sad news that came to Peterborough this morning," said Roland Denne, a close personal friend of Mr. Morrow. "The community at large will miss him. His death is a far-reaching blow. His advice on all the numerous boards on which he served will be sadly missed."

Served on Library Board.

"The news of W. G. Morrow's came to me as a shock," said Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational Institute. "I was intimately connected with him and can testify to his sterling character. He and I served on the Library board since the erection of the Library building in 1910. For many years he was chairman of the finance committee and rendered invaluable service to the board.

"Mr. Morrow was also known to me as secretary of the board of education. He succeeded his father in that position and was deeply interested in educational matters. For several years he annually donated $180 scholarships at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational school. Peterborough has lost one of its outstanding and generous citizens."

for the first time in days was reported from Kitchener.

In Toronto and other Central Ontario districts bright, clear weather prevaled, aiding hundreds of workers in clearing snow from streets and highways. But highway conditions were reported poor in the Kingston area where six inches of snow fell yesterday. Snowploughs were put to work to clear highways while 200 shovellers sought to clear Kingston streets.

Windsor Hard Hit

The city of Windsor was virtually isolated for several hours yesterday and communications officials said the difficulties experienced in the area were perhaps th worst since 1913. Telegraph and telephone wires were tangled mass in the territory surrounding Tilbury, Essex, Belle River and Windsor.

Highways were covered with snow and ice and scores of cars were forced into ditches. For a time traffic was brought to a standstill but steady work of snowploughing kept main highways open.

Rural telephone systems suffered many breaks but no estimate of damage was available. Several breaks in the hydro system were reported. Essex county sanatorium was without telephone or hydroelectric power lines bewteen the transmission station and the studios.

Central Ontario was blanketed with snow yesterday afternoon, following a morning rain. Scores of hamlets and villages lying off main highways in Peel and Halton counties faced temporary isolation. In Toronto today trucks usually used for garbage collection will be used in a drive to clear city streets.

Maternity Oak

LOUISBURG, N.C., March 13—(AP).—A cat gave birth to two kittens in a hollow oak on L. C. May's farm recently and a few days later a stray dog selected the same place to bring eight pups into the world. Both cat and dog are raising their broods in the tree—without argument.

Two Miners Die In Slide At Lake Shore

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., March 13 —(CP)— Kirkland Lake today counted the cost of a rock fall at Lake Shore Mines that took the lives of two men and injured two others.

Michael L. Harrington and George Selmer Braaten, both 28, were killed Saturday when a rock burst on the 3,700-foot level buried them beneath tons of debris and injured Russell Bates and Herbert Levon.

Bodies of Harrington and Braaten were recovered early yesterday and a rescue squad removed Bates and Levon. The survivors were cut and bruised and suffered from shock.

Their lives were saved by the fact they were eight feet away from the rock fall. Levon was reached first when the rescue crew made fast time digging a path to the stope where the fall occurred.

Harrington, one of a family of 16 brothers, leaves a widow and a six-months-old son. Inez Braaten, widow of the other victim, told friends later she had a premonition of danger to her husband shortly before the rock burst happened.

Harrington's body was taken to Pembroke, for interment. He had been in Kirkland Lake three years, employed by Lake Shore during that time. Braaten's body will be taken tonight to Rainy River.

Levon will be married today to Lenora McDermott of Kirkland Lake. His first words on reaching the surface were: Won't the little woman be surprised."

"I am lucky to be alive," he continued, "there was no warning of danger, just a bump and there we were."

Dionne Accepts

Oliva's Acceptance.

OTTAWA, March 13. —(C. P.). —Oliva Dionne has accepted the invitation of the Ontario Government to take his quintuplet daughters to Toronto May 22 to meet teh King and Queen , Le Droit, Ottawa French language newspaper says in a newspage story today.

The newspaper publishes the text of a letter Mr. Dionne wrote Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial Secretary, March 9, accepting the invitation. A translation of the letter, written in French, follows:

"I have just received your favor of the sixth instant inviting me, with my wife and my quintuplets, to meet their Majesties on May 22 at the House of the Legislative Assembly and to be present at a luncheon at Hart House.

"Mrs. Dionne and myself are pleased to accept your kind invitation and we are grateful to you for placing at our disposal a special train for the trip and also the offices of the Prime Minister during our stay in Toronto.

"Please accept, Honorable Sir, the assurance of my highest consideration.

"Olive Dionne."

End of Speculation.

Decision of the Quints father to take them from the vicinty of the farm where they were born five years ago this May 28 ends months of speculation over whether they would see the Royal Couple. It was proposed at first that Their Majesties travel to Callander but their officiall itinerary made no provision for a stop there and efforts were started to bring the Quints to them.

The youngsters will travel to Toronto on two private cars and will meet Their Majesties in the Lieutenant Governor's chamber at Queen's Park. They probably will be in Toronto only the one day the Royal Couple are there.

News to Nixon.

TORONTO ,Mar. 13 — (CP).—Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, said to-day he has not been informed of Oliva Dionne's acceptance of an invitation by the Ontario Government to bring his quintuplet daughters to Toronto to meet the King and Queen on May 22.

Told that Le Droit, Ottawa French language newspaper, carries a newspage story to-day saying Dionne has accepted the invitation, Mr. Nixon said: "I have not been informed of that."

He added that he had learned "indirectly" the father of the famous girls who will be five years old on May 28 was "greatly pleased" by the invitation, forwarded by Mr. Nixon last week, but that he needed time to consider it. "There is no rush about it," said Mr. Nixon.

At the time the invitation was sent, Dionne said he was not in favor of it and that arrangements should be made for the King and Queen to visit Callander, home of the quints. The invitation is to be discussed by the quintuplets' Board of Guardians, but the final decision as to whether the children make the 180-mile trip rests with Dionne.

The Ontario Government has offered to provide a special train for the girls and present them to Their Majesties in the Lieutenant-Governor's apartment in the Legislative Building. Mr. Nixon today reiterated that there was no "Royal command" in the invitation and that the Government would be "very glad" to make all arangements to ensure the safety and comfort of the children.

Sheep, 2,400; good and choice 93 lbs. down $9.25 to mainly $9.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 13 — (C.P.). — Easiness at Liverpool and lack of support in the Winnipeg pit brought substantial losses to wheat futures prices here to-day. Closing quotation were ½ to ⅝ cent, May at 60⅜, July 61, and October 61⅞.

Except for minor purchases attributed to mills and a little buying on the scale down, operations were quiet throughout. No export sales of Canadian wheat were reported.

Recelling which followed lack of demand from English millers for cash or future delivery wheat dropped Liverpool values ⅝ to ¾d, Chicago futures lost fractions.

Market Review

TORONTO, March 13.—(CP)—European disturbances brought renewal of uneasiness to the stock market today and prices were shaken for wide losses in a moderate volume of selling. Losses of 1 to 2 points were scattered through the mining and industrial groups and the indices finished with losses of a point or more. Western oils were down generally but appeared inclined to rally a bit in the final stage. Volume was small at less than a half million shares.

A weak tone ruled through the early hours and there was no sign of recovery by early afternoon. All indices were down at noon and some wide losses were posted. Lake Shore dropped more than two points to its lowest price since 1934 and the secondary golds, including Pamour, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock, Kirkland Lake, and Preston, worked lower by 5 to 10 cents.

Industrial issues posted losses of fractions to a point with weakness, showing mainly in the steels, utilities and liquor groups. Brazilian and the Abitibi issues displayed further weakness.

Noranda declined 1¾ to 80 and Nickel and Smelters lost about a point each. Waite-Amulet at $7.50 showed a 30-cent decline.

All the active oils were down, including Home, Calgary-Edmonton, Okalta, Anglo-Canadian, Highwood and Dahousie.

WALL STRET CLOSE

Losses of minor fractions predominated throughout the session although a handful of issues managed to tack on small advances. There were a few isolated declines of two or so near the final hour, but weakness was exceptional.

Lightness of selling was encouraging to bullish analysts. Transfers were about 650,000 shares.

RECRUITING RECORD

LONDON — (CP). — Royal Air Force recruiting made a new record when 1,080 men joined in a week, compared with 358 in the same period of 1938.

Meet the Ambassador of Financial Security -representing Imperial Life

THIS is the man to whom thousands of doubting, harassed men have listened, and who now doubt no more.

He is at once the voice of conscience, of wisdom and of hope. He forearms you against the inevitable—the flight of time and the 'unexpected'. He is the Imperial Life representative.

He carries the means to help you bring your plans to fruition, the means of making dreams become realities. Helpful plans which do for a man that which few men will do for themselves —provide for a care-free future. Imperial Life plans are easy of accomplishment. They are adaptable to your individual circumstances because they are built on experience that is age-old and world-wide.

To free your mind from worry about the future, to provide protection for your family, to guarantee education for your children and an income for yourself when you can work no more; to provide security for your widow should the "unexpected" happen—do as so many farsighted men are doing every day—see the Imperial Life representative today.

Miaja Routs Madrid Red Forces

Leaders Captured, 3,000 Prisoners Are Given Freedom

MADRID, March 13.—(AP)—The defence council, as a precondition to seeking peace with the Nationalists, removed Communists from civil positions today to consolidate a military victory over them.

The council announced last night it had wiped out the six-day revolt of the Communists against the peace policies of General Jose Miaja, head of the council government. (Reports reaching the Havas News Agency in Paris said Communists had seized control of the seaport of Cartagena.)

Miaja's minister of interior, Wenceslao Carillo, ordered Madrid municipal Communists removed from office and replaced by men of other parties. It was understood that many Communists hunted by the council were in hiding. Some sought refuge in foreign embassies and legations.

The government reported two chief leaders of the revolt were captured: Lieut.-Colonel Francisco Bueno, former commander of the Second Army Corps, with his general staff, at Ciudad Lineal, five miles east of Madrid, and Lieut.-Colonel Jose Barcelo, former commander of the First Army Corps, at La Pedriza, in the Guadarrama Mountains north of Madrid.

The last Communist stronghold in Madrid fell yesterday when Miaja's troops followed up a 15-minute artillery bombardment with an assault on the unfinished government offices at the top of Castellana avenue. Three thousand Republican prisoners who had been in the hands of the rebels were reported freed when the revolt collapsed. These included the Socialist civil governor of Madrid, Josegomez Osorio.

As an employee of labor for thirty-five years, the late George Morrow modestly established a reputation for "fair and square" dealing, as employes termed it, of sincere thoughtfulness for all the men on the company's payroll, of maintaining the "golden rule" in so far as business conditions permitted it.

Succeeded Father

Mr. Morrow's public service as a citizen of Peterborough extended over a long span of years, and was marked by the same efficiency and thoroughness that was reflected in his career as a business leader. As a boy of seventeen he succeeded his father as secretary-treasurer of the Board of Education, and carried on that duty for twenty-three years, resigning in 1910 when he was elected Mayor. Prior to his success at the mayoralty polls Mr. Morrow had yielded to many urgings to offer himself as a candidate for the council, and was first elected alderman in 1907, continuing in that service through 1908 and 1909. He resigned from the aldermanic branch in 1910 to contest the mayoralty with E. F. Mason, was elected and retired at the end of two years of fine service to the community, including chairmanships of the finance and manufacturers committees.

W. G. Morrow's public activities affected Peterborough in many contacts and enterprises. He was first president of the Public Library Board, and was a trustee from its inception until his death. It is recalled that he and E. H. D. Hall were the two delegates from the city who went to New York to interview the Carnegie Institute and request a grant for the library building in 1910.

Ardent Curler

He was past president of the Peterborough Curling Club, a director of the Curling Company, the actual owner of the rink, donor of the Morrow trophy, for which there is annual competition, and was keenly interested in curling. Those successful open bonspiels of other years were largely encouraged by Mr. Morrow, and some of the happiest hours of his life were spent at the Charlotte street rink on nights when he was in the running for final honors after long grinds of several days, and especially when he won his own trophy against fifty or sixty rinks from all over Central Ontario.

Mr. Morrow was one of the first members of the Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club which was organized in 1901. He joined in the following year and was its captain for many years. He was a member of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club since its inception, and was also a member of its executive. He was also a member of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, and of the Midwick Golf and Country Club, Monterey Park, California. He had also played occasionally at the Seigneury Club, Quebec, several years ago being a member of a Canadian team in a series of matches with Americans. He was an ardent golfer, a true lover of the outdoors, his summer cottage "Oakdene" above Boschink, Stoney Lake, having been one of his unfailing diversions.

Another of his primary interests was reflected as a member of Trinity United Church. As a young man he was actively associated with Charlotte Street Methodist Church, and his fellow churchmen said of him that he loved Trinity Church as one of the first attachments of his life. When it was being built he was a daily spectator of its progress. Since then he has been chairman of the trustee board, a member of the official board, and chairman of the pulpit committee. W. G. Morrow will be greatly missed by the congregation and officers of Trinity Church

He was a Past Master of Corinthian Lodge A.F.& A.M., a member of the National Club, Toronto, and until several months ago he was a member of the Canadian Club of New York. He was also a director of Little Lake Cemetery Company.

He was deeply interested in Red Cross work. In 1937 he was president of Ontario Division of Red Cross Society and until his death a member of the board.

Mr. Morrow is survived by his two sisters, Miss Emma Morrow and Mrs. Duncan Walker, who were with him in Pasadena. Arrangements for his funeral will be announced later. From one source it was learned to-day that the Morrow residence on Weller Street was built on the site of his mother's home, the home of his grandfather, Daniel Hopkins, and that nearby lived his father, William Morrow, perhaps suggesting a Weller Street romance of many years ago, represented to-day in the splendid home of their son.

W. G. Morrow was a loyal supporter of the Liberal Party, and at times had been mentioned as a prospective candidate, but his interests did not run strongly in that direction.

Tribute from Mayor Hamilton.

"He was a man who will be missed a great deal in Peterborough and the country at large," said Mayor James Hamilton. "He was so deeply interested in so many different phases of this city's life that it is impossible to realize at the present time just how much he will be missed. And his wider interests in other parts of Ontario he never allowed to interfere with his active interest in almost every local activity, whether it was a municipal, religious, or charitable nature. His help and advice was sought throughout the city and was greatly appreciated. Those of us who knew him personally will miss him because we got to know him as he really was.

"In Ketchecum Lake Hunt Club he was an ideal captain. As a host he was kindly, thoughful, always considerate. He was a man who had made a great deal of money, yet his tastes remained simple. A great home-lover, he was happiest with his family and his close friends. He will be missed more than can be possibly realized at the present time."

"It is very sad news that came to Peterborough this morning," said Roland Denne, a close personal friend of Mr. Morrow. "The community at large will miss him. His death is a far-reaching blow. His advice on all the numerous boards on which he served will be sadly missed."

Served on Library Board.

"The news of W. G. Morrow's came to me as a shock," said Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational Institute. "I was intimately connected with him and can testify to his sterling character. He and I served on the Library board since the erection of the Library building in 1910. For many years he was chairman of the finance committee and rendered invaluable service to the board.

"Mr. Morrow was also known to me as secretary of the board of education. He succeeded his father in that position and was deeply interested in educational matters. For several years he annually donated $180 scholarships at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational school. Peterborough has lost one of its outstanding and generous citizens."

for the first time in days was reported from Kitchener.

In Toronto and other Central Ontario districts bright, clear weather prevaled, aiding hundreds of workers in clearing snow from streets and highways. But highway conditions were reported poor in the Kingston area where six inches of snow fell yesterday. Snowploughs were put to work to clear highways while 200 shovellers sought to clear Kingston streets.

Windsor Hard Hit

The city of Windsor was virtually isolated for several hours yesterday and communications officials said the difficulties experienced in the area were perhaps th worst since 1913. Telegraph and telephone wires were tangled mass in the territory surrounding Tilbury, Essex, Belle River and Windsor.

Highways were covered with snow and ice and scores of cars were forced into ditches. For a time traffic was brought to a standstill but steady work of snowploughing kept main highways open.

Rural telephone systems suffered many breaks but no estimate of damage was available. Several breaks in the hydro system were reported. Essex county sanatorium was without telephone or hydroelectric power lines bewteen the transmission station and the studios.

Central Ontario was blanketed with snow yesterday afternoon, following a morning rain. Scores of hamlets and villages lying off main highways in Peel and Halton counties faced temporary isolation. In Toronto today trucks usually used for garbage collection will be used in a drive to clear city streets.

Two Miners Die In Slide At Lake Shore

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., March 13 —(CP)— Kirkland Lake today counted the cost of a rock fall at Lake Shore Mines that took the lives of two men and injured two others.

Michael L. Harrington and George Selmer Braaten, both 28, were killed Saturday when a rock burst on the 3,700-foot level buried them beneath tons of debris and injured Russell Bates and Herbert Levon.

Bodies of Harrington and Braaten were recoverd early yesterday and a rescue squad removed Bates and Levon. The survivors were cut and bruised and suffered from shock.

Their lives were saved by the fact they were eight feet away from the rock fall. Levon was reached first when the rescue crew made fast time digging a path to the stope where the fall occurred.

Harrington, one of a family of 16 brothers, leaves a widow and a six-months-old son. Inez Braaten, widow of the other victim, told friends later she had a premonition of danger to her husband shortly before the rock burst happened.

Harrington's body was taken to Pembroke, for interment. He had been in Kirkland Lake three years, employed by Lake Shore during that time. Braaten's body will be taken tonight to Rainy River.

Levon will be married today to Lenora McDermott of Kirkland Lake. His first words on reaching the surface were: Won't the little woman be surprised."

"I am lucky to be alive," he continued, "there was no warning of danger, just a bump and there we were."

Dionne Accepts

Oliva's Acceptance.

OTTAWA, March 13. —(C. P.). —Oliva Dionne has accepted the invitation of the Ontario Government to take his quintuplet daughters to Toronto May 22 to meet teh King and Queen , Le Droit, Ottawa French language newspaper says in a newspage story today.

The newspaper publishes the text of a letter Mr. Dionne wrote Hon. Harry Nixon, Ontario Provincial Secretary, March 9, accepting the invitation. A translation of the letter, written in French, follows:

"I have just received your favor of the sixth instant inviting me, with my wife and my quintuplets, to meet their Majesties on May 22 at the House of the Legislative Assembly and to be present at a luncheon at Hart House.

"Mrs. Dionne and myself are pleased to accept your kind invitation and we are grateful to you for placing at our disposal a special train for the trip and also the offices of the Prime Minister during our stay in Toronto.

"Please accept, Honorable Sir, the assurance of my highest consideration.

"Olive Dionne."

End of Speculation.

Decision of the Quints father to take them from the vicinty of the farm where they were born five years ago this May 28 ends months of speculation over whether they would see the Royal Couple. It was proposed at first that Their Majesties travel to Callander but their officiall itinerary made no provision for a stop there and efforts were started to bring the Quints to them.

The youngsters will travel to Toronto on two private cars and will meet Their Majesties in the Lieutenant Governor's chamber at Queen's Park. They probably will be in Toronto only the one day the Royal Couple are there.

News to Nixon.

TORONTO ,Mar. 13 — (CP).— Hon. H. C. Nixon, Provincial Secretary, said to-day he has not been informed of Oliva Dionne's acceptance of an invitation by the Ontario Government to bring his quintuplet daughters to Toronto to meet the King and Queen on May 22.

Told that Le Droit, Ottawa French language newspaper, carries a newspage story to-day saying Dionne has accepted the invitation, Mr. Nixon said: "I have not been informed of that."

He added that he had learned "indirectly" the father of the famous girls who will be five years old on May 28 was "greatly pleased" by the invitation, forwarded by Mr. Nixon last week, but that he needed time to consider it. "There is no rush about it," said Mr. Nixon.

At the time the invitation was sent, Dionne said he was not in favor of it and that arrangements should be made for the King and Queen to visit Callander, home of the quints. The invitation is to be discussed by the quintuplets' Board of Guardians, but the final decision as to whether the children make the 160-mile trip rests with Dionne.

The Ontario Government has offered to provide a special train for the girls and present them to Their Majesties in the Lieutenant-Governor's apartment in the Legislative Building. Mr. Nixon today reiterated that there was no "Royal command" in the invitation and that the Government would be "very glad" to make all arangements to ensure the safety and comfort of the children.

Market Review

TORONTO, March 13.—(CP)— European disturbances brought renewal of uneasiness to the stock market today and prices were shaken for wide losses in a moderate volume of selling. Losses of 1 to 2 points were scattered through the mining and industrial groups and the indices finished with losses of a point or more. Western oils were down generally but appeared inclined to rally a bit in the final stage. Volume was small at less than a half million shares.

A weak tone ruled through the early hours and there was no sign of recovery by early afternoon. All indices were down at noon and some wide losses were posted. Lake Shore dropped more than two points to its lowest price since 1934 and the secondary golds, including Pamour, MacLeod-Cockshutt, Hard Rock, Kirkland Lake, and Preston, worked lower by 5 to 10 cents.

Industrial issues posted losses of fractions to a point with weakness showing mainly in the steels, utilities and liquor groups. Brazilian and the Abitibi issues displayed further weakness.

Noranda declined 1¾ to 80 and Nickel and Smelters lost about a point each. Waite-Amulet at 97.50 showed a 30-cent decline.

All the active oils were down, including Home, Calgary-Edmonton, Okalta, Anglo-Canadian, Highwood and Dahousie.

WALL STREET CLOSE

Losses of minor fractions predominated throughout the session although a handful of issues managed to tack on small advances. There were a few isolated declines of two or so near the final hour, but weakness was exceptional.

Lightness of selling was encouraging to bullish analysts. Transfers were about 650,000 shares.

RECRUITING RECORD

LONDON — (CP). — Royal Air Force recruiting made a new record when 1,080 men joined in a week, compared with 358 in the same period of 1938.

Meet the Ambassador of Financial Security -representing Imperial Life

THIS is the man to whom thousands of doubting, harassed men have listened, and who now doubt no more.

He is at once the voice of conscience, of wisdom and of hope. He forearms you against the inevitable—the flight of time and the 'unexpected'. He is the Imperial Life representative.

He carries the means to help you bring your plans to fruition, the means of making dreams become realities. Helpful plans which do for a man that which few men will do for themselves—provide for a care-free future. Imperial Life plans are easy of accomplishment. They are adaptable to your individual circumstances because they are built on experience that is age-old and world-wide.

To free your mind from worry about the future, to provide protection for your family, to guarantee education for your children and an income for yourself when you can work no more; to provide security for your widow should the "unexpected" happen—do as so many farsighted men are doing every day—see the Imperial Life representative today.

Rev. J. Young officiated.

The couple were attended by Lillian Irwin, sister of the bride, and Norman McConnell.

Nelson—Shearer

In a quiet wedding ceremony that took place at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at Murray Street Baptist Church parsonage, Miss Ruth Isobel Shearer, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Shearer, Indian River, was united in marriage to Mr. William Stewart Nelson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Nelson, Keene. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiated.

The bridal couple were attended by Miss Olive Shearer, sister of the bride, and Mr. Alan Eason. Mrs. Alan Eason and Miss Evelyn Nelson, sisters of the groom, were present during the ceremony.

Golden Jubilee Is Marked By W.M. Society

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 13.—Hail a century of service in the work of God was celebrated this week by the Women's Missionary Society of St. John's church with an interesting birthday party in the Sunday school parlors.

The society is one of the oldest branches in the Dominion, having been organized eight years after the first W.M.S. came into being in 1881, and down through the years the activities of the Campbellford branch have never lagged.

A feature of the program was the entertaining by Mrs. Harold Twigg, of Toronto, talented elocutionist, and well known throughout the province. Among the numbers which she contributed with al lthe poise and force of a professional were: A Race-boy's Sweetheart, A Dialogue on the Train, Dominique, Biddy's Welcome to Pat and Puppies.

Traced W.M.S. Progress.

Mrs. G. W. Hammond, speaker of the event delivered an eloquent address in which she traced the development of the W.M.S. from the year of its organization in Campbellford. She paid tribute to the zeal and foresight of the late Rev. Dr. Sutherland, whose appeal to the general missions board brought about the formation of the society. "This man had a vision of what Christian women of Canada might do for their sisters in heathen lands, and you will agree with me that his vision was a glorious one."

According to the speaker, Mrs. Levi Massey of Wallbridge, was elected first vice-president of the Bap of Quinte Branch of the W.M.S. and organizer for the Belleville district. Fifty years ago she conducted a meeting of revival services in the Methodist church and later addressed a meeting of women and formed an auxiliary of the W.M.S. when sixty-one names were taken.

Officers were: President, Mrs. McMaster; 1st Vice-Pres., Mr. J. A. Frederick; 2nd Vice-Pres., Miss Mason (Mrs. John Harris); Recording Sec., Mrs. Eakins; Corresponding Sec., Mrs. Geo. Mills; Treas., Mrs. J. T. Vosper; Committee of Entertainment, Miss Mason, Miss Mould, and Mrs. Geo. Mills.

"Mrs. Massey was an outstanding worker for many years and she deserves much credit for her untiring efforts in the cause of missions.

"Mrs. Hammond who was herself a charter member of the W.M.S. in Camnifton forty-six years ago, and is at present honorary president of the local oraginzation, then read a list of more than forty charter members of the W.M.S. in Campbellford.

Many Charter Members.

Of those living, Mrs. Lillian Reynolds and Mrs. Chase are the only ones in town, Mrs. A. E. Bailey lives at Belleville; Mrs. Jas. White, Stratford and Mrs. McBroom are in western Canada. Those who have served as presidents of the local society since its inception are Mrs. McMaster, Mrs. J. T. Vosper, Mrs. T. M. Campbell, Mrs. W. H. Ashton (2 terms), Mrs. G. A. Kingston, Mrs. W. E. Carnahan, Mrs. Geo. Oliver, Mrs. Andrew Haig, and at the present time Mrs. E. C. Roberts, who has served the auxiliary for more than six years.

Here the speaker paid a tribute to Mrs. W. H. Ashton, who served in different capacities and finally received the highest honours the Branch could bestow, being elected president, an office she held for a number of years.

"We are proud to be associated with a society that has grown from a small seed to a great tree whose twelve branches extend from coast to coast and reaches out to all peoples and whose leaves are for the healing of the nations.

It is a delicate and difficult problem to gather up the loose ends represented by the different nationalities in Canada and weave them into a well designed fabric. But this is Canada's task and if she is to retain her place among the nations and be as God evidently intended her, the pattern must be both Canadian and Christian."

Mrs. Hammond read greetings from a number of absent members, Mrs. Geo. Mills, Galt; Mrs. Jas. White, Stratford; Mrs. Wm. Barnett, Toronto; Mrs. G. H. Copeland, Toronto, and Mrs. A. E. Bailey, Belleville. Mrs. F. de F. Free brought greetings from the Anglican church, Mrs. A. C. Connor, Presbyterian church, Mrs. R. Weston, Baptist church and Mrs. Sharpe from the Salvation Army.

Others who assisted on the program were Misses Eleanor Armour and Marjorie Mills who gave a piano duet; a number of Irish songs offered in appropriate costume by Jack Bleecher and Gloria Anderson, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. A. G. Watson. Another portion of the programme which was particularly well done was the offering by a number of ladies dressed in the costumes typical of the early part of the century, and a number of old songs. Taking part in this chorus were Mrs. A. G. Watson, Mrs. Steve Twigg, Miss Nellie Hoover, Miss Doris Mason, Miss Gladys Steven, Miss Dorothy Henson and Miss June Burgiss. Harold Kitney played the accompaniment on the melodeon: Next was a piano solo by Donald Bennett and an interpretive dance, the Dutch Dolls, by Miss Hazel Atkinson and Mrs. Jack Clark.

The final portion of the program was devoted to a quiz contest conducted by the president, Mrs. E. C. Roberts. Mrs. A. C. Connor was announced the winners and others who took part in the contest were Mr Wilbert Kingston, Miss Dorothy Kingston, Miss Dorothy Henson, Mrs A. D. Bennett, Mrs. Jack Clark and Mrs. A. J. Armour. At the close a birthday cake containing fifty candles was cut and the guests were served with tea and cake.

Bride Wears Heirloom Pearls

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride at noon on Saturday, March 11, when Althea Evelyn Trude, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Trude, centre line of Smith township, was united in marriage to William Vernon Olver, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Olver, also of Smith. Rev. Harry Wilkinson of Bridgenorth officiating.

The house was decorated tastefully with blue and white streamers. The bride entered the living room on the arm of her father to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Mrs. Wm. Pavey, aunt of the bride, and took her place beneath an arch of evergreens centred by a white wedding bell. She was gowned in a graceful frock of Alice Blue magic hour crepe, and wore a crown of orange blossoms, and an heirloom pearl necklace which had been worn 50 years ago by her grandmother, Mrs. W. F. Trude.

A reception was held at the home of the bride for about 30 guests following the wedding ceremony. Mrs. Trude received in a gown of navy sheer over figured satin, and Mrs. Olver was gowned in black celanese with silk velvet trimming. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Everett Cockburn and Miss Gwen Cockburn.

Later the bridal couple left by motor for Fenelon Falls, Bobcaygeon and Dunsford, the bride travelling in a navy ensemble.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Olver will live on the seventh line of Smith.

Guests from a distance included Mr. Harold Tighe of Didsbury, Alberta.

A Good Dinner Tastefully Served Will Do Wonders In Keeping a Husband Happy At Home, So Acquaintance With The Gas Range Is a Valuable Asset.

A BUSINESS girl wants to know if it is important for a girl to know how to cook and market and run a house in order to be a good wife. Here is her interesting comment:

"As soon as I finished college I went to work in an office and have not had time to get on a speaking acquaintance, as it were, with a gas range. Anyway, I am not domestic by nature. Up to this time it has not seemed to matter, but now that I am going to be married I am wondering about it.

"I know I can be a helpful and stimulating companion to my husband and I am easy to live with. But the brute has to eat, you know, and when it comes to feeding him I have my doubts about whether I would give satisfaction or not."

Well, the question of whether it is more important to appeal to a man's stomach or his heart is always a subject for debate. There is much to be said on both sides of the matter, but if you are interesting to talk to, easy to look at and pleasant to live with you can get away with murder even if it is done with the cook pots. A man will stand for lots of leathery steaks, underdone potatoes, overdone bread and dishwater coffee if his wife doesn't nag and is so gay and amusing to talk to that he doesn't know what he is eating.

But, still and all, I don't think many men are very strong for the high thinking and plain living school of thought in the home. They would rather reverse it and be regaled on a savory meal and simple cerebrations. This being true of virtually the entire masculine persuasion, it does make domesticity one of the chief requisites of a successful wife.

Men don't marry to get intellectual companions, nor glamor girls, nor night-club hostesses. They marry to get comfortable homes, where they will be cosseted and comforted and well fed. In order to make the bachelors dream come true his bride has to be a happy combination of chef and butler, scrublady and general all-around domestic engineering expert who can make the wheels go round without too much grinding of the gears.

So it is important that every wife should know how to cook, because, for one thing, a family marches upon its tummy, as Napoleon said an army did, and whether her husband is hale and hearty and going strong at 40 or a broken-down neurasthenic depends largely upon how she feeds him.

Also his success does, for many a man's breakfast decides whether he is going to be optimistic and cheerful and go into a deal that will make his fortune or whether his flabby pancakes and sausage are sitting heavy on his stomach and make him so cross and grouchy that he will quarrel with his boss and lose his job.

As for keeping a husband, no other device has ever been discovered equal in potency to good cooking. A man may lose his eye for beauty; he may weary of wisecracking; but his appetite stays by him to the last. And the wife who knows how to feed him on the things he likes has an appeal that never fails. You will observe that most of the philanderers are lean and hungry-looking. It is the fat gentlemen, replete with good food, who cling to their own firesides of evenings.

So I urge you to learn how to cook. Don't be discouragd by the fact that you know nothing of it. Any woman who can read can make herself a cordon bleau in three months. And, believe me, it is worth the trouble.

DEAR MISS DIX—My work and happiness are greatly affected, and for the worse, by my inability to keep out of love. Ever since I was 12 years old I have been in love. Just one case after another. Heretofore, while I was plunged into the deepest kind of despair as each of these affairs came to an end, I recovered from it by the simple expedient of transferring my affections to another girl. Now, however, I fear I am in love for keeps. I can't sleep, food tastes like sawdust, nothing has any interest for me. I can't account for it, as the girl has nothing in common with me. She is below me socially, educationally, all sorts of ways. Definitely she is not my ideal, but I don't know what to do about her because I dont know whether I will fall out of love with her and in love with the next girl I meet or not. Is there any hope for me? Or is my romanticism incurable?—R. A. C.

ANSWER:

Evidently you are a born philanderer with an almost superhuman ability to spread your affections over the entire feminine sex. You will never be really in love with any particular woman or even prefer any particular type. It matters not to you whether a girl is pretty or homely, clever or dull, short or tall, fat or thin, blonde or brunette. All that she needs to be is new. A stranger. Some one you haven't seen before. It is the love chase you love, not the woman.

I don't believe that a philanderer can help philandering. He is just built that way. Unstable. Fickle. Variable as the wind. No woman on earth can ever bind or hold him. He is just as much bound to flit from girl to girl as the butterfly is from flower to flower. But in common humanity to women he should never marry.

For a philandering husband is a wife's crown of sorrow, because he is nearly always so attractive that she loves him in spite of knowing how little worth loving he is.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—We have been going together for three years Do you think that is too short a time for a couple to be engaged before marrying? Do you think we could live on between $15 to $20 a week? Our furniture is all paid for and we have no debts.—LANKY.

ANSWER:

I should think that three years would give you ample time to get to know each other and decide whether you like each other well enough to desire to spend the balance of your lives together. As a matter of fact, a three-year engagement should be ideal, for it is long enough to test out your affection for each other and yet not so long that love and romance wear out through weary waiting.

It may be possible for a couple to live on the amount you mention, but it will take fine managing to do so. It is a risk, and dont forget the danger of there being sickness or lack of work that may throw your budget into the discard.

Mattress Ticking Curtains Original Idea

Interesting ideas for furnishing schemes abound in the new home that the Countess of Carlisle has juts equipped in the Chelsea (London) Square of the same name. Lord and Lady Carlisle have followed the lead of several notable people who have decided to make their London hame just off King's Road, Chelsea.

Mattress ticking, striped in pale blue and plum color on a cream ground, was chosen by Lady Carlisle for her guest room curtains. No other fabric could be found to tone with covers and dressing-table skirts of a Napoleon chintz in these colors. The chintz depicts Napoleon's victories and his two marriages. Being very stiff, the mattress ticking hangs perfectly.

Decorated in Lime.

A bedroom has been turned into a bath-dressing-room, painted in pale lime green, with a black dressing table, a wall of built-in clothes cupboards, and a white bath sunk into the foor. Curtains of cream linen have a Regency design in lime green and black.

Lime yellow is the color of the drawing-room walls, and lime-green satin curtains are draped in Regency style.

Snowdrops planted in moss in flat glass bowls and set upon old mahogany fern stands are attractive in this large room, which has two fireplaces and runs right through the house.

Making Money In War Time

The profit is limited to five per cent. of the capital actually involved in the contract. If more than five per cent. is made the tax collector will go after it and bring it back into the treasury.

Those words were repeated several times in explaining the policy under which the Defence Purchasing Board will operate when contracts are placed without competitive bidding or where for any reason only one bid has been received. The phrase about "capital actually involved" is one which will probably be more fully explained. If it means the amount of cash named in the tender then it would result in an order for $100,000 yielding a profit of $5,000. It might take an intricate system of bookkeeping and accounting to accurately determine what should be regarded as profit, and there might be a tendency to build up overhead charges to such an extent that the actual profit might well exceed the five per cent. margin.

With the general policy no one will be inclined to disagree. If the plan could be made universal to the point where profits would be curtailed to the point of near-elimination in producing war material then there would probably be much less zest in making and selling it and a dwindling of the efforts of war promoters to find profitable markets for their product.

The Examiner believes that in applying such scrutiny to munitions contracts alone a half-way measure is being brought into existence. It might even be reasoned that with the taking of excessive profits out of government orders for munitions that war profiteering could not possibly exist. When a nation comes to a period of war the opportunity to make profits is widespread; it is not confined to those who operate factories where munitions are made. The experience of the last war was that if munition contractors were profiteering so were those who were employed in such places. So were people who had goods for sale. There was a shortage of labor and the scale of wages went up. There were many thousands of our people who made more money during the war years than they ever did before or after. Suggesting control of the entire situation is a large order; but limiting the effort to five per cent. profit on munitions contracts handled by the Defence Purchasing Board is only a partial covering of the situation.

Why Don't They Quit It?

Newspapers are accused at times of printing material which rather belittles what is being said in the House of Commons and of putting emphasis on the trivial things rather than paying exclusive attention to the worth-while matters which are being considered.

If one were to read the House of Commons Debates from day to day then such reader would become aware that there is much that is small and unimportant in what is said.

A fair enough example appears in another column of this page today. It started over that very old question as to whether a member was or was not reading his speech, something which is not supposed to be done—but very often is.

It started when J. P. Barry from Northumberland, N.B., said he was anticipating the time when Mr. Brooks, another member from the Maritimes, would make his first speech in the House; so far he had opportunity only of listening to the nice essays the gentleman had been reading. After which the cross-fire was on, culminating in this:

Mr. BROOKS: I will say this, Mr. Speaker; I will meet the hon. gentleman anywhere in New Brunswick or anywhere else, on any platform and speak entirely without notes, and that goes for any other member from that province.

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: Order. That is not a point of order.

Mr. BARRY: I did not start this; my hon. friends started it, but apparently he cannot take it.

Mr. LENNARD: You went out of your way to start it.

Mr. BARRY: You read your speech. The hon. gentleman forgets we have in this House 180 Liberal members and 35 Conservatives, and he also forgets that we have 25 Liberals from the maritime provinces while he is the only one of his party to be returned from that area.

Mr. PERLEY: And he is equal to the bunch of them.

The gentlemen who were participating in that squabble are full grown; two of them are lawyers; they have all seen public life before. And yet we submit the general tone and level of the utterances was of the sort one might expect from a gathering of lads who were somewhat given to boasting of their juvenile prowess.

Too Many Threshing Fires

At the Threshermen's convention in Sarnia, C. W. Caskey, an inspector from the Ontario fire marshal's office told delegates he found it difficult enough to understand why there should be so many fires during the threshing season in this province. The number was away out of line with what took place in other provinces.

Any of the western provinces would have as much threshing as Ontario, and yet Ontario in 1932 had from 60 to 70 threshing fires, while in the west there would be three or four. Mr. Caskey says he knows of no hazard which would justify anything like that number of fires, as the machines are all kept in the best condilton possible.

It is plain enough that Mr. Caskey suspects there must have been incendiarism in some cases, otherwise he cannot understand the extent to which the burned premises have been covered by insurance. In one year the stated fire loss was $198,000, and on that there was $153,000 insurance, which indicates an unusually high rate of association between insured property and fires. Evidently the inspector entertained the feeling that having a fire during threshing operations provided an excellent opportunity to blame the fire on the threshing outfit.

When People "Listen In"

The publisher of a weekly newspaper informed the Examiner that he found it hard to secure business in a community where the office is served with a rural line where the fine old habit of "listening in" is much in use. There have been a good many jokes passed about the habit but we were informed that if one listened closely during a conversation with some one out in the country it was possible to hear now and then the little click which told as plainly as could be that another party had taken down the receiver and was listening to the conversation.

But to get back to the effect of this on securing business. The weekly publisher said that a few days ago a farmer whom he knew well called up and asked that a little advertisement be put in the paper about his dog which had been missing for a couple of days. The farmer would pay for it when he came to the village on Saturday.

The dog ad was put in type and made ready for the forms, when the telephone rang again and the farmer was again on the line. His message was "Never mind about the ad for the lost dog. I know where he is and am going over after supper to bring him back."

A few questions revealed the situation. During the initial conversation several of the neighbors had been listening in and one of them happened to have the dog at his place, it having followed the team there. So he called up the owner of the dog and suggested if he came over he'd find him right in the kitchen.

So the dog went home and the dog ad went out, and the publisher complains with fairly good reason that getting business is tough in a district where people listen in on the rural lines.

This By-law Is Defective

The Barrie Examiner reports that one-third of those now receiving relief in that town have become residents since relief was organized. That is a general experience common to all municipalities, and so far there has been no sound way discovered to stop such movement of people. The Barrie paper finds that the village of Latchford, troubled with a similar condition, has passed a new by-law dealing with it. We quote:

"Any person owning property in the town of Latchford, or in the corporation, who shall lease or rent as a dwelling place, or an abode of any description, to any person or persons who are unable at any time to maintain themselves or their families, in any degree or form, shall be responsible for the same tenants' sustenance and maintenance.'

The Barrie paper comments the effect of such by-law will make landlords become watch dogs for the relief department and will keep them from renting property to those who are liable to become public charges.

One can appreciate, partially at least, the motive behind such a by-law, and it may have been enacted to serve a specific purpose and all that, but it has one weakness—and that is it would not stand up if it were put to the test of a trial action. We are quite certain such a by-law is beyond the power of any municipiality. That is not merely the opinion of this paper, but the opinion of several gentlemen of the legal fraternity of whom inquiry was made.

A municipality is limited in its powers to pass by-laws. This was dealt with Mr. Justice Middleton when reviewing a by-law which had been passed by the city of Kingston. Referring to the power of municipalities to pass by-laws he said in part:

"The scheme of the Municipal Act is undoubtedly to confer upon each local body the right of self-government. Chapter 233 of the Municipal Act: 'Every council may pass such by-laws and make such regulations for the health, safety, morality and welfare of the inhabitants of the municipality in matters not specifically provided for by this Act, as may be deemed expedient and are not contrary to law...' Manifestly there must be some limitation to this power of self-government, otherwise the result would be chaos.

"The first and most obvious limitation is found in the limitations imposed upon the power of the province itself by the B.N.A. Act. The Province has not itself universal power of legislation, and its creature, the municipality, can have no higher power."

The field which the municipality of Latchford has invaded is actually a form of insurance to which those with rentable property would have to subscribe. It would mean in practice that Mr. A., the owner of a house would have an entirely new obligation placed upon him, one which does not exist by reason of any provincial or federal enactment. If A. rented his house to Mr. B., and in four months' time Mr. B. was out of employment, then Mr. A. would become responsible for the care and maintenance of Mr. B. and there is no law in existence which says that should be done, and moreover there is no reason why such responsibility should be placed on house-owner Mr. A.

In all law there must be the element of equity, and it is lacking in the enactment which Latchford has passed. It would mean that a landlord in order to protect himself would have to guarantee the financial standing of his tenant, and in order to do that he would have to give or find a guarantee of permanency of employment, which he could not possibly do. For these reasons we are satisfied that by-law passed by Latchford, a municipality in Timiskaming, is out of order, and we have every good reason to believe that if it were put to the test it would fail rather miserably.

A Full Hundred Years

George Filion, who makes his home at the House of Providence, is our oldest resident, and has celebrated his 100th birthday, and he was up and around and in fair good health when doing so. There is no doubt about his age because he is in possession of his birth certificate, a document done in French.

This man of a hundred years has been largely an outdoors individual, long years in lumber camps, living through the days when he used to ride rafts of logs long distances, when he was almost as much a part of existence in the open as were the trees he was helping to fell and take away.

He appears to possess in some degree the power of youth to recover. When he was 97 he slipped and fell, breaking his hip bone, and at that time doctors shook their heads rather gravely and feared it would be hard on a man so full of years. We are certain it is correct to say the unexpected happened, and George Filion at 97 made so complete a recovery that at 100 he is able to be about as he was prior to the accident.

Canada was rather much "in the making" when George Filion was born, and it was shortly after that the Act of Union joining Upper and Lower Canada was passed, becoming effective in 1841 and Confederation itself was still some 26 years distant. He has gone a long way down the road toward the west, and if there are more milestones to be passed we wish him a comfortable journey.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Teller in a bank at Montreal took two shots at bandits before they started to work, and then ran out with the same speed as a man who had just heard the manager say no.

It looks as though Toronto in order to get something to compensate Their Majesties for paying the place a visit had to send out of the city for the quints as the chief attraction.

Livery barn at Regina assessed for $1,000 has been reduced to $600. The livery barn has joined the drive sheds behind many of the churches as living beyond their years of usefulness.

First day of the Legislature wound up with a couple of tea parties, one for Tories and one for Grits. Rather swell affairs and looking at published pictures we did not observe any one drinking from the saucer.

Man in New York, a bachelor 60 years of age, won a spelling match against a team of five women. Unusual that in such company a man should have the last word.

(By A.R.K.)

¶ I read some place just yesterday about a bandit bold and bad, just now they've got him locked in jail, and he is feeling rather sad.

¶ He stayed in town a week or so and watched the people as they came, he saw them enter at the bank and then come out from there again.

¶ So when he picked upon his man, he knew his habits off by heart, so he would slug him as he passed, he'd take his kale and then depart.

¶ He hit his victim with a plank he lay as quiet as man could be, the bandit went about his job, of wealth he'd strip him clean and free.

¶ His victim blinked and then he asked just what the slugging was about, for he was going unto the bank to try and pull some money out.

¶ Again the bandit tried his luck, he'd catch one on the homeward trip, he'd wave a wad of bills on him, he'd get them firmly in his grip.

¶ So thus he spotted on a jay who sauntered from the village bank, he stole up close behind him first and swing aloft his piece of plank.

¶ Again he went about his job, he'd get the money out of him, alas, he was a thrifty jay, he'd gone and put his money in.

This Is Hardly Worth Reading

(From Hansard)

Mr. J. P. BARRY (Northumberland, N. B.): Mr. Speaker, I had no intention whatever of taking any part in this debate; I had intended to make what observations I thought desirable when the budget was brought down, but the hon. member for Royal (Mr. Brooks) has been kind enough to extend to me a special invitation to make my maiden speech. I should like to say to the hon. member that I look forward with pleasure and anticipation to the time when I may hear him make his first speech.

Mr. BROOKS: Would the hon. member please explain? I do not quite understand.

Mr. BARRY: Very well. I have no desire to detract at all from any glory the hon. member may have gained by the very nice essays he has read to this house.

Mr. BROOKS: I rise to a point of order. I have read no essays to this house. I never read a speech, but I have noticed that most hon. members from New Brunswick have been reading essays ever since they have been in this house.

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: Order. That is not a point of order.

Mr. BROOKS: And that applies particularly to the hon. member for Queens (Mr. Douglas).

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: Order.

Mr. BARRY: I am quite willing to leave that to the judgment of the house. I would say to the hon. member that if he will rise in his place, open his mouth and pour forth his soul untrammeled by the written word, he will find a satisfaction that he will never experience if he continues the practice he has followed in the past.

Mr. BROOKS: I will say this, Mr. Speaker; I will meet the hon. gentleman anywhere in New Brunswick or anywhere else, on any platform, and speak entirely without notes; and that goes for any other member from that province.

Mr. DEPUTY SPEAKER: Order. That is not a point of order.

Mr. BARRY: I did not start this; my hon. friend started it, but apparently he cannot take it.

Mr. LENNARD: You went out of your way to start it.

Mr. BARRY: You read your speech. The hon. gentleman forgets that we have in this house 180 Liberal members and thirty-five Conservatives and he also forgets that we have twenty-five Liberals from the maritime provinces while he is the only one of his party to be returned from that area.

Mr. PERLEY: And he is equal to the bunch of them.

Mr. BARRY: The hon. gentleman may think and apparently his associates agree, that he can handle the case for the Conservatives by himself, as against the twenty-five Liberals. May I say to him that I have no reason for rising in my place in the House of Commons and criticizing the government, because everything it has done has met with my approval and that of my constituents. I can well understand that perhaps the hon. member feels he has some apology to make to the people of the maritime provinces for the stand he has taken. I am sure if he recalls the year 1932, when one could buy in the county of Carleton a dozen eggs, a barrel of potatoes and a pound of butter for thirty-seven cents, he will not be so free to criticize at the present time. That seems to be enough on that score.

SHORTAGE IN CHIVALRY.

A drunk entered, and became very offensive to the young ladies.

Three men customers not only took no steps to remonstrate with the drunk, but sat apparently deriving considerable amusement from the proceedings, and the girls' embarrassment.

So dies chivalry in the age of sex equality.

One of the girls went back to the small corner where the modern drug store keeps its drugs and complained to the proprietor.

She got a certain amount of sympathy, but no action, and the girls indignantly left the store.

Of course we realize that it was a situation that presented a certain amount of difficulty.

We once saw Red Foster silence a drunk who insisted and presisted in being objectionable.

We mean that he was completely silenced.

The only trouble is that there are few drug store cowboys who have Red Fosters' persuasiveness to start with—or his right hook to conclude the argument.

Even in the liberal present, however, we think that it should be possible for four girls to go into a store, without being annoyed by a drunk when there are enough men present to heave the drunk out on his neck.—(T. R. Henry, in Toronto Telegram)

AGAINST ROOSEVELT.

A nation-wide survey conducted by the magazine "Fortune" of New York suggests the virtual certainty of Mr. Roosevelt's defeat, if he should become Presidential candidate in 1940 for a third term. One third of the people circularized say they would support the President for another term. About 45 per cent declare they do not not believe he will run again; while about 31 per cent predict he will. Of those among the "surveyed" people who voted for Mr. Roosevelt before, only 58 per cent say they would do so again, 20 per cent would now go against him, and 21 per cent remain undecided.—Sydney Post-Record.

HOCKEY IN THE OLD DAYS

(Petrolia Advertiser-Topic)

Hockey players in some centres are not what they used to be. It is not so many years ago that puck chasers were sixty-minute men and played every game without relief. Recent snow storms have made motor travel impossible for visiting hockey teams and rather than drive by horse and sleigh as their predecessors did many a time, games have been cancelled.

• Treading In Dangerous Spots

In spite of declarations to the contrary the trend in Canada is definitely in the direction of guaranteed prices and bonuses for the products of the agricultural industry says the Farmer's Advocate. If the Government is reluctant to endorse such a programme some opposition party will promise it and a political fight will centre around a policy that is unsound and, if put into effect, likely to create conditions far worse than now exist. It is, therefore, of urgent importance that some constructive programme be drafted and explained to Canadian producers before we go chasing will-o'-the-wisps or pursuing the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The guaranteed price for the wheat crop of 1938 was an emergency measure, and need not be discussed here. The acreage bonus promised for the coming crop year is of much the same significance. It is a combination of cash relief, compensation for what the West pays out because of tariffs and a bit of pump-priming for Western business. As a long-term Canadian agricultural policy it has little merit, but as long as this Dominion maintains high protective tariffs Western Canada will demand some such compensation—and will get it!

The actual trend is more definitely indicated by the insistent demand for a guaranteed price for cheese. With prices guaranteed for wheat in Western Canada and for an important eastern product there is no place to stop short of guaranteed prices for all the products of the primary industries which include mining, fishing and lumbering as well as farming.

"The Farmer's Advocate" has already recommended a bonus on number one cheese that will qualify for an export certificate, the funds to come from the treasuries of Ontario and Quebec as well as from the Dominion Exchequer. The purpose of this is to make the cheese factory attractive to milk producers and thereby get a larger volume of milk into proper channels. We recommend, furthermore, that the government bonus must not exceed a period of three years during which time the necessary legislation should be enacted and the dairy industry organized to impose a levy on all butter-fat marketed in Canada. In other words, the dairy industry must grapple with its problems rather than lean on an already over-taxed population.

Guaranteed minimum prices are an indolent policy granted in place of something sound and constructive. The Dominion treasury cannot stand such a programme, and it encourages the production of those goods of which we already have surplus beyond market requirements.

The law of supply and demand may be sterilized to some extent, but it is still the best guide to follow in our production and marketing policies. If we ignore it we are headed straight for ruin.

• Building A Wall Around A City

Still another sapient soul on a city council has advanced the idea says the Montreal Star, that all supplies which it is necessary for his community to buy to carry on its various public services should be purchased exclusively from local firms or tenders, irrespective of whether the same things could be bought for less money elsewhere.

We do not expect that the colleagues of Alderman Sloan of Ottawa, the latest exponent of "economics nationalism" carried almost to its logical and absurd conclusion, will go along with him in his endeavour to build a wall around the Capital and carry on within it. Nor should they become too indignant at him, even though—as we hope—the great majority see the silliness of his proposal. For Alderman Sloan of Ottawa has done no more than echo a number of his confreres on the City Council of Toronto who fell victims to the same fallacy where the Queen City was concerned, some time ago. They got the quaint idea that Toronto could, and should, get along within her own municipal frontiers. Pretty nearly everything the municipal government of Toronto nedded to run the city was, they argued, either being produced in Toronto or could be produced there, and it behooved Toronto, in hard times like the present, to keep its money at home.

As soon as word of this remarkable doctrine got about through Ontario, Toronto and Toronto's aldermen became the target for much caustic comment from the provincial press, particularly from that of the smaller cities whose merchants feel themselves somewhat hardly pressed by the competition of the big city shops. Many sharp things were said in the heat of the moment,—home truths of the kind that hurt worst. Doubtless, Alderman Sloan of Ottawa will bring down upon the heads of his innocent colleagues something of the same castigation.

This sort of nonsense can, of course, be carried even further, and we are waiting for some municipal organization with an exclusively local connection to propose it. Why should not the councils of Verdun, or Outremont or Hampstead or St. Lambert be exhorted to refuse to buy snowplows or stationery or sewer-pipe or fire-hose or police uniforms or, in fact, anything they have to purchase from time to time, save within their own borders? Naturally, in many cases they could not get what they need short of setting up local factories, but, even without that absurdity, taxpayers have the right to the protection which open competition, openly arrived at by general tender, affords. Ottawa or Montreal or Toronto could no more survive behind a wall of its own devising, refusing to buy outside it, than could any of their suburbs shut themselves off in the same way.

GATE-CRASHERS.

Capital society is holding its breath over aftermath stories of social solecisms committed by hard-drinking Ottawaians at the recent grand opening party at the new half million dollar French legation near Government House. Reports of glasses smashed, bottles broken against the magnificently carved stone and tapestried walls of the French palace, of holes burned in costly Persian rugs under the trampling of heedless feet, and even worse offences against good taste are circulating through the Capital's ample whispering galleries.

There appear to be two sides to the affair. The great bulk of the huge crowd of 600 odd government dignitaries and their wives invited to the opening conducted themselves with the dignity and decorum befitting their positions. They did not participate in the mad scramble for the lavishly served champagne and liqueurs of the French minister, Count de Dampierre. Most of the more prominent guests left at a reasonable hour. They say they saw little beyond the usual uncomfortable incidents that occur at a big Ottawa crush.

But different accounts are given by those whose business it was to stay to the finish. It appears that as usual in these big affairs there were some gate crashers who horned in despite the closely guarded invitation. Blame is put on them but the truth seems to be that a number of young sprigs of Ottawa society with the traditions of shirt sleeve lumberjack aristocracy behind them were among the worst offenders.—(Chester Bloom, in Winnipeg Free Press)

ALL FOR A DIME.

——Answering an advertisement in a magazine which promised to supply "an up-to-date coat-hanger and a cigarette lighter for a dime", a local citizen, who begged that his name be left unmentioned, sent away his ten cents.

By return mail, he received a neat little packet. Inside, wrapped up in tissue paper, he found a two-inch nail and a match.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

FATHER UNPOPULAR.

Count Ludwig Salm, ex-husband of Millicent Rogers, who applied to the courts for a $30,000-a-year allowance from the income of their son—to permit the Count to live in his customary style, for those occasions when his son visits him—will be very much surprised at the outcome of his suit. Their son, Peter, now is attending school in Switzerland. The Count is permitted to have Peter visit him after school is out in June. The newspapers will announce Peter Salm's declaration—that he never wants to visit his father.—(Leonard Lyons, in New York Post)

ALL IN POINT OF VIEW.

——During gold rush days in California, a lady took her infant to the theatre one evening and it started crying just as the orchestra began to play.

"Stop those fiddles and let the baby cry", called a man in the pit. "I haven't heard such a sound in ten years!"

The audience applauded the sentiment wildly, the orchestra was stopped, and the baby continued its performance amid unbounded enthusiasm.—Indianapolis Star.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there: and both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage. And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus saith unto him, They have no wine.

Jesus saith unto them, Fill the waterpots with water. And they filled them up to the brim. And he saith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.

When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom, and saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse: but thou hast kept the good wine until now. This beginning of miracles did Jesus in Cana of Galilee, and manifested forth his glory; and his disciples believed on him.—John ii, 1-11.

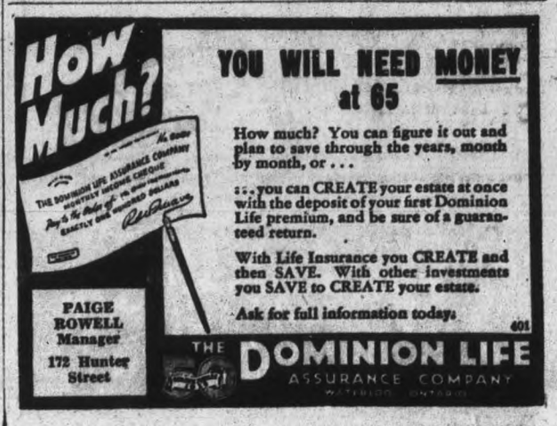
THIRD PARTIES.

Third parties and all their campaigns, have been born in discontent, and have capitalized on it. They have stressed discrimination against one part of the country, or by one occupational group against the others; they have pitted province against province and class against class. If the platform of Mr. Crerar (in 1921) was a more specific one than the vapors of Social Credit, and that of the Reconstructionists more understandable than some of the vague moves for national government, they have all lived briefly in the sun of national popularity.

The responsibility is thus more than ever with the two leading parties today to show the courage and driving force which the trust of their electors demands of them. There should be no need for third parties; they are disruptive and unsettling. They make temporary capital for opportunists, but rarely prove of much benefit to the country as a whole. They encourage certain people to abuse our existing parliamentary system, break down confidence in it and in the country, without offering any constructive alternatives. And there is no solution in that.—(Hamilton Spectator)

THOSE DISMISSALS.

During the year after Mr. Hepburn took office as Premier of Ontario, there were 1,100 dismissals from the public service. But today there are 547 more than there have ever been employed by the provincial government. No critic can be blamed for recalling that great promise of Mr. Hepburn that the cost of government in Ontario would be reduced by half. It is also rather impotent to note that a great many of those 1,100 dismissals which were made had no justification whatever except for the solidification of party.—(St. Catharines Standard)



Dominion House Returns To Trade Pact

OTTAWA, March 13. —(C. P.)— The House of Commons today will return to discussion of the Canada-United States Trade Treaty and in the committee of Ways and Means will debate the numerous change in the Canadian Tariff schedule.

The treaty itself has been adopted but each of the nearly 500 tariff changes must be covered by separatae resolutions. It is unlikely there will be any changes, however, as any revision would necessitate the sanction of the U. S. government.

Labor Minister Rogers is expected to introduce two government measures connected with unemployment relief. One bill provides for the annual continuance of the unemployment and agricultural assistance act and the other provides money for the youth training project.

The youth training bill would place th scheme on a three-year-basis and parliament will be asked to vote $4,500,000 for the three-year period beginning next April 1.

The public accounts and radio committees will be the centre of interest on Parliament Hill tomorrow. L. W. Brockington, chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Board of Governors will continue his testimony before the Radio Inquiry and will be followed by Gladstone Murray, C. B. C. general manager.

It is expected the Public Accounts committee probe into the Bren Gun contract will be outlined at the meeting likely to be held tomorrow and plans made for the 50-member committee to visit the John Inglis plant in Toronto where the Bren guns are to be produced.

The Senate will discuss details of the government's penitentiary bill when the Upper H ouse resumes its sitting tomorrow night.

Rev. Bennett Dies

TORONTO, March 13 (CP) — Rev. M. Melvyn Bennett, retired United Church minister, died in hospital here Sunday. He was widely known as pastor in the Methodist Church in Western Canada before the church union, and served on the board of home missions in both the Methodist and United churches. He attended Stratford Collegiate, Wesley College in Winnipeg and Victoria College, Toronto. At the time of his retirement in 1927 he was minister of the United Church at Wingham.

Joe Blewett Wins Mile Race At Lakefield's Skating Carnival

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 13. — Joe Blewett, flashing wingman on the Lakefield Legionnaires' hockey squad and one of the Legionnaires' best scoring bets during the past hockey season, lived up to his reputation for speed here on Friday evening, March 10, when he glided home a neat first in the men's special mile race to cop the local skating championship.

Highlight of Night.

The men's special mile race was the highlight of a gala sports night and costume carnival sponsored by the Lakefield Legion Hockey Club, and held in the local skating arena on Friday last.

A fair crowd was in attendance, and gave enthusiastic support to the entrants in the various competitions on the well-filled program.

Judging of the costumes, both fancy and comic, commenced promptly at 8 p.m. with Reeve Gordon Scriver, K. A. Mackenzie, and T. W .Chaplin acting as judges. Prizes for the best children's costume went to Helena Giraldi, who was dressed as the Little Dutch Girl, and to George Hopkins, who was The Scare-crow. The adult prizes went to Mrs. W. E. Gillman and Miss Mary Davis, who gave a convincing portrayal of Queen Victoria and her Royal Consort; and to Harold Hamblin, who was amusingly attired as Mother Hubbard, complete with dog. Mr. Hamblin's appearance on the ice drew a hearty laugh from the spectators for his costume was the most humorous of all displayed. A very stalky housewife equipped with apron and dust-cap and accompanied by a dog of generous proportions so masked as to be unrecognizable, was readily accepted as Mother Hubbard. The fact that the dog was very unwilling about the whole business and had to be urged along persistently by a not too gentle tugging on the leash, only added to the amusing angle of the portrayal. A spearmint gum costume was outstanding, though not among the prize-winners, and a tiny ghost, a miniature clown, and a gay tramp stood out among the entrants in the costume competitoion.

Results of Races.

Boys' race, twelve years and under—1 Cameron Trude, 2 Keith Montgomery.

Boys, sixteen years and under — 1 Roberts (Lakefield Preparatory School), 2 Charles Earnshaw.

Girls, sixteen years and under — 1 Leona Shearer, 2 Nona Whetung.

The relay race was won by the Grove team composed of Messrs. Roberts, Harris, Crickmore, and Potts.

The ladies' race (open) was won by Miss Florence Reid of Peterborough with Miss Leona Shearer a good second. Joe Blewett led the field of entrants in the men's race (open) and Woody Morin captured second position.

The needle-threading race was won by Sybil Lennox, with Isobel Bullock close behind.

The special mile race brought out a goodly number of entrants with competition keen. But before the thirteen laps around the rink were finished, the number of entries was pretty well thinned out. oJe Blewett speeded up in the last lap and skated home first with apparent ease passing Alf. Johnston of Peterborough, who held the lead for a time, and who captured second place.

The ice races were followed by a broom-a-loo game when old brooms and a basketball replaced the usual hockey sticks and puck in a wholehearted struggle for goals.

The teams were composed as follows:

First team—J. Kendall, D. Yale, B. Shearer, G. Stabler, S. Loyst, W. Morin, C. Hopkins goal.

Second team — G. Chappell, J. Morrison, H. Jewell, I. Charlton, F. Marsden, J. Blewett, L. Allan goal.

The team having C. Hapkins in goal emerged the victors, winning a 3 to 2 victory in a two-period game. While lacking the speed and technique of a real hockey battle, the game provided plenty of excitement, most of the lads putting real power behind their broom-swinging. Both goalies were kept busy. The game was played without skates.

During the evening tickets were sold on a blanket, and following the broom-a-loo game, the draw for the blanket was held. R. J. Lennox was the winner. He held ticket No. 64. Mrs. W. E. Gillman, with ticket No. 113, won a second prize, two theatre tickets, and Ed. Robbins was awarded third prize in the draw.

Following the program skating was indulged in.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, March 14

A DAY on which to expect the unexpected is the augury for this day, based on the prevailing lunar and mutual aspects. The favorable trends of the planet of sudden upheaval, radical change, innovation, adventure and romance forecast ultimate and surprising benefits after rather breath-taking and devastating experiences. It would be wise to make readjustments looking toward opportunities for progress and desirable change.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of definite progress and productiveness despite sudden and devastating moves toward readjustment to new interests, fresh associations and environs. Important adventures and possibly sensational romance may be included in the upheaval, in which new contracts and unexpected business may mean advancement. Endeavor to grasp happy situations with equanimity and regard for health.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile, progressive and adventurous, with imagination, inventive genius and originality.

BETHANY

Miss Winnie Preston of Lindsay Collegiate spent the week-end at her home on the Eighth Line.

Miss Lila Davis spent a couple of days with friends in Lindsay last week returning home on Friday.

Mr. Austin Fallis of Ballyduff was a visitor to Lindsay on Friday.

Mrs. Will Morton of the South Line was the guest of Mrs. H. Muckle on Friday afternoon.

The Y.P.U. of the United Church decided to cancel the holding of the Amateur Concert for this spring, owing to weather conditions and poor travelling, having postponed it for several weeks in succession.

Miss Hazel Jackson left for a short visit with friends in Peterborough over the week-end.

Mrs. Charles Stevenson spent a short visit over the week-end with her daughters at Birketon.

Messrs. A. B. Ryley and W. L. Rowan attended the hockey game in Lindsay on Thursday evening.

Quite a number of villagers have been confined to their homes with the flu and colds this past week, depleting the regular business help.

Mrs. G. E. Staples, Reg.N., has been in close attendance with Mrs. Alex Lang, who is seriously ill at her home on the South Line and made a call at her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McKinnon on Friday afternoon.

Mr. George Tims of Lifford was a visitor to Bethany on Friday afternoon.

Keene Girls Hear Greta Pollard

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, March 13.—Miss Greta Pollard of Bowmanville addressed a representative group of girls in Keene on Saturday afternoon at the home of Miss Annie Bolin.

Miss Pollard talked on girls project work, especially on the project to be taken by this group, namely, "Dressing Up Home Grown Vegetables."

About 15 girls were present and decided to take up the work. Miss Lyla Drummond, Laura Taylor were appointed as leaders to attend the training project school to be held in April for two days at Peterborough by Department of Agriculture.

W.M.S. Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church, Keene was held in the club room Wednesday afternoon, with a very good attendance. Mrs. Andrew Rennie was in the chair and after the opening call to worship and business. Mrs. Robert Nelson read from the study book, "Ministry in the Storm Centres," assisting her in the readings were Mrs. McFarlane, Mrs. D. McIntyre, Mrs. S. Comrie. It was a most interesting chapter in this splendid book. Following the Bible reading by Mrs. D. McIntyre, Mrs. Wright read "The Parable of the Great Surprise."

Looking Back On This Date

One hundred and ten years ago, in the elections to the legislative assembley of Lower Canada, the county of Missisquoi sent Ralph Taylor to represent it in the popular chamber at Quebec. Taylor was a journalist as well as a legislator and contributed many articles concerning the doings of the assembly to the Quebec Mercury, writing his mind freely and in no sense complimentary to the French Canadian majority of the assembly. He was (according to the record by a French historian) "given freedom in his criticisms until March 9, 1833, when he published over his own signature, "Ralph Taylor, M. P. P.," an article in The Mercury criticizing the Speaker of the Assembly and the majority generally for their manner of conducting the public business.

Two days later a M. Bourdages rose to a question of privilege, read the offending article and demanded that the publisher and editor of The Mercury be ordered to appear at the bar of the House to answer the charge of having libelled the assembly. They answered the summons and were ready to be arraigned when Taylor rose in his seat, acknowledged that he was the author of the article and that he took full responsibility therefor. Whereupon the publisher and editor were told that they could go home and that the assembly would "attend to its own honor."

Bourdages proposed a motion declaring that Taylor had been guilty of libel upon the Speaker of the Assembly. This declaration was affirmed by the assembly, 47-15, the minority being wholly of the English-speaking minority. Then, by the same majority, Bourdages secured the passage of a resolution sentencing Taylor to 24 hours in the common jail. So Taylor was arrested and the next day the sergeant at arms informed the Speaker that he had "lodged the body of the said Taylor in the common jail of the District of Quebec". But a few hours later Taylor re-appeared and resumed his seat, having "purged his contempt".

Needless to say, he was not popular in Quebec, except among the Protestant and Irish Catholic minorities, who would have made a "martyr" out of him. He wisely declined and continued to sit for Missisquoi until the next election, when he was defeated and Missisquoi had an M.P.P. who was not so outspoken in his opinions as Ralph Taylor, who eventually drifted to Toronto where he worked upon some newspapers before going to the United States.

OBITUARY

ROBERT JONES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 13.—Funeral of the late Robert Jones was held on Sunday afternoon, leaving the residence of his son Charles in Marmora Township for St. Paul's Anglican Church which was filled. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell who officiated, delivered an impressive sermon from the text "This is life eternal, to know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent," John 17, 3.

The hymns were "Lead Kindly Light," "On the Resurrection Morning" and "Abide With Me."

Interment was made in the family plot in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were Lindsay Neal, John Bell, Dan Shannon, Bert Crawford, Irwin McCoy and John Moffatt.

Societies Buy Store For Woman In Need

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, Mar. 13. — At the meeting of the Springbrook Institute on Wednesday held at the home of Mrs. Morley Barlow, the general topic was "Ragweed." The roll-call was answered by "A weed I pull every time I see it." The president, Mrs. J. F. Baker, presided.

It was decided to hold a social evening in April in the Orange Hall, Springbrook. It was also decided that the Institute would co-operate with the Ladies' Aid in purchasing a new stove for an aged lady who is badly in need of one.

Several quilt blocks were brought to make up into quilts for needy families in the vicinity. Mrs. D. Wellman, convener for Canadian Industries and Agriculture, was in charge of the program. The motto was given by Mrs. A. V. Brown.

A paper on "Ragweed" was read by Mrs. Wellman. In the absence of Mrs. A. Burkitt, Mrs. Fred McKeom gave the current events. Mrs. Roy Brown and Mrs. John S. McKeom readings.

The meeting was closed with the National Anthem. Lunch was served by the hostess and a social half-hour spent. The next meeting will be held on March 25 at St. Mark's Sunday School Rooms, and the Stirling branch will supply the program.

Guild At Bethany Lays Social Plans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Mar. 13 — The Women's Guild of St. Mary's Anglican church held their regular monthly session on Friday at the home of Mrs. Lloyd Staples, Tenth Line, Manvers. There were nine members present.

Driving proved slow travelling and therefore the session was rather late in starting.

Blocks for the quilt, which had been distributed at last meeting, were brought in and disposed of for placing in quilt frame to be finished at the May meeting to be held by invitation at the home of the former president, Mrs. W. L. Hannah, Eighth Line.

Ways and means were fully discussed and a final decision arrived at was the traveling apron. Price of admission would be determined by size of waist measure by inches.

It was decided to have a social afternoon tea, proceeds to be applied to further activities for the church, date to be set later, some time after the Easter holidays. Also place where entertainment will be held.

The buying committee for goods required discussed very fully, a project where immediate sale can be made for articles.

A committee was appointed to take charge of menu to be used at the social afternoon luncheon.

After the closing prayer Mrs. Staples, the hostess, served supper to the ladies and a social hour was enjoyed over the tea cups.

Log Gets Him

CHATHAM, Ont., March 13.—(CP) —Irony of fate confined Fred Cannon, 40, to hospital here today with a fractured ankle. A lumberman of 20 years experience, Cannon was returning to his Bothwell home after logging in Northern Ontario all winter when he was struck by a log which rolled from a truck on which he hitched a ride.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid had watched the children put the little turtle in the aquarium which stood on the table near the sunny window in the playroom. Alphonse, the goldfish, already lived in the aquarium.

"I wonder how Alphonse is going to like his new friend?" Hanid said to Knarf. "I hope he does," she added. She wasn't at all sure that he would.

"Look!" Knarf exclaimed at that moment. "There's Alphonse in front of his window now! He's waving to us. He wants us to come over."

Saying Something

So they hurried over to the glass water-house in which Alphonse lived. He had his nose pressed right against his front window. He was moving his mouth and trying to say something. "Drop in and visit with me for a minute," they thought he was saying. So they made themselves small (which they had no trouble doing because, you see, they were shadow-children and shadows can make themselves any size they please), and dropped into Alphonse's aquarium. They felt perfectly at home in the water. They sat down on two little pebbles under a green water-shrub and Alphonse swam right up to them. Off in the back they could see the little turtle lying on the bottom with his head drawn deep inside his shell.

"What is that thing that's just been dropped into my parlor?" the goldfish asked them. "It looks like a green button. Is it a button?"

"Oh, no!" said Hanid.

It's A Turtle

"It's a turtle," said Knarf, "You'd better go over and make friends with him."

"Make friends with him! But there isn't any 'him' to make friends with. It's just a round shell. There isn't any head to say hello to, and no tail or legs or anything to move around with."

Then the two shadows laughed and said: "Come with us and we'll show you that this turtle has a head and a tail and four legs. You'll see."

He was trying to say something.

So they got up from the two little pebbles and took two big steps (for when you're under the water you always take big steps), and the next instant they were in front of the turtle. Alphonse watched them curiously.

Just Like Door

Then Knarf went up to the shell and rapped on it as though it were a door.

But instead of the turtle answering, "Come in!" Knarf and Hanid shouted: "Come out!"

At first the turtle put out his head a little ways, then he put it out all the way. Then he put out two legs, then the other two legs, and finally he put out his tail.

"How do you do!" he said in a friendly voice.

"How do you do, Turtle!" said Knarf and Hanid.

And Alphonse gulped in surprise. "Why it isn't a button at all! It really is a turtle." And he was so delighted that he swam all around his new friend saying: "How do you do! How do you do!"

Harold Cotton Fails To Take Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13. — The congregation of St. John's United Church was disappointed on Sunday evening when a snow bound road prevented Harold Cotton who was slated to have been the guest speaker of the evening from arriving. Cotton, the former Maple Leaf hockey player has since his retirement from hockey been regarded as an ambassador of good will for that team and was to have addressed the congregation here on "Christianity and Sport." Rev. Harold B. Neal the pastor himself gave the address of the evening confined his remarks along the lines that were to have been taken by the guest speaker.

He suggested that although there was no reference to the subject in the life of Christ he was sure that the Master would have endorsed all wholesome sport and play instincts which lead to the development of character.

Harwood Y.P.S. Meets At The Drope Home

HARWOOD, March 13. — The Young People's Society of Bethesda church was cancelled for the month of February but was re-opened on Thursday evening at the home of the president, E. R. Drope with a large attendance.

The president opened the meeting, after which Miss Marjorie McCullogh took charge. The topic "Learning to live together" was ably taken by Miss H. Hoskin. Miss Jean Shearer gave a piano solo and Rev. H. Mellow continued his talk on "Church Membership".

The next meeting will be a St. Patrick's social. Miss Marjorie McCulloch kindly invited the young people to her home for this social. Glenn Hogg will be in charge of the program. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Drope for their kind hospitality.

Presentation Made To Bride, Groom

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEVALE, Mar. 13. — A large number of the friends and neighbors of Mrs. Kemp (nee Irene Irwin) gathered at the home of her parents Mr. and Mrs. L. Irwin, to wish her and her husband much happiness. Mr. and Mrs. Kemp were asked to take the seats of honor when Mrs. Robert McAdam read a suitable address and a large number of gifts were presented to the bride and groom. The groom responded in a suitable manner.

The evening was pleasantly spent in cards and dancing.

Co-operation Address.

An instructive address on Co-operation was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clarke on Thursday night to about twenty-five people by Dr. Frank of Peterborough. At the close of the meeting lunch was served and an enjoyable social hour was held.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Archer entertained a number of their friends at a card party on Friday night.

Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Ernest McManus and Mrs. George Tindle, Ernest McManus and Max Archer. At the close of the evening lunch was served by the hostess.

Trent River W.I. Discusses Child Welfare

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Mar. 13.—Health and Child Welfare formed the topic at the Womens Institute meeting held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. Wight, Cedar Isle. The response to the roll-call was "What I keep in my medicine cabinet." The motto "A strong body makes a clean, well-balanced mind," was read by Miss B. G. French.

Letters of thanks were read from bereaved and the sick who had been remembered by the Institute.

Mrs. Melville Wight in her address said: "To have health means to have a sound state of body and mind. eHalth education has been defined as the sum total of all experiences which favorably influence habits, attitudes and knowledge, relating to the health of the individual, the family, the community, ahd the race. The world in which a child lives is a world of children. From the daily life of the child in school, the instructional program, the health services, the social organisations, all contribute materials and activities which affect the health of children. There are many times when a child will have a sickness at home that the mother can give help."

A hearty vote of appreciation for her efforts was given Mrs. Wight.

A bank account was opened for a new baby, Beverly Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunford.

The president, Mrs. Walter Lewis, referred to the fact that Trent River branch had received publicity in the "News Flashes from the Institutes" column in the winter series of "Home and Country" paper, and read a copy as follows: "Trent River, Peterborough County, Women's Institute is contributing to a better community life through its work on beautification, installation of street lights and road signs of safety. Sports and recreation are also given Institute support by the upkeep of rinks for community night celebrations. Contributions are also made to the hockey teams and a community get-together each month."

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. Preston, when election of officers will take place. The president read a number of helpful items from the Institute Hand Book. An Irish reading in keeping with St. Patrick season, "The Tribulations of Biddy Malone" was given by Miss B. French, also an Irish contest in charge of Mrs. H. Mann, in which Mrs. M. T. Lean and Miss B. French tied for first place.

After singing the National Anthem an appropriate lunch in keeping with the season was served.

C.G.I.T. Group Sews For Missionary Bale

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 13.—The newly organized C. G. I. T. of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church held its second meeting on Thursday evening under the leadership of Mrs. C. Dodd.

Miss Mary McKee, presided over the meeting which opened with a five minute sing-song followed by prayer by Mrs. Dodd and the scripture by Robena Phillips.

It was decided that the girls begin knitting and sewing, making things suitable for a missionary bale to be sent to the mission field when the W. M. S. forward their bale

Miss Laura West gave a demonstration on the making of hot tea-biscuits which were afterwards served with a cup of tea.

W. M. S. Meeting.

The monthly meeeing of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian W. M. S. was held at the home of Mrs. Chas. Dodd on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Dodd presided. The roll-call was responded to by answering with a missionary gem. Mrs. Reta Johnston read the scripture and Mrs. Dodd gave a splendid talk on "Kingdom of God and Missions.

Long-Delayed Film Finally Gets Under Production

Officers Returned By Janetville W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, March 13.—Mrs. Charles Deyell, president of the local branch of the Women's Institute, opened her spacious home on Thursday afternoon for the regular March meeting which was exceptionally well attended.

The treasurer, Mrs. George Wilson, reported a balance of $31.55 and the correspondence included the government grant of $3, a communication from the Ontario Forestry branch, also a letter from Mrs. Sanderson of Lindsay district, secretary of West Victoria, in regard to a choice for the exhibit at the Lindsay fall fair.

After some discussion it was decided to request a display of both cotton and woollen articles, last year being woollen goods.

Mrs. H. Johnston presided for the nomination of officers for 1939-40 and on motion it was unanimously carried to return the officers for another year;

President, Mrs. Charles Deyell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Johnston; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. B. Heaslip; secretary, Mrs. M. Armstrong; treasurer, Mrs George Wilson; convenors of standing committees: education, Mrs. A. E. Bradburn; peace education, Mrs. (Rev.) Bury; home economics, Miss Isobel Marshall; health and child welfare, Mrs. W. Sanderson; agriculture and Canadian industries, Mrs. P. Hamilton; legislation, Mrs. Bruce Heaslip; historical research, Mrs. M. Armstrong; community activities and relief, Mrs. O. McGill; Canadianization and publicity, Mrs. G. Wilson.

The president announced that the Women's Institute convention of West Victoria district would be held in the United church here on May 26 for which plans will be made at the April meeting. The roll call was responded to by "Housecleaning Hints."

The program consisted of readings and a paper entitled "Birds and Their Habits," by Mrs. Oswald McGill. Community songs from the song sheets were lustily sung with Mrs. M. Armstrong at the piano. A contest on "Trees" sponsored by Mrs. W. Leslie was won by Mrs. B. McMullen.

Delicious refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting and included "Fruit Salads," the finished product of the demonstration given by Mrs. P. Hamilton and Mrs. H. Johnston, leaders of the "fruit" course, when forty were served. Mrs. E. Bradburn moved a vote of thanks to the demonstrators and to Mrs. Deyell for opening her home.

Pope Is Crowned

Brilliant Scene.

Inside the church were scenes of brilliance. The appearance of the 63-year-old Pope, elected March 2 to succeed the late Pius XI., thrilled many as he was borne on a portable chair in long, slow, solemn procession into the Basilica.

Crimson draperies from the ceiling to the floor softened the richly-encrusted walls and monumental statuary of saints and popes. Light that outlined a stained-glass dove and sunburst symbol of the Holy Ghost streamed through a window over the red-canopied throne in the apse, where the Pope in vestments of white and cloth of gold sat during a part of the ceremony of the coronation mass.

Mediaeval halberds and burnished breastplates of the Swiss Guards, the red coats and white buckskin breeches of the Palatine Guards, the red capes of the Knights of Malta, white ruffs of the Noble Guards, red robes and white lace and ermine capes of cardinals, black full dress and gleaming white shirt fronts of the diplomats and dignitaries—all these and more added color to the scene.

Cheers greeted the Pontiff, whose face was immobile. A pallor betrayed his emotion. His lips were set in a thin line and his eyes showed deep feeling at the acclamation, "Viva Il Papa!"

Royalty In Attendance

Pierre Cardinal Gerlier, Archbishop of Lyon, France, who was master of ceremonies, was escorted by Swiss guards at the beginning of the colorful procession. European royalty, including Crown Prince Umberto of Italy and his princess, envoys of foreign countries and heads of religious orders were among the leaders of the procession.

After them came chaplains, apostolic bailiffs, officials, clerics, singers, papal court members, acolytes, ushers, confessors, abbots, bishops, archbishops, cardinals, Prince Marcantonio Colonna, hereditary assistant at the big throne, and the Pope on the portable throne, borne on the shoulders of assistants in red damask, and accompanied by Swiss guards in costumes of red, blue and yellow, with glittering armor.

Then followed the awesome splendor of the procession before the mass—a stop at the chapel of the Holy Trinity where the Holy Father knelt before the sacrament; a half-hour ceremony in the chapel of St. Gregory where Pius took his place on the white throne with enormous ostrich feathers on either side and the clergy of St. Peter kissed his slipper; the procession to the main throne, stopped thrice by a monsignor who reminded the pontiff of the transitory nature of the world's glory; the Pope's confession at the central altar; obeisance of the cardinals; and the chanting by His Holiness of the Gloria in Excelsis.

Subsequently the cardinal deacon knelt before the tomb of St. Peter beneath the basilica floor and invoked the guidance of the Virgin and Saints. Then the Pope advanced to the central altar to celebrate mass.

After communion and at the conclusion of the mass, Cardinal Gerlier gave him a white silk purse containing 26 coins "for a mass well sung." The solemn procession was re-formed and the bells of St. Peter's rang out to call the people of Rome to the coronation.

The Pope appeared on the balcony at 1:05 p.m. the mitre was lifted from his head by Cardinal Canali and Cardinal Caccia-Dominioni put the tiara in its place. Then the Pope read the blessing and recited the papal absolution.

Minister Is Honored On Eve Of Birthday

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, March 13.—The Young People's Society sponsored a St. Patrick program and social Friday night in the church dining hall. The devotional part was in charge of Miss Doris Scott. Rev. A. McLauchlin led in prayer. Laura Dunn read the scripture lesson and Mrs. Harry Mann took the topic theme "Happiness". Miss Doris Scott called Rev. A. McLauchlin to the front and in recognition of his birthday failing on St. Patrick's Day, presented him with a case containing a leather zippered key holder and a case for auto driver's license. Mr. McLauchlin expressed his appreciation for the gift and moved a hearty vote of thanks to Miss Doris Scott, president, and Mrs. Harry Mann, convenor for being responsible for the delightful program. The Mispah Benediction closed the program after which coffee, sandwiches and cake was served.

OBITUARY

MRS. ERNEST ROBERTSHAW.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Mar. 13.— A deep gloom was cast over the village of Apsley when Dorothy Turner, beloved wife of Ernest Robertshaw passed away in the Apsley Red Cross Hospital on Thursday. She contracted the flu, was taken to the hospital, and in a few days it turned to pneumonia.

Mrs. Robertshaw has been a great church worker in the St. George's Anglican Church since she came here from Lakefield ove rthree years ago, being the superintendent of the Sunday School, a member of the choir and the Women's Guild, and a helper in the Junior W.A. Her loss will be greatly felt in the parish.

She was born in Blackheath, London, England, 39 years ago, and was married nine years ago.

The funeral was held from Webster's Funeral Home, Lakefield, to St. George's Parish Church, Apsley, the Rev. F. McMulken officiated. Two hymns were sung, "On the Resurrection Morning" and "Breathe on me, Breath of God," the Rev. F. McMulken speaking on the three cups of life from which we all drink: The cup of Hope, the cup of Love, and the cup of Memory.

She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Turner of London, England, one sister in England, and two brothers, one in Canada and the other in England.

Many beautiful floral tributes were received. The pall-bearers were Messrs. John Coons, Mack, Hastings, Stanley Windsor, V. Payne and H. Payne.

Among those who attended the funeral from a distance were: K. MacKenzie, Vivian Payne, R. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Lonsberry, Mr. O'Hearn, W. Chappell, Mrs. Alfred Dunsford and Miss Dunsford, and Mr. and Mrs. Nichols, all of Lakefield.

SIDNEY ALBERTUS GARDINER

The death of Sidney Albertus Gardiner of Cavan township occurred at Kingston on Saturday after a lingering illness. He was in his 66th year.

Mr. Gardiner was born in Cavan and spent much of his life there. In ill health for many years, he had resided in Kingston. He was a son of the late Matthew Gardiner and Jane Carr, and leaves to mourn his loss one brother, Harry R. Gardiner, and two sisters, Mrs. Joseph Burns and Miss Olivia Gardiner, all of Cavan.

The funeral service will be conducted on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock from the home of Joseph Burns in Cavan, Rev. A. T. Sisco of Millbrook United Church officiating. Interment will be at Gardiner's cemetery, Cavan.

Germany

Dr. Joseph Tiso's deposed cabinet in Slovakia, was interpreted as showing the official German sympathies to be on the side of Tiso, ousted Friday in connection with an attempt to separate Slovkia from the rest of Czecho-Slovakia.

Headlines and the tone of news dispatches also showed Nazi sympathy for Slovakia, where a new cabinet headed by Karl Sidor was appointed Saturday to replace Dr. Tiso's government. (A high source in Bratislava, the Slovak capital, said the separatist attempt there was precede by a German promise to support Slovakia).

In Berlin foreign office circles it was said Czecho-slovak president Emil Hacha's action in deposing Tiso and two other ministers in its repercussions were being watched with the "gravest concern."

Durcansky called on Slovaks to reject the new Slovak cabinet and "to prepare for the decisive hour which may come at any moment.

The newspaper Velkischer Beobachter, the leading Nazi party organ, spoke of "Czech outrages hostile to Germans" and other newspapers headlined dispatches thus: "brutal Czech attacks on Germans in Brunn," "monstrous Czech terror" and "German nationals clubbed down."

The Benes System?

Foreign office sources said weekend developments in Czecho-Slovakia reminded them of the "Benes system"—referring to former President Edouard Benes — and added that the fact that the Czech action in Slovakia "again has involved the remaining Germans there" was noted particularly here.

As a result, the possibility of new German intervention in Czecho-Slovakia "to establish order" became a moot question, especially after the reminder by Admiral Erich Raeder, chief of staff of the German navy, that Germany is the "protector" of all Germans on both sides of the frontier.

Admiral Raeder praised Germany's armed strength and said that "Germany strikes quickly and hard." He delivered a memorial address honoring Germany's Great War dead. Chancellor Hitler and other officials were among his listeners.

German dispatches from Bratislava noted particularly that Franz Karmasin, who as state secretary for the German minority in Slovakia also was a member of the ousted Tiso government, was not included in the new cabinet list. The official German news agency in a Bratislava dispatch said that showed "where the course was leading."

Czechs, Germans

put down a Slovak separatist movement which Germany supposedly was supporting.

The clash at Brunn broke up a parade of Germans wearing the black uniform of the Nazi party in Czecho-Slovakia. Twelve Czechs and Germans were arrested but only three were held after the Nazis massed before the police station and demanded release of five of their fellows.

The parade continued later to the singing of the Horst Wessel song, a Nazi anthem.

The Nazi headquarters at Bratislava—the brown house—was said to have been barricaded because the Nazis feared attack.

The possibility of further German intervention in the republic, arose as the Czechs and Slovaks seemed to have patched up their differences, at least for the moment.

Four members of the new Slovak cabinet, a government expected to keep Slovakia within the framework of the republic, were scheduled to arrive in Prague today to take their oaths of office from President Emil Hacha.

He swore in three members of the "conciliation cabinet" yesterday. Today's group was headed by Karl Sidor, vice premier of the central government, who succeeded Dr. Joseph Tiso, ousted last Friday for tolerating an alleged plot to separate Slovakia from the republic.

"THERE'S ONE RISK NO BUSY MAN OR WOMAN CAN AFFORD TO TAKE!"

says Charles L. Foote, Boston, Mass.
Director of Industrial Sound Pictures

A DAILY Lifebuoy bath is a must with millions of busy Canadian men and fastidious Canadian women. Many of them have written us of experiences with other soaps—sad experiences which proved to them that no ordinary soap they used in their daily bath stopped "B.O" as Lifebuoy does.

If you want to be sure you're free from any likelihood of offending, get the Lifebuoy habit! Lifebuoy contains an exclusive purifying ingredient not in other popular bath or toilet soaps. You'll feel the difference! Lifebuoy's rich, lively lather, with its special ingredient, purifies your pores, removes all dirt and perspiration, leaves body tingling with freshness.

Yet for all its thoroughness, Lifebuoy is a gentle soap, by test over 20% milder than many leading "beauty" and "baby" soaps. No wonder so many clear-skinned women depend on it for complexion care!

MERCHANT IS HOME.

Frank McPherson, well-known George Street merchant arrived home Saturday night from St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, where he has been for a month. He had an operation during that time and is reported to have made a complete recovery. He expects to be back to work at the end of this week.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Old timers in the city who have their own ways of forecasting the weather are almost unanimous in the opinion that we will have a long fine Spring season. They claim that the moon is riding high in the heavens this month instead of being far to the south as in other years, and this indicates fine weather in the future.

TO ADDRESS UNEMPLOYED

Rev. M. C. Parr of George Street United Church will address a meeting sponsored by the Peterborough Workers and Unemployed Association in their headquarters on George Street opposite the Y. M. C. A. on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. Mr. Parr's subject will be "Who will lead the Way?" The general public is welcome.

PRECAUTIONS.

City Engineer Parsons has started workmen digging channels through the ice in Jackson Park Creek. The ice is more than two feet thick and wide channels have been dug beneath the bridges to allow free passage of the water and ice particles when the break-up comes. There is no sign of any action with the creek so far, everything being frozen solid. At this time, last year, the creek was on its annual rampage.

SHOULD BE CORRECTED.

At the intersection of Douro and Roger Streets in Ashburnham, ruts are so deep and icy that several near accidents have taken place. When the bus starts after discharging passengers, the rear wheels invariably jump the ruts and quite a few women have had narrow escapes as they stood on the curb waiting for the bus to pass. At Parkhill Road and Armour Road intersection the ruts are also particularly bad.

CHICK HAS FOUR LEGS.

George Lockington at Nassau had a hatch of Barred Rocks come out a few days ago, and noticed one which appeared to be well equipped with legs, because it has four of them. The added set of legs came out just behind the regular equipment with which each chick is generally fitted. The oddity has no trouble in getting around, and Mr. Lockington has placed the four-legger off by itself to see what will happen.

FEED AND BIRDS.

Many local residents have taken the trouble to set bread crumbs or other food on the window sills and in the backyard for the birds during the winter months. At the present time th birds are hard put to find sufficient food because of the great amount of snow. In Ashburnham and on Brock street reports have come in from people who claim they have heard or seen robins but in both cases have refused to give their names.

TRUCK IS RECOVERED.

A used truck that was stolen during Friday night from the rear of J. K. Hughes' establishment was recovered on Saturday morning, abandoned near Zion, Otonabee.

NEW MANAGER

J. Coughlan, manager of the Metropolitan Store for the past two years has been transferred to London, it was reported today. G. H. Shier, manager of one of the stores at Montreal took over the managerial duties of the Peterborough store on Saturday.

LEG IS FRACTURED.

Miss E. Johnson, daughter of Owen Johnson, 251 George Street, sustained a fracture of the right leg between the ankle and knee on Friday night when she slipped on one of the sidewalks crossing Confederation Square, and fell reavily to the walk.

FENDERS DAMAGED.

Fenders on both vehicles were damaged when a south-bound truck owned by Bruce Parker and driven by Arthur Lee, 265 Lake Street, collided with a car driven by A. Pitchford, 115 Morrow Street, on Water Street, near Park Hill Road, on Saturday.

A PLAYFUL CAT

Bill Simmons, veteran softball player has a cat that delights in playing with water as it flows from a tap. Every time the water is left running from a tap above the sink, the cat jumps up on the edge of the sink, and slaps at the water with his paw sometimes attempting to transfer the water from the tap to his mouth with the swinging paw.

CHARGE IS WITHDRAWN

A charge against a young man of creating a disturbance on Lock street in North Monaghan township was withdrawn by Constable Bruce Menzies who laid it in the first place. "In that case", Magistrate Gee said smilingly to the accused "there is nothing left for me to do but to dismiss you. Better watch your step after this."

A COMFORTABLE SPOT.

A linotype operator on the Examiner staff was awakened shortly after four o'clock this morning by the mewing of a cat. He arose, and when the light was turned on he not only found the cat, but with her on the bedclothes near the foot of the bed were six new-born kittens, all mewing lustily. He transferred the proud mother and her brood to a cardboard box, and continued his interrupted sleep.

A BUSY WINTER.

This is one winter that will be remembered by the city's works staff as one of the busiest on record. Snowfall after snowfall has kept employees going night and day. This morning, for instance, the grader was hard of work at 4 o'clock clearing an Ashburnham street in preparation for a funeral, just an early start for what promises to be a long, hard day.

FIRST BUTTERFLY.

Surest sign of spring yet seen by Harry McCarrell of Emily Township was a beautiful butterfly that began to flutter about his home Sunday. Surprised was the entire family for they had not noticed the cocoon spun on a geranium plant that was on the window sill. Apparently some wise caterpillar had decided upon a nice warm spot last fall or whenever the cocoon-spinning season occurs, and the warm house acted as an incubator.

ADJOURNMENT GRANTED

"He has been doing too much of this kind of thing" objected Chief Constable Newhall in police court this morning when a young man pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunkenness and asked for a week's adjournment. "I suppose he wants to get the money to pay his fine" Magistrate Gee remarked and the accused admitted that such was the case. The adjournment was granted, Magistrate Gee advising the accused to get on the water wagon for a while.

ROADS ARE BLOCKED

Sunday's blizzard wrought havoc with roads that had just become passable after a lull in winter weather, and many a motorist had to turn back yesterday and today. Roads to Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls were reported by motorists to have been blocked yesterday. This morning the funeral cortege of the late William Scollard, 169 Mark street, found roads blocked to motors on the Ennismore side of Lake Chemong. The cortege was enroute to St. Martin's Cemetery following celebration of Requiem High Mass at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, and the remains had to be transferred to a sleigh-hearse. Mourners followed in cutters and sleighs, leaving their motors in the roadway.

Prince Edward Couple Wed 76 Years

PICTON, March 13. — Known as Canada's longest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Addison Mabee celebrated their 76th wedding anniversary quietly today at their home near Bloomfield.

"We're not a bit excited over it," they remarked. Mr. Mabee, at 98, is active and in good health, but Mrs. Mabee, 94, remains in bed most of the time. She has not been well during the past year.

The aged couple have a 74-year-old son, Stanley, of Williamsport, Pa., and a 48-year-old grandson, Raymond, also of Williamsport.

Queried as to his recipe for 76 years of happy wedlock, Mr. Mabee stated: "We made a contract and never broke it. I've just behaved myself, lived a temperate life, minded my own business, helped others when I could, paid strict attention to business affairs, and made church and church work a real part of my life."

Bread On Water Returns.

He explained that he and his wife were quite comfortable in their home on the edge of a grove of maples on a side road between Picton and Bloomfield. "This home is mine," he said. "When I decided to give up business 19 years ago, Alex. Williams, who worked for me for eight or nine years as a young man, wrote and told me to come up here from Odessa, as he knew I wanted a home. He gave me this house by deed. There is no land, but he always gives me a plot for a garden, and I raise pretty well all we need in the way of vegetables."

It seems that Mr. Williams was one of the "others" helped by Mr. Mabee to get a start in life as a salesman of dry goods and groceries.

The Mabees spent $1,000 putting the place in first-class shape and have lived there ever since. Mrs. Delbert Peters is now looking after them because Mrs. Mabee is sick. Normally they do their own work.

Church work was important in Mr. Mabee's life until nine years ago, when he gave it up "because my mind was not quick to recall and express the passages of Scripture." Until then, since coming to the Picton district, he had taught Sunday school at the United Church, Bloomfield. Storekeeper and grist mill operator in Odessa "for more than 50 years," he was for 42 years Sunday school superintendent at the Methodist Church there.

No Drinks, Only One Smoke.

Mr. Mabee has never taken an alcoholic drink in his life, though he believes that once, when he had pneumonia, the doctor may have given him "liquor." He admits, too, that when a boy he once tried a cigar "because all the other fellows were smoking." He has not smoked since.

It was back in 1863 that a 20-year-old boy and an 18-year-old girl "joined hands to make a living." When a youth, Mr. Mabee left his native township of Athol, in Prince Edward County, and went to New York. The memory of the girl back home lured him, and they were married in a log cabin at Cherry Valley one Sunday evening after church. She wore hoop skirts and he a long-tailed coat.

"We kept house in New York during the Civil War," he says, and was obliged to return to Canada on that account. While in New York, Mrs. Mabee narrowly escaped being hit by a stray bullet during one of the riots in the city.

Having a radio, the favorite programs of the couple are the devotional periods, sermons and newscasts.

"I have never heard my husband use a profane word," said Mrs. Mabee.

Two Girls Suffer Cuts And Bruises

Four persons had a narrow escape from serious injury when a taxicab failed to make the turn near Whittington's Service Station on Highway 28 shortly before 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, and after running along the snow bank for some distance, toppled over.

Two girls, Rose Delaine and Luella Munro of Toronto, received cuts and bruises and were brought into Peterborough for treatment. Their companions, Leo Murphy and John E. Stoyand of Kirkland Lake, were unhurt. The car was badly damaged.

Murphy is a driver for J. R. McCauley of Kirkland Lake who operates a taxi business in the northern town, and had driven McCauley and a number of other fans to Toronto on Saturday for the game between Kirkland Lake and Goodyears. Yesterday Murphy and his friend Stoyand drove the two girls down from Toronto to visit relatives here, and it was on the return journey that the accident happened.

The driver failed to negotiate the turn near Whittington's and the taxi ran along the top of the snow until it reached the cut leading into the service station where it turned over.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Traffic Officer McClure. Incidentally it was the first mishap reported to him this year on his section of Highway 28, and ends a perfect record.

Celebrating Golden Wedding Anniversary

A grand old couple of Emily township who are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today are Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McCarrell, descendants both of pioneer families in this section of Ontario. They are living on the same farm Mr. McCarrell's grandfather hewed out of virgin bush well over a century ago. Of hardy stock, parents of both lived to see their golden weddings. Mr. McCarrell's grandmother lived to be 97, his grandfather 91. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Emily Township Couple Mark Golden Wedding

Fifty years of married life today lie behind Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin McCarrell, prominent farmers and well loved residents of Emily township. Both of hardy pioneer stock, they are as firm of health today as they were two decades ago.

To them life has been a tranquil, happy affair, in which a sense of security has been strong. Perhaps most emblematic of that security and changelessness is that today Mrs. McCarrell is wearing the same flower that she wore at her wedding half a century ago, and that she and her husband are living on a 100-acre farm that his grandfather cleared of virgin bush well over a hundred years ago. Their children live close to them, other relatives are their neighbors, they have spent all their married life in exactly the same location.

Parents Lived Past 90.

It is indeed a hardy stock that these people spring from. Mr. McCarrell's grandmother lived to be 97 and his grandfather was 91 when he died. His own father and mother the late Mr. and Mrs. John McCarrell, celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary together. Mrs. McCarrell's mother and father, the late Hugh H. Copeland of Mariposa, were 51 years married, were pioneer settlers in this district.

Benjamin McCarrell and Rebecca Ann McCarrell were married at the brides home in Mariposa exactly half a century ago today by the late Rev. James Curts. They moved to the homestead that has been carved out of the bush by Mr. McCarrell's grandfather on Lot 18, Concession 3, Emily township. Previous to his marriage Mr. McCarrell had lived on his father's nearby farm on what is now Highway 7, Concession 4 of Emily. That farm had been cleared by his father, and is now operated by his brother, Joseph McCarrell.

The couple have two children, Mrs. Roy Cullis, who lives on the farm to the west adjoining her parents, and Harry McCarrell on the homestead. They have three grandchildren, all children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCarrell, whose names are Freddie, Jack, and Marie McCarrel.

At Home to Relatives

Today they are at home to their relatives and dozens of neighbors and friends of long standing. And the lovely wedding cake that will adorn the table tonight has a note of sentiment about it. Half a century ago Mrs. McCarrell's eldest sister, the late Mrs. George Freed, baked her wedding cake. Now, fifty years later, her youngest sister, Mrs. Amos Stroud of Lindsay, who was her bridesmaid at her marriage, has baked the golden wedding cake.

Many of both immediate families still survive, and a grand reunion was planned for today. Unfortunately most of them either have influenza at the present time or are just recovering from an attack of it and their presence is doubtful. Mrs. McCarrell has five sisters living, Mrs. Amos Stroud of Lindsay, Mrs. S. S. Western and Mrs. Edward Ellis both of Badaxe, Michigan, Mrs. Wesley Douglas of Ubly, Michigan, and Mrs. Lloyd Morrison of Detroit, Michigan. Mr. McCarrell has one sister, Mrs. E. J. Little of Peterborough, and three brothers. W. J. McCarrell of Peterborough, Joseph McCarrell of Emily, and Any McCarrell of Emily.

Some of the relatives expected to attend the dinner today are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stroud and son Billy of Cambray; Elwood Stroud and son Billy of Cambray; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Thompson and family of Pefferlaw; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Copeland of East Oakwood, Mrs. Samuel Fry and daughter Evelyn of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Mahood and family of Peterbough. All are cousins of the couple.

Mouth Organ Band Is Taking Form

The lowly harmonica, most humble of all musical instruments, and immortalized by Robert L. Service in his poem, "The Mouth-Organ," will come into its own this week as ten Examiner carrier boys swing into action.

The boys have been practising diligently, and almost every night, the sweet music of the mouth-organs has been echoing from the newsboys' room in The Examiner building. There are ten in the band so far, with room for five or six others to complete the organization in preparation for several appearances during the year.

On Tuesday night the youngsters will be heard before the Young People of Trinity United Church and other appearances will be arranged. They have been practising only a short time under the direction of George Hall and are making splendid progress. The band has been entered in the Harmonica Band Open Competition at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, when groups from all parts of Canada will compete for Dominion laurels.

Cigarette Blamed For Fire In Hall

A cigarette butt left in the Workers and Unemployed head-quarters on George Street, was blamed by Fire Chief George Gimblett for a fire that broke out in the building on Saturday.

The cigarette started a fire that burned through the floor of the upstairs section occupied by the association, and then through the ceiling of the Wallwork Press below. Damage was estimated at $50, but the entire building, property of the Yelland estate, might have burned down Chief Gimblett said, but for prompt discovery.

Marchen Awarded Government Job

A government contract that will mean the hiring of nearly a dozen extra workers has been awarded to J. A. Marchen, 108 Stewart street, manufacturer of tents, awnings, tarpaulins, and other materials. The contract is for 1,000 articles for use in the Post Office department.

This is only the second time such a contract has come to Peterborough most times being awarded to an Ottawa firm. New machinery and a lower overhead made Mr. Marchen's bid possible, he said. He said that he will employ probably ten extra workers, all of whom will be Peterborough men and women.

TRUCK GOES INTO CANAL.

A truck loaded with cakes of ice crashed through the ice on the canal just south of Golf Link Bay this morning, and at noon efforts to remove the vehicle had been unsuccessful. The truck was owned by Lloyd Crapp of Lakefield, who had been employed to haul ice from the canal to the storehouse of the City Ice Supply in Ashburnham. The driver had little trouble getting out of the cab, and the water was not deep enough to submerge the truck.

Girl Is Being Held For Theft Of Dress

Caught by members of the store staff on Saturday, Marjorie McGregor, 17, faced a charge before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning of stealing a dress from Zeller's.

When she was arraigned Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., immediately asked for a week's remand without plea or election and the request was granted by the court.

"Have you a lawyer?" Magistrate Gee asked the girl and the accused replied in the negative.

"This girl has been here before, hasn't she?" asked the court.

"Yes she has been in trouble before," Chief Constable Newhall replied. "She used to live with foster parents here but recently she has been with her real parents in Toronto. She came back here lately and got into this trouble".

The girl was remanded for a week without bail.

The Rambling REPORTERS

FALSE HOPES.

It was bitter cold Friday night as a reporter for a Toronto paper walked to the C.P.R. station with his overnight copy, but his mind conjured up visions of green fields and sunny bathing beaches when an express truck rumbled past him. On the truck were several boxes filled with tiny chicks and the little fellows were twittering like birds on a spring morning. They had just been taken off the train to be delivered to the local hatchery. With a song in his heart and a feeling that spring was just around the corner the scribe walked up to the police station to make a final call before turning in. As he sat in the guard room he felt his big toe paining, so removed the shoe and sock to determine the cause. To his surprise the toe was frozen, and he spent more than fifteen minutes massaging the member with snow to restore circulation. Alas the joyous chirping of the chicks was a false alarm and the frozen toe was positive evidence that King Winter still reigned supreme.—McG.

Dan Whetung Is Attending Akron Dinner

Dan Whetung, genial leader of the Curve Lake Indians, is an emissary of goodwill from the Kawartha district to-day as he attends the annual Sportsmen's Show and dinner being held at Akron, Ohio.

Every year the secretary of the club sends a complimentary banquet ticket and a railway ticket to Dan, urging him to attend, and for the past three or four years, the show has been the highlight of the winter season for Chief Dan. The Chief brings a breath of the Great Outdoors, and is said to be a great favorite with the Americans, many of whom come to the Kawarthas during the summer season.

Dan is reported from reliable sources to lead the way when the discussion swings to tall yarns with the rod and reel, and still maintains that the biggest muskie in the Kawarthas is still waiting to be caught.

Fred L. Roy, seeing in Dan's visit a royal opportunity to give the district a boost, kindly loaned him three reels of moving pictures which portray the scenic beauty of the lakes and shows fishing of bass, trout and muskies.

ANOTHER ADJOURNMENT.

When a young man, charged in police court this morning with being drunk on Lock street, told the court that he was 22, Magistrate Gee read him a lesson on temperance. "If you start in drinking at that age" said the magistrate, "You will soon be having the d.t's." The young man pleaded not guilty and was successful in securing a week's adjournment.

Fire Smouldered For A Week Firemen Find

A fire that must have burned unnoticed for nearly a week, and that might easily haw destroyed a block of buildings, was extinguished Sunday without trouble after it had been discovered by Elmer Metcalfe in the upstairs of his Auto Electric store on Brock Street, between George and Water Streets.

Origin of the fire mystified the proprietor and fire department, although Fire Chief George Gimblett believed there was a possibility it might have been caused by a defective chimney.

Nearly a week ago Mr. Metcalfe went to the upstairs of his establishment and noticed some smoke. He investigated, but could find no trace of fire. The large upstairs is little used, although several cars are stored there. It is divided into two halves, with a fire-proof door between. On Sunday Mr. Metcalfe returned and found the entire metal work surrounding the door had collapsed. Investigation showed that a large beam running across the top of the door, and completely encased by sheet metal, was burned nearly completely away. The wooden beam was 14 inches thick and 10 feet in length. All that was left of it when the fire department arrived on the scene was about six inches at one end. The sheet metal, hollow after the wood had burned away, collapsed under the strain of loose bricks above, and the fire reached the open air some time before Mr. Metcalfe made his appearance. Close by is a chimney and it is thought perhaps there was some means of access from it to the beam and that it formed sufficient draught to carry away most of the smoke as the fire gradually consumed more than nine feet of the beam.

J. J. Duffus Is Able To Leave His Bed

MONTREAL, March 13 (CP).—J. J. Duffus, Liberal member of parliament for Peterborough West, who underwent a brain operation here recently, has sufficiently recovered to be able to leave his bed, Montreal Neurological Institute officials announced today.

Mr. Duffus will remain in hospital probably two more weeks, it was stated. He now is able to receive visitors.

Charged With Theft Of Windbreaker

William Dwyer was charged in police court this morning with having stolen a windbreaker, a suitcase and a lunch box from Ernest and Garnet Davey and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. told Magistrate Gee that he was not ready to go on this morning and asked for a remand until Wednesday.

"Do you want bail?" the magistrate asked, "or would you rather wait in jail until Wednesday."

"I would rather be out," replied the prisoner. "I will lose my job if I do not get back to work."

Bail was fixed by the court at $200.

LOCAL ST. PAUL'S CAGERS ADVANCE INTO PROVINCIAL FINALS

Toronto Imps Win 15-1 At Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 13.—Toronto Imps completely outskated Campbellford Bantams to administer a 15 to 1 drubbing in the Eastern Ontario O.H.A. playdowns here Saturday? It was a sudden death fixture and the winners who swarmed in on Campbellford with a perfectly co-ordinated defense and well-timed combination plays won for themselves the right to meet the winners of the Port Colborne-Preston game for the all Ontario championship on the Hon. H. Nixon Trophy which the Dunk coached team won for Campbellford in 1936.

From the start the Imps began a concentrated attack on McComb, drilling them at Campbellford net from all angles before the locals knew what it was all about. Although they were out in front to the tune of 5-1 at the end of the first and added five more in the second it was not until the third period they demonstrated a really co-ordinated attack, resorting ta combination playing in an effort to stretch their lead out still further.

Dunk netted the locals' lone tally half way through the first, but despite the evident superiority of the visitors they worked hard all evening and on most of the goals scored on McComb he didn't have a chance with the visiting snipers right in on top of him.

Nine of the visitors divided the scoring honours with Everett Turner leading the way with four and Kawakita also on the forward line capturing two of the fourteen goals. With the possible exception of Dunk there wasn't a member of the local squad who could touch either of these for both speed and stick-handling ability, although Free, the smallest man on the ice, did some very effective checking which impeded the visitors' forward march on more than one occasion.

"Grudge Game Series"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13. — The Oilers are going to get at least a partial opportunity to redeem their loss at the hands of Norwood in the T. V. L. play-offs. Arrangements have been made for a series of two games to be played here on Tuesday and Thursday of this week against the Marmora-Madoc outfit. The locals who are still smarting under the defeat Norwood handed them last week are anxious to do something before the end of the season to win back their prestige. After heading the league at the end of the season the Marmora-Madoc crew were eased out of the play-offs by Tweed but they have accepted the invitation to play a "grudge game series" over here.

Black Hawks' Best

George Morrow Oldest Member Curling Club

The Peterborough Curling Club feels keenly the loss of one of its oldest and best known members, who passed to the great beyond early to-day in California.

W. G. Morrow was well-known in curling circles all over the Province and for many years represented our club at the Annual Meeting of the Ontario Curling Association. He was President of our club in the year 1904-05. He was for many years chairman of the old open Bonspell committee, which in its hey-day was the outstanding bonspiel in the Province.

He was the oldest curler on our club records, having been a member for over 45 years.

On many occasions he skipped the Peterborough rink in the Ontario Tankard. He played the game for the game's sake, he played many other games but particularly was keen on curling.

The sympathy of the club is extended to his two sisters—Mrs. D. Walker and Miss E. Morrow.

CURLING

Monday Evening's Program.

Leads and Seconds, Finals — A. Robinson v. A. Gibbs.

Vice-skips, Semi-finals — H. Dulmage v. R. Williamson.

Club championship — T. McArthur and Dr. J. Green.

Bottum-Fitzgerald Shield — Two rinks from Bobcaygeon to play two local rinks.

A number of local mixed rinks enjoyed a friendly game on Saturday evening and were later entertained to light refreshments by Miss M. Patterson.

E. "Tankard" Thomas, sports promoter, supported by Dave Miller, both of the C.G.E., were responsible for a nice little party on Saturday morning. It seems both these boys have been for some time past telling everybody just how good they are at this winter sport—how they can always place the stones where they want them, never lose out drawing to the button, run a port or raise a guard, never miss—till it got so thick that some of their mates decided to make a test of their skill, and threw out a challenge—losers to buy the oysters.

Some of their opponents never saw a curling rink before, let alone play the game, and at that Thomas, Miller & Company won out by two shots—and one thing is certain that if we had been called out to measure many more "supposedly" close shots we know we would have been stuck for the supper.

Some of the "green" boys put up a good exhibition and did remarkably well considering—our club could well afford a few more enthusiasts such as Dave and Ev.

Nine Western Clubs Pass Preliminaries

WINNIPEG, Mar. 13 — (CP). — Western Canada entries in the Allan Cup derby ran true to form today with nine senior hockey clubs surviving preliminary heats.

Port Arthur Bearcats took a long step toward the Thunder Bay championship when they defeated Red Lake Thunderers 6-1, Edgar Laprade scoring three goals. The score was tied 1-1 after two periods, however, and Ports expect another keen struggle in the second game of the best-of-three series to-night.

Stonewall qualified to meet Thunder Bay in the playdowns when they won the Manitoba title by defeating Manitoba Varsity 5-2 at Stonewall, taking the series two games to one. If Bearcats win to-night Stonewall will play at Port Arthur on Wednesday.

Moose Jaw Millers ousted Flin Fon Bombers with a 6-5 victory at Moose Jaw and will meet Marty Burke's Saskatoon Qiakers in a best-Burke's Saskatoon Quakers in a best-of-five series for the Saskatchewan title opening to-morrow in Saskatoon. Millers, coached by the former New York Rangers star, Art Somers, beat Flin Flon 3-1 in games and one tied.

The victory on Saturday was costly for Millers who lost centre Billy Owen. His collrabone was fractured.

Miners Beaten.

Lethbridge Maple Leafs whipped Drumheller Miners 4-1 at Lethbridge for their second win in the best-of-five Alberta final and can end the series at Drumheller to-morrow.

Kimberley Dynamiters took a two-game lead in the British Columbia final by defeating Trail Blazers 6-3, scoring three goals in overtime when playing Coach Bill Duchak of Trail was given the game's only penalty Dynamiters, Allan Cup champions in 1936, can end the series at Trail to-night.

Saturday's only Western junior game was Edmonton Roamers' smashing 16-3 victory over the British Columbia champions, Trail Tigers, in the opener of a best-of-three series. The Alberta titleholders, favored for the Western crown, probably will end the series to-night. All games are being played in Edmonton.

Pee-Wee Finals In Copper Cliff

—A "pee-wee" hockey tournament for the unofficial championship of Little Fellows in Ontario who have adopted the names of National Hockey League teams an dtaken names of big-time stars, has been arranged. The finals will be played in Copper Cliff, present residence of George Alcott, originator of the pee-wee idea.

Teams from Preston, Kitchener, Stratford, and Georgetown will compete in an elimination series. The survivors will travel to Copper Cliff where they wil lengage a tiny team representing the northern mining town.

Alcott started the pee-wee hockey fad in Georgetown and since he left for Northern Ontario, youngsters there have carried on. They will meet Kitchener in the eliminations. The preliminary rounds will be home-and-home total-goal affairs.

Markham To Play Aces In Omemee

Peterborough Aces and Markham clash tomorrow (Tuesday) night at 8.30 o'clock in the Omemee arena in the return game of their O. H. A. intermediate "B" playdown series. The team will start the scrap on even terms as a result of their 5-5 draw in Markham last week. Winner on the two-game, goals to count, series advances into the next provincial playdown round, with the loser being eliminated for the rest of the season. This game was originally billed for the Brock on Monday, but has been switched to Tuesday in Omemee. The Aces played in a district loop this winter in Omemee and won handily to head into playdowns.

While the Markham squad is said to be good, the Aces are favored to yank out the verdict tomorrow over them, though it may be close and ought to be an exciting battle. The Aces favor a ganging-up style that means plenty of fast action. Coach Eddie Williams' squad consists of: Goal, Currie; defence, O'Leary and Vitarelli; centre R. Cournyea; wings,Heal and Wright; alternates, White, Mortimer, Hill, Connelly and A. Cournyea. The team is in good shape now and determined to continue its winning ways. A good crowd of Omemee, district and Peterborough fans is expected to witness this tussle.

Bowling Results

W. Milliken of Johnson Motors, with 746 and Miss P. Patterson of the Brinton League, with 617 (276-202) were the bowling stars at Duffus' on Friday and Saturday nights 356 by F. Willison of the A.Y.P.A., was the best of several high singles.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Another puck circuit did a blackout Saturday, C.G.E. Shop Hockey League winding up with a pair of playoffs at the Brock. The Wiremen won the senior division title with a 4-3 nod over Test Dept., whilst Toolroom took a 2-1 count o'er Drafting for the second division honors. A fitting climax to a good season for this large and classy hockey loop. They had a lot of fun all winter, playing Saturdays at the Brock, and provided puck followers with plenty of stirring duels—a flock of O.H.A.-ers sprinkling the various lineups. Unlucky, though, to have a couple of accidents with players needing medical attention. Congrats to the winners, the ossifers and especially to Cy Whatley, hustling secretary and press agent for the league. He succeeded Cliff Cadd, who was also a good man on that exacting job.

Local Aces and Markham mix it tomorrow (Tuesday) night at 8.30 in the Omemee arena, it being the return game of their O.H.A. intermediate "B" series. They tied at 5-5 in Markham, and the scrappy Aces are favored to take the verdict tomorrow, but one never knows in playoffs. It ought to draw a crowd of city and district fans, anyway—and the Aces might outlast the Petes yet in puck playoffs. This is the local lineup: Goal, Speed Currie; defence, Pete Vitarelli and Farmer Connelly; centre, Roy Cournyea; wings, Art Heal, Ward Wright; alternates, Joe White, Doug Mortimer, Ike O'Leary, Finnegan Hill and Al Cournyea. Coached by Eddie Williams. A good gang.

Hectic Senior Week

And so we swing into a hectic week of senior "B" hockey tilts. Waterloo Tigers come here this Wednesday e'en, in the last local senior fray of the year — unless the Petes should make the final playoffs and have ice for a home game. And the Buckland band motors to Niagara Falls on Friday for a furious fight, going on from there next day to Chatham to meet the Maroons on Saturday night. Some of the lads no doubt will trek to Detroit then for the week-end and head home on a 350-mile car ride Sunday in the gloaming. By the end of the week, we're either in the playoffs or out for the year—yep, either in or out; but certainly all in, anyway!

* * * * * *

Some fine German monickers noted in the lineup of the Waterloo Tigers, and folks had better practice up on 'em if they want to insult the guys by name here Wednesday. Here 'tis: Goal, Voll; defence, Couch, Clair; centre, Bauer; wings, Vrooman, Grau; subs, Hause. Smith, Kropp, Hinschberger, Kreuger. Though they can't shade such Kitchener puck handles as Bindernagel, Schmidt, Fehrenbach, Rueffer, Nelmes and Kuntz, eh? The team has lost but one game in 16 starts this season, and that to Niagara Falls, so Waterloo isn't bad. They nosed out the Petes in Kitchener, but were lucky to get the win, and we imagine the locals will reverse it here. Just keep Wednesday eve open.

Falls At Waterloo

It is noted in today's O.H.A. bulletin that Niagara Falls meets Waterloo tonight in Kitchener, and it'll be quite a scrap. Kitchener scribe viewed the 6-3 tilt in the Falls and felt the Tigers had tough luck, not clicking for two frames and being without Gene Bauer—brother of the Boston star — who got a charley-horse in the game with the Petes. Bauer is a potent factor on the Tigers' attack. The scribe also pans Dinty Moore for poor refereeing, wondering who in the world conceived the idea that Moore is a capable senior arbiter. Not us, buddy, as we never could see the great Dinty as anything but a good ex-goalie. Didn't think too much of him in the Falls last year when the Petes lost out, though it wasn't the referee's fault that our gang faded that time. Personally, we think this Houston dude is as good as they come.

Two cage contests here Saturday e'en in the "Y" gym, only one a men's senior loop fray. St. John's just managed to hang onto a 23-19 win over C.G.E. in a neat number, while Hecla "All-Stars" copped a 32-21 exhibition win from Dominions, their loop tilt being postponed a week. Standing is in tonight. When are the next L.O.B.A. or local gals' league tussles on? A gallant gang of St. Paul's basketeers toted a one-point lead to Toronto on Saturday and added another in a 21-20 win over Parkdale Invictus to win their O.C.B.A. intermediate "A" round and will now step into the Ontario church finals. A swell showing by the local battlers, who weren't given much chance at all of holding the good Toronto team down on their home floor. The whole gang of Saints must have played a swell game, and they'll be hard to head off now in final playoffs. St. John's juvenile O.C.B.A. team] as a game in Toronto this coming week-end.

Orfuns Are Back

H. A. (Ott) Cranfield tells us there is no doubt but that the Peterborough Orfuns will be back in the senior O.R.F.U. again this year, along with Sarnia Imps, Toronto Balmy Beach and Montreal Nationals. He took in a meeting in Toronto last week and was named to the senior executive along with Fred Porter of Montreal, Gordon Cole of Sarnia and Ab Box of Toronto. A Peterborough man will be appointed later to the O.R.F.U. executive. The pooled-gate is out this year, clubs not having to set aside some for a general fund to be split up at the end of the season by the clubs. It was found to amount to very little on the whole and meant a lot of work and some bickering, so they all agreed to discontinue the idea this year.

* * * * * *

One other important item popped up and that was refereeing, and Peterborough will be asked to submit a name or two from this end of the Province. The locals felt they got a couple of bad deals from Toronto arbiters last season. Bob Elliott of Kingston, of course, is on the list—and maybe Chuck Peck of Cobourg or someone similar will be the Orfuns' recommend. The Peterborough senior gridders intend to have several exhibition games before their fall grind opens, and should be in better shape this year. They know this is the second year of their three-year plan to field a championship contender, and grid fans here will want to see a better Orfuns' outfit in '39 than in '38. A club meeting is to be held within the next two weeks here.

Borican Record On 1,000 Yards Stirs Dispute

NEW YORK, March 13. —(A.P.)— Graybeards and stripling of track waged a controversy today over John Borican's 1,000 yards in 2:06.8, the fastest time ever run by man at that distance but one which probably never will enter the record books.

Borican's speed was the feature of the Knights of Columbus games in Madison Square Garden Saturday night, followed by these developments:—

1. Glenn Cunningham's double defeat, by Borican of Elberon, N. J., in the 1,000 and by Chuck Fenske, and two others in the Columbian mile.

2. Don Lash's 9:02.4 two miles, warning he is in shape to better the world record when he runs at Dartmouth Wednesday night.

The turmoil and the shouting over Borican's 1,000 concerned two points. One is that Borican beat the gun. To this Johnny McHugh, veteran starter agrees. Why McHugh didn't cal lthe field back he does not know To be forwarded to the higher courts, a record must be certified by the started. The time, bettered Cunningham's 2:10:1, the old indoor standard, and Elroy Robinson's 2:09.7, the outdoor mark.

Swerved Out Twice.

The second point argued is that Cunningham might have beaten Borican had not the negro swerved out twice during the running of the race and apparently prevented the Kansan from passing him.

Charlie Beetham won the Casey 600 yards in 1:11.3. Borican, attempting a double in this event was beaten by six yards by Beetham.

Cunningham was in bad shape for the mile. He had a temperature of 99, two points lower than it had been when he entered the arena for the 1,000, an hour and half earlier, first Gene Venzke and then Chuck Fenske made the pace with the latter finally winning in 4:11.1. Cunningham was fourth and last.

Bill Fritz, Queen's University speedster who was favored to win the Casey 600, failed to show up, storm conditions having upset his plans to fly to New York from Montreal

Only Canadian in the meet, Larry O'Connor of Toronto, finished third to Allan Tomlich of Detroit in the 60-yards hurdle race.

St. John's Win Over Electrics

After battling on even terms through the first half, St. John's finished strong to defeat C.G.E. 23-19 in the bitterly contested last period and earn themselves a playoff position, in Saturday night's lone Senior City League Basketball game at the Y.M.C.A. Dominions and Heclas who were also scheduled to play postponed their game to a later date, these two teams playing an exhibition game, using several players from other teams and the 'All-Stars' nosing out Dominions 32-31 in the final minutes. League standing with only 5 games remaining to be played stands:

	W	L	F	A
St. Paul's	6	2	284	189
Quakers	6	2	174	149
St. John's	5	4	222	208
Heclas	4	4	178	174
Dominions	3	5	190	244
C. G. E.	1	8	127	197

Dominions took a big 24-18 lead in the first half but the 'All Stars' came from behind in the final minutes and pulled out a narrow 32-31 win in the first game, an exhibition fray. It was a close, hard game throughout, with only 9 fouls being called, the Stars making none out of 2 throws and Dominions 1 out of 7. Csumrick, Weese, Hammell and Holmes lead Dominions and White, Turner and Dougherty starred for the winners. The teams:

Dominions (31)—Centre, Hammel (4); forwards, Weese (8), Csumrick (8); guards, Rennie (2), Holmes (9).

All Stars (32)—Centre, Turner (8); forwards, White (8), Dougherty (6); guards, J. Patterson (6), Barr (4); subs, B. Patterson.

St. John's Win

St. John's and C.G.E. fought on even terms through the first half of their game, 12-all with St. John's having a slight edge in the last period to win out 23-19. It was hard and fast all the way, first St. John's going ahead and then C.G.E. pulling up close again, with both teams missing numerous scoring chances from in close. St. John's had better passing and a small margin in play to earn the win, but the losers were in the battle all the way, never being more than 8 points in arrears. C.G.E. had 12 fouls to 8 for the winners, St. John's making 5 free throws and C.G.E. only 1. Ascott and Dyer starred at guard for the winners and Broadley and A. Holmes for C.G.E. The teams:

St. John's (23) — Centre, Craig (8); forwards, Clarke (4), Marshall (3); guards, Ascott (3), Dyer (2); sub, Amys (3).

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

SARASOTA, Fla.—Want to know the toughest task in baseball? Rookie Paul Campbell of Boston Red Sox will tell you it's trying to succeed Jimmy Foxx, the American League's most valuable player, at first base. Campbell, who hit .325 for Little Rock last year, probably will wind up at Louisville this season.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Vice President Larry McPhail and Manager Leo Durocher were taking a lot of ribbing about their Brooklyn Dodgers before today's game with the New York Yankees. Last week Durocher said one thing he wouldn't have to worry about was power and McPhail expressed hope the Dodgers would be beaten this week-end so they wouldn't be so cocky. So what? So the Dodgers didn't get a single hit against the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and lost 5-0.

BATON ROUGE, La. — Working out the wrinkles of a 150-mile bus ride from Lake Charles, the Giants were enthusiastic today about their feat of scoring 29 runs in two games against Philadelphia Athletics. Connie Mack gave the team a happy send-off, remarking, "the team has tremendous power. It's been a good many years since I've seen so many big strong players as Bill Terry has this year."

TAMPA, Fla.—Although Cincinnati Reds were scheduled for an exhibition against St. Louis Cardinals today, Manager Will McKechnie was about ready to change the game to checkers, or some other bedside pastime. An epidemic of mild influenza caused Vander Meer, Derringer, Myers, Hershberger, De Forge and Trainer "Doc" Rhode to be confined.

Ramblers Upset Bears And Reds

(By the Canadian Press.)

Philadelphia Ramblers keep rolling along, going after victories as if they were fighting for a playoff spot and not as if they were the leading team in the International-American hockey league's eastern section.

Ramblers swept to two victories during the week-end to increase their first place margin to 14 points over Providence Reds. They topped Hershey Bears, western section pacesetters, 2-1 on Saturday and defeated the Reds 5-4 last night.

Meanwhile, New Haven's last slim hopes for gaining the third and last playoff spot in the Eastern grouping faded as the Eagles took two lickings. They were overwhelmed 7-0 on Saturday by Pittsburgh Hornets and 2-1 Sunday by Hershey. The Eagles now are six points behind the third place Springfield Indians.

Indians only played once in the two days but they made it a bad week-end for Providence by defeating the Reds 5-1 Saturday. In the only other game that night Cleveland Barons topped Syracuse Stars 3-1 but the Stars bounced back with a 4-2 decision over the Hornets last night.

Pat McCreavy scored two goals in 16 seconds for the Reds in the third period against the Ramblers to knot the score at 4-4, but the Reds yielded another goal three minutes after to drop the game. Art Giroux got the two other Providence goals, while Joe Krol got two and Alex Singbush, Babe Tapin and Bill Carse one each for the Ramblers.

Cliff Barton and Kilby MacDonald got the scores to defeat the Bears, whose only goal went to Red Hamill. Mackie, Kilrea, Shannon and Ayres scored for the Bears against New Haven, while the lone Eagles tally went to Don Wilson.

Tool Room Wins Hockey Honors

In the third and deciding game of of the C.G.E. shop hockey loop, secondary division, Saturday at the Brock, Tool Room yanked out a 2-1 nod over Drafting to cop the championship. It was a ragged, exciting fray and the winners were forced into overtime to gain the nod. Palmer put the Drafting boys in front early in the second but late in the third Conroy tied it up on a close-in drive. Wade tallied in the extra inning. Mason, Hough and Cadd shone for the losers; with Shaughnessy, Wade and Conroy best for the champions. The teams:

Tool Room: Goal, Shaughnessy; defence, M. Williams, F. Earle; centre, Wade; wings, Conroy, E. Williams; subs, Self, Stinson, Smith.

Referee—Red Creighton.

Defeat Toronto Two Points On The Round

TORONTO, March 13. —(C. P.). — Peterborough St. Paul's edged out Toronto Parkdale Invictus club 21-20 here on Saturday in an intermediate "A" Ontario Church Basketball Association first-round playoff battle. The Petes took the round 54-52 through a 33-32 victory on their home floor a week ago Saturday.

The struggle was close throughout and the teams were tied 12-12 at half time. Behind six points in the last few minutes of play, Invictus failed by one basket to tie the round score with a brilliant rally. Pulkinghorn Peterborough guard, was one of the most outstanding performers of the tilt.

The St. Paul's club won the intermediate "B" church title last season and moved up to "A" ranks this winter.

Wiremen Take Hockey Title

In a sudden-death game Saturday at the Brock, Wire Dept. won the senior championship of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League, defeating Test Dept., 4 to 3. It was a thrilling battle from start to finish, with a lot of good hockey dished up by both sides. Test led in the first with a 2-1 edge, but the Wiremen came back strong for a 3-1 bulge in the second, making the count 4-3. Test gave all they had in a hectic third heat but were unable to beat Harding with the tying marker. Gray, Pryde and Archibald were the losers' scorers; while Heal and Pammett each netted two for the champions. Jones, Archibald and Tollington looked best for the Test team; and Heal, Hawks and Harding stood out for the winners. The teams:

Test: Goal, Jones; defence, Gray, Boyle; centre, Archibald; wings, Pryde, Tollington; sub, Aikey.

Wire: Goal, Harding; defence, Williams, Hawks; centre, Heal; wings, Pammett, Millard; subs, Hatton, White, Mason.

Referee—Cy Whatley.

GOAL IN LAST 20 SECONDS GIVES O.H.A. WINNERS 4-3 VICTORY

Westwood Wins E.P.R.L. Cup By A Shutout

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 13.— Grabbing off first honours in the East Peterborough Rural Hockey League for the second successive season, Westwood retained possession of the championship cup by virtue of their 2-0 victory over the Indian Riverites in a sudden death final contest, at the Norwood arena, Saturday evening. A repeat win for this club next year, and the E.P.R.L. trophy, will become their personal property for keeps.

Before a good crowd of fans the teams battled on close terms throughout the entire session. Relying mostly upon individual rushing the Indian River boys missed many good chances through failure to pass the puck. The losers were particularly outlucked around the goal on different occasions. Clean during most of the game, play roughened slightly during the last period, and a fight and general free-for-all ensued with a pile-up in the Westwood net just as the final gong rang. Of the three penalties handed out by Referee R. Ennis during the tussle, two went to Chaplin of the winners and one to M. Tedford of the losers.

Richardson, netminder for the Westwood crew, with a well earned shutout to his credit, turned in a great game for the winners. He was given fine support by a hard working defence, and two fast back-checking lines. Gill and B. Graham scored the winner's goals.

Scoreless First.

Although both sides had plenty of chances in the initial frame, neither managed to reach the score sheet. Even a penalty to Chaplin of Westwood for tripping Brown failed to give their opponents any advantage.

Finally after five minutes of close hockey in the second period, Gill combined with Sargent to notch the first goal of the game. A penalty to M. Tedford for tripping Gill as the latter was coasting in on Doherty gave Westwood the advantage of an extra man.

Pressing hard going into the final session, Indian River missed by a narrow margin on Brown's attempt. Westwood putting up a strong defensive managed also to stave off the Riverites' ganging plays when Chaplin was sent to the cooler for cross-checking Brown. B. Graham finally rammed home their second and last goal. With seconds to go there was a pile-up at the Westwood net, but Richardson managed to clear just as the final bell sounded. Almost immediately a fight broke out between the goalie and M. Tedford, and soon half the players and some of the spectators had joined in the fracas, which however was very short lived. The teams:

Always Same Old Lou

Back in the days when Lou Ambers was a struggling young boxer without any too much ready cash in his pockets he stayed at Mrs. Rose Brown's boarding house when fighting in New York. Lou went on to capture the world's lightweight title, which crown he lost to Henry Armstrong last year, but always he beds down at Mrs. Brown's place in preference to high class hotels, which, of course, he could afford as he rose in the fistic scale. Here he is seen receiving a culinary tip from Mrs. Brown as he prepares to throw a victory omelet following his T.K.O. win over Baby Arizmendi recently.

THE SPORTS ROUND-UP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—Max Schmeling doesn't know it, but he did more than anybody else to get Tony Galento that Joe Louis title shot. Fred Perry, the British tennis ace is becoming Americanized so thoroughly he now yells "aw nerts" when he misses a shot . . . Old Jess Willard is doing O.K. as a representative of Jack Dempsey's interests.

The AP's Whitney Martin writes from Dixie that Connie Mack, who is 76, looks 60, feels like 30 and has the enthusiasm of 20 . . . And how about E. J. Hawkins, who has been teaching and coaching in a Coffeyville (Kans.) school for well night 50 years? . . . He is 73, looks 45 and has just married a girl of 27 whose grandmother went to school with him.

Art Rooney, the big hoss track man from Pittsburgh, announces the arrival of twins . . . Jack Dempsey, who was given a medal or something for doing the most for boxing last year, has slashed his price for refereeing wrestling matches 15 per cent . . . Johnny Evers, who gets $1 per year for running the Albany Senators, also pays his way into his own park. . . . If the Yanks agree to play one night game in Cleveland it is estimated every one of the 70,000 seats in the Indians' stadium would be filled . . . The Yanks' share of the receipts would run about $25,000 . . . How can Ed Barrow laugh off dough like that?

Charlie Ruffing has developed a fadeaway pitch . . . Oscar Vitt is arranging his pitching schedule so Bobby Feller can start six of Cleveland's seven night games . . . Cletus Poffenberger, Detroit screwball, reported 10 days late and 20 pounds overweight. He tried to make up for it by showing at the park an hour early . . . Lou Gehrig says Wes Ferrell is the greatest pitcher he ever faced . . . The guy the Giants really are yearning for is Danny MacFayden of the Bees.

Leafs Whip Wings, Hold 4th Place While Boston Widens Lead With 4-2 Pasting Of Rangers

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

All the evidence on Boston Bruins and New York Rangers is in, preparatory to their meeting in National Hockey League playoffs, and the figures weigh more heavily than ever towards the champion Bruins.

Boston has won five of eight games with the Blueshirts this season and has scored 24 goals to 15 for Lester Patrick's young men of Manhattan. The record hasn't always meant a great deal at playoff time, but there it is. It should mean more this time, because the old best-of-five series has been scrapped in favor of a best-of-seven basis and form has a better chance of telling over a longer stretch.

The Bruins ran out the scheduled string last night with a 4-2 victory over the Rangers at New York. The champions pulled 16 points ahead fo the Rangers, a pretty convincing bit of evidence in itself. Then, to cap it all, the Rangers must play four games in six nights starting to-morrow, while the Bruins play only twice, and it doesn't take any delving into higher mathematics to figure which club will be the fresher for the star of the series a week from to-morrow.

Dit Clapper.

The Manhattanites made a go of it for two periods and more in an attempt to tie Boston on the season. Twice the Rangers pulled even after the Bruins had established a lead, but each time the eventual winners went ahead again. Finally Bill Sands scored the goal that made it 3-2 with 12 minutes to play and in the dying moments Dit Clapper tossed the puck far down the ice for a soft goal after Dave Kerr had been pulled from the Ranger nets.

22nd For Conacher

Roy Conacher of the Bruins became the league leading goal-scorer when he shot his 22nd of the season in the second period, putting him one up on Toe Blake of Montreal and Alex Shibicky of the Rangers. Shibicky has four games to play, however, and Conacher and Blake two and three respectively.

Two other teams apparently destined to come together in the playoffs met at Detroit, where the Red Wings defeated Montreal Canadiens 2-1 The victory pulled the Wings into fifth place, while the Canadiens dropped back into sixth after a 72-hour stay.

All the goals came in the first period, Marty Barry and Syd Howe bagging Detroit's before Blake scored for the Habitants. Blake's counter kept him ahead in the race for league point-making honors by two points over Dave (Sweeney) Schriner of New York Americans.

The Americans took back third place after losing it for one night to Toronto. Defeating the Black Hawks 3-2 at Chicago, the Americans climbed a point ahead of the Maple Leafs and almost made certain that Chicago would finish in last place. To gain sixth position now, the Hawks must win their three remaining games while Canadiens lose their last three.

Leroy Goldsworthy scored the winning goal for the Americans five minutes from the finish, but Nels Stewart got one that will mean more in the records. Tying the scored at 2-2 in the third period, it was the 500th scoring point of Stewart's N.H.L. career.

Gord Drillon

Toronto made certain on Saturday night of playing the Americans in the first round of the Stanley Cup series, defeating Detroit 5-1 at Toronto. The Leafs took third place then until the Americans won at Chicago.

The Red Wings' goal, scored by Carl Liscombe in the third period, was their first in Toronto all season. The Leafs scored twice in the second period and twice in the third, Gordon Drillon leading the way with two pretty backhand goals.

All Star Team

Following is the 16th in The Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star teams selected by hockey writers in N.H.L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later.

Remember When—

Fielder Jones, former big league baseball player and manager of the "Hitless Wonders"—Chicago White Sox from 1904 to 1908—died at Portland, Ore., five years ago today. Jones guided the Sox to a world championship in 1906 although writers said "a base on balls, a sacrifice, a stolen base and a long fly" was considered a rally by the team.

Bancroft Fliers Whip Tweed

TWEED, Mar. 13.—In a wide open hockey game at the local arena on Saturday night the Bancroft Fliers took the Tweed High School into camp by a count of five to two. The local boys were no match for the hefty team from the north, who dominated the play for most of the three periods.

In the first period, the Fliers went into a two goal lead while the home forces went scoreless. McAlpine and Moxan tallied the two counters for the visitors.

The High School opened the scoring in the second when McCaw took a pass from F. Doyle, but the Fliers came back to count two more counters with Moxan tallying on a pass from McAlpine, and McAlpine counting on a pass from Moxan. Play in this period was ragged with both teams putting on a close checking display, which did not allow either team to make use of their passing plays. Brilliant work in the home nets by J. Wager, prevented the Fliers increasing their lead in this period.

F. Doyle opened the scoring in the last period on a pass from Trudeau, but the count was equalized when Mexan took a pass from McAlpine to end the scoring. Two penalties were handed out in this period with Young of the Fliers and Porritt of the High School getting the gate. Play did not open up until about five minutes from the end of theg ame when both teams laid on the body checks and players were sent sprawling over the ice, with four and six players laying on the ice at a time.

J. Wager in the nets was the standout for the high school as he made several brilliant stops which appeared to be sure counters. For the Fliers Moxan and McAlpine were the pick of the team, as these two players accounted for the Flier's goals, with Moxan tallying three goals and McAlpine two counters.

In the three game series played to date, the Fliers have won two out of the three encounters.

Referees—Johnson, Bancroft; J. Tummon, Tweed.

Upside-Down?

This may be good fun to those adept at it, but to a non-experienced eye it looks like one of the finest possible ways to end it all. Tom Murstad, Norwegian professional skier, is the party concerned here, so there's no danger of anything going wrong. Tumbling Tom was putting on this show in Los Angeles.

Appearing At The Centre Theatre Today, Tuesday and Wednesday

Scene from "Meet Mrs. Wolfe", starring Edward Arnold, in the title role, and Lionel Stander. The added feature attraction is "On Such A Night", featuring Karen Morley and Roscoe Karns. A Screen Snapshots completes the bill.

BETTER BY SECOND

JOHANNESBURG — (CP). — Denis Shore, South African Olympic runner, failed in an attempt to beat the world's record of 30 seconds for 300 yards, but his time of 30.6 seconds was more than a second better than the old South African record for the distance.

Goodyear Rally Nips Devils In 4-3 Tangle

TORONTO, March 13 (CP) — Kirkland Lake Blue Devils, beaten only three times in more than 20 starts, take their speed and intricate passing plays against Toronto Goodyears for a second time tonight, confident of victory despite a 4-3 beating in the first game of the best-of-five Allan Cup hockey series.

"Don't forget they beat us in the first game in last year's playoffs and we finally won," Sammy Rothschild, coach of the northern champions, warned Toronto supporters. "We were outlucked on Saturday's game and I think we'll win yet."

But Goodyears had to be more than lucky to beat the Devils Saturday. They got most of the favorable breaks but they were also good in tying the game with only 20 seconds to play and winning on Eddie King's freak goal late in overtime. No matter the result 13,344 fans, a record crowd for senior amateur hockey in Canada, got full value for their money.

The payoff blow was a tough one for the Devils to take. They had wiped out goals by Johnny O'Flaherty and Don Metz, who scored while Devils were shorthanded in the first three minutes, and were leading 3-2 when Metz shot his second goal just before the end of regulation time. George Hastie, Ken Grivel and Don Grosso were the Devil marksmen.

With The Boy Scouts

Welcome, Skipper

We are glad to welcome to the Peterborough Cub Jungle, Hubert Edward (Skipper) Hicks, who has joined the Saint Andrew's pack.

"Skipper" was a cub in the Rawlinson school pack and has advanced to his first star class. We hope his stay will be happy and that he will gain many friends.

Last week I jumped a week ahead in date—the Rover Council will be held to-night, Monday, at 8 p.m. sharp. The Scouters' Club was held last Thursday, and the local association executive meeting is scheduled to be held on Wednesday at 7.45 p.m.

Scouters' Club.

A meeting of the Scouters' Club was held last Wednesday. In spite of the small numbers, a splendid time was had. The scoutmasters were conspicuous for their absence, making it impossible to appoint a scouter representative on the local association.

The club went on record to congratulate Mr. Ottowell for the splendid picture of their majesties that he has secured for the headquarters. Also Akela Pete Dominik for the group of pictures he presented to the club to hang in the headquarters. They depict the ten scout laws as interpreted by an Hungarian painter of renown, and were sent to Akela Dominik by a correspondent from his homeland with whom he made acquaintance at the rover moot held in Hungary four years ago.

It is hoped that Akela Dominik will write up the history of the pictures so that those who follow will know just what they are and how the Peterborough Association came by them.

The next meeting of the Scouters' Club will be the second Thursday in April; Miss Whalon being in charge of the program.

Akela Frank Pammett gave a splendid talk on the relation of cubbing and scouting program. At Camp Fire Akela Bob Baldwin gave a description of the welcome of Lindbergh to New York as one of the great thrills of his life.

Those groups who have not yet sent the renewal of their charters into the local association should do so before Wednesday night. No cub or scout attached to your group can secure a badge until such registration has been sent to Toronto, and our badge secretary has been notified of same. So play the game with your boys. If you have not registered, do so at once.

Are you planning for your summer camps? If not, you should commence to do so at once. Don't delay, build up an interesting program toward that end. Get your group committee working with you on this matter.

England Requires 200 Runs To Win

DURBAN, March 13 (CP Cable).—After eight days' play the end of the longest cricket match in history is in sight. When stumps were drawn today in the final Test with South Africa, England, with seven wickets in hand, needed 200 runs for victory.

Sterling performances by William Edrich, Paul Gibb, and Wally Hammand marked today's play when invaders carried their second-innings total from 253 for one to 496 for three wickets. England's first innings closed for 316 runs, the Springboks making totals of 530 and 481.

Started March 3, the marathon contest surpassed the record battle at Melbourne 10 years ago when Australia defeated England by five wickets after battling nearly eight days. If the Englishmen are successful in the present encounter it will be their second victory in the five-game series. The other three matches ended in stalemates.

STORE TO STAGE

LONDON—(CP). — Ivor Samuel, former grocer's helper, filled the tenor lead in an opera on 25 minute's notice and gave a creditable performance.

MILLBROOK

Miss Eleanor Bigelow was among the members of the Y.P.U. who motored to Colborne and attended the reunion of students who had been at the Oak Lake Training School last August.

Cecil Sutton's team was victorious in the game of carpet ball played on Tuesday evening, following the regular I.O.O.F. session, defeating that captained by Reeve W. E. Ball by 12 to 11.

Mrs. G. F. Harrington returned home this week after attending the annual convention of the Horticultural Society of Ontario. Miss Josie Sutton, Reg.N., was the other delegate representing the local society.

Messrs. W. and J. H. Barringer, of The Millbrook Reporter, had as their guest this week their brother, Mr. W. T. Barringer, of the Post Office Inspectorial staff, Toronto.

Mrs. R. Shaw of Brockville visited Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco at the Parsonage this week.

Mr. Malcolm Ward entertained at a pleasant social gathering at his home, Carmel, on Thursday evening in honor of his guest, James Collier, of Portage Le Prairie, the Social Club members being included among the guests. Dancing was enjoyed for which music was supplied by Messrs. Richard and Francis Gilmour, Austin Thorne, and Amos and Mrs. Strong. Melville Strong "called off" for the square numbers, and a number of the ladies assisted the host in the service of refreshments. A pleasing feature was an exhibition of step dancing by Mr. William Elmer, Senior, who is well known for his ability along this line.

Mr. Collier is leaving this weekend for his home in the West; it had been twenty years since he had visited in Ontario.

Mrs. B. L. Richards and two children, Yvonne and Marlene, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Campbell, at Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Howard tried out their new car on a trip to Cobourg on Thursday morning.

Mrs. H. R. Kerr entertained at three tables of bridge, previous to the departure of her sister, Mrs. H. Cornish, and her daughter, for their home in the West, prize for high score going to Miss Muriel Smith, and the consolation to Miss Anna Kells.

Hugh Swanson of Bowmanville visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Swanson, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Theobald and family have moved into the Deyell home on Anne street from their previous residence next to James Bingham's bungalow on West street.

KEENE

Mrs. Frank Graystock was guest of her mother, Mrs. Agnes McIntyre, last week.

Mrs. Gordon McCallister of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Gillespie.

Little Marlene Stewart is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor.

Many friends of Earl Doris will be glad to know he is progressing favorably since his recent operataion in St. Joseph's Hospital.

A goodly number of cases of influenza have been reported in the village.

Mrs. Walter Hope is visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hope, Lindsay.

Owing to the illness of Miss Isobel Graham, teacher at Mather's Corners, the school is closed.

Mr. Fraser of Ottawa, is visiting at Mrs. Jas. Nelson's.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wedlock of Madoc, are visiting Mrs. Wm. Flecher.

An accident occurred near the Sixth Line school house. Mr. M. Pimmett's car ran out of gas and the driver went in search of a supply. A truck owned by a Peterborough firm ran into it and took off the fenders, bent the front axle and damaged the radiator. As far as can be ascertained the other truck was undamaged.

DEBT WIPED OUT

STRATFORD, England—(CP).—Summoned for a debt of $1,795 to his wife under a mainetnance order, a pensioner was sentenced to one day's imprisonment but was freed by order of the judge after two minutes.

OBITUARY

MRS. HAROLD PERRY.

The death of Mrs. Harold Perry occurred very suddenly at her home at 6 Crest Avenue, Saylesville, adjacent to Boston, on Saturday, following an attack of influenza that developed into pneumonia.

Mrs. Perry was formerly Miss Mabel Sperry, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Anson Sperry, one of the older families of Peterborough, and a sister of the late Mrs. Hugh Bertram.

Mr. Perry was some years ago, Peterborough manager of the Colonial Hide Company and when the company, which was a branch of the parent company in Boston was withdrawn from this city, he was transferred to Boston. While residing here Mr. Perry married Miss Sperry. Mr. Perry is a former warden of St. Luke's church.

Surviving are a young family of two girls and a boy.

MRS. HAZEL M. FERGUSON.

The sudden death of Mrs. Hazel M. Ferguson, 293 Bethune Street, occurred at Nicholls Hospital on Monday morning. She was in her 45th year.

Mrs. Ferguson was born Hazel Doughty, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Doughty, in Norwood. She came to Peterborough from that community thirty-three years ago, and had resided here ever since. She was a member of Murray Street Baptist Church and of Vimy Lodge, L.O.B.A.

Mrs. Ferguson's husband, Sydney Ferguson, predeceased her three years ago. She leaves one daughter, Betty Jean; and two sons, Warren and Sydney, all at home; also one sister, Mrs. John Martin; and two brothers, William Doughty and Thomas Doughty, all of Peterborough.

The funeral service will be conducted at the late residence Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

MRS. JOHN C. WALDIE

Mrs. John C. Waldie, 136 Perry street, life-long resident of this district, passed away at Nicholls hospital on Monday morning. In her 79th year, she had been ailing for about a fortnight. Mrs. Waldie was born Mary Elizabeth Moncrief, daughter of the late George Moncrief and Isabella Newell, in South Monaghan. She had lived in Peterborough for the past 30 years, coming here from the community where she had been born. She was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian church.

Surviving besides her sorrowing husband, John C. Waldie, are three daughters, Misses Ruth and Mina Waldie and Mrs. Sherman Blewett, all of Peterborough; one sister, Mrs. Lena Brown of Roseneath; and one brother, William David Moncrief of Fraserville.

The funeral service will be conducted at the late residence on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's Presbyterian church officiating, assisted by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt of Knox United church. Interment will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Bad Roads Held Up Many Farm Movings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, March 13. —Rural moving which takes place around March 1 each year caused a great deal of hardship this year owing to bad roads and stormy weather. Very little moving was done in this locality. Mr. Michael Cleary moved from the Garvey farm to a farm in Otonabee, formerly owned by the late Thomas Fitzgerald. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett and family of South Dummer have moved to the Garvey farm. Clarence McMurray is leaving the Michael Maloney farm to reside on the farm (owned by the late Patrick McMurray, which he purchased last fall. A family from Dummer has moved to the farm owned by Mrs. William Leahy.

The farm sale of the stock and implements of the late Frederick Fitzgerald which had to be postponed, owing to bad roads is to take place on Thursday.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T GET TOO EXCITED

SOME PLAYERS go emotional whenever a pre-emptive bid is made against them. They treat it as a personal affront, as if their opponents had no right to prevent them from making a game that has been dealt to them. And, as if with vindictive fury, they go ahead and bid their own suit anyway, seeming to presume that their partner has whatever is needed to produce the game. As a consequence, they take some fearful sets, even when neither side could have made a game.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If ever a player had a hand perfectly suited to pre-emptive bidding, it was South on this deal. His hand was so woefully worthless at anything except hearts that the defense against the opponents' bid would devolve entirely upon his partner. So he opened with 4-Hearts.

West was the positive type of player who hates to be silenced. Acting almost as if the hostile shutout guaranteed his side possessed a game, in the other major suit, he called 4-Spades. Wasn't that a luscious morsel for North to double? Even though he knew from his partner's call that he would have to take all of the setting tricks himself.

Poor benighted West lost seven tricks, three in the trump suit, two in diamonds and two in clubs, so was set four tricks, 1100 points. The saddest thing about it was that South could not have made his contract, even with that very fine dummy which North would have laid down for him. A trick would have been lost in each suit if West had seen fit merely to double the 4-Hearts or else play against it undoubled, as some players would have done, fearing that some of their high cards would have been trumped.

Racial Cleavage Is Arresting Canada's Growth

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13. — "If racial cleavage be intensified in Canada the progress of this country will be definitely arrested" according to Mrs. John Thompson whose address on Canadianization formed on outstanding portion of the program presented before members of the Seymour East Women's Institute. Dealing to a considerable extent with the problem created by immigration the speaker suggested that Canadians should cultivate a spirit of tolerance. "The attitude of the individual towards his neighbor should be based solely upon the good is in him. It is foolish of the individual to perceive the faults of others and to forget his own in so doing. In the final analysis his obligation of Chirstian character is to thought and conduct. Incidents of the nature referred to may be but the beginning of widespread and deplorable discrimination against this or that element of the population and it must be remembered that all of us have our faults. Canada's future citizens are made in the home and the principals of democracy are taught in the home which can turn out a far superior product to any government camp."

"But," declared Mrs. Thompson, "the home is falling down on the job and loosing its hold on the youth of to-day. Let the Canadians hold high their torch to illuminate the slogan, "Help the Youth of Canada."

An addres sof Buymanship was the concluding talk in the present series given by Mrs. Alex. Milne. "Virgin wool is wool that is used for the first time and is always found in worsteds which contain yarn not usually mixed with shoddy."

Describing the difference between yang and yin the speaker quoted from an address given by Miss Kell. er, lecturer who is doing research work with Professor Bell Northrup of the Department of Fine Arts at Columbia University. Miss Keller would rather have you a yin or a yang. If you're a liang you are colourless and there's not much Miss Keller can do about you. "We were instructed several years ago into the mysteries of yin's and yangs by a teacher's college student who was haunted by the horrible possibility that she was a drab—a yang

'If you're a yin you're a graceful willow—choose fair backgrounds, such as blue with a touch of ivory. If you're a yang, you're forceful, compelling. (Mr. Hitler is a yang, Miss Keller suspects).

Other items on the program included a vocal duet by Mrs J. A. Macmillan and Mrs. George Craighead and the question drawer conducted by Miss Elsie Rannie. Lunch was served and the sandwich exhibit presented many new ideas to the members. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. John Thompson the president who presided.

New Sidley Inquest Hinted In Offing

TORONTO, March 13 — (CP). — Re-opening of an inquest into the death of Mrs. Mabelle Horlick Sidley, malted milk heiress, is likely when the Ontario Legislature passes a government bill now before it.

The bill, amending the Coroner's Act, empowers the Attorney-General to order inquests and enables them to be held when the body has been destroyed or removed from Ontario. Attorney-General Gordon Conant, sponsoring the bill, said today its passage "will probably mean the re-opening of the inquest."

An inquest was started here after the death of Mrs. Sidley last July 6 in the home of W. Perkins Bull, in whose house the Racine, Wis., woman was a guest. It was stopped by court action.

HastingsHardHit By Epidemic Families Are Ill

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 13.—Church attendances were cut to less than fifty per cent here Sunday morning and school children were showing a greater decrease in attendance at Hastings schools as the school week drew to a close Friday night due to a flu epidemic which is believed to have more than half the population of this village confined to their homes, according to Dr. J. A. MacDonald, M.O.H. for the village. The epidemic, while not of a serious nature, seems to be affecting every member of families and in a number of cases every member of a family is confined to bed at the same time.

Most noticeable among the stricken are the business men, who in a few cases had to close shop for a few days when experienced help was not available. One Hastings doctor was confined to his home for a few days with the flu, while the other was practically run off his feet answering sick calls although he was ill from the same complaint. "I couldn't take time off to be sick," Dr. MacDonald told The Examiner. A twenty-five per cent decrease in labor at the Breithaupt leather plant here Saturday morning was reported.

Eggs Plentiful At 25 Cents, Butter Is Steady

The outdoor market of farm produce Saturday was just about the smallest and chilliest of the winter. A simple opinion commonly expressed acknowledged that "the east wind seems to go right through you." Rollie Dixon ,in his canvas-topped trailer the council is going to ban on week days, sat a little closer than usual to his oil stove, and passed out eggs, beans, honey and some other products in a setting that appeared to be comparatively comfortable.

Eggs were plentiful with a rather wide range of prices. They opened around 27 and 28 cents, dropped down below the 25 cent mark, side-slipped later to 22 cents and after 11.30 o'clock some of the baskets were quietly labelled at 20 cents.

The supply of chickens and butter was larger than it has been for the last month or more. The price of butter held on steadily at 25 cents with a decline to 23 cents towards noon. Chickens were generally quoted at 22 cents to 25 cents.

There was no feature to the outdoor business. The cold wind carried too sharp a sting to encourage buyers and sellers, and business was sketchy. George Mullen of Smith quoted 13 and 15 cents a pound for pork, and 11 and 13 cents for beef. Herb Gill seemeed to have an extra supply of pork at 14 and 16 cents.

Potatoes were $1.40 a bag with only a light offering. Arthur Stinson's prices of vegetables were about the same as usual: onions 30 cents a peck; potatoes 30 cents the peck; turnips 3 for 10 cents; carrots 20 cents a peck or 60 cents a bushel; parsnips 25 cents a peck.

Norman Moncrief was selling the last of his Snow apples at 40 cents a peck; and his Talman Sweets are all gone; evidence that the Autumn bins are beginning to run low. Spies were 25 to 45 cents; Starks 30 cents or $1 a bushel; Baldwins 30 cents and Delicious 25 to 40 cents.

In spite of the weather the market attendance seemed larger than a week ago, but the more marked increase was on the producer's side of the upstairs benches. In regard to th council's intention of discouraging the Snowden and Dixon practice of leaving their trailer-booths at the market curb all week, Mr. Dixon said that in a few more weeks he would be able to cart it home with him every Saturday. He did not offer any criticism of the council's property committee, except a remark—"I guess there's not much chance of us getting a covered-market

"A MILD SMOKE IS A NECESSITY WITH ME" says Louise King

Louise King, popular singing star, whose golden voice is enjoyed by radio listeners everywhere, is frank in her praise for Buckinghams. "When it comes to smoking, I have to be practical," says Miss King. "Mildness is a definite must with me, for I simply cannot afford to gamble with anything that would irritate my throat — hurt my voice. That's why I always smoke Buckinghams."

IF, like Louise King, you sang every night — if, just as frankly, your voice was your livelihood—you too would appreciate the real importance of a Throat Easy cigarette. Buckinghams, made from 62 varieties and classifications of selected, riper tobaccos are definitely easy on the throat. And when you smoke your first Buckingham you can actually taste the difference of leaf that has been picked for finer flavour—aged in wood and scientifically matured to guarantee true Throat Easy Smoking. Try Buckinghams and prove it for yourself.

WHAT IS Mildness IN A CIGARETTE?

Many smokers confuse taste with strength. Actually, taste depends on the ripeness of the tobacco — and a fully-ripened tobacco must be milder. Natural ripening removes harshness that causes irritation. That's why Buckinghams, blended from 62 varieties and classifications of riper tobaccos, taste so much better — are definitely milder.

Shows Radio Fee Less In Canada

Advertising Revenue Falls Short Of Operation Costs

OTTAWA, March 14.—(CP). — Before any program is put on the air by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, general administration charges absorb more than 40 per cent of the revenue collected from license fees, L. W. Brockington, C. B.C. chairman, told the House of Commons to-day.

These fixed charges in 1938-39 amount to $1,056,500, Mr. Brockington said, while license revenue is estimated at $2,700,000.

The breakdown of these administration charges which have to be paid was as follows: Engineering, $223,000; wire lines, $560,000; principal and interest on loan from the government, $64,500; rents, $100,000; light and power, $40,000; replacement tubes, $25,000; performing rights, $44,00.

The chairman estimated that the fixed charges of a similar nature next year, 1939-40, would total $1,423,000.

Mr. Brockington made his statement on the C.B.C.'s financial set-up preparatory to a discussion by the committee of the whole question of the present license year. Last week some members suggested a desire to reduce the license fee if possible and Paul Martin, (Lib. Essex East) said he would propose its abolition.

Financial Problem.

Continuing, Mr. Brockington said that "no broadcasting system is facing anything like the difficulties we face or operating a service on anything like so small an amount of money." The radio licence had always been considered the only means of raising money to operate the service.

"Advertising revenue alone would

Hockey Quarrel Gets Man Shot

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP). — Confined to hospital in serious condition with a bullet wound in his abdomen, Mike Pecanic, 32, Schumacher, Ontario, was charged with attempted murder to-day after a shooting affray in a downtown hotel.

The shooting occurred in a hotel room early to-day after what was said by police to be an argument over a senior amateur hockey game here last night. Four other persons were held as material witnesses.

Police said witnesses told them Pecania drew a revolver during the argument and that during a struggle with George Pavich, Schumacher, the weapon discharged twice. The first bullet lodged in the ceiling and the second struck Pecania in the abdomen.

Others in the room were Mrs. Mary Pecania, wife of the wounded man; Mary Serdar, Schumacher, and Michael Martin, Winnipeg. Police found a revolver on a roof outside the hotel room window.

Police said that following the shooting, Pecania collapsed on a bed while Pavish went for medical assistance. A few minutes later, Pecania made his way to an elevator and asked to be taken to the main floor. The operator, Frank Gregg, noticed blood oozing from Pecania's clothing and assisted him into the office of the manager. He was then removed to hospital.

The argument was said to have started over a Kirkland Lake-Toronto Goodyears hockey game, won by Toronto. The five involved were in Toronto to see the game.

Justice And Power Britain's Aim And High Ideal, Halifax Says

SUNDERLAND, England, March 14.—(CP)—Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, in his latest review of Great Britain's foreign policy, declared the government's aims are to combine justice and power.

Lord Halifax in an address here last night turned to an idea of Blaise Pascal, 17th century philosopher and mathematician, as a basis for his statement.

He quoted Pascal's saying: "Justice without power is unavailing; power without justice is tyrannical. We must therefore combine justice and power, making what is just strong and what is strong just."

The foreign secretary added: "No higher ideal could be set before the world, and his majesty's government will do their best to further the conditions in which it may be realized.

Ask For Respect

"We do not seek to intefere with other nations, but we do ask for the same respect in return and our strength is the only solid guarantee that we shall have it."

Lord Halifax pledged the government to the dual task of working for peace and making the country as strong as circumstances demand.

Britain will take advantage of every opoprtunity, he said, "of a friendly and sincere approach to, or by, governments or other countries which may hold a real promise of removing misunderstandings or suspicion and so strengthening the forces that make for peace."

Lord Halifax also declared that Britain has no intention of utilizing its vast armaments to serve as international policeman.

Salesman Nabbed For Huge Fraud

Queen Announces Colors For Her Canadian Trip

London, March 14 (CP Cable)

THE British Color Council announced today that the Queen has chosen two colors in connection with the royal visit to Canada and the United States.

They are Regina Blue, inspired by the name of the capital of Saskatchewan; and Mayflower Lilac, inspired by the name of the ship of the Pilgrim Fathers.

An official of the British Broadcasting Corporation said the colors "will in all probability" be embodied in the Queen's wardrobe for her Canadian tour.

Drew Demands All Papers

TORONTO, March 14 (CP)—After preparing the ground for a battle royal in a preliminary skirmish, Premier Mitchell Hepburn and Col. George A. Drew, Conservative leader, will "go to the mat" today, as the premier expressed it, in the Ontario legislature throne speech debate.

The two clashed yesterday during discussion of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, giant Northern Ontario industrial development whose affairs have been in the courts since 1932.

Among the exchanges were Col. Drew's urge to Mr. Hepburn to remember he was not "the lord high executioner of this assembly" and the premier's remark Col. Drew was "living up to his reputation of having a very suspicious mind." The premier also crossed swords with his former attorney-general, Arthur Roebuck (Lib. Toronto-Bellwoods).

As the debate ended Col. Drew gave notice of motion for the tabling of all papers relating to the Abitibi Company since Jan. 1, 1937. The premier rejected Col. Drew's request it go on the order paper as a motion, instead of notice of one.

Hungary Lays Ultimatum BeforePrague

Troops Must Be Out Of Ukraine By Tomorrow

BUDAPEST, March 14.—(AP). — Hungary to-day sent an ultimatum to the Pargue government demanding the evacuation of Carpatho-Ukraine by all Czech troops.

The ultimatum demanded the evacuation of the troops within 24 hours.

The action followed quickly a report by the official Hungarian news Agency that fighting occurred at several points on the Hungarian-Carpatho-Ukraine frontier between Hungarian and Czecho-Slovak troops.

The ultimatum was handed to the Czech Minister in Budapest and demanded:

1. The immediate release of all Hungarian prisoners in Carpatho-Ukraine, the easternmost part of Czecho-Slovakia.

2. An immediate end to the "persecution" of Hungarians.

3. Weapons to be given immediately to Hungarian "self-defence" formations in Carpatho-Ukraine.

As the ultimatum was delivered, Hungarian troop reinforcements, including 60,000 reservists, were moving toward the Carpatho-Ukraine frontier.

Hungarian troops were officially acknowledged to have entered Carpatho-Ukraine and reliable sources said they had penetrated a distance of about 19 miles this afternoon.

While the start of the evacuation was demanded within 24 hours, the ultimatum gave the Prague government 12 hours to fulfil the other conditions. The ultimatum was timed 3 p.m. (9 a.m. EST)

Hungarian detachments were said by the Hungarian News Agency to have taken Podhering, south of Munkacs, and captured a Czech detachment, which it blamed for starting the fighting between Hungarian and Czech troops Early today, the Agency said, Czech border forces began unexpectedly to fire across the frontier near Munkacs. Afterward Hungarian soldiers returned the fire, the Agency dispatches said, and then crossed the frontier.

Britain Can Do Nothing For Czechs In Crisis, Chamberlain Says

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 14 (CP Cable).—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today there had been no circumstances in Czecho-Slovakia compelling Great Britain to implement the guarantee of the Czech frontiers proposed at Munich.

The Prime Minister denied opposition taunts that Great Britain was disinterested in Central Europe but declared there was nothing Britain could do in the Czecho-Slovak crisis.

Any guarantee Britain may have made relating to Czecho-Slovak, Mr. Chamberlain asserted, was one "against unprovoked aggression against the frontiers of Czecho-Slovakia and no such aggression has taken place."

Replying to a question by Clement Attlee, leader of the Opposition, the Prime Minister said information from the British Minister at Prague indicated the situation at Bratislava was "outwardly calm" despite a number of clashes with members of the German minority elsewhere in Czecho-Slovakia.

No Information.

Mr. Chamberlain said he had no information regarding the talk with Chancellor Hitler of Premier Joseph Tiso of Slovakia.

He added he also had no official confirmation of news that the Czech Government had resigned and the independence of Slovakia proclaimed under a new government headed by Dr. Tiso.

Mr. Attlee asked whether the government would consult with other states regarding the "territorial integrity of Czecho-Slovakia."

"The question of any action has not yet arisen," Mr. Chamberlain answered.

Mr. Attlee pressed the question, asking if an attempt were made to separate Slovakia from the rest of Czecho-Slovakia, "is not His Majesty's government bound by guarantees under the Munich agreement to have a very close interest in anything which concerns the in-

Events As They Moved Rapid Fire Today Across The Changing Map Of Europe

(By the Canadian Press.)

Czecho-Slovakia fell apart today under pressure from Germany.

The Prague Government formally dissolved the Federal state a few hours after Slovakia, with Chancellor Hitler's support, withdrew from the Republic created by Great War treaties out of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire.

Hungary sent an ultimatum demanding all Czech troops get out of the disintegrating republic's third component part, the Carpatha-Ukraine region, wedged between Hungary and Poland.

Hungary reported her troops already were 19 miles inside the Carpatho-Ukraine frontier and that fighting had broken out while more troops, including 60,000 reserves, were being sent to the border.

The Slovak Parliament voted independence as reliable Berlin reports said German troops were ready to march into Czecho-Slovakia if Parliament failed to act.

Only Two Provinces.

The country apparently was unable to withstand the blow of the Munich and Vienna accords which lopped off sections for Germany, Poland and Hungary.

That those three nations would gain further territory now at Czecho-Slovakia's expense was the forecast of a spokesman for Fascist Italy, Germany's axis partner.

In London, Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons the situation in Czecho Slovakia did not compel Britain to implement the guarantee of the Czech frontiers proposed at Munich. Any guarantee Britain may have made was "against unprovoked aggression against the frontiers of Czecho-Slovakia and no such aggression has taken place," he added.

Fear Hungary.

The Slovak declaration of independence was voted in a tense session of Parliament at Bratislava called after Slovak leaders conferred with Hitler in Berlin. Joseph Tiso, ousted last week by the Prague government, was named Premier of the new state.

Prague feared the Carpatho-Ukraine district, probably too weak to establish independence, would be absorbed by Hungary to realize a Polish-Hungarian dream for a common frontier.

The war-born republic thus would be reduced from the 54,244 square miles united as a nation by the Great War treaties to approximately 18,158 square miles.

The Czecho-Slovak government headed by Premier Rudolf Beran resigned in the face of the Slovak crisis while rumors spread in Prague that Germany intended to occupy several Czech cities.

Tariff Board Head Dies At Ottawa

OTTAWA, March 14. —(C. P.)— Hon. George H. Sedgewick, chairman of the tariff board, died at his home here today of a heart attack. He was 61 years old.

A former judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario, Mr. Sedgewick was appointed chairman of the tariff board in 1933 by the Bennett government. He ended a short career on the bench to take the appointment.

An outstanding corporation lawyer, Mr. Sedgwick was a member of the Toronto firm of Fasken, Cowan and Sedgewick before his appaintment to the bench.

He considered one of his greatest accomplishments the success of a task he undertook shortly after his appointment to the tariff board. The Empire Trade Agreements negotiated in Ottawa in 1932 had left British textile interests unsatisfied with their chances in the Canadian market. Mr. Sedgewick went to England and succeeded in reaching agreements which gave the British interests an opportunitiy to sell in Canada and still preserved the benefits accruing to Canadian textile interests from the treaty.

Cabinet Quits When Hitler Helps Slovaks To Secede And Form Puppet State

Long-Awaited Central European Emergency Arises In Ukraine; Germany Plays Dominant Role

PRAGUE, March 14 (AP).—The Prague Government announced at 3 p.m. (9 a.m. E.S.T.) today the formal dissolution of the Federal Czecho-Slovak State, from which Slovakia already had declared its independence.

Thus the republic created at the Versailles Peace Conference ended its existence. It collapsed after nearly six months of disintegration which followed the September 29 accord of Munich, where the nation was partitioned to keep Europe from a general war.

The government's announcement was the first official notice the Czech people had of the new situation although the Czecho-Slovak Cabinet earlier had resigned.

Slovakia declared its independence today under assurances of protection from Chancellor Hitler.

A second section of the three-part state, Carpatho-Ukraine, was partially occupied by Hungarian troops and Hungary sent an ultimatum demanding evacuation of all Czech soldiers from that section.

"We worked together 20 years with the Slovaks and certainly not to the detriment of the Slovaks," the government announcement said. "That is attested to by flourishing cities and towns in Slovakia. The State Federation is dissolved. This act leaves every Czech without enmity or hate. We wish them (the Slovaks) a happy future. The new situation also changes matters in Prague. The government will take the necessary steps called for by the new situation."

The announcement ended with a call for "discipline and understanding."

Czecho-Slovakia apparently could not survive the amputations of last October and November, when large parts of a once-thriving republic were taken by Germany, Poland and Hungary.

These were the steps today that led up to the announcement of dissolution:

President Emil Hacha, under pressure from Chancellor Hitler, convened the Slovak parliament;

The Czecho-Slovak cabinet of Rudolf Beran drew the consequences from this secession and resigned.

The Czech unity party was summoned for a conference to decide what to do next in the confused state;

Tiso appealed to Hitler for help against the Czechs, whose troops

Robbers Spare Farm Worker

HASTINGS, March 14.—Robert Glass, farm youth of the Elgin district, seems to have softened the hearts of three would-be thugs who accosted him on a lonely section of the country road as he walked home Sunday night. The youth revealed that three men drove up behind him and invited him to ride along with them until he reached his place of abode but suspecting they wanted him in the car for other purposes, he put up the excuse that a short cut through the fields would take him home as quickly as they could. They became persistent in their demands but the youth also was just as insistent and they finally drove down the road.

He was not at peace long, however, for they seem to have cricled a concession and pulled up alongside the young man again—and again they requested him to ride with them but again he refused. The two men, who had got out of the car, walked

Deputation Asks Pasteurization Law Lifted

TORONTO, Mar. 14 — (CP). — People in the rural areas of Elgin County are "up in arms" about the regulation efective in the county since February 1 requiring all milk sold for human consumption to be pasteurized, Hon. Harold J. Kirby, Minister of Health, was told to-day by a deputation.

The deputation asked the lifting of the regulation for six months or a year. Mr. Kirby said he would pas sthe representations to the Cabinet Council.

"I am inclined to agree that an educational campaign might have straightened out some of the details of the regulation," he said, declaring there had been no attempt to single out Elgin County, the only county to be put under the regulations to date as a unit. Other counties would be included in an Order-in-Council to be published in a month or so.

People Indignant.

"The people are very indignant up there as you know and that is Mitch's own riding," Stewart Brown, ex-Warden, said. "Quite a few thoughts are running through their minds. Why was Elgin singled out?"

Mr. Kirby said he couldn't agree Elgin was singled out. It happened to be a convenient unit. It was an ideal county in which to take in all the townships at once.

"The people never had a chance to say if they wanted it," said Mr. Brown.

Bootlegging of milk was rampant in areas not served by regular milk deliveries, the deputation said. Law abiding farmers wouldn't sell raw milk, but their more unscrupulous neighbors had no hesitation in doing so. "We think too much of Mitch to have this stigma against him," said Mr. Moore.

Warden Pineo said such a case was Port Bruce. There were no milk deliveries there in the winter, the licensed distributor for the area being unwilling to start deliveries until the summer cottages arrived. Meanwhile the eight or 10 families permanently resident in the village had to depend either on canned milk or assist in law violatings by purchas-

Four Men Burned In Garage Fire

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP).—William Morton, 22, was in critical condition at his home in suburban Mount Albert to-day following a fire in a garage in which he and three other men were burned. Fire loss was placed at $4,000.

Morton was burned when he lifted the lid of a stove in the garage last night and flames set the building afire. Morton's brother, Charles, pulled him outside and rolled him in snow, but the man's condition was so critical it was not considered safe to remove him to hospital.

Charles Morton suffered burned hands in rescuing his brother, while James and Bruce Rolling, brothers, were also burned. It was believed flames from the stove set fire to gasoline fumes. So quickly did the fire break out William Morton was alight "from head to foot" in a second, Charles said.

Churchill Sees Britain Attacked By Soldiers Dropped From Planes

LONDON, March 14 (CP Cable) —Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today that the decision of the war office to provide 19 divisions for overseas service if necessary was "the first instalment of the bill for Munich."

The Tory rebel, speaking at the report stage of the army estimates, commended the decision as "better late than never."

He said Britain would have to face the possibility in war of a parachute invasion of "4,000 or 5,000 men being dropped into the country from aeroplanes" to attack munitions factories.

Had the decision regarding the 19 divisions been taken last year and the decision to equip the territorials with regular army equipment been taken earlier probably "We should not be prey to the gnawing anxiety" which now existed, Mr. Churchill declared.

Detective Takes Lost Child Home Brings Back Father On Old Charge

HAMILTON, March 14.—(CP) —When Detective Stanley Gaylard took a lost child home yesterday, he brought the child's father back to the police station with him. Russell Brown, 35, the father, appeared for sentence today on a five-year-old charge of theft of tires.

Following Brown's conviction almost five years ago, he was remanded for sentence until Dec. 14, 1934, when he was to appear in court. He failed to do so and a warrant was issued for his arrest. He was not seen by local police until yesterday when Detective Gaylard took the child home.

"I am told that he suffered from an accident in the west and was in the general hospital at Winnipeg when he was supposed to appear here," the officer told the court. "At that time he was not expected to live."

"I thought I was on suspended sentence," the accused man explained. "I was run over by a tractor and was seriously injured and have spent considerable time in hospital since then. I have kept out of trouble during that time."

"I am content with the explanation of the accused," said Harvey F. McCulloch, assistant crown attorney.

"I think the ends of justice will be served if the whole affair is adjourned indefinitely," said the magistrate. "You can see, however, that the law has a long arm and that it never sleeps."

Recalls Day W. G. Morrow Came To Town

Archie Moore was probably the first boy the late George Morrow met in Peterboro.

"It was the day the Morrow family moved into town from Cavan township, pulling away from the farm for keeps," Mr. Moore told the Examiner last night as he sat behind the counter of the "Hall of Wisdom" tobacco shop on Hunter street.

"I was delivering parcels at that time for T. W. Robinson, who kept a grocery store where Hamilton's is now located on Simcoe street. I remember the incident of that summer day as clearly as if it were yesterday, but I'm hazy about the year. We got an order to take out to William Morrow's place on Weller street, and the reason I remember it was that it was a mighty big order. You see they were just moving into the city, and they needed a lot of things, groceries, and wash tubs and pans and soap, a rig load of stuff. Everybody bought wash tubs in those days, and wash boards. That's all the people had for wash day.

Met Chubby Boy.

Well, anyway, it was such a big load of stuff that when I got there George helped me to unload it. I can remember him as a chubby bit of a lad, not tall for his age, although he grew to be quite a tall man. Last summer he asked me if I remembered the first day I met him, and I said I certainly did. There were George and his three sisters. But, whether he was seven years old or nine at that time, I'm not certain. If he was seven, that was sixty-two years ago. I know I was five or six years older than he, something like that.

You know about what the conversation of boys is likely to be. I remember I asked him where he had come from, and when he said from Cavan I asked him if he liked horses, because I saw one around the yard, and I liked horses myself. So, it is altogether likely that I was the first acquaintance George Morrow made in Peterboro."

In Curling Battles.

The two boys went their separate ways through life in Peterboro, and in later years their friendship was strengthened through their association as members of the curling club. W. G. Morrow won the Morrow cup, which he had given to the club for annual competition, on three different occasions, in the bonspiels of 1922, 1925 and 1929, when curlers came here from all over Central Ontario, Claremont, Toronto, Markham, Unionville, Uxbridge, Fenelon Falls, Oshawa, Port Hope, Cobourg and so on.

In the first two victories, Mr. Morrow's rink was composed of himself as skip, W. H. (Bill) Taylor as vice-skip, Archie Moore playing second, and Manson Comstock lead. And that was an exceptionally strong rink. It was Manse Comstock's job to make fairly sure of getting his two rocks into the rings; then Archie specialized in keeping the first of the opposing rink's rocks away from the counting zone, incidentally trying to leave his own inside the lines, "the chap and he game"; Bill Taylor was a mighty good vice-skip with a draw shot controlled so expertly he could lay it on the button; and George Morrow followed in the clean-up position, not particularly good at the draw game, although he could hold up his own with most of them, with a good fast stone, and also strong on what curlers call the raise.

In one of these years the Morrow rink played fourteen games and won thirteen, according to Mr. Moore's memory. Perhaps it was in 1922 when they won the Morrow Cup and the Grand Challenge prize and it was a scratch rink picked up by Ross Dobbin that eliminated them from one of the major contests.

Bonspiel Chairman.

Then in 1929, Mr. Morrow still had Manse Comstock playing first stone, Jim Richmond was second, J. Wells-Fraser pas vice-skip, and the chairman of the bonspiel committee was in the director's position. As long as those open bonspiels were carried on as they were some years ago with three major competitions and a consolation series, George Morrow was chairman of the bonspiel committee. No one ever thought of any one else taking on that job, and Mr. Morrow was so wrapped up in the game, and enjoyed himself so much at the rink, especially during bonspiels when they used to run three and four days, and until all hours in the morning, that the job just naturally devolved to him.

"I never had a cross word with George Morrow," Mr. Moore added. "Yes, I remember one night on No. 3 ice, I rolled him a bit. He had two stones against him, and he called for the out-turn to take the inner one out. From where I was standing I figured that if I played the in-turn I'd get both those stones. So that's what I played, and I missed both of them. I walked up to the skip's end of the rink, and George says to me: "You know I didn't ask for that in-turn?" that was all, but he certainly didn't like it, and I didn't blame him a bit. That's the way I'd have felt, because a curler should play the shot that's called, or at least talk it over with the skip.

No Bills To Pay.

I used to go out of town on Mr. Morrow's rink, and I don't think he ever let us pay our hotel bills. When we'd be three days at Oshawa and go to settle up, we'd be told that there was nothing against us. George Morrow was a fine curler, a gentleman on the ice, a grand skip, and the type of man that does a lot to make a curling club successful. The boys will miss him down there on Charlotte street.

There used to be an old convention at the rink, especially in No. 8, that was the gallery behind the glass, that "when George starts whistling he's in a tough spot." The spectators following a Morrow game knew from many an experience that if they heard the Morrow whistle they didn't have to look at the score board. George was down, or he was up against an end that called for a delicate shot, and following an old human custom he was probably whistling to keep up his courage.

Pillars of the Club.

The curlers in a spirit of appreciation some years ago had a group arrangement made of four of its most helpful members: Robert Neill, W. G. Morrow, Tom Brightman and T. Frank Matthews, and the inscription they wrote on it was this tribute: "The fathers of the Curling Rink Company, to whose foresight and financial assistance the Peterboro Curling Club are greatly indebted for their present curling facilities." Only Frank Matthews has survived the nibbling years.

Japan's foreign trade in January was larger than a year earlier.

Clarence Darrow Fails To Return From Death

DETROIT, March 14. —(C. P.). — Claude D. Noble, Detroit magician, said today he was convinced it was impossible to communicate with the dead after an experiment he carried out here to communicate with the late Clarence Darrow.

Noble said Darrow, the great nonconformist lawyer from Chicago, made a pact to attempt to communicate with Noble here a year to the minute after Darrow's death.

Newspaper men joined Noble for the experiment, but, said Noble, no manifestation was evident.

Fear Of Floods Worries Lakefield Folk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 14. — One of the chief occupations amongst Lakefield citizens these days is trying to figure out how kind Providence or Mother Nature or the Weatherman (or whoever looks after such things) will dispose of the great quantities of snow which the winter has brought without thrusting the district into a flood. Snow is deeper now than it has been in Lakefield for some years, taking into consideration the lateness of the season, and there is considerable speculation as to what roads, etc., will be like if a continuous thaw follows in the wake of the past few weeks' stormy weather and drifting snow.

Old-timers in the vicinity, however, tell us that there is nothing to worry about for there is nothing unusual about the amount of snow we have had this season. "But it is certainly staying with us longer than usual," they admit.

Miss Edna Blewett of Smith Township reported to-day that drifts measured by Evans Blewett on the Buckhorn Road at the fingerboard turn near Wellie Pearson's residence were nine feet high— which may not, of course, have been at all unusual "in the good old days." But it sounds plenty high for practical purposes, such as wading through on one's way to school.

still were occupying Bratislava and other Slovak centres;

Hungarians were reported to have penetrated 18 miles into Carpatho-Ukraine , esatermost section of Czecho-Slovakia;

From German language "isles"—sections with in the Czech part of the Republic where German is the chief language—came appeals to Hitler for "delivery from the Czech terror."

All this happened just a year after Hitler joined Austria and Germany.

Thus Hitler, who year after year has surprised the world during the month of March, used this month to change the map of Europe still further and to extend German domination eastward.

While Czecho-Slovakia was convulsed with her internal crisis, German troops began to march toward her borders—ready to enforce Hitler's will by arms.

They were clogging the main military roads leading from Dresden and Leipzig toward Bohemia, and from Vienna toward Bratislava and Brno.

Jews in Bohemia and Moravia—the section of Czecho-Slovakia under domination of Prague—were asking whether they had better get out in a hurry before Hitler took charge. Quarters close to the Czech government said Hitler had asked four things from Prague:—

1. That no obstruction to Slovak independence be made;

2. That Bohemia and Moravia form a customs and monetary union with Germany;

3. Complete disarmament of Czecho-Slovak military forces;

4. Introduction of Germany's Nuremberg anti-Jewish laws.

These same quarters said Hitler had promised Tiso support for Slovak claims for a large slice of Moravia, apparently with the object of providing the new Slovak State with some industries. The territory would include Zlin, where the great Bata shoe factory is located.

In Germany the public was being prepared for a German expedition into Bohemia and Moravia. German life, the people were being told by press and radio, was no longer safe in the little neighbor state. Hitler, as protector of Germans everywhere —so the argument ran—could not stand idly by His task was described as ensuring German security.

(Before Munich, the post-war Czecho-Slovak republic which was created from the former Austro-Hungarian Empire, had 54,244 square miles of territory and 15,000,000 population. The Munich partition and subsequent adjustments gave Germany 10,800 square miles and 3,600,000 population; Poland 400 square miles and 241,000 population, and Hungary 4,495 square miles and 1,027,000 population.

(The Republic emerged from this dismemberment with a third of its territory and a third of its population gone. Today it lost 14,600 square miles and 2,450,000 population. If Carpatho-Ukraine also is lost to Prague—4,206 square miles and 552,124 population—the remaining Bohemia-Moravia area of 18,158 square miles would have a population of 6,804,860.

tegrity of the remainder of the Czecho-Slovak state?"

Chamberlain Hesitates

The prime minister, while unwilling to commit himself on the first part of the question, said: "Assuming it be true, it would not be ground from bringing into force the guarantee."

When Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal leader, asked "does the government still regard itself under moral obligation in regard to the guarantee," Mr. Chamberlain replied: "The position in that respect has not undergone any change."

Mr. Attlee then asked whether the British government had consulted concerning the Czech crisis with representatives of the Czech or French governments, or any other guarantor.

The prime minister reiterated the proposed guarantee covered unprovoked aggression and "no such aggression has yet taken place."

The proposed guarantee referred to by the prime minister has never been made binding, official sources state. Such a guarantee was suggested at the time of the Munich settlement but since then the Czecho-Slovak government has not asked Britain to give a binding guarantee.

Even if the British governmnt took the view that a "moral guarantee" was in effect, it would be concerned with unprovoked aggression against Czecho-Slovakia and not the secession of component parts.

never be sufficient for a national coast-to-coast system," he said.

He recalled that last year he had given a list of licence fees in other countries and had repeated the list in his radio address to the Canadian radio public during the year. In terms of Canadian currency, New Zealand listeners paid $6.06, Australians $3.96, Germans $5.71, Japanese $2.99, Newfoundlanders $2.00, Moroccans $1.95, French $2.95, Belgians $2.02, and British $2.43.

Increase Justified.

"Last year we showed to the satisfaction of the Government, to the satisfaction of the committee, to the satisfaction of the listener that an increased fee was necessary," Mr. Brockington said.

The whole license fee, he said, "amounts to a packet of gum a week or a package of cigarettes a month."

All the dissatisfaction and objections in connection with the licence fees had come from the same quarters, from Toronto, Western Ontario, and Montreal, from the districts best served by Canadian and United States private stations and by networks from across the border. But listeners in the West and in the Maritimes must get their service from the C.B.C.

Members Agree To Regulate Campaign Costs

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP)—All parties in the House of Commons are in agreement that campaign funds are necessary but all are willing to have such funds regulated and limited so that election costs may be lowered. A resolution to that end was unanimously adopted in the House last night.

The same special committee which investigated electoral matters during the last two sessions was re-consisted on motion of Pensions Minister Power with instructions to study methods of re-distribution as well as the methods by which campaign funds may be traced, expenditures checked, cost of elections reduced and the amount to be spent by a candidate limited.

An amendment moved by Rene Pelletier (S.C. Peace River) instructing the committee to examine also the source and disposition of campaign fund contributions of the last 10 years was ruled out of order.

Absentee Votes Up

An effort by Grant MacNeil (C.C.F. Vancouver North) and M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) to have the reference widened so that the committee might consider methods of enabling lumbermen, miners, seamen and fishermen to register absentee votes, succeeded when the government adopted the amendment as its own.

When Mr. MacNeil first moved this amendment it was ruled out of order by Speaker Casgrain. The C.C.F. member apealed from the speaker's decision but the House upheld Mr. Casgrain by a vote of 115 to 26. Mr. Coldwell then put the amendment again in a form that overcame technical difficulties and the government accepted it.

The original reference to the committee instructed it to report on 1—The methods used to effect a redistribution of electoral districts in Canada and in other countries and to make suggestions to the House. 2—Methods whereby A—The source and disposition of sums received and expended promoting the return of members of the House of Commons may be readily traceable; B—Publicity may be given to all receipts and expenditures in connection therewith; C—The cost of elections to candidates may be reduced; D—The amount that may be spent by or on behalf of a candidate in his election campaign may be limited.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, March 14—(CP). — Scattered liquidation following disappointing action at Liverpool and general lack of support pushed futures prices lower in fairly active session on Winnipeg wheat market to-day. Final quotations were ½ to ¾ cent lower, with May at 59¾, July 60⅝ to ½, and October 61⅛ to ¼ cents.

Resting orders were encountered on the decline, but values held close to bottom levels as new seasonal lows were recorded in the May and October positions. Some of the resting orders appeared to be a covering of old export business. Canadian wheat exports were confined to a few loads worked from the Atlantic seaboard.

Market Review

TORONTO, March 14 — (CP). — Europe's troubles had a mildly depressing effect on the stock market to-day and prices were marked down in the early stage. There was a slight tendency to recover in the late afternoon, especially in the mining divisions, but trade continued light. Aggregate turnover was little better than 400,000 shares.

The market had a weak opening, presumably on the news of rapid developments in Central Europe, and all indices except the Western oil indicator were down at noon. The market took a less disturbed view of events as the session advanced, and by early afternoon a slow recovery was under way.

Lake Shore came back to 42½ from a morning low of 40 and was only ¼-point net down from the last close. Wright-Hargreaves posted a net gain and some of the cheaper golds were firm. Nickel was the weakest of the big base metals. In the Western oil group Okalta, Davies and Calgary-Edmonton weakened 1 to 3 cents.

Changes in the industrial section were mainly in minor fractions. Senior oils, foods, steel, implement and utility issues were mainly steady. Abitibi issues weakened narrowly.

WALL STREET CLOSE

NEW YORK, March 14—(AP). — Buying support came into the stock market to-day, but many issues were neglected at lower levels.

With dealings even slower than in Monday's session—transfers were at the rate of approximately 600,000 shares—favorites were lifted fractions to around a point. Extreme gains, however, were shaded near the final hour.

Canadian issues moved erratically. Fractional gains were posted by Dominion Stores and Distillers, while losses of as much were showing for Dome, McIntyre Porcupine and Lake Shore. Canada 4s were ignored.

Stocks up the greater part of the time—some eventually slipped—included U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Consolidated Aircraft, Anaconda American Smelting, Union Carbide, Dow Chemical, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Backward were Eastman Kodak, Du Pont, Philip Morris and Sears Roebuck.

Quebec Editor Dies

QUEBEC, March 14—(CP).—Dr. Jules Dorion, 68, editor-in-chief of L'Action Catholique, Quebec French-language daily newspaper, died yesterday.

Dr. Dorion, one of the province's most eminent French-Canadian journalists, practised his medical profession here for 14 years until he joined the staff of L'Action Catholique 32 years ago.

Business Girls Discuss Topics Of General Interest

Members of the Junior Business and Professional Women's Club turned public speakers last evening at their March business meeting, held in the club rooms. Each in turn talked for several minutes on some topic of general interest. Among the outstanding speakers were Miss Lilian Robson, who spoke on Hobbies, the most useless as compared with the beneficial; Miss Mary Walker, who commented on the Toronto Skating Carnival; Miss Margaret Smart, who gave a description of Sun Valley, the American St. Moritz; Miss Connie Legon, filling doughnuts with jam; Miss Gladys Gerrard, a review of a recent address given by Miss Elizabeth Walker urging the sending of a magazines to the west; Miss Sally Kirby, viewing human nature behind a candy counter; Miss Betty Lytle, comments on the book, "With Malice Towards Some." It was decided to follow up these talks at future meetings with discussions on various vocations.

Plans were made for a rummage sale to be held on April 1, arrangements to be in charge of Miss Margaret Preston and Miss Connie Legon. Members having articles for sale were asked to send them to the club rooms or communicate with either of the conveners.

A telephone committee in charge of Miss Mildred Goheen and Miss Mary Walker was appointed to advise each member of coming meetings, whether business or social. Plans for a definite objective were discussed, and the club decided to help further the interests of general charitable organizations until a definite line of welfare work has been decided upon. Sandwiches and coffee were served after the meeting.

Members Of St. John's Women's Auxiliary Meet

The virtues and faithful qualities of outsanding Bible characters were outlined in an interesting talk given by Canon W. P. Robertson at a meeting of th Evening Branch of St. John's Women's Auxiliary Monday evening in the church parlors. Mrs. George Downer presided.

A portion of the study book on India was read by Mrs. Collis, and announcement was made that the members hoped to secure a speaker for the next monthly meeting to speak on the subject of India. Announcement was also made that the business meeting in April would be held one week later owing to the intervention of the Easter holiday. A new member was welcomed to the branch. After a bible reading given by Mrs. J. Bell, reports were given by the treasurer, the secretary, Dorcas convener, extra-cent-a-day convener. Coresponidence which included messages of thanks from the sick who had received flowers was also read.

The meeting closed with the member's prayer, and afterwards quilting was done by several Branch members.

Their attendants were Miss H. E. Riseborough and A. F. MacMillan of Windsor.

Home and School Association News

CENTRAL HOME AND SCHOOL.

Mrs. J. H. Quirt presided at the March meeting of Central Home and School Association, held at the school on Monday evening. Mr. A. R. Kennedy was guest speaker, and received the appreciation of the members for an interesting comparison of old and new modes of living. The speaker emphasized the point that the system of education had to change to fit the times. Education nowadays has to be practical. A desire for learning should be created in youth so that their education will continue after they leave school.

Mrs. J. J. Craig read an interesting article, entitled, "A Teacher's Challenge to Parents," from a current magazine.

A short musical program included a recitation, "Chicken Pie," by Jackie Gray; a vocal selection of nursery rhymes was sung by Billy Carruthers; a piano duet by Doreen Wellwood and Norma Gray.

A vote of thanks was extended to the speakers and other artists by Mrs. Quirt.

The attendance banner went to Mr. Nicholls' room.

Mrs. J. H. Quirt was appointed as delegate from Central to attend the Home and School convention in Toronto.

The next regular meeting of the Association will be held on Monday, April 17th.

Intimation was made of the meeting in the Collegiate auditorium on March 27th, when K. S. Wightman will speak on "Conflicting Theories of Education." Parents are requested to attend.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, Mrs. A. H. Radford presiding at the piano.

Dr. Maude Abbott Speaks To University Women

The second annual banquet of the University Women's Club was held Monday evening at the Empress Hotel, with about eighty members and guests present.

Dr. Maude E. Abbott, one of Canada's most distinguished women, was guest speaker, and was graciously presented by Dr. Agnes K. Moffat, who outlined Dr. Abbott's outstanding career. Dr. Abbott received her Medical Degree from Bishop's College in 1894, and her LL.D. from McGill in 1936. She has been assistant professor of Medical Research at McGill since 1923, as well as curator of the Medical Museum. She is an F.R.C.P., Canada, and Edinburgh conferred on her the degree of L.R.C.P. Lately she has had the distinction of having two scholarships founded in her honor.

The circumstances leading up to her acquaintance with Sir William Osler, whose remarkable career was the subject of her address, were explained briefly by Dr. Abbott, who spoke of her work as curator of the Medical Museum of McGill University, and of how she consulted Sir William Osler, in 1899, about the history and nature of an extraordinary specimen of a congenital heart lesson in the McGill Museum. He encouraged her, as he did all his students, to pursue the path of work.

Sir William Osler's father served with the British Navy in different parts of the Empire, and when ready for service was called back to England. He was then induced to study for the clergy. Appeals came from Canada for missionaries, and he married a London girl, and in 1837 he and his wife came to the "wilds of Ontario," then the extensive district around Lake Simcoe, and settled at Bondhead on the old Penetang Road. After twenty years' service here, the Oslers moved to Dundas. The youngest son, William, was then seven years of age. He received his public school education in the Dundas, Barrie and Weston Grammar Schools. In the last school he came under the influence of Father Johnston, a born naturalist. Osler soon became interested in plant history and used the microscope extensively in his outdoor studies. Thus he was thoroughly grounded in histological research in early youth, said Dr. Abbott. This, and his work with pathological specimens, laid the foundation of his later career.

In his nineteenth year he entered the Arts course at Trinity College, Toronto, to prepare for a career in theology. Here he came under the influence of John Bavell and resolved to study medicine. He graduated from McGill in medicine in the year 1872. He studied at Edinburgh, and on his return was invited to lecture at McGill, and six months later, at the age of twenty-six, was appointed Professor of Institutes of Medicine. In 1876 he was appointed pathologist for the Montreal Hospital. This work laid the foundation for his study in clinical medicine. In 1884 Dr. Osler went to the University of Pennsylvania as Professor of Clinical Medicine; in 1899 he accepted an offer from the Johns Hopkins University to become Professor of Medicine there. In 1905 he was appointed Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford University, which post he held until his death in 1919.

Sir William Osler has written widely and authoritatively on nearly every aspect of medicine, and a number of his books and articles were spoken of by Dr. Abbott, who mentioned particularly "The Principles and Practices of Medicine," a book which made an enormous impression, and which was written from material gathered from all his old observations, his studies as a medical undergraduate, and all other references he could find. This book is still regarded as a great one, and was the first book of its kind to introduce the student to bacteriology, and the first time a book of its type had been regarded as a literary masterpiece. Its influence, also, made the Rockefeller Foundation interested in clinical medicine.

Sir Willia Osler has 1,600 original articles to his credit. As the culmination of his work, he was made president of the English Classical Association, a great honor to a medical man. His ashes lie behind a plaque in the Medical library of McGill University.

A sincere vote of thanks was expressed to the speaker by Miss Park, and seconded by Dr. J. M. McCulloch, who had known Osler, and who spoke of him as a man with the great gift of being able to put people immediately at their ease. Dr. McCulloch also paid tribute to Dr. Abbott for her excellent lectures.

Miss Isobell Weddell sang two numbers, with Gwen Craw at the piano.

DOROTHY DIX

Tact Needs To Be Exercised In The Management Of Old Parents In The Home, But There Should Also Be The Element Of Kindly Firmness.

DEAR MISS DIX—Five years ago my wife's mother, who is a helpless invalid, came to live with us. My salary is small and this makes it very difficult for us to take care of her. Lately my wife has been offered a good job which will pay more than I earn and she is very anxious to take it, but her mother won't consider having a servant to take care of her. She demands my wife's personal attention. As I am well acquainted with household duties, my wife suggests that we change places and I stay at home with her mother, while she goes out to business. In other words, she wants to wear the pants. Is such a plan likely to succeed? Can a man get used to such a drastic change? What do you think is the wisest solution of the problem?—G. C. T.

ANSWER:

The only sensible solution of the problem is for you to keep on with your job, for your wife to take the good place that is offered her and for you to hire a practical nurse who will take care of Mother-in-Law and do the housework.

Don't listen to your mother-in-law's objection and to her declaration that she will never permit hired hands to touch her, and that nobody can do anything to please her except her daughter. Just as soon as she finds out how much more skillful a trained nurse is than an amateur and especially when she comes to enjoying the additional comforts that a larger income will bring her, she will be pleased as Punch.

Old people—and especially sick old people—nearly always get selfish and cranky and tyrannical. And it is just as foolish to give in to their whims when they are unreasonable as it is to be ruled by a baby. In their minds they are children again, and they need to be ruled gently and kindly, but firmly, like children.

I have known so many tragedies that were the result of a whole family being dominated by a senile old woman. I know of one family in which neither the sons nor daughters have ever been allowed to take any part in society because Mother was afraid that they might meet some man or girl with whom they might fall in love and marry and leave her. I know one beautiful girl who spent her life in the kitchen because Mother would not eat anything that Mary didn't cook. I know two enterprising girls who started a small hotel, but Mother refused to live in it and they had to keep up a separate establishment for her, which took most of their profits. And I know another mother who makes her daughter read to her half of the night after her hard day's labor, when she needs every hour of rest she can get.

These martyr children give in to Mother because Mother is old and they are sorry for her. But Mother would be far better off, just as a spoiled child is, if she were made to behave. Children who have to deal with a cantankerous old body should use some common sense in the matter. The children of possessive mothers, for instance, should assert their right to freedom. The Marys should refuse to cook when there is a competent domestic in the kitchen, and when they have to support Mother she should be bundled up and taken where their interests call them.

So you and your wife go along and do the thing that is so obviously to your interest to do. Mother will cry a little, because tears are the weapons of the old. She will reproach your wife for not doing her duty, but it will all be over in a day or two and after that you will be sitting pretty on top of the world.

Don't think for an instant of agreeing to your wife's plan for you to do the housework, while she makes the living. If you do, you will be the laughing stock of the neighborhood and she will be ashamed of you. Keep your own job. Make your own living. And that will keep not only her respect, but your own.

DEAR MISS DIX—We have been married for twenty-five years and were as happy as two people could be for fourteen years. Then my husband lost his job and all the money we had and began to run around with women. I started a boarding house to support the family. He has made no effort to help me and has left me to struggle along as best I could. Most of the time he does not work, but when he does he never gives me anything. About four years ago he asked me to visit a woman of bad character whom he described as a "friend." At first I refused, but at last I went and at once realized how things were between them. Since then I have declined to go back to see her, though he nags me to do so all the time. I cannot understand why he wants me to go. If you can tell me what to do about this woman I will be most grateful.—DISTRESSED WIFE.

ANSWER:

That's easy. Let her alone. Don't go within a mile of her. She has as little desire to know you as you have to know her, and there could be no possible bond of congeniality between you.

Certainly a man has sunk to the lowest depths that a human being can go when he tries to make his wife a screen behind which to hide his own iniquity. He thinks that if he can force you to associate with his mistress and be seen out in public with her that he can conceal the true nature of his relationship with her. He thinks he can establish her position as one of his wife's friends, instead of her being what is colloquially known as his girl friend.

Don't let yourself be put to such a base use. You have shown courage and dignity in the way you have met misfortune and thereby won the respect of all who know you. But you will lose their good opinion if you let your husband hide behind your petticoats. He has shown that he not only does not love you, but is willing to play a scurvy trick on you. Don't be surprised at the way he treats you. Most men whose wives support them are like dogs that bite the hand that feeds them.

DEAR MISS DIX—What chances of happiness have I if I become the common-law wife of a man I love, but whom I cannot marry?—AURA.

ANSWER:

None, unless you have a martyr complex and get a kick out of suffering. You will have all the trials and tribulations of a wife, and then some, and none of the rewards and perquisites. You will lose your good name and your friends and your position in society. Doors that are open to your husband will be shut to you. You will lose the pride a woman has in her home, and the right to have children, who will be nameless. You will have no sense of security. You will be torn with jealousy. In the end you will lose the man for whom you have sacrificed so much.

Canada's Drama Forging Ahead London Actor Finds After Tour

TORONTO, March 14 (CP) — Drama in Canada steadily is improving despite "enormous difficulties," according to George Skillan, London actor and producer who is adjudicator of the Dominion's regional drama festivals this season. In his opinion, its chief difficulty is a lack of direction.

Giving his impressions of his tour of Canada in recent months, during which he saw between 60 and 70 plays and some 400 artists, Mr. Skillan said at the opening of the central Ontario drama festival last night that, "generally speaking," most Canadian dramatic groups were facing such difficulties.

This especially was the case in the midwest where great efforts were required to get plays together. Lack of direction was not so noticeable in Toronto and Montreal and the adjudicator appealed to lovers of the drama in these cities to "give a hand to these people."

Of last night's opening-night offerings of three short plays, Mr. Skillan expressed praise for all three but appeared particularly with Bertram Brooker's "The Dead Should Sleep," a tragedy. The piece is one of six original Canadian works to be given during the festival.

Good Performance

While terming the performances in the play "quite good," the adjudicator freely criticized the acting. The players were "up against a play that demands great subtlety of character." The play is the story of a western Canadian farmer who shoots himself when haunted by the ghost of his wife whose death he hastened by an overdose of medicine in order to marry another woman.

"The Dead Should Sleep" was presented by the Arts and Letters Club while the Toronto Conservatory players offered Tennyson's "The Falcon" and the Playwrights' Studio group "Growing Pains," by Dora Smith Conover, Toronto playwright. The former is a poetic romance and "Growing Pains" a comedy.

Mr. Skillan criticized the choice of "The Falcon" as the vehicle of the Conservatory players. He suggested it was a play that "belonged more to the realm of dramatic poetry than to poetic drama," and there was "no really big dramatic issue" in the piece.

Two one-hour plays will be presented tonight. "Sister Beatrice" by the Play Workshop and the late J. W. Bengough's adaptation of Dicken's famous trial, "Bardell vs. Pickwick," from "The Pickwick Papers." Full-length plays will be offered tomorrow and Thursday nights followed by three short works Friday and two three-act presentations at Saturday's two performances.

Tea Is Held In Aid of Jewish Refugees

Members of the Miriam Florence Chapter of Hadassah celebrated the fourth anniversary of the formation of their society in this city by a tea at the home of Mrs. S. Moldaver, 554 Reid street. Proceeds of the tea are to go towards a fund to aid Jewish refugees in Germany.

Guests were received by Mrs. Ruth Moldaver, president of the Junior Hadassah, and Miss Rose Rogow. Tea was poured by Mrs. Harry Florence, president of the Senior Hadassah. The tea table was attractive with a cloth of Madeira embroidery, blue candles in silver holders, and a central silver basket filled with spring flowers. Tea assistants were Miss B. Zacks, Miss Lillian Neiman, Miss Esther Rogow, Miss Shirley Zacks, Miss Beatrice Neiman and Miss Selma Florence.

Among out-of-town guests were Miss Gusha Graff of Toronto, a sister of Mrs. M. Mendall, and Mrs. B. Collis of Oshawa, who was formerly Miss Beatrice Florence of this city.

Candy Colored Undies Is Vogue

New dark sheers, with their swaying circular skirts, require something quite special in the way of slips. Many frocks have their own swishy, rustling petticoats, but, for the sake of variety, one might add a couple extra of this type to the spring wardrobe. One new slip of a taffeta-like lustrous material is cleverly fashioned with bias front and back panels and slim, straight sides to give that very slender, tiny-waisted silhouette the popular little-girl frocks demand. And one shouldn't mind too much if the ruffle shows a bit, discreetly, of course, now and then, because it is striped in such delicious candy colors.

Nine Headaches

There are nine vacancies now in the Canadian Senate, but of course things will not continue that way. The vacancies will be filled and nine Liberals will get the appointments. One Ottawa writer says the nine vacancies mean nine headaches for members of the cabinet including the Premier, and the headaches arise from the well-known fact that there are always too many applicants pressing their claims for consideration.

One gentleman who had long political experience once explained to the Examiner that he considered it a mistake to leave a Senate vacancy open for a long period. During that time of waiting all those who considered they had some right to be considered began to press their claims and if the time of waiting was unduly prolonged those who had not much hope would start to come forward believing they might have some chance at least.

His recommendation was that the cabinet should have its man ready as soon as possible and call him to the Senate within a reasonable time and in that way head off a number of applicants. Our informant was certain if it were done that way it would be possible to say to an unsuccessful applicant, "We had no idea you would accept the seat. Why did you not speak about it sooner?" That, he considered, was an easy way to let a man down without having to consider his case and then refuse him. We can well believe that the Ottawa writer is correct when he says that the nine Senate vacancies mean nine headaches for the cabinet.

A Little Patience

In this morning's mail there was a letter signed "Indignant" and nothing else. As a rule where there is no signature or address the letter gets scant notice. In this case we make an exception because the writer was indignant. Yes, very indignant. This way:

"How much longer have we to put up with ruts in the road which endanger life and threaten to wreck cars? Nothing short of disgraceful. It's preposterous to think we have to live in such a state. I tremble when I drive on these unspeakable streets which as they exist at the moment are a heinous offence against citizens."

For one short space we consider that is rather well done. When the signature "Indignant" was appended it seemed just the right one to select.

Perhaps a number of others have felt the same, but when we read reports of council meetings in other cities we come to the conclusion that the province must be full of indignant people. One resident said he thought some of our streets were bad until he drove to Port Hope and went over to the C.N.R. station there, after which he felt the streets in Port Hope were, if anything, a trifle worse.

Nor do we see where anything could have been done about it. We have been passing through a hard enough winter, and many of our streets are embedded in solid ice. If we had cleared them all out several weeks ago we would have had them filled in again the same way. We are inclined to recommend a little patience at this season of the year; it would be a good thing for all of us, and a good thing for "Indignant." Those in charge of removing snow and keeping our streets open have attended to their work well. In a short time the sun and perhaps a bit of mild weather and some rain will begin to do things to our ice-bound streets which an army of men with picks could hardly attempt. Then this "heinous offence" against citizens will disappear and "Indignant" will no longer tremble when driving. In about six weeks or so we will have drawn up close to the beginning of the merry month of May!

Death Of George W. Morrow

Word of the unexpected passing of W. George Morrow in California removes a citizen who has been associated with Peterborough for a long time. He came here as a boy, found his life work and remained to carry it through. He was almost passionately fond of outdoors, although of necessity a good deal of his time was taken up daily inside. The annual trips to California were made for the outdoor life he found there during the cold weather in his own land.

Mr. Morrow saw a good deal of public life in the municipal field; he was interested in many other community activities, and he was much taken with the efforts and activities of the church of his selection. There were other ways in which he took an interest in the lives of some people which probably have never been made known. There have been cases of bright young people in whom Mr. Morrow became interested. He was certain they were capable of greater things by receiving advanced education after completing their courses at the local Collegiate and Vocational School, and he saw to it that the necessary assistance was forthcoming.

He was closely associated with Peterborough Lock Co. for years, having been its president, and although his office and place of business was elsewhere he was constantly in touch with all that was going on at the Lock Co.. There were many who knew him, but his circle of intimate friends was more closely confined and to them he often enough revealed a depth of understanding which was perhaps hidden from many others. He had a form of spontaneous generosity which would make itself felt when some particular object appealed particularly to him, and the young fellows who collected funds for amateur sports knew before they started out they could count on Mr. Morrow.

They All Want To Go

It is probably true enough that most of us know very little about the pressure which is being put upon those who have anything to do with arranging details for the royal tour in Canada. Some of the municipalities have been doing all in their power to secure favor even if it is limited to a few more minutes, but in such cases they have to come out in the open to state their case.

We learn that the wives of cabinet ministers and people who are at all socially prominent in Ottawa are being bombarded with letters suggesting, or requesting, or perhaps demanding that they might be invited to some of the functions going on. The word bombarded is used advisedly because that is about what is taking place. It is asserted also that it will do them little good—likely none at all as the lists have been closed.

Then there are people from virtually all over the world who want to get on the press train which will accompany the Royal party and requests for reservations there have already reached the 1,000 mark. So there will be nothing but the full blaze of publicity from end to end in the Canadian visit. What a whole train load of reporters and photographers will do we have no idea. Reporting a trip of that nature is a monotonous business and it is tiring because it is pretty much the same thing from day to day and a writer is apt to burn out on all his choice phrases and good adjectives inside the first week. It will be much the same for the photographers because a picture of Their Majesties being greeted by a great crowd in the maritimes will look much the same as a similar event in British Columbia. It is all a little difficult to understand but there it is—1,000 people want to accompany the press party.

Looking For Trouble

In September last the world was roused in its sympathy for Czecho-Slovakia. The little nation was going to be sold down the river and none of the world's democracies was going to rush to the rescue. United States papers had much to say about Britain and France not being prepared to go to war when the Sudeten area of Czecho-Slovakia was ceded to Hitler, and the Munich conference was regarded as an official way of looking serious and at the same time allowing Hitler to have his way.

Today it does look as though Slovakia was preparing to knock out the hyphen which connects its name with that of Czech, and if that takes place it will cut the little nation almost completely in two. The land carvers who operated on central Europe at the time of the Treaty of Versailles created one small nation, and now the disturbing elements in Slovakia are apparently prepared to start in and carve again. The separatist element feel sure they have the promise of Germany, although there is no national reason why Germany should have anything to do with the situation. There are about 135,000 Germans in Slovakia, and that is only 5 1-2 per cent. of the population.

Creating two smaller national units out of one which is already small, and leaving them in the cockpit of mid-European plotting is about as certain a method of inviting trouble as could well be deliberately charted. And yet the trouble-makers are working definitely in that direction today.

He Spoke Plainly

At the final meeting of the Ontario Temperance Federation in Toronto there was much stress laid on the need for encouraging and organizing a dry vote in the province. There were the usual charges which said Premier Hepburn had acted in bad faith in allowing so many permits issued for beverage rooms, and there was also the prediction that their abolition would be considered the major issue in any election.

Rev. A. Ferry of Owen Sound apparently considered it the right place and the proper time for some plain speaking. So plain it was that there could be no mistaking the meaning. In part it was like this:

"We have a colossal gall, meeting here year after year and telling our politicians how to run the country when we know we have the things to which we object in our own churches.

"We have ministers who drink. We have Sunday School superintendents who drink and there are elders who come to the Lord's table with other than communion wine in their mouths."

Apparently the ministerial representative from Owen Sound would have the churches clean house themselves before starting to tell the politicians to put their carpets on the clothes line and wipe the dust from the picture frames.

Whether people like it or not we believe the minister was saying something which needed to be said. He might possibly find himself more popular in some circles if he had held his peace, but he has possibly lived long enough and come into contact with a sufficiency of human weakness to know how useless it is to bury the head in the sand when a vital point is at stake.

He Punished His Son

The old saying "Spare the rod and spoil the child" is not always capable of even application. John Strachan, 31 years old, came before Judge William Allen in New York court, and the Judge gave him two and a-half years in Sing Sing, and made the remark he felt it might have been better to make it a life sentence.

Strachan had punished his son of three years. His wrists and ankles were bound, his lips were bleeding, his left eye was closed and his back was covered with the welts of a strap.

The father claimed he found it necessary to punish his son, and in this case the father was the last person in the world to be entrusted with such a mission. His idea of punishment was assault and battery against a little fellow of three years who probably would have no idea at all of the reason for his father's insane fury.

Instead of sending the father to prison it seems the best lesson would have been a flogging for the father of somewhat the same variety as he inflicted on his son after which he could have been released and kept under observation.

ESCAPE

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My nieces and my nephews come, and tell me I am looking glum, not pleased with anything; they tell me I should change my way, that I should deck myself out gay, when comes the time of spring.

¶ They urge that I should shed my frown, should take a trip with them down town, they'd pick a suit for me; for they've been in the stores to look, they also saw it in a book, as snappy as could be.

¶ I should not wear dark clothes they say, when it is coming on toward May, the color is too flat; and I should wear a tie that's red, and get some color round my head, and have a stylish hat.

¶ And so I went down town with them, and walked with rather anxious men, and saw each giddy shade; the things they urged that I should wear, were blocks of color in a square, they made me much afraid.

¶ They'd garb me like a circus man, in tints of yellow and of tan, too giddy so I think; the neckwear they would have me buy, caused me to shiver and to sigh, for it was green and pink.

¶ I did not place my order though, I talked them off so they might go, admired the things so gay; I told the man who ran the store, when I was passing through the door—I'd call some other day.

Will You Please Listen To Me?

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. DUNNING: On a point of order, Mr. Speaker, I am listening to the hon. member.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend is not.

Mr. DUNNING: He cannot misrepresent me in that fashion.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend is sitting there in a bored condition, reading a newspaper.

Mr. DUNNING: I cannot help it if the hon. member bores me, but I am listening.

Mr. STEVENS: All right. I am quite satisfied with the minister's attitude. He says I bore him.

Mr. REID: No wonder.

Mr. STEVENS: I am telling him and this government that unless they review this situation with the United States they are going to put this country under a more severe economic strain as the years go by. I can show that in connection with the newsprint industry. I can show it in connection with the gold mining industry.

Mr. DUNNING: If that is true today, was it not even more true when my hon. friend was Minister of Trade and Commerce?

Mr. STEVENS: I would not say so.

Mr. DUNNING: And what did he do about it?

Mr. STEVENS: What did I do about it?

Mr. DUNNING: Yes.

Mr. STEVENS: I told my hon. friend a little while ago.

An hon. MEMBER: Formed a new party.

Mr. STEVENS: I told him when I was seeking with sweet reasonableness to gain his attention—which I did not accomplish. I told him at that time that when I was a member of the then government, I recognized the situation and initiated steps to study it.

Mr. DUNNING: "To study the situation!"

Mr. STEVENS: But I left the government, and I have not had any chance to carry out what I found to be necessary. I am not saying that any great condemnation should rest upon those who have been administering this department in years gone by, but I say that the time has arrived when we ought to give consideration to the matter. That is what I am urging; and it is the lack of interest in and the lackadaisical attention of the house to these problems which really annoy me, and annoy me very much.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friends may laugh. I am going to say frankly now to my hon. friend the Minister of Justice (Mr. Lapointe)—and he is, I believe, the only man in the house who has been here longer than I have—that never before in my experience in parliament have I witnessed such an attempt by the forces of numbers and majority control to howl down fair discussion in this chamber as has gone on this session.

Mr. POWER: The hon. member is complaining that we are not listening to him, not that we are interrupting him.

Mr. STEVENS: No. My hon. friend knows what I am referring to. I am just going to close my remarks—and it is useless to talk—with this, that unless this parliament gets down to more serious consideration of these problems, the institution of parliament is threatened. That is what I have to say.

An hon. MEMBER: Tory propaganda.

Mr. GRAY: Ballyhoo.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend can say "ballyhoo."

Mr. GRAY: That is what the hon. member's leader said.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend the chief whip of the Liberal party has not the right to say very much, because he has not been here very much.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Another lecture.

Mr. STEVENS: I have been looking rather longingly to see him in his seat.

An hon. MEMBER: He has been sick.

Mr. STEVENS: I did not know that. He knows that if I knew he had been sick I would not say anything unkind about him. Nevertheless my hon. friend has not been here and does not know what has been going on. What I said was with no desire to be unkind to my hon. friend.

Mr. GRAY: Well, I have been reading the debates.

Mr. STEVENS: I am just throwing aside, as being utterly useless—which it is—any effort, or, rather, any further effort.

HOT WHEN IT IS HOT?

Some details of the recent heat wave in Australia as given in Melbourne newspapers should convince Canadians, if they need any convincing, that it is better to be chilly than broiled. On January 13 the temperature stood at 114 in the shade in Melbourne. This is the highest ever recorded there. The hottest town in the state of Victoria was Salt Lake with 116. Previous hottest days in Melbourne were January 23, 1906, with 109.6, January 19, 1887, with 110.5 and January, 1862 with 111.2. After all, it is possible to get indoors out of the cold but it is impossible to get away from such terrific heat.—(Edmonton Journal)

SKIPPED HIGH SCHOOL.

Of Dr. Redvers Thompson, formerly Gananoque, who died recently in Baltimore, it is related that "although he never attended high school, he worked his way through several universities." There has been some criticism of the high school curriculum in the past as intended mainly for those going on to college; but it would appear that something ought to be done in primary schools for those who intend going to university without bothering with collegiate.—Woodstock Sentinel-Review.

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

MUST BE SOLVED.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—An earnest rousing attempt is being made at present in the county to make farm people Co-operation Conscious. What is the meaning of the term? As the word itself implies and as the dictionary states: the act of working jointly together. Farm incomes are so small that even a somewhat small saving is a boon. Our farm products are bought graded, and sold by the other fellow "the middle-man" He takes his toll (often a large one) and the farmer takes what is offered him. Have we not enough brains and judgment amongst us to grade, process and sell our own products? We sell our Cream to one of the many creameries. A fine truck calls at our door. Butter is made and put on the market (which as far as Ontario is concerned) is a very inferior article. The profit is the same for the creamery operators so why should they worry about a superior product? If we owned our own creameries we could refuse to handle anything but good cream, we could employ expert butter makers and turn out a good product.

To prove that this is true, compare Danish, Irish and New Zealand butter with ours. Those countries produce a very much superior butter, so we cannot compete on the British market. Is there anything to prevent farmers owning all the big packing plants of the Dominion? We have paid for those in existence, and have made a few millionaires to boot, Packers claim small profits. Inquire the price of their stocks and you can draw your own conclusions. Hogs in November should be as high as in May. Why the slump every fall. Wheat is low and other grains always rise or fall with wheat. There is no prospects of better grain prices for years to come. Europe's insane fear of war and preparations for war have caused various countries to grow their own wheat etc.

There is still a market for a certain amount of animal products, but they must be good quality and be sent to available markets regularly. The history of co-operative effort, has been that a better product is made where farmers own the processing plants themselves. Is it too far-fetched to foresee a day when farmers will own their own tanneries, shoe factories, woollen mills, implement factories, credit unions, banks, etc. Back in the last century when machines were invented to do reaping, weaving, etc., infinitely faster than had been possible we left the era of scarcity and entered or should have entered the era of plenty. But there is still a monkey wrench in the machinery. We have learned mass production but haven't learned even the rudiments of distribution. We have too much wheat, with thousands hungry, we have too much wool and cotton and millions in rags, and suffering with cold.

There is unlimited coal, yet thousands of cold hearths. What is wrong with us that we cannot make the food, and the clothing, and the clothing available to those who want and need them? It surely is a task for team work, co-operation. In an old reader was a story "Ants and their slaves" and we marvel when it was stated that if the red ants did not have the black variety to feed them, they would starve to death with food in front of them.

If there are people on the other planets and they can see our world and us; what must be their amazement to see bursting granaries, waremen to see bursting granaries, warehouses, etc., on one hand and on the other hand the vast majority of the earth's population in more or less want.

A few progress we countries have solved the problem to a great extent, through Co-operative effort. Let us go and do likewise. Our County Council and U. F. O. are giving us a lead. Let us be up and doing.

CLARE LEAHY.

GETTING ACQUAINTED.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have been interested in the recent letters of "New Comer" and others about the churches' duty to strangers. Would you kindly allow me space to give the people of our city some fine examples that have come under my own observation, how some other centres meet strangers.

1st It was my privilege a few years ago to meet a stranger at a progressive euchre table who told me she had been in this city for a little over a year and she went to church every Sunday, and she wasn't getting acquainted with anyone and lately she had started going to euchre. Now, she knew pretty near every body. This is one case where euchre is setting example to the churches of our city.

2nd A number of years ago I took my own daughter to a distant town to a position after putting in her credentials with the pastor of the church of her choice and getting a boarding place she went into her position and at 5 o'clock three young ladies were waiting for her and took her home to the Epworth League.

3rd, A number of years ago a young man went from one of our George Street stores to a Northern Ontario city store and as he got off the train a number of young men were waiting for him and took him home with them and after supper helped him to find a good boarding place.

4th. A number of years ago a man and his family left his home town where he was much interested in the young men and moved to North Bay, and the second Sunday at church a man came and sat down beside him and said he held two important positions in that church. Sunday School superintendent and superintendent of the Excelsior Club of over one hundred young men. "You come here highly recommended, and you've got to get to work."

The case I spoke about of the man holding two important positions in the church resigned the superintendency of the Excelsior Club and the stranger was given the job.

Thanking you, I remain yours etc.

MAKING A LIVING.

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Shortly after I last wrote to you I was lucky enough to receive a job again. I am working for a coal company, and I guess I should be hoping for lots f cold weather yet, but I know something of what it costs to heat a house, so shall be glad to see the warm weather, when it comes.

It seems to me that it is just as important to keep outsiders from working on local contract jobs as it is to keep them off the relief rolls. But I suppose if Mr. Gordon says it can't be done that settles it. Pardon me while I laugh. It made me mad though, as I drove past one of the several renovating jobs that have been done on George street, to see two or three of our own tradesmen standing among the group of bystanders looking on wistfully.

In an editorial dealing with people on relief, who are over fifty years of age, you lay most of the blame on the young people, and loafers to believe that today's standard of living is not an improvement.

I want to say here that all my friends are working people, (some with jobs, some without). The average wage of those who are working is fifteen dollars a week, and it's darned well earned in most cases. They find it tough enough (especially if they are married) to keep going. Do you think that if they burned coal-oil instead of electricity, cut out their weekly visit to the theatre, threw out the telephone and radio it would make much difference? I don't, and anyway why should they? There are enough things they do without already.

I like listening to old timers spinning yarns, and one old chap I know told me he once worked for seven dollars a week. But he got his board for five dollars a month and whiskey was something like a dollar a gallon. Oh yes, they had whiskey in those days and dances, too.

If you go through a beer-parlor on a Saturday you will find more of the older people than the youngsters. I have been talking only of the working people, and not business men (who depend on the workers) or people who wear white collars and write twaddle about the Tenth Concession. Everybody can't graduate from the milking stool to an easy chair in an office. If they did who would run the farm or deliver the milk or bread or coal? Or anything.

Yes, I guess I'm wandering a bit, but I mean to say that the young people who work for their living, have to establish themselves first, before they can be of much help to their parents. I have heard several of the older people boasting of how, if they didn't like the job they walked out and in a short time had another. You certainly can't do that today, and if you are lucky enough to have a job hold on to it and prepare for the future, so that when you are fifty you won't have to go on relief.

I notice that the C.P.R. is bringing over one hundred and fifty immigrants from Europe. Not very many of course, and I suppose somebody is paying their fare on the ship and train, but we don't need 'em. Honest we don't. The C.P.R. could soon round up one hundred and fifty men from their freight trains, if they took the trouble. They wouldn't all be loafers, but if they are allowed to ride around the country much longer, they will be.

In passing I wonder why hard coal is twelve and a quarter a ton in Toront while here it is fourteen seventy-five.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

O come let us worship and bow down: let us kneel before the Lord our maker. For he is our God; and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. . . .

O Lord, thou hast searched me, and known me. Thou knowest my downsitting and mine uprising, thou understandest my thought afar off. Thou compassest my path, and my lying down, and art acquainted with all my ways. For there is not a word in my tongue, but, lo, O Lord, thou knowest it altogether. Thou hast beset me behind and before, and laid thine hand upon me. . . .

How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them! If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: when I awake, I am still with thee.—Ps. xcv, 6, 7; cxxxix, 1-5, 17,18.

A Bit of Nonsense

Proper Question

A little girl came home from school and said: "Daddy, my teacher told us the world is round."

"That's right, dear," said the father.

"Well daddy, if the world is round," she asked, "why do people say they go to the far corners of the earth?"

BAGPIPE LURE.

There is well-worn anecdote concerning the Scot who lay dangerously ill in a Chicago hospital. All hope for his recovery having been given up, he was asked by the hospital authorities if there was anything he would like before he passed away. With no hesitation the Scot expressed a desire to hear the strains of the bagpipes once again. This was, indeed, a novel request from a dying man, and, after a considerable amount of hesitation, it was agreed to accede to the dying man's request.

A piper was found, and brought to the hospital. For fifteen minutes the ward in which lay the dying Scot resounded to the skirl of the pipes. Then the piper departed, and all seemed well.

The sequel to this story is the most astonishing part of it. To the surprise of doctors and nurses, the dying Scot ceased dying and began to recuperate in a most remarkable manner — but the other patients in the ward died that evening. In other words, to use the modern slang colloquialism, "They couldn't take it."—(Allen Reid, in Ottawa Journal)

CHIDES WIND BAGS.

Hugh McKenzie, of Watford, member of the federal parliament for Lambton-Kent, made a creditable contribution to the commons debate this week when he voiced a frank condemnation of the time-killing tactics that are so familiar at Ottawa.

Mr. McKenzie was speaking with reference to the trade treaty and he said that half the business of the session would have been accomplished by now if the members had got down to work instead of making political speeches.

Mr. McKenzie spoke for only ten minutes but he told the boys a thing or two. He said that if free speech was to continue as one of the bulwarks of democracy, it ought not to be worked to death, as was being done in the house.—(Sarnia Canadian-Observer)

Caldwell Warns Of Plans By Millionaires

TORONTO, March 13—(CP).—M. J. Coldwell, member of parliament for Rosetown-Biggar and national chairman of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, in an address here last night attacked the Leadership League as a campaign "sedulously designed to undermine democratic institutions of government."

(The Leadership League is sponsored by the Globe and Mail, Toronto newspaper, its purpose being to urge members of parliament to "forget party advantage and co-operate for the common good.")

"Those who fall for that kind of thing fail to realize that parliament is a place where the people's representatives must first have opportunity of placing the problems of their constituents before the whole nation, and this requires talk before action," said Mr. Caldwell.

"Parliament is not a place for administration but for the discussion of policies and the appointment of administrators to carry out these policies. Parliament must not be considered the board of directors of the nation with discussion on behalf of the people stifled.

Mr. Caldwell said he believed the league was organized under the guidance of wealthy men to institute a dictatorship to protect their wealth and lower taxes on industry and wealth.

Higher Taxes

"Today we've got to have unemployment insurance, old age pensions at lower ages, better educational facilities and other social legislation, and that will involve higher, not lower taxes," he said.

"These multimillionaires and their newspapers are telling the Canadian people they've got to lower taxes—on whom? Beware of leadership leagues organized by millionaires whose only object is to form a national government, eliminate self-government, and institute in Canada a form of dictatorship to protect their wealth."

Turning to international affairs, Mr. Caldwell said the time has come when Canada should declare no war except on the advice of the representatives of the Canadian peonle.

"We shall not be automatically at war when Britain is at war because British policies show they care less for democracy and for the British empire than they do for their property rights in Europe which are protected by Hitler and Mussolini," he said.

Photography Bug Has Hit Transients

The expensive photography bug has struck down victims in another group of citizens—the transients—it would appear from the experience of a Peterborough photographer this week.

The other day a customer came into his shop and asked to see various types of cameras. He talked most convincingly in the jargon of the trade. Zeiss Tessar 4.5, apertures, orthochromatic films, panchromatic packs, f.16 at a 200th, between-the-lens and bi-focal plane shutters, were some of the terms he threw around. Then he said he would like to buy a camera that retails at about $60.

The photographer was taking his order when a reporter strolled into the shop, and talked briefly to the customer about cameras. When he left, the photographer confided some doubt to the reporter as to the man's ability to pay such a steep price. The customer had told him he was expecting to receive some two hundred dollars and would pay for the camera when he received the money. The photographer decided to postpone ordering the camera until he had his money.

An hour or so later the reporter happened into the police station and saw the erstwhile customer there. He was seeking a free meal and a night's lodging. It might be interesting to see results of candid camera work done in a full police cell when two or three tramps begin to hobnob with sons of the well-to-do who have been caught in illegal cups.

Back To Germany

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(AP)—Arrest of a former public relations officer at the United States army air base at March Field and proceedings to deport him to his native Germany were disclosed today.

Heinze Hartman-Wrede, 30-year-old ex-soldier, has been held in jail here a week on a charge of illegal entry, pending a federal hearing.

The Los Angeles Examiner quoted him as claiming to have uncovered a German spy ring for the army intelligence and expressing fear of violent death if he is deported.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Grandmother was coming in from the country to spend a few days with the children. So mother and father and the children— and, of course, Knarf and Hanid, the shadows—went down to the station of meet her. The shadows always went wherever the children went. They simply kept in their footsteps.

Well, Knarf had never been to a railroad station before. At first they entered a great wide room. The ceiling was so high that when Knarf looked up to see the very top of it, he nearly fell over backwards. Hanid caught him just in time.

"I wish we could live in a room as big as this one," he said. "Just look at all the room we could have for company! But where are the trains? I don't see any trains. You said there were going to be lots of trains here."

They're Downstairs.

Hanid smiled. "Be patient for a little while. The trains are downstairs. Father is talking to the man at that booth. He's finding out exactly what time grandmother's train is coming in. Then we'll all go downstairs to the platform and watch it come in."

Knarf looked over to the booth where father was talking to the man. On top of the booth was a large sign reading: INFORMATION.

"Oh!" said Knarf, "I'm going to go over and get some information from that man, too."

And before Hanid could hold him back, he had slipped away. He went right up to the man in the booth and said in his loudest voice: "I want some information, please. I'd like a chocolate information with vanilla ice-cream."

Not Soda Booth.

The shadow-boy, you see, thought an information booth was a new kind of ice-cream soda fountain. But the man didn't even bother to answer him. I don't think he even heard what Knarf said.

By this time father had the information he needed. Then Knarf, feeling a little foolish, followed them all down the stairs. Soon they came to a platform. There were tracks and all sorts of red and green lights. But no trains.

He nearly fell over backwards.

"This must be the wrong place," he said to Hanid again. "And what are those men with the red caps doing down here? Are they waiting for their grandmothers, too?"

Hanid explained that the men with the red caps were porters. "They carry the baggage of the people who come off the train. You'll see."

Always There.

"And they always stay down here?"

"Almost always."

"And if you carry baggage off the train are you allowed to wear a red cap?"

Hanid was just about to answer him when there was a loud toot-toot and chug-chug and clatter-clatter. And in came the train, carrying grandmother and lots of other people besides. Father and mother and the children and Hanid all ran up to greet grandmother. But do you know what Knarf did? He ran up to carry her baggage.

And all the way home he kept saying: "And now I want a red cap! And now I want a red cap!"

I wonder if he got one, don't you?

Cavan Society Plans Pancake Social

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Miss Annie Tinney was hostess on Thursday for the joint meetings of the Cavan United Church W. A. and W. M. S.

Mrs. J. W. Perrin, vice-president conducted the W. A. session in the absence of the president, Mrs. D. J. Hunter.

Mrs. J. R. Trumpour was in charge of the devotional period.

Plans were made for the pancake social, after which the young people will have a crokinole tournament.

The April meeting will be at Mrs. Jas. Douglas' home. There will be a sale table and afternoon tea.

W. M. S. Session.

Mrs. R. Matchett took the chair for the W. M. S. session.

She took up part of the Fifth Chapter of the study Book.

Mrs. Perrin read an article on Christian Stewardship

Arrangements were made for supplying the various articles for the bail.

The disposal of various articles on a sale table and a few minutes of visiting brought an interesting afternoon to a close. There were fifteen leadies present.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanna from the vicinity of Garden Hill have taken up residence on the farm vacated by Mr. and Mrs. W. Williamson, who have moved to Peterborough.

Seaports will be constructed during the summer at Dickson Island, Tixie Bay and Providence Bay, in the Arctic, and concrete ice-proof structures will be erected.

Canadian Knight Buried With Military Honors

Full military honors were paid Sir Henry Pellatt as the Queen's Own Rifles bade farewell to their late commander-in-chief. Sergeants of the regiment took their stand at each corner of the bier in St. James' Cathedral in Toronto. After the simple Church of England service the casket on gun carriage was drawn along downtown streets. The great church was filled with friends and comrades of the late Sir Henry. Old-timers of the bugle corps with which he went to England sounded the Last Post and Reveille at the Mausoleum.

Land Planes Off Atlantic Run

LONDON, March 14—(CP)—While plans are proceeding for inauguration of the British trans-Atlantic air mail service this year with flying boats, it is announced two Albatross-type land planes originally destined for experimental ocean service will go on the London-Paris run in April.

The Albatross four-engined machines have been undergoing tests to fit them for experimental trans-Atlantic flights this year, supplementing the flying boat service.

This arrangement has now been changed. Cabot, Caribou and Connemara are the flying boats scheduled to start the trans-Atlantic service, probably in June. Tests are now being carried out by the meteorological and wireless organizations established at Foynes, Eire, Botwood, Newfoundland and other key points on the route the air liners will follow.

Introduction of the Albatross planes on the London-Paris run in a step to meet foreign competition by introducing faster and more frequent services between the two capitals. They will be modified in design to make them correspond in design to the Forbisher class air liners.

The Albatross planes were ordered originally by the air ministry. Two have completed their tests and been turned over to Imperial Airways. British airways services to Paris will be discounted in April and Imperial will run eight services of four daily, as at present.

Merging of the two companies, announced by the government last autumn, may be completed in March.

Looking Back
On This Date

An important date in the relations between Canada and Great Britain was March 14, 1651. It was then that Colonial Secretary Grey wrote to Lord Elgin that, in consequence of Canada's growing development, her majesty's government had decided that the time was near when the British garrisons in Canada would be reduced to two or three regiments, "probably at Quebec and Kingston. Lord Grey laid emphasis upon "the terms of amity upon which this country now is with the United States and the fortunate termination of all the questions of dispute between the two nations," which removed all risk of any attack upon Canada from the only Power from which there could be any danger."

As a matter of fact it was many years later, 1870, before the last British troops left Canada, but from 1851 until 1861 there was a gradual diminution of the number of regulars in Canada, until 1861 when, as a result of the excitement over the Trent affair, three thousand troops were sent here, and the country was in a state of apprehension of conflict with the States for some months. Thereafter the regulars were returned to England and other garrison points and Canada was left to her own militia save for a small force at Halifax and at Esquimault, B.C., which was taken over by the Dominion in 1903.

Lord Grey concluded his dispatch with these words: "It must not for a moment be supposed that these measures (the military reduction was not the only economy proposed) are contemplated under any idea that the connection between the mother country and the colony could be dissolved without great injury to both, or that there is any probability that it will be so.

On the contrary these measures are regarded as safe, because her majesty's government are persuaded that the great body of the people of Canada are so fully satisfied of the great benefits they enjoy from the system of constitutional government now happily established in the province under the authority of the British crown, that it may properly be left to themselves to so take their share of the burden of maintaining and defending an order of things from which they reap so much advantage. Under this impression, and in the earnest hope and confident belief that Canada may long continue to form an important member of the British empire her majesty's government have adopted the conclusions which I have explained."

Communist Parties Of 53 Nations Sent Spain Aid Is Red Boast

MOSCOW, March 14 — (AP). — Communist parties in 53 countries sent volunteers to the Spanish Civil War, the 18th All-Union Congress of the Communist Party was told today in a report by Dimitri Manuilsky

"The Spanish people will never forget the help given to them by the World Communist movement through the creation of the International Brigade," said Manuilsky, delegate on the executive committee of the Communist International.

"Communist parties in 53 countries sent into the ranks of the International Brigade large numbers of members, central committees and party leaders . . . there are people of the Stalin era. The creation of the International Brigade is proof of the maturty of the Communist movement."

He said the Communist party had an aggregate membership of nearly 2,000,000 not including "tens of thousands of Communists who work underground and therefore do not appear in statistics" nor "tens of thousands in prisons and concentration camps."

The British "Plot."

Manuilsky said that British Imperialists were plotting to satisfy Italian Premier Mussolini in the Mediterranean at the expense of France, in order to detach Italy from the Rome-Brlin axis while "breaking the teeth" of Chancellor Hitler in a British-encouraged German plot on Soviet Russia.

"In the Far East British reaction dreams of dividing China," he asserted. "They permit Japan to weaken China but at the same time encourage military and economic weakening of Japan in order to be able to act as arbiter in a 'Munich Peace of the Far Sast."

He contended that "British reaction does not desire the collapse of Fascism in Germany, Italy or Japan," but "wants to help the governments of these countries . . . thus making the Fascist states depend on the British Empire."

Tax Sale Problem

WEBBWOOD, Ont., March 14. — (C. P.). —Council of this northern Ontario town planned a tax sale today while they attempted to figure out what to do with houses they acquired from the last sale in 1937.

The town bought several houses in the 1937 sale, which were not redeemed by their owners. So Webbwood owns the dwellings, yet the original owners are living in them without paying rent.

Council, under Mayor Mrs. Barbara Hanley, decided Friday that occupants must pay rent and that legal action would be taken to collect. Clerk J. C. McMillan was instructed to draft a by-law for another tax sale to be held in the near future.

Cobourg Assizes Open With Seven Actions

COBOURG, Ont., March 14—(CP)—Supreme Court Spring Assizes opened to-day before Mr. Justice Kelly with no criminal cases listed. There are seven civil actions to be heard, five of which are jury and two non-jury actions.

Arising out of a motor accident which took place near Newtonville last November are three damage actions. Rev. Father W. Healey of Picton is asking $5,000 damages from S. B. Crane of Niagara Falls. Crane is suing for $25,000 and T. Eastwood, passenger in Crane's car, is suing Father Healey for $10,000. A dispute over a promissary note, a divorce case, a libel suit, and an action for damages from assault, comprise the other four cases on the list.

County Coach Visits Class

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ZION, March 14:—Miss Greta Pollard, Peterborough county coach, attended the sixth meeting of the "Zionettes" project class on March 9 at the home of Alma Robinson. Work in this group is nearing completion, and Miss Pollard is quite satisfied with the girls' sewing of their sleeping garments.

The sale of James Fitzgerald's farm stock and implements was successful, being well attended, with prices generally good.

Mrs. D. Hayes has been enjoying a week's visit in Peterborough at the homes of her daughters, Mrs. James O'Dette and Mrs. Joseph Jones.

Lloyd Sucee, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. Sucee, has returned home from the hospital where he was confined with a badly fractured shoulder, sustained in a recent fall, and is reported progressing favorably.

Miss Fern Sucee is spending this week with her sister, Mrs. Ernest Hubble, of Highland Grove.

Friends of Mr. Whitfield Robinson will regret to learn that he is on the sick list and will be resting in bed for some days.

Paris Police Nab 60 In Drug Ring

PARIS, March 14 — (AP).—Agents investigating a ring charged with smuggling narcotics to the United States and Mexico announced today the arrest of 60 alleged accomplices of the ring's chief operators.

Police said a tip from New York customs agents had enabled them to smash the ring. The New York agents were said to have discovered existence of the ring when they found narcotics in the baggage of a Canadian named Devine on his arrival from France.

The majority of those arrested were described as employees of an establishment run under the supervision of a man identified by the authorities as an Italian-American named Giuseppe Failla alias "Joe the American," "Pepino," and "Big Joe."

Buildings are going up so fast in Worcester, England, that A. Naude's house was completed before it was discovered that it was on Charles Pelteret's lot.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, March 15.

Progress, promotion, and opportunity are among the fortuitous prospects for this day, judging by the friendly stars. There is likely to be a surprising opening for contacts with important persons or associations with major enterprises, big corporations or political, fraternal, or diplomatic groups. Executive ability, tact and stratagem may be found desirable characteristics.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of excellent opportunity for promotion, progress, and the attainment of high objectives. Superiors, employers and those in high standing and power will be found ready to give substantial co-operation and recognition to fine creative powers.

A child born on this day may have splendid abilities and talents to make its way to important position in life, being intelligent, industrious, shrewd and ambitious.

Palestine Plan Is Approved

LONDON, March 14—(CP-Havas)—Key minister of the British cabinet today were reported to have approved a final plan for the future of Palestine which was submitted to them by Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald.

It was believed that Prime Minister Chamberlain, who presided at today's meeting would officially close the Palestine conference Thursday.

The House of Commons is expected early next week to have an opportunity of debating the results of the conference when budget estimates for the colonial office are presented.

Today's meeting was attended by the heads of the national defence departments as well as by the foreign secretary Viscount Halifax, and Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer.

Mr. MacDonald reported on his latest conversations with Arab delegates, and particularly on his meeting last night with Jewish representatives, to whom he presented the major points of the British plan, which provides for measures of political and administrative autonomy intended to lead to the setting up of a new Palestine state.

The length of the period of transition would depend upon the willingness of Jews and Arabs to arrange the collaboration London considers to be indispensable.

Advise Women To Study Civic Affairs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 14. — Mrs. Melville Ball extended the hospitality of her home, Princess Street, for the March meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute, held on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., with the vice-president, Mrs. E. C. Richards, in the chair, and eighteen members present.

The roll was answered with the name of a favorite author, and mention of one of his works., the chair announcing sale of a building owned by the W. I. for $15.00 ,and the treasurer reporting expenditures of $4.54. Mrs. J. W. Hilton, secretary ,read a letter from a mother in Harcourt asking aid with clothing, etc., this marking the fourth or fifth such appeal received this winter; an effort will be made to send some supplies.

Another letter was from the Government Reforestation Branch regarding tree planting, and was given the necessary attention. Discussion centred round the euchre to be held in the Community Waiting Room on St. Patrick's Day, at 8 p.m., each member to be responsible for one table, cards and pencils, also invitations to the four guests; Mrs. Richards was appointed to look after the refreshments, and Mrs. P. Handley and Mrs. W. West the dishes.

Mrs. G. O. Fallis, convenor of the standing committee on Legislation, was chairman for the program, Mrs. Ball reading a paper on "Loyalty to the Crown"; Mrs. Fallis followed with an informative talk on "How legislation affects the farm woman," emphasizing the need of a more definite interest on the part of women voters in civic affairs, urging at least one woman on the school board, possibly in the municipal council, and the taking of an active part in political matters generally.

The speech from the throne at the opening of the 20th session of the Ontario Legislature, with comments thereon, was given by Miss Ruth Thorndyke, and Mrs. F. J. Smith gave a reading "A Previous Engagement," Mrs. Handley completing the program with "Things to remember," including a helpful and beautiful verse or other writing for each day. After the benediction, the hostess, assisted by her two litle daughters, Melba and Leona, served delicious home made candy, and a social hour was enjoyed, with Mrs. Handley moving the vote of thanks to the hostess, and the program committee and convenor.

Two Arrested On Charge Robbing Resort

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 14—After weeks of quiet, but persisten investigation Provincial Constable Adair, it was announced today, has run down the men, who, it is alleged, looted the summer cottages in this district some months ago. Two men have been arrested in Toronto, and others will be taken into custody during the next few days. The loot was traced to the east end of Toronto. Some of it had been disposed of, but the balance has been identified by the cottage owners. Goods to the value of $17,000 was taken by the gang, some of them residents of Toronto, while others, it is believed, lived at Hamilton and Milton.

Colonel Dewart Speaks

Colonel Dewart, of Peterborough, was the guest speaker at the local Rotary luncheon today. He took as his subject world wheat conditions and the effect it has had on Ontario farmers. He explained to his listeners that an over abundance of wheat last year brought the Government back into the market, and the apparent low price caused it to buy the wheat from the Western farmers at 81 cents, and they were able to sell it at only 61 cents. Thus the Ontario farmer helped to bonus the Western farmer, but received no compensation himself, and was forced to compete on a cheap market flooded with produce. Colonel Dewart blamed the effects of the Great War for the artificial condition of the wheat market today, which finds high tariffs in effect in almost every European country.

Foot Badly Cut

Jack Taylor, a Lorneville boy was the victim of a bad accident on the week end. He was operating a sawing outfit on the farm of John Taylor when his foot was badly cut. He stepped on the table of the machine to oil the pulley. His hand touched the gate, pressing the saw forward, cutting his foot badly behind the two last toes. It is a miracle the foot was not amputated.

Roads Blocked

Sunday's storm again blocked the roads badly in this district. The Highways Dept. plough endeavored to clear the Lindsay-Newcastle Highway and became stalled in the drifts. The early morning Haliburton train was three hours late reaching Lindsay this morning. It encountered bad drifts after leaving the village, and a snowplough was despatched from Lindsay to clear the line.

Found Dead In Snow

CASTOR, Alta., March 14—(CP) — Arley Johnson, 50, brother of Charles E. Johnson, member of parliament for Bow Valley, was found dead Saturday in the snow a mile and a half from his farm home, 18 miles northeast of here. A searching party had been looking for him since Friday night, when his saddle horse returned riderless.

Dr. G. R. Cousineau, corner, said death was due to a heart attack.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM Y. SCOLLARD.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Mar. 14. — Death claimed another one of Ennismore's old boys when William Y. Scollard passed away at his home in Peterborough on Thursday last. Mr. Scollard, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Scollard, was born here where he resided for the greater part of his life before moving to Peterborough. The deceased was of an exceptionally friendly and jovial disposition, and was always very happy to meet his friends and acquaintances of his birthplace. Five of his nine surviving sisters reside in Ennismore. They are Mrs. William Harrington, Sr., Mrs. John P. Flood, Mrs. William D. Cavanagh, Mrs. T. T. Crough, and Miss Mary Scollard. His only brother Frank moved to Douro from here in recent years. Before ill-health overtook the late Mr. Scollard, he had been interested in business of various natures, where his pleasant and congenial personality made many friends for him.

The sympathy of the community is extended to his bereaved wife (formerly Catharine Harrington, of Ennismore), and his family, as well as to his brother and sisters. The remains were brought her for burial on Monday morning following the Funeral Mass which was held in the Immaculate Conception Church, Peterborough.

Many here regretted that owing to road conditions following Sunday afternoon's storm they were unable to pay their last respects to one who had so keenly cherished the friendship of his former neighbors and associates.

CHARLES D. D. UDY

Charles Dean Dignum Udy, beloved husband of Ollie Davidson and brother of the late Percy T. Udy, former clerk and treasurer of Smith Township, died Monday morning at Parry Sound Hospital. His home is in Pickerel, Ontario.

The late Mr. Udy was born in Bridgenorth, son of the late William Udy and Mary Ann Glass. He had been ill for about three months. He is survived by his sorrowing wife; one son, Norman Udy of Pickerel, and one daughter, Mary Alberta of Toronto. Two brothers, William Udy and A. N. Udy of London, Ontario, also survive, and two sisters, Mrs. P. Robinson of Calgary, Alta., and Miss Lillie Udy of Bridgenorth. For many years, Mr. Udy has been a general merchant in Pickerel, Ontario, and was esteemed in the community. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge, A.F. and A.M., Parry Sound.

A sister, Elizabeth Paulina Udy, died five years ago, and his brother, Percy T. Udy of Bridgenorth, passed away last December.

The funeral will be held on Wednesday, March 15, from the Funeral Home of D. Belleghem and Sons, 190 Hunter street, at 2.30, with the Rev. R. D. Wright of Gilmour Memorial Church officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

Drew Demands

no axe to grind as among the various classes of Abitibi security holders. Its only purpose was to get the company out of liquidation and thus enable it properly to utilize the timber and power rights available to it.

Col. Drew charged that the government's one-year extension of these rights was virtually a notice to the holders of common and preferred shares that the bondholders could foreclose and "freeze out" the holders of the junior securities.

The order-in-council announced Friday provided for an extension to April 1, 1940, of timber limits necessary to the successful operation of the Abitibi's mills. Previously Mr. Heenan had announced the government would approve any settlement of the company's affairs directed by the courts.

Premier Hepburn told the House Friday the government had received details of reorganization scheme proposed by J. P. Ripley, of the bondholders' protective committee, providing for foreclosure by the bondholders with a three-year opportunity for common stockholders to redeem their equity.

Premier Hepburn stressed that neither Mr. Ripley nor anyone el e had received assurance from the government of favor toward any particular reorganization plan.

Whether it was intended as such or not, Col. Drew and Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South), said, the premier's announcement was a blow to the hopes of the common stockholders that had been raised by the government's action in 1937 in reserving to itself the right to approve or reject any settlement of the company's affairs.

Col. Drew said the time between the passage of the order-in-council and its announcement gave "anyone who knew a chance to make a killing" on Abitibi bonds.

"Ripley will be the new paper king of Canada if this plan goes through," said Col. Drew. He urged the premier and other ministers to refrain from announcements concerning the companies and let the shareholders and bondholders settle the affair in the courts.

Premier Hepburn said his statement last Friday was intended to end wide fluctuations in the company's bonds, caused by rumors circulating in the stock markets. The Government was making the extension of the timber limit concessions in order to facilitate reorganization of the company. No plan could be carried through unless there were assurance these limits were available.

The order-in-council was passed at a meeting at which the Premier was not present and that was the reason for delay in its publication. His cabinet colleagues wished to consult him about it.

No Rights Impaired.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant said no rights of junior security holders had been impaired by any action of the Government. They had a distinct privilege of placing themselves in the position of the debenture holders if they wished to do so. But the province had no right to say to the bondholders they couldn't realize on thei rassets without taking care of the holders of other securities.

"Unless we do something this will go on for the next 100 years to the detriment and disgrace of this province in the eyes of the investing public," said Mr. Conant.

"Isn't the Government loading the dice in favor of the bondholders," asked Mr. Macaulay. In 1937 the Government had provided by order-in-council that timber rights would inhere to the owners of the Abitibi Company only if the company's reorganization were satisfactory to the government.

The 1937 action had been assumed to mean fair play for holders of preferred and common shares and two years ago preferred Abitibi stock sold for $80 a share. Trust for fair play was placed in the Government. Now the Government was saying there was no obligation to the holders of these securities.

Profits Have Dropped.

Mr. Hepburn said that in 1937 the company had profits of $4,839,000. Profits now weren't near that figure.

"You're just picking a year to freeze out the junior holders," retorted Mr. Macaulay. Those enticed by the "false security" offered in 1937 were finding "the skids put under them" now.

Advised Hepburn Wrong

"You advised the prime minister wrong," Mr. Macaulay said to the attorney-general. "That is why he's in the jam he is in now."

Mr Macaulay said somebody had to speak for the "little fellows." The houses that issued the securities had "scuttled away." He listed these as J. C. Ripley of the National City Bank, the Royal Securities Corporation, and Wood Gundy and Company. "Somebody has to speak for the people on whom these securities were unloaded," said Mr. Macaulay.

Mr Hepburn interjected that bond obligations of the company total 68 millions and the total value of the company on the open market was $34,806,000.

Hope the problem would not be reduced to a political fight was expressed by Mr. Roebuck. There were legal rights and equitable rights at stake and the latter should have consideration.

"Does that apply to your Hydro legislation?" asked Premier Hepburn.

"Ah, ha," said Mr. Roebuck, "not after you got through with it."

It was unfortunate, said Mr. Roebuck, that Premier Hepburn "made himself the mouthpiece of Ripley in saying Abitibi assets are not worth the bonded debt."

"It is evident," said Mr. Hepburn. "You can buy the bonds for $34,000,000."

Mr. Roebuck said estimates placed the value of the company's properties in 1937 at $82,000,000. Now it was proposed to consider only the $69,000,000-equity of the bondholders.

"Ripley and other high-pressure types have been in the department of lands and forests and I suggest the government be very careful not to leave a lot of sore people all over the United States and Canada."

The time was not too late yet for Mr. Heenan to call together all interested Abitibi parties and reach a settlement of the company's affairs, suggested Mr. Roebuck. "It would be one way to avoid the disaster the government is apparently promoting at this moment.

"The government is not taking sides," said Premier Hepburn. "Let it go to the courts."

Mr. Heenan said the debate would be an urge for those intrested in Abitibi to get together. The government wanted to eliminate the possibility of the problem becoming a political football.

"This is a mess laid on our doorstep. The member for York South (Mr. Macaulay) was a member of the government that let the bond mortgage be put on. Why didn't he speak to the shareholders then?"

Mr. Heenan asked why former premiers of Quebec and Ontario had co-operated in having newsprint mills built to bring the industry to its present stage of over-production.

"That isn't the group that's here now," said Col. Drew.

"You can't wash your hands of them that easily," said Mr. Heenan.

Buyers Hesitant About Signing

The Minister concluded by saying that he was satisfied that if the Abitibi company could be got out of liquidation, 400,000 tons of United States newsprint business could be regained. As it was paper buyers were hesitant about signing a contract for 10 years with a company in liquidattion.

First busines of the House was the election of Roland Patterson (Lib. Grey North) as chairman of the Committee of the Whole and Deputy Speaker, the post formerly held by Speaker James Clark. Mr. Patterson was nominated by Premier Hepburn.

With cheers the House received announcement by Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon that the Dionne Quintuplets would be brought to Toronto May 22 to meet Their Majesties. The Premier's suite at the Legislative Buildings will be placed at the disposal of the Quintuplets and their parents. The Ontario government will provide a special train for the children.

Rev. Mutchmoor Preaches In Havelock Church

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 14.—Elected to succeed Rev. Dr. D. N. McLauchlin as secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada at the general council of September, 1938, and fresh from a visit to all the Presbyteries in the Maritimes, Rev. J. R. Mutchmoor, B.A., B.D., of Toronto, made his first official visits in the Central Ontario area when he spoke at the Sunday services in Havelock, Trent River and Campbellford churches. Rev. Mr. Mutchmoor was called from the pastorate at the John Black Memorial Church, North Winnipeg, where he had been active in social problems, to be associate secretary in the fall of 1936. He is well versed and active in social developments; appeared before the Rowell Commission at Ottawa, and is secretary of the Committee of Churchmen who regulate the national religious broadcasts under the C.B.C., and is at present working intensely in that field.

True Of Church

At the Sunday evening service in the Havelock United Church, speaking on "The Christian Church Confronts a Bewildered World" he dealt with the question "What can the church do about it?" in an age Van Loon described aptly as "cave men going for a ride in a chevrolet." Quoting Sir Robert Borden's complaint about the handicap of the indifference of democracy, he said the same was true in the church. But after reviewing attacks made on the church, especially in Germany, he said there was a noticeable quickening of interest and return to the church. The "Church" was the "Visible Body" today ..... as "Living Church"..... and "Broken" for others as was Christ's. These points opened the prospective avenues for church action. The last point was illustrated from the speaker's own experience at the battle of Vimy.

Rev. Mutchmoor eulogized the service rendered by the local pastor, Rev. Andrew McLauchlin, as secretary of the Evangelism and Social Service Committee of the Bay of Pointe Conference, recently appointed to co-operate with the Board on matters of prison reform. Mr. McLauchlin's report on Kingston Penitentiary after the riots was read in Hansard by the then Minister of Justice, and has been before the recent enquiry.

behind it and talked in a low voice while the third member of the trio sat in the car. Glass walked on down the road but the men soon caught up with him again and jumped out of the car in front of him. One of the trio demanded any money the youth had on his person but before the youth could "fork over" his belongings the same man questioned him as to his monthly earnings on the farm. His reply seems to have touched a soft spot in the heart of his aggressor. "He needs it worse than we do," remarked one of the thugs and they got into their car and drove down the road ahead of the boy who did not waste any time in getting over fences and fields on a "short cut" home. Glass said he had never seen any of the men before but did not reveal the extent of his monthly earnings which had almost scared the thugs away.

Michigan To Check Its Labor Laws

LANSING, Mich., Mar. 14 — (C. P.). — Harry F. Hittle, Republican Leader of the Michigan Senate Labor Committee, said to-day the State's drastic labor dispute legislation would receive revisionary treatment by the Senate to transform it into impartial legislation rather than the anti-labor measure it is to-day.

Governor Frank Fitzgerald has approved tentatively the measure as passed by the Michigan House of Representatives. The legislation provides for 15 days' notice before a strike is called and prohibition of a strike unless approved by the Michigan Labor Relations Board.

Labor leaders in Detroit have denounced the Bill as "vicious, anti-labor legislation" which would affect only the craft unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. The unions affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations are in industries engaged in inter-state commerce and thus are unaffected by state legislation.

by amendments to the existing Dominion elections act rather than to have a separate statute and separate machinery which aroused objections to the bill last year.

The amendments would recommend themselves "to those sincere in their advocacy of reform," Mr. Power thought. "It is with some misgiving that I mention sincerity in the same breath as reform.

"Reform, that staid and respectable goddess, has of late been sued too often and too successfully by psuedo-messiahs not to have been divested of some of her pristine virtue.

"The peoples of this North American continent have not, of late, been particularly enamored of reform movements as such and I fear that perhaps last year too much emphasis was placed on reform and moral uplift."

Last year's bill should have been entitled "an act to prevent exploitation of parliamentary candidates and to promote economy in elctions," Mr. Powr said. "It should have received more support."

Debate on the electorial committee resolution was devoted almost entirely to the campaign funds aspect of the question. A similar bill was brought into the House last session but met with little support in its details and was dropped.

More Modern Methods Used.

"Cost of election campaigns is too high and some means must be found to lower it. Political corruption, wholesale bribery and distribution of liquor has disappeared to a large extent from our political morality but it has been succeeded by more modern methods of propaganda and proselytism which are almost as expensive."

Mr. Power believed that if campaign expenditures were strictly limited and reduced workers would do as much as they are doing now and do it for nothing merely in the interests of the party they support.

Full publicity of all contribution and a public record of their disposal would have the effect of reducing expenditures and lower the cost to the candidate, the minister believed.

Dr. Manion supported the resolution and registered again his objections to newspaper editorials vaguely hinting at irregularities and obligations entered upon by parties in accepting campaign funds.

Dr. Manion said he had heard of the old days of "a barrel of whisky" provided by candidates, but he believed that was a thing of the past He had not operated his campaigns in that manner and had no knowledge of anybody doing so.

"There should be more publicity about campaign funds," Dr. Manion said. "There is nothing shameful about them if properly raised and administered."

"Muck-raking" Adventure.

Support for Mr. Pelletier's motion regarding an investigation of campaign funds of the past came only from the Social Credit group and the C.C.F. C. E. Bothwell (Lib.-Swift Current), chairman of the committee last year, said it would mean only "muck-raking" and would serve no good purpose.

Mr. Power said such an inquiry would only serve "to throw mud at a large number of people" and would achieve nothing. What was now proposed was action to deal with the situation in the future, and he suggested if Mr. Pelletier was sincere he get behind the committee and help. Dr. Manion agreed with the minister.

Several times during the debate it was charged that the Social Credit Party in Alberta had used a promise of dividends of $25 a month for every citizen to influence the voters and Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) said $100,000 voted by the Alberta Legislature for Social Credit propaganda was used to elect Social Credit candidates.

Victor Quelch (S.C. Acadia) said the Social Credit Party could have paid its dividends if the Dominion Government had kept its promise not to interfere with the Social Credit experiment. He said the old parties received their campaign funds from financial corporations who wanted to see "reactionary" monetary policies maintained.

Citizens' Band Is Success In Fine Concert

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 14.—A large and appreciative audience gathered in the Town Hall on Friday evening for the concert given by the Citizen's Band, under the leadership of Lieutenant W. H. Peryer of Peterborough, with three films of picture as an added feature to the musical program.

The audience was warmly welcomed by Lieutenant Peryer, who stated that the band would probably give another similar concert early in April, since the large number present gave evidence that such an undertaking would be well supported.

Henry Parnell, of the Rangers" Band, Peterborough, was then introduced by the leader, who had brought with him eight little boys, explaining that they were making their first public appearance as entertainers and two of them had had their instruments for only ten days. The names were: Max Doughty, Victor Doughty, Billy Edgar, Bob Nattress, Jimmie Webb, Bob Milburn, Garth and Wallace Parnell, and the playing of these youthful performers was one of the highlights of the entire evening. Their first selection was a hymn tune, "Orillia," and following the encore, the first picture, "The Test," was shown. Larmer Bros. having this part of the program in charge.

Playing in front of the stage, the Citizens' Band gave a number of selections, winning prolonged applause from the audience; and the second film, a series of humorous cartoons, "Tight Rope Tricks," was run off, and an intermission gave opportunity for social converse, and necessary announcements. The boy players came next with "Adoration," and were rewarded with a great hand from the listeners, and after the recall, the final set of pictures, "Roamin' Wild," a wild west production which particularly pleased the younger element, were shown, and the enjoyable entertainment was brought to a close with the National Anthem, led by the boy players and the Citizens' Band.

SELLS MILK ROUTE.

Clinton B. Young, Douro Township farmer who has operated a milk route in the city for the past eight and half years has sold his business to Campbell's Dairy. He intends to devote all his time to his farm in the future.

SNOW IS DISAPPEARING.

The large south lawn in front of St. John's Anglican Church is almost clear of snow. During the last two days the warm sun has done battle with the snowbanks and as a result large patches of grass have been swept clean.

DEER PLENTIFUL.

Jack Vowels, driver for Stocks' Bread on the Bancroft route reported today that he had surprised five deer browsing along the road just north of Burleigh Falls this week. The five animals crossed the road in front of the truck and disappeared into the weeds. He has seen several deer on the road within the last two weeks.

GIVE HIM A BOOST.

Victor Cremasco, well known local amateur singer, appeared in the finals on Sunday on the Ken Soble Hour competing for a cash prize of $250. The eight-year-old boy sang "My Buddy," and made a hit with the audience, but competition is very keen and all his friends in this city should have their votes in the mail before Thursday if possible.

FROZEN BRAKE BANDS.

Warm sunny days and cold nights are a combination that bring headaches to city motorists as the water splashed on the brake bands during the day from the streets usually freezes at night and often a driver is unable to start his car in the morning. Residents outside the business section can eliminate this trouble to a great extent by keeping catch basins in front of their homes free of ice and snow so that water will drain off.

CORDWOOD LOST.

Reports from the north country indicate that conditions in the woods may make it impossible to get all of the cordwood out to market this year. The snow is very deep and under the snow is a strong crust which has been causing injury to the feet of horses used to haul out wood. In some places work has been suspended and one man who has to tote the wood across two swamps has decided to leave the firewood in the woods.

A NEAR FATALITY.

A grey timber wolf had a narrow escape from death this week on No. 28 Highway this side of Coe Hill when it crossed the road between two cars. One car was proceeding towards Apsley and the other was going to oCe Hill when the wolf sped across the road. oBth drivers had visions of the $15 bounty and both tried to run down the animal, but it was too fast for them and escaped. Norman Lean of Apsley reports that districts residents claim the wolves are very numerous.

PRACTICE POSTPONED.

The usual practice of the Male Chorus scheduled for Tuesday night has been postponed because of the illness of the conductor, Mr. Charles Renaud.

CASE GOES OVER

Another adjournment was ordered by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., today in the case of Harry Ingles, charged with non-payment of wages to Roy Fenton. The latter was out of town and had to ask that the case not be disposed of today.

SET FOR NORWOOD

Two cases involving charges of theft of trees from crown land in Dummer township were on the list for hearing in police court this morning but in accordance with a previous arrangement they were adjourned until Tuesday, March 21, and will be heard in the Norwood town hall.

DATES ARE SET

President James Dutton announced at Monday's meeting of the Peterborough Rotary Club that the annual carnival will be held this year on Thursday and Friday, June 8 and 9, and may posibly be extended to include Saturday, June 10.

PREMIER TO SPEAK

Members of the Peterborough Rotary Club have received an invitation from the Buffalo, N.Y. club to attend an international goodwill meeting in Buffalo at which Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario will be the guest speaker. Local arrangements are in charge of Rotarian R. J. Goring.

FIRE IN STORE

A lighted match dropped into a waste paper basket started a small fire that gave the fire department a run to Soden's Book Store, Hunter street at 1.20 this afternoon. Beyond burning a number of files and sending a cloud of smoke into the offices upstairs the blaze did not do a great amount of damage.

REPORTS ACCIDENT

Walter Rose, Rogers street, reported to the police that he was driving out toward Chemong his car collided with another automobile coming into the city, near the intersection of Reid street with the Chemong Road. The rear fender of Mr. Rose's car was damaged and he believes that the other vehicle received more damage. He was unable to report the name of the driver or the licence number of the other automobile.

FARMERS NOT BUSY.

Lumber men in the city report that very little timber has been brought into the city by farmers, apparently because the snow has hindered logging operations. As a rule at this time of the year, several farmers who have taken out some logs on their own property bring them into the mills, but so far there has been little activity. The camp of the Peterborough Lumber Company shut down three weeks ago, and all of the work laid out was successfully completed.

Might As Well Be Dead Transient Says

"I might as well be dead as wandering around this way," Thomas Fosboro, transient, told Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning after the court had asked the accused, a war veteran, if he would enlist again in the event of another war.

"I think I would, Your Worship," was Fosboro's answer and then he added his remark about death being just about as acceptable as his present condition.

Fosboro was charged with Daniel Hamilton, another transient, with begging here yesterday and both men pleaded guilty. Fosboro informing the court that he had just been released from the county jail yesterday morning.

Hamilton who said he too was a veteran of the Great War told the magistrate that he also would enlist again if there were another call to arms.

Chief Constable Newhall suggested that the men be allowed to go on condition that they get out of town immediately.

"They'd only go to Lindsay and they would be before me again if I were taking the court there or they'd get before Magistrate Butler in Belleville," Magistrate Langley remarked.

Finally, however, he allowed the two transients to go on their promise to leave town without delay.

Slim Hope Of Greeting King And Queen

J. W. Geraghty was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce at the directors' meeting last night, with George A. Macdonald vice-president.

J. J. Turner retains the position of treasurer and J. J. Doris remains secretary.

Mr. Geraghty has the honor of presiding over the Chamber in its golden anniversary year. It was organized in 1889, and is beginning to bear the weight of time and service in Peterborough. At the same time the directors intend to turn the anniversary to account in a special effort, particularly in a rally to the annual dinner.

The directors discussed possible arrangements to join with Port Hope in a welcome to King George and Queen Elizabeth, but local hopes that Their Majesties will come within thirty miles of Peterborough are beginning to fade. The royal train will pass along the lake front, but as it is due in Toronto at 10.30 a.m., and may reach Port Hope by 8.30, the hours seems too early for a reception. However, the Chamber of Commerce intends to communicate with Port Hope in the possibility that some suitable arrangement can be made for the Port Hope-ePterborough district to have an opportunity of greeting King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Distill Themes of Classics Into A "No Bananas" Hit Make Yourself A Million

Tin Pan Alley composers browse among the works of the old masters for all of the modern day tunes, and by ingenuous arranging often produces what is known as hit tunes with three or four well-known old melodies strung together providing most of the composition, Rev. Dr. F. J. Horwood, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music said in an address at St. Andrews Sunday School Monday night.

Mr. Harry Northrop, president of the local chapter of the Ontario Music Teacher's Association, under whose auspices the speaker was brought to the city, introduced Dr. Horwood and at the conclusion of the lecture tendered the thanks of the audience.

Dr. Horwood referred to the tune "Yes We Have No Bananas" produced in 1922. The arrangement including four tunes well-known to professional musicians. The man who wrote this piece is reputed to have earned $750,000 from the sale of records and sheet music.

Taking as his topic "Music Appreciation" Dr. Horwood not only described the present day music but harked back to 4,000 years ago when the Chinese had their own music and tunes arranged from five note pentatonic scale. This scale was used by all the oriental nations and in other lands, as the Scottish Folk Song, Aul Lang Syne, is written in this simple scale.

"In later years people conceived the idea of playing two tunes about five tones apart but it took centuries before music was developed to the point where two or three melodies could be played together." The speaker added that of all the fine arts music lagged behind the others.

Genius and Insanity.

"To those who are not professional musicians, the idea often comes that musicians are somewhat peculiar and that genius and insanity are not far apart, and to others comes the idea that being musically inclined is to be effeminite."

"If you read musical history, you will discover that 95 per cent of the musical composition were written by men, and that until this century there were only very few women composers and musicians."

Before narrowing down his talk to purely instrumental music, Dr. Horwood said that "we are in the radio age and whether we like it or not we must listen to music, and modern composers and arrangers are striving to produce music that will please everyone." On the other hand he said, "We cannot compel people to listen to symphony orchestra music because to them this music has no appeal. The average person would much prefer to hear a single instrument."

"Music appeals to the senses in a three fold manner, rythmic, emotional and intellectual, and the simplest music usually has the most striking rythmic appeal."

Imaginary Orchestra

Dr. Horwood painted a picture of an imaginary symphony orchestra on ths stage, explaining the uses of the various instruments. Usually there are between 80 to 110 in an orchestra he said and the total cost of the instruments used may exceed $40,000.

Describing a typical orchestra he said there were 16 first violins and 16 second violins, then 14 violas which are on seventh larger than a violin. There are twelve cellists, 8 or 10 double bass vials, 8 wood instruments, such as the flute, 4 horns, 3 trombones, tuba, and very often a harpist. In his glimpse into the make-up of an orchestra he said the concert master sits directly to the left of the leader, and if the latter faints or is unable to carry on for any reason the concert master steps up and the concert goes on.

Lives of Old Master

The speaker sketched the lives of many of old masters starting with Handel and Bach, the two German masters who lived about the same time. As he talked of these men he played snatches from some of their works to illustrate their style.

"Modern symphony music as we know it originated about the year 1760 with Haydn and Mozart as the leaders. Mozart was the most perfect example of genius that has ever lived. He conceived a composition in his mind before setting down a single detail on paper. He died before he was forty years of age."

"All great composers had their off days and it is wrong to say that because a great composer wrote a piece of music it must be good."

Beethoven An Imitator

Speaking of Beethoven, Dr. Horwood said he was an eccentric fellow who copied Haydn. "He was a poor student and a worse teacher but he has never been excelled as a composer. Beethoven is the one great composer whose works can fill a complete propram. One never becomes tired of Beethoven."

Dr .Horwood said after Beethoven there was a romantic period in music with Wagner and Tschaikovski being in the forefront.

Surprise Ballot

The speaker said in Toronto it is the accepted thing to be an admirer of Brahms and many refuse to believe music lovers if they express a preference for the work of Tschaikovski. However, this year the latter composer evidently is enjoying a wave of popularity because in the vote taken a short time ago among the patrons to determine what would go on the request program, more people asked for Tschaikovski's fifty symphony than for any other.

In conclusion Dr. Horwood advised the audience to concentrate on the music when one is listening to a radio program or concert rather than the artist and in this way the greatest amount of satisfaction is obtained. "The art of listening to good music is one of the finest things in the world today."

Body Of W. G. Morrow Home Bound Today From Winter Resort

The last home-coming of W. G. Morrow, who died suddenly of pneumonia in Pasadena Monday morning, began today in a mournful journey from the salubrious strand of southern California for his two sisters, Miss Emma Morrow and Mrs. Duncan Walker who are accompanying the body of their brother. G. H. Thompson leaves tonight to meet them in Chicago, and at the offices of the Toronto Savings and Loan Company of which Mr. Morrow was Vice-President and Managing Director, no definite information was available regarding the day on which the funeral will be held. In the review of his active life as published on Monday an inadvertent omission overlooked his service as chairman of the Board of Albert College, Belleville, for the last two years, an educational institution of the United Church in which Mr. Morrow had been interested for many years.

WEDDING BELLS.

A lovely old lady whose age according to the register is 74 and her boy friend who is 56, walked to the altar last Friday and were wed. A few days of sunshine with the breath of Spring coupled up with the old saying that two can live as cheaply as one, evidently was sufficient to make the man and woman decide to travel the balance of life's journey together.

League Branch Launched By Local Group

At an enthusiastic meeting Monday night in the Y.M.C.A. attended by a number of business men, tradesmen and farmers, the initial organization of a local branch of the Leadership League was effected.

Under the chairmanship of Dr. R. W. Frank, machinery was set in motion for a widespread organization here and for a series of open educational meetings on public affairs, the first to be held as quickly as can be arranged.

"It is my hope," Dr. Frank said, "that this organization can function as a great public forum to arouse the political consciousness of the people and to cause them to think clearly on matters of fundamental concern. When elections are on people are blinded by party prejudice and cannot think clearly so that now is the time to do our thinking. We are not being led by the Globe and Mail," he continued, "this is a movement of the people and if a new party does become necessary that party must be the product of a convention of delegates sent from all these local leagues.

No Chance For Youth

Bruce Johnston, clerk of North Monaghan township was applauded when he made an appeal for action on behalf of the younger generation. "I am the father of eight children," he said, "and like every other father I consider my first duty is to them. But what opportunity have the young people today? In a land as rich in natural resources as Canada opportunities should not be lacking. It is for us, for this League to find out what is wrong and move to correct it."

Dr. Frank explained that following the first group meeting he had been instructed to write the Leadership League to try to get a list of League members from Peterborough but as that information could not be obtained, the only course, then was for those known to be interested in the matter to get together and arrange for an open meeting with a League speaker, at which meeting would be announced a date for a general organization meeting.

The present committee, he explained, was only provisional and would be replaced as soon as a general meeting could be held. Until such a meeting it was impossible to know how many local people were interested in the movement. The date of the meeting will be announced shortly.

"Gas" Tax Increase Would Pinch Buses

Premier Hepburn's forecast that their would in all likelihood be a two cent increase in the gasoline tax made this year, is causing considerable concern not only to the transport companies but to the Border Transit Company operating the buses on the city streets.

Questioned today, Laurie Mitchell, local manager said he was not in a position to make any comments as yet, but admitted the forecast was causing considerable concern. On several occasions members of the City Council have voiced disapproval of the existing set up which does not allow the Bus Company a rebate on the gas tax, although the buses do not use the Provincial highways at all, operating only within the city limits. A two cent increase in tax over a year would make a considerable difference in the profits of the company and might possibly result in an increase in the fares.

William Adderman, manager of the Hamilton-Peterborough Freight Lines said the Automotive Transport Association will be giving the announcement attention soon, and as a member he said the feeling was paramount among the transport men that they had done more than their share towards paying for the highways and any increase in the gas tax would be manifestly unfair.

As an illustration of this statement Mr .Adderman pointed out that in 1938 which was a comparatively slack year ,transport men operating heavy units paid approximately $1400 per unit for gasoline taxes added to this was $497.00 license to operate the vehicle.

Club President

ALD. R. M. GLOVER

Re-elected President of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club at its annual meeting Monday night. Growth of hundreds of young trees will make the Kawartha acres among the most beautiful in the province, he said.

R. Glover Again President Of Kawartha Club

The annual meeting of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club was held last night in the club house to hear the reports of the various committees and elect officers for the coming year.

R. M. Glover was elected president by the board of directors for a second term. The board felt that the club had made rapid strides under his capable guidance. The complete results of the election are as follows:

Executive Council (for 3 years)—B. Ottewell, D. L. Davis, R. M. Glover, F. J. Overend.

Golf Committee—C. B. Muir, Frank Jobbitt, J. W. Geraghty, H. G. McKenzie, A. B. Rhodes.

Handicap Committee—H. A. Barker, Ed. Starr, T. J. Miller.

Tennis Committee—Jack Kirkwood, R. S. Hull, Bob Maybee.

Board of Directors (3 years)—B. Ottewell, F. J. Overend, R. M. Glover.

Officers :R. M. Glover, president; I. F. McRae, 1st vice-president; George Hewitt, 2nd vice-president; T. Glover, treasurer; R. MacMorran, secretary.

The treasurer, T. Glover, in his report showed that the club was in a good financial position. Greater activity in the club house was reported by A. R. Nobbs. Increase in membership was reported by F. J. Overend. C. B. Muir reported on the condition of the golf course which he stated had been kept in excellent condition all year. B. I. Burgess predicted a strenuous year for the incoming handicap committee due to the change over in the course from 9 to 18 holes. A. R. Jones reported a good year for tennis section and suggested that the restriction limiting membership should be maintained. Fred J. Hickey reported for the entertainment committee.

The president, Mr. Glover, in his remarks to the executive council said that it was remarkable the progress that had been made in the last year. We had completed the 18 holes of the golf course which had already received the favorable comments of many visitors and was source of pride to the members. The lockerrooms had also been completed and were appreciated by the members. The road had been given a permanent surface. This also gave the members a great deal of satisfaction.

The property in general had taken on a new appearance by the planting of thousands of trees last fall. This would be a pleasant surprise to the members on their first round of golf in the spring.

The president stated that he was keenly interested in any scheme that would produce good golf and urged the members to do all they could to encourage the younger player.

The board of directors, he stated, would be asked to consider plans for further beautification of the property which he was convinced would be in a few years one of the show places in the province.

Wife's Evidence Needed Court Decides

To permit if possible the examination of a witness whose testimony Magistrate Langley felt should be heard a case in which A. Vallee, alias Joseph LaPearl was charged with stealing during August, 1937, the sum of $26 from Herbert Asselstine. Charlotte street rooming house proprietor was enlarged until Thursday after most of the evidence had been heard in police court this morning.

Vallee was undefended while the prosecution was in charge of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Asselstine testified that he ran a rooming house on Charlotte street and that the accused roomed there for some time. Sometime in August Vallee had been given $26 to pay Asselstine's rent into the office of Bradburn's Limited, it was not paid and Vallee disappeared, the witness not seeing him again until a short time ago when he ran into him on the street. Asselstine said he had to make up the shortage by paying Bradburn's Limited the $26 later on.

Cross-examined by the accused Asselstine said he did not know that Vallee had been working at the C.G.E. golf course in September of 1937.

"Why wasn't I arrested then," asked the prisoner. Witness replied that he did not know.

"Did you know that some time later than that I served a month in jail here."

"I did not; I didn't hear or see anything of you after you left my place in August, 1937."

Ald. Herb. Bradburn, secretary-treasurer of Bradburn's Limited said that Asselstine had promised to make a rent payment in August, 1937, but the money was not paid and the complainant had later made the amount good.

Prisoner's Denial

Vallee admitted staying at Asselstine's house for a few days but denied that he had received any money to pay the rent. He had been drinking with Asselstine and the latter's wife and on the Saturday Mrs. Asselstine gave him some money to buy wine.

To the magistrate he said that was the only money he had received from Mrs. Asselstine but afterward when cross-examinned by Crown Attorney McElderry he said that Mrs. Asselstine had given him money on four days, on Friday, Saturday and Monday to buy wine and on Sunday to purchase rubbing alcohol.

Vallee said that he worked at the C.G.E. golf course in September, 1937, and was in Peterborough until January, 1938, when he was sent to jail for a month. Later he went north and in March was sentenced to a year in Burwash and was released from that institution on January 23 of this year, returning to Peterborough.

Magistrate Langley said that he wished to hear the evidence of Mrs. Asselstine and was told that the woman was an invalid who had been confined to the house for some time. Vallee was remanded until Thursday and the crown in the meanwhile will try to solve the problem of how Mrs. Asselstine's testimony is to be obtained.

75 O.A.C. Students Here On Wednesday

Seventy-five students and professors from the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph will visit Peterborough on Wednesday, as guests of the DeLaval Company to study the manufacture and operation of modern dairy equipment.

The party is expected to arrive in the city by bus about 10.30 and they will spend the morning at Campbell's Dairy, where they will inspect the new churn, and see butter manufactured. They will be taken through this modern dairy and the various processes explained. The trip is actually part of the course, and is valuable to the pupils in that it gives them an opportunity of viewing the equipment under actua' working conditions.

At noon the group will have lunch at the Empress Hotel and the afternoon will be devoted in inspecting the DeLaval plant in the southend of the city. The students will be shown the manufacture of separators, milking machines, and all the other up-to-the-minute devices now used in the dairy industry. The day's program will wind up with dinner at the Empress. The entire class of 1938-39 in Dairying is making the trip from Guelph, and to many it will be the first look at the city of Peterborough.

NEW YORK, March 14—(AP). — Fire early to-day destroyed a two-storey brick skating rink in East Harlem, a building one known as the Star Casino and built about 1889 as an armory.

One thousand patrons in a movie theatre adjoining the burning building, a Harlem landmark, quit the premises without disorder when smoke began to fill the theatre.

Rankin Is Arrested In Creamery Job

The robbery of the Lakefield Creamery on Friday night last and the theft of some 465 pounds of creamery butter is believed by the police cleared up by the arrest near Grafton yesterday by Provincial Constables D. M. Carruthers of Peterborough and Menie of Cobourg of Elmer Rankin who was brought to Peterborough Monday afternoon and arraigned before Magistrate E. A. Gee at a special session of the police court.

Without plea or election Rankin was remanded until next Monday on a charge of breaking and entering and theft.

Magistrate Gee did not fix bail and the prisoner will have to make application to the county judge if he desires his liberty in the meanwhile.

Armed with a search warrant the officers searched Rankin's place and recovered most of the stolen butter it is stated.

Adjourns Gun Case; Counsel Absent

The absence at the Cobourg Assizes of Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., was responsible for another adjournment this morning in six cases under Section 217 of the Customs Act in which a local man is charged with being in possession of fire arms upon which no duty was paid and with selling six shotguns and rifles allegedly smuggled into Canada.

Mr. Gordon was to have prosecuted the cases on behalf of the Department of National Revenue but because of his previous engagement at Cobourg was unable to be present and Corp. T. J. Woods of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police who laid the charges was forced to ask for an adjournment.

By consent Thursday of next week was fixed as the date for hearing the cases.

The accused, who was represented by H. S. Balfour pleaded not guilty to all six charges.

Lawyer Producing Flask In Court Charged With Illegal Possession Of Liquor

LONDON, Ont., Mar. 14. — Remington White, Toronto lawyer, rushed by chartered plane from Buffalo to London on Monday to defend a client on a charge of having liquor in a public place, and found himself under arrest on the same charge.

It was a climax to as unusual a court proceeding as any in recent years. James R. Elliott of Komoka the defendant, was all but forgotten as White staged a forceful defence by objecting to everything, even the methods of the shorthand reporter.

Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw warned the Toronto barrister several times to curb his remarks. Counsel for Elliott, however, paid little attention to the reminders from the bench, and he suddenly whipped out a flask, during a heated passage, and placed it before the magistrate.

"If this is contempt, arrest me," he declared. "I carry this on doctor's orders."

Provincial Constable Ben Milligan removed the top of the flask, sniffed the contents, and announced the flask contained liquor. He promptly placed White under arrest, and he was remanded until Monday on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. His client, who was fined $100 and costs, or three months' imprisonment, will appear in court the same day either to pay the fine or surrender to the police.

During the sensational proceedings, the lawyer claimed his client had been the victim of "dirty railroading." and drew from Crown Attorney Mayer Lerner the warning, "If you don't know how to conduct yourself in a court room, I'll find a way to make you."

Surprise For Couple Fifty-three Years Wed Feature W.A. Meeting At Ida

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT PLEASANT, March 14.—Mrs. William Dickens was hostess to the members of the W.A. of St. John's Church for their March meeting at her home in Ida village on Wednesday afternoon, with an attendance of twelve members.

Mrs. Beatty Fee, vice president, was in the chair and conducted the meeting.

The devotional period was taken by Mrs. Fee, who followed the World's Day of Prayer service which had been previously postponed, owing to stormy weather and impassable roads.

Mrs. Morton and Mrs. McCamus both led in prayer.

During the meeting the material for a bale of clothing was prepared and distributed among the members.

A unique surprise was in store at the tea hour, when the hostess entertained in honor of a W.A. member, Mrs. James Paul, who observed the 53rd anniversary of her wedding on Friday.

A huge wedding cake was placed before the bride and groom, and the hostess was assisted in the service of dainty refreshments by Mrs. H. Cillis.

Mrs. R. Lough, in a neat speech, proposed the toast to the bride and groom of 53 years, and Mr. Paul replied in a few well-chosen words on behalf of Mrs. Paul and himself, after which "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" was heartily sung and a social half hour enjoyed before the members took their departure. Several of the men folk were invited in during the tea hour.

Johnny Allen, Cleveland's Star Hurler, Back In Game–Arm Acting Perfectly

NEW ORLEANS, March 14.—(AP)—"Sock!" went a fast ball into a catcher's mitt—and one of the new baseball season's most important questions was answered.

Johnny Allen was pitching again—the first time since he had a chip of bone removed from his elbow in an operation Aug. 27.

"It was perfect," was Johnny's verdict yesterday.

The Cleveland Indians' star hurler even surprised himself.

"I hadn't intended to try my arm for a few days yet," Allen confessed, "but the sun was so hot and I felt so good I couldn't wait.

"It was perfect. I tried every delivery I know. I didn't feel the slightest pain."

That "sock" played $20,000 music to the Indians' ears and carried much of their hopes for the season. Allen had been promised his $20,000 salary whether the operation proved sucessful or not.

Last season he won 14 games and lost eight before the arm trouble forced him to retire.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Some time ago we made the statement that a final game in any sport is more than likely to be a wash out. Sometimes the audience expects too much—they, themselves, become very jittery if the players do not play up to 100 per cent. They are very critical. The players themselves, especially in amateur sport, because nervous and excited but all this was absent last nght when the final game of the leads and seconds competition was being played.

These boys, some playing their first year, played like veterans, conducted themselves like old timers and put on an exhibition of curling that was a treat to watch. Really "Those who came to scoff, remained to pray."

Playing a twelve end game—tied four times—all square coming home and the game depending on the last shotWhat more could the spectators expect . Wha more could the players give- .Who played the best game? There was no best. There were eight boys out their fighting for that cup and they were all good All puffing and steaming and all tired out. It was a good game well played.

In the first game of the "round robin" series to determine the club championship, T. McArthur had little trouble with Dr. Green's rink. Taking a lead of 8 points in the first four ends and never was in trouble afterwards, finishing up 14-8. To-night T. McArthur will play G. Robertson in the first half of the annual games for the "Bottum-Fitzgerald" shield for rinks from the Bobcaygeon and Peterborough clubs. The local club took a lead of six point. The games are 14 ends and total points on the round to count. The return games will be played tomorrow night—bith in Bobcaygeon and Peterborough.

St. Paul's Tie All Saints In Eighth Tilt

St. Paul's and All Saints battled to a 3-3 overtime Church Hockey League junior final draw last night at the Brock St. rink, their eighth game in a three-in-five series, four ending in ties. All Saints came from behind twice to tie it last night, their main threat being McDougall's breakaways as St. Paul's pressed. Goal tending by McBride helped them when All Saints proved dangerous in close, and the other crew missed many chances.

Spooner, a juvenile goalie, looked good despite the first tally, a drifter. Leether and Williamson went good on defence, with McDougall starring up front. Failure of All Saints' wings to cover up accounted for two St. Paul's goals, Watson counting on passouts. St. Paul's forwards checked well with Dundas strong on defence and J. McMillen also prominent Watson was the main scoring threat and nearly notched a pair in overtime as the Saints pressed. Csumrik and J. Easton also looked good up front, the latter hurt in the third. The teams:

All Saints: Goal, Spooner; defence, Williamson, Leether; centre, Deering; wings, McDougall, Abraham; subs, Robinson, Stinson, Ackford, G. Smith, D. Smith

St. Paul's: Goal, McBride; defence, Dundas, J McMillen; centre, J. Easton; wings, Csumrik, Watson; subs, Dunford, T McMillen, Lockington, G Easton

Referee—J. Dunkerley.

Summary:

First Period

St. Paul's—Dundas 6.30
All Saints—McDougall 9.30
Penalties—McDougall, Watson, G. Smith, J. McMillen.

Second Period

Westenders Win Midget Honors

Westenders nosed out King Edward on Thursday last to win the midget championship of the Southend Hockey League by a 3-2 score in Lakefield. It was fast and clean with the well-matched teams battling hard. Westenders tallied in the first twice to their rival's one goal, but it was tied in the second. A breakaway in the third lost for the K E. boys. Dalliday got both the losers' counters, while Lawson, Hartwicke, Cox and Anderson all went good. Garvey, Hickey and Huard scored for the winners, the whole team showing up well. The teams:

King Edward: Goal, Hartwicke; defence, McGregor, Lawson; centre, Cox; wings, Hodson, Anderson; subs, Close, Dalliday, Riel.

Referee—B. Flint.

King Edward Team Ties Up Playoffs

King Edward trounced St. Peter's 4-2, in Lakefield last Thursday to even up the juvenile playoffs of the Southend Hockey League. The O. J. H. A. gang expected to clean up in two straight but a battling K E. crew earned the nod. Goals by Gillespie, Bolton, Patterson and Agnew gave them the victory in a fast, clean fray. Both goalies looked good, Shea being hard to beat when pressed by the Saints. Bolton, Gillespie, Agnew, Shea and Patterson stood out for the winners; while O'Toole was the pick of the losers in this tussle.

Fractures Wrist Playing Hockey

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 14.—Morley Nelson, youthful son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nelson, suffered a compound fracture of his wrist this week as he was practicing hockey at the rink. The same boy suffered the loss of three teeth in an accident in Campbellford as he was playing hockey for the Hastings juveniles, more than a month ago.

Heavy Ice

WINDSOR, Ont., March 14—(CP)—The weight of ice during last weekend's storm here broke hundreds of tree limbs throughout Essex county—and no wonder. Investigators melted the ice from several experimental twigs and found it weighed 20 times the weight of the branches.

Not So Smart

STRATFORD, Ont., March 14—(CP)—Smartness of C. A. Bird's dog was his downfall. He had a habit of prancing about on an apartment parapet three stories above the ground. The other day his body was found in an alleyway behind the apartment.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

Puck fans might do worse than point the puddle-jumper toward Omemee tonight to see an O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdown game between the local Aces and Markham. They had a 5-all draw last week in Markham and it ought to be quite a duel this eve, with the Aces slight favorites to cop it. Little is known locally of the Aces, as that gang has been playing all winter in a district circuit in Omemee. They won it and stepped into O.H.A. playdowns. They boast a streamlined style of hockey, like the Rangers of N'Yawk—ya musta heard of 'em!—with ganging-up display that proves highly disconcerting to rivals. Such worthies aboard as Currie, Vitarelli, O'Leary, Connelly, R. Cournyea, A. Cournyea, Heal, Wright, White, Mortimer and Hill, coached by Eddie Williams. They may go quite a piece, too.

* * * * * *

Over in Baltimore, the Peterborough puck contingent is doing alright for itself, and the Orioles are zooming along in high gear recently. Coach Pick Hines has been offered a coaching job in Washington for next winter and if he takes it—though he can return again to Baltimore next season, where he's liked—Pick has indicated he'd take along Ned Vitarelli and Bill Calladine. Provided the latter isn't playing pro by then. Orioles had a tilt ala exhibish lately in Washington and drew over 6,000 fans to an open-air rink, so the Capital City is now interested in building an arena and joining the U.S. eastern amateur loop.

* * * * * *

Trio Of Petes

Hines has clapped himself on the back several times this season for picking up Calladine and Vitarelli from Peterborough to help build up the Orioles—a former perennial tailender. And well might the ex-coach of the Petes be pleased, as they've played fine hockey. Schedule ends a week from Saturday and Bill will probably play ball in Oshawa this summr and Ned may return to lacrosse here. Calladine has cracked the league scoring record of 71 points and is several points ahead of his nearest rival, with about three more games to play. He'll get a pro tryout, maybe with Ramblers next season. The Orioles have travelled to a coupla games the past few weeks via airplane.

* * * * * *

Waterloo Tigers and the Petes tangle here tomorrow night in an O.H.A. senior "B" round-robin game, the final one on local ice. It'll be quite a fracas, and we believe the Petes will even up that 5-4 heartbreaker they dropped in Kitchener a week back. The Buckland boys are out to make a playoff berth and are hitting on all cylinders again, just as in their scheduled tilts with Belleville and the Fliers. The Tigers have oodles of speed, a persistent forechecking style that disrupts many a rush, and a lot of finish on the attack. But the Petes had tough luck to lose to 'em before and will be battling bitterly to tame the Tigers here. With ice ready to do a fadeout in Peter's borough shortly, even if the Petes do make the puck playoffs, this tussle tomorrow may be the last seen here this year. So it should pack in the paying patrons and cash clients, eh?

* * * * * *

A Bit Better

All winter, fans have argued whether the '39 Petes were as good as last year or not, and we've wondered, too. But we now believe that the present Petes have a better balanced outfit than the '38 squad. Our goalie, the same chap, is playing a steadier game now, and we have two well-balanced forward lines — with lots of speed and scoring punch. A bunch of back-checkers, too. We won't nominate this defence over that of a year ago, but the team as a whole appears better—as a whole, mind you, and not counting several individual stars—than the Ontario semi-finalists of a year back. That is the opinion of this corner, anyway.

* * * * * *

Niagara Falls stepped into Kitchener last gloaming and helped themselves to a 7-1 senior "B" smirk over Waterloo. Which puts the Big Roar boys well out in front with four straight series wins and shoves the Tigers back with two wins and two losses—just half a game up on the Petes. We can tie 'em for second place on wins here tomorrow with a victory, and then an even break for the Petes on the road this coming week-end would be okay. Nichol will be out of action here Wednesday and maybe the rest of the season. On top of the charley-horse in his leg, he got a crack over the knee in practice the other day and that's that. Shrimp McDougall may be used as centre of the second line betwixt Creighton and Coughlin in the tilt tomorrow, we hear.

* * * * * *

Still At It

St. Paul's and All Saints again tied up their junior church puck playoffs, this time a 3-all tussle last eve at the Brock. Eight games it's gone now and the rivals are getting so they can read each other's minds after the long spell of rubbing shoulders and elbows together! Next one will be shortly either at the Brock or in Lakefield. Loop executive has decided to take no action on a final game protest by George St. bantams. Mark St. juvenile winners get a feed in the near future by the ladies of their church. Crests, instead of shields, will be presented the players of the winning teams this season, and team captains or managers should contact Sect. Don Charlton at once as to designs, colors, etc.

* * * * * *

Remarking that he is "too young to retire to the Old People's Home yet," Manager Eddie Murphy of the 1938 ball-playin' Petes is not counting the diamond game a dead issue here so far. He's still hustling and trying to get the locals a league to play in. Has contacted several Toronto parties and has been promised a hearing for Peterborough at a senior ball meeting in Toronto this week. Present setup in Toronto has two abbreviated loops in that city planning an interlocking schedule. In the Viaduct Loop, Oshawa and Danforth are the only entries to date, and Oshawa plans to import four players and have lights for night ball in the Motor City. In the West Toronto Circuit, the Bee Hive outfit and Findlay's are lone entries so far. Now, one more crew in the Viaduct and the Petes in the West Toronto, with six squads in an interlocking setup is Eddie's proposal—and it'll be considered. Our games would be night games away, with Saturdays here. Good luck, Eddie, keep battling—even if you're the only one here doing much yet.

Hither and yawn: Westenders won the Southend Loop midget title, while King Edward and St. Peter's are tied now in juvenile finals.... Patso McBride, 17-year-old goalie for St. Paul's junior church team, might be a good bet for junior O.H.A. another season....Les Burton may be playing the outfield for Oshawa GM-men this summer, we believe.... St. Paul's cagers won in Toronto on Sat'day with Jim Thorburn, their ace sniper, not snaring a point....St. John's juvenile basketeers may be playing in Toronto this week-end....Gray and Starr got cuts in a recent puck practice; the boys must be getting keyed up with playoffs in sight.... Lindsay Midgets had no alibis, saying the Aurora outfit was just a little too good..Chisholm of Oshawa will get a trial with Toronto Leafs.... Glad we didn't bet on the Lakeshore-Toronto senior "A" series, the northerners dropping two straight now....Frank Buckland says he used five forwards several recent games on a gamble that the Petes would pitch in some quick goals—and such a gamble sometimes works and sometimes doesn't; but he appreciates the interest of fans who wanted to know why ....A Falls' official has ordered copies of The Examiner where their game here was recorded; hope they aren't after us!....Duffus' have a bowling handicap tourney March 24th to April 5th....Ze feeneesh.

Erskine Rink Defeat Moore's To Win Bonspiel

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 14.—The rink skipped by F. L. Erskine, with Mrs. Geo. Graham as vice-skip and Chas. Hunter and Mrs. Harold Hamblin playing second and first stones, respectively, defeated N. A. Moore's team by one shot to win the Lakefield club's mixed bonspiel by the narrowest of margins, the score being 9-8. Mr. Moore's rink, composed of Mrs. T. Jewell, Wm. Watson, Mrs. D. Davis and N A Moore, skip, was one point ahead coming home but Mr Erskine's team placed two telling shots in the last end to cop the championship by a hair's breadth.

There were eleven rinks entered in the 'spiel with a lot of interest evidenced in the ten knock-out games played during the past couple of weeks. Representatives from the ladies' and men's curling clubs made up the teams, and everyone enjoyed the series.

First Round.

In the first round, F. L. Erskine defeated E. H. Northey, B. Q. Dench won from T. W. Chaplin and D. H. Charlton outplayed Geo. Chartlon, while Messrs. D. H. Webster, C. C. Stenner, N A. Moore, Geo. Spence and E. W. Bailey all received byes in this round.

In the second round F. L. Erskine defeated B. Q. Dench, D. H. Charlton won from D. H. Webster, N. A. Moore emerged the victor from a struggle with C. C. Stenner and Geo. Spence copped a victory from E. W. Bailey.

In the third round F. L. Erskine defeated D. H. Charlton and N. A. Moore put Geo. Spence out of the running In the final game, which was not won until the last stone was played, F. L. Erskine defeated N. A. Moore 9 to 8.

TWEED TERRIERS ARE TWO UP IN THE T. V. L. PLAYOFF GAMES

Capture Second Game Of Finals From Norwood 4-2; Both Teams Put Up Great Battle

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Mar. 14. — Before a packed arena on Monday night, Tweed Terriers defeated the Norwood team 4-2 in the second game of the Trent Valley League playoffs, and increased their wins to two straight, and strengthened their hold on the Cobley Trophy, symbolic of the winning team this year. This was one of the best games of the season, with both teams playing good combinations and checking in the pinches, when either side was short-handed.

Tweed opened the scoring in the first period, when Elsbury took a pass from Courneyea to notch the first counter of the game. In this canto Norwood missed several grand opportunities of gaining a good lead through poor passing when in close around the nets. However, Baker in the visitors' nets had a tough time, and was exceptionally fortunate on several occasions as the Terriers drilled in several counters on the corner of the nets.

Norwod Had Edge.

Play in the second period was a back-up between the two teams, with Norwood having an edge on the play in the first part. Rogers tallied both Norwood counters in the opening minutes of the canto, the first on a pass from C. Puffer and the second on a pass from Ibey. Both counters were scored when Orr was in the penalty box. Brennan went to the box in this period. However, the one goal lead was soon equalized when Courneyea took a neat pass from J. Tummon, who stick-handled through the Norwood defence, to notch the tying goal. Norwood pressed hard to gain the lead, but their star player Brennan, was too well covered when near the nets to lay over the passes. The visitors had the better of the play in this period, when Brennan, taking quite an active part on the rushes, but he was unfortunate when near the nets and could not get his passes out in front of the goal.

In the opening minutes of the last frame, Tweed went into a two-goal lead when Wager took a three-way pass from J. Tummon and W. Leal to put the Terriers on top of the game. Rushing up from behind his own bule line, Tip Tummon stick-handled through the Norwood team to drill the fourth home goal behind Baker, to end the scoring. Rogers and J. Tummon went to the penalty bench in this period for tripping.

Played Brilliant Game.

As usual Reeves played a brilliant game in goal, especially in the last period when the Norwood players swarmed in around the nets, but his net-minding was not as arduous as in the Madoc-Tweed series. Baker in the visitors' goal played a brilliant game, and stopped sure counters as the Terriers drove the puck into his pads when close in. In the dying seconds of the game, Baker robbed J. Tummon of a sure counter after he had stick-handled through the entire team, only to drive the puck into his pads.

Both teams played brilliant hockey, and the count could have easily been doubled, as pass after pass in front of the nets was missed, especially by the Norwood team, who did not seem to be able to click on their passing plays.

For the visiting team, Brennan, Rogers and Ibey were the best, and the most dangerous on the rushes, while for the home forces, Elsbury, Courneyea, and Baldy Leal were the standouts. Leal was most effective in his poke-checking against Brennan.

As a result of the Terrier victory, Tweed now have a two-game win over Norwood in the series, with Norwood having yet to score their first victory in the play-offs. The teams move into Norwood on Wednesday night for the third game of the series, which the Terriers hope to take and end a glorious season. Peculiarly enough, it is the third and fourth teams in the league standing that are battling it out for the honors, both teams having knocked the higher standing teams out of the running, with the Terriers wiping out the Madoc squad while Norwood put Campbellford Oilers out of the running.

Summary.

First Period.

1—Tweed, Elsbury, Courneyea.

Penalties—W. Rogers, J. Tummon.

Second Period.

2—Norwood, Rogers, C. Puffer.

Goodyears Win Second Game From Lakies 7-4

TORONTO, March 14.—(CP)—Scene of Ontario's senior hockey extravaganza between Toronto's Goodyears and Kirkland Lake shifted today to the home of the northern champions after breaking two crowd records and all but breaking the morale of the Battling Blue Devils.

Goodyears, Ontario Hockey Association titleholders, chalked up their second victory of the best-of-five Allan Cup series when they defeated the Lakies, 7-4 before 13,790 paid admissions here last night.

The attendance eclipsed the previous record of 13,344 established in the first game of the series Saturday when Goodyears won 4-3 in 10 minutes overtime.

A victory in the third game at Kirkland Lake tomorrow night will place the Toronto team in the Eastern Canada finals.

Three Brilliant Players

Last night's contest, which brought back memories of senior hockey in its heyday a decade ago, was marked by the brilliance of three players—Hank Goldup and Don Metz of Goodyears and Don Grosos of Lakeshores.

Hurrying Hank, a junior last year, broke up the game in the second period with his spectacular rushing in which he appeared unstoppable. His one goal on a solo effort in this session defied description. All told he scored twice and picked up two assists.

Metz, considered almost certain to wear a Toronto Maple Leaf sweater next year, garnered three goals and an assist. He scored the third goal in the final minute of the game when he broke from a Lakeshore power play and had no one to beat—not even a goalkeeper. Just prior to this Goalie Bill Durnan had been taken from the Blue Devils' net and replaced by a forward.

Grosso's three goals were well earned and only partially rewarded him for his brilliant all-round work. When not playing up forward the Count was back helping out on the defence.

In addition to Goldup and Metz, Eddie King and Shorty Robinson registered markers for Goodyears while Stu Smith tallied for Lakeshores.

Waterloo Here To Play Petes

Waterloo Tigers tangle with the Petes here tomorrow (Wednesday) night at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. It is the final O. H. A. senior "B" round-robin tussle to be seen here this season—unless the locals should make the playoff series and still have ice for a home game. In their previous meeting in Kitchener last week, the Tigers pulled out a 5-4 victory over the Petes, but were lucky to do so. It was a redhot thriller, with the Petes having tough luck, getting a goal stolen on them, and seeing the winning marker scored against them with 40 seconds of play left. They promise to reverse the decision here in their windup home number of the round-robin playoff series tomorrow night.

These teams play fine hockey, both being fast, fairly clean and classy puckists of senior calibre. They are both battling bitterly now for a final playoff berth, and a loss will prove most costly to both squads. It ought to be a swell struggle all the way through, with the issue a tossup till the finish. The Tigers lost but one game in 16 starts this season, up to their game yesterday, and that to the Falls—so they'll be tough, but the Petes ought to shade them. The game will no doubt draw a full house this time.

BEATS BIGGER MAN

PLYMOUTH, England—(CP). — Johnny King, British Empire bantamweight boxing champion, defeated Jack Hurst, featherweight contender, by a technical knockout in the ninth round of a 12-round fight.

Glenn Ross Sailors Defeat Foxboro 6-2 In First Of Finals Of Hastings Rural League

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 14. —Continuing the winning streak, that they have enjoyed all season, Glen Ross Sailors took the first game of the final round for the championship of the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League and silverware symbolic of the same, defeating Foxboro 6-2.

Turning out at full strength after more than a week's rest ,the steam-roller power of the husky Sailors was too much for the plucky Foxboro crew, playing short-handed, minus the services of their centre star Vince Guay. Jack Stewart's lads gave all they had in a smart display of sizzling speed in the early stages of the game which took its toll as the Sailors turned on the pressure. The limited number of alternates pitted against the two extra lines thrown in frequently by the Sailors, Foxboro's battle was a losing one all the way.

From the opening minutes of the game, Glen Ross used their extra weight, and man power in stiff bodying that slowed up Foxboro forwards considerably McDonald scored the opening counter at the eight minute mark, taking a pass from Richardson This was the only goal of the opening canto, with the remaining twelve minutes featuring remarkable speed by the forwards of both teams As a result of a collision with Martin, Thompson was taken out of the play for part of the period.

Glen Ross—Goal, Hagerman defence, Brown, Fraser; centre, Armstrong; wings, McDonnell, Brooks, subs Brooks Martin, Pyear, Conley, Richardson.

Foxboro. — Goal, Gay; defence Nollie Guay, Walt; centre, Grant, Wright; wings, Norm Guay, C. Thompson; subs, Spencer, Gough, R. Scott.

Referees—Fred Dainard; Sinfield.

Summary.

1st period:—

1 Glenn Ross—McDonnell, Richardson.

2nd period:

2. Glen Ross—Armstrong.
3. Glen Ross—Pyear, Richardson.
4. Glen Ross—Martin.

3rd period:

5. Glen Ross—Martin.
6. Glen Ross—Martin-Brooks.
7. Foxboro—Wright.
8. Foxboro—Thompson.

Penalties — Armstrong, Brooks, Thompson.

Re-engage Thompson As Hawks' Pilot

CHICAGO, March 14. —(A. P.)—Paul Thompson signed today to manage Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League for 1939-40 season. Thompson, with the team eight years as a player, succeeded William Stewart as manager January 5.

The new leader will not make the final eastern trip with his players, but will go on a scouting tour of Canada.

Disappointed over the drop of the Hawks from world's champions to also-rans, Major Frederic McLaughlin, owner of the team, plans to rebuild with young players. More than sixteen youthful stars will be taken to the training camp next fall.

Thompson, a capable left-winger, will continue to play in addition to directing the team.

People of France paid $130,000,000 last year for tobacco.

Petes' Captain

BUN KINGDON

Playing centre on the Petes' first line, Bun Kingdon, local captain, is turning in a fine effort this season. He will be seen in action here tomorrow night against the Waterloo Tigers in a puck playoff.

Remember When—

Paul Berlenbach's string of 23 successive knockouts was broken by Jack Delaney at New York 15 years ago to-night. Berlenbach, who became world's light heavyboxing champion a year later, lost by a technical knockout in the fourth round of the scheduled 12-round bout. Of the three defeats in Berlenbach's 38-fight career, two were to Delaney.

IN MEMORIAM

HEATHER. — In memory of Eva Jane Heather, who passed away three years ago to-day, March 14, 1936.

We loved her dearly, all that knew her,
And now she rests in peace with God,
We still can see her smiling face
That meant so much for us and many.
—Sadly missed by Husband and Daughter, Myrtle.

AYOTTE, Mrs. John S.—In loving memory of my dear mother, Mrs. John S. Ayotte, who passed away five years ago to-day, March 14, 1934.

The flowers we placed upon your grave
May wither and decay;
The love for you, dear mother,
Will never fade away.
—Always remembered by her loving daughter, son-in-law, and family, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Astles.

OBITUARY

JOSEPH ROBERTS.

ROSENEATH, March 14. —One of the oldest men in the district and a native of Alnwick Township, died this morning at his home in Roseneath village in his 86th year.

The late Mr. Roberts was born in Alnwick and farmed until 20 years ago when he took up residence in the village. He is survived by four daughters, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. H. McCracken, and Mrs. R. B. Nicholls of Roseneath and Mrs. Thos. Hall of Campbellford He was a member of St. James United Church. Funeral announcements will be made later.

MRS. JAMES IVATT
(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, March 14.—Funeral rites for the late Mrs. James Ivatt were held at Brantford and Roseneath on Monday, March 13. Mrs. Ivatt was a resident of Alnwick township for a number of years where her husband was engaged in farming. About twenty years ago her husband met an accidental death, and following his death Mrs. Ivatt moved from the community and later to Brantford, where her death occurred. She was a native of England, and in her 79th year. Three daughters survive. Interment was made at Merrill's Cemetery, Roseneath.

MRS. JAMES LONEY
(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 14.—After an illness of one week's duration, Mrs. James Loney, late residence in the first concession of the township of Ameliasburg, County of Prince Edward, passed away at the Belleville General Hospital, Sunday morning.

The late Mrs. Loney was born 40 years ago in Carlow Township, Hastings County. Prior to her marriage, she was Miss Susie Jean Hannah, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah of Colborne. She graduated from the Stirling High School, and later qualified as a teacher at the Madoc Model School. For seven years, she taught school at McArthur's Mills. For some time, she resided in Niagara Falls, Ont., and for the past fifteen months, she had made her home in Ameliasburg Township. In the community, she was held in high esteem, and in religion, she was a member of Bethel Hall.

Surviving her are her husband, Mr. James Loney; five children, Gwendolyn May, age 11 years; Ralph, age 10 years; Lloyd, age 9 years; Claude, age 5 years; and a baby, one week old; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah; four sisters, Mrs. David Sutherland, Ameliasburg Township; Miss Eva Hannah, Toronto; Mrs. William Lindle, Colborne; and Mrs. Alex Mackie, Jr., of Colborne.

Gun Registration Starts In Hastings

HASTINGS, March 14. — Town constable, William Wellman is urging all residents of this village to have any any pistols or revolvers in their possession registered as soon as possible. They come under the classification of concealed weapons and must be registered again regardless of the fact that they may have been registered before, he said. A disturbing factor in the case locally is the fact that forty concealed weapons were registered with him last year but this year to date only one owner has acknowledged the fact he possessed a revolver and came to him to register it.

75 Back To Work

KITCHENER, Ont., March 14 (C P)—About 75 employees of the Dominion Tire factory, strike-bound for more than a month, returned to work today.

It is expected the balance of the employees will return by Thursday.

Those going to work today were mostly maintenance workers who cleaned up the shop left in disorder by the walkout Feb 8, in preparation for the return of the other workers.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

IT PAYS TO LOOK AHEAD

INSTEAD OF JUST following the bidding conventions with which you have been equipped, it will pay you to look ahead and try to foresee the probable situation they will produce. You may then find it advisable to depart a little bit from the absolutely literal formula and temporarily give a picture of your hand which is slightly different from the exact facts. Thus you sacrifice a particle of accuracy in behalf of some other consideration, such as uncrowding the bidding or keeping the initiative on your side of the table.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

At all tables of a tournament South opened this deal with 2-Hearts and North bid 2-No trump. South's second round bid was 3-Hearts at most tables, with the idea that a subsequent showing of spades would then make it clear to North that the relative length of the suits was six hearts and only four spades. In some cases North followed the 3-Hearts with 3-No trump and in others with 4-Hearts. Either of those bids put South in a nasty fix. If he bid his Spades now, would it be at the level of four, five or six, or would South jump to 6-Hearts when supported, or perhaps 7-Hearts? All of those bids were made, and in each case passed by North, including the 7-Hearts, which was set with the loss of a diamond trick.

Only one pair reached the maximum contract. Here, after the negative response to his heart force, South bid 3-Spades and North properly supported to 4-Spades. This gave the initiative to South, armed with knowledge of his partner's fit of four cards. So he hopped to 7-Spades and made it. West's lead of the club A was ruffed, three trumps cashed, the heart Q used to get into dummy to lead the spade J, discarding the low diamond, and South's hand was then solid. South had profited because he saw there were more important considerations than merely showing exact distribution.

Permit Farmers To Speak In United Voice

The need of such an organization as the Canadian Chamber of Agriculture was driven home to members of the Peterborough Rotary Club at the weekly luncheon Monday by Rotarian Mac Gordon, who addressed his fellow-members on the Chamber and its aims and objects.

A Chamber of Agriculture, Rotarian Gordon pointed out, should be able to speak in a united voice for the more than 700,000 farmers in Canada, should be able to meet with manufacturers and secure a more equitable spread between what the farmer produces and what he has to buy, should make it possible for the collection of more accurate information as to the quality and quantity of farm products and should be in a position to sit down with representatives of other British countries and confer as to the British market.

The speaker gave figures that graphically illustrated the position of the farmer. They showed that taking 1914 as a normal year the index number of the prices received by the farmer was 102, while he paid 101 for the manufactured goods he purchased, paid in wages 101 and in taxes the same number. The prices received by the farmer climbed to their peak in 1920 when the index number was 205, but against that the index number of what he paid was 206, and he paid in wages 239 and in taxes 155. By 1931 the index number of what he received had shrunk to 60, but his tax payments had climbed to approximately 300 and there was no index number for wages paid because a great many farmers did not employ any help.

Desire To Be Self-Sufficient.

Rotarian Gordon pointed out that the plight of the Canadian farmer had been accentuated because of the urge on the part of the countries of the world to become self-sufficient, with resultant increased production that sent the world prices of farm products down and decreased the market.

"Factors in the economic situation are production, distribution and consumption," said the speaker, "and the greatest of these is consumption."

Pointing out that while a farmer could buy a binder in Canada in 1914 for $125 and that represented 135 bushels of wheat, today he was called upon to pay $260 and that represented 450 bushels of wheat. The difference represented the difference in spending power between 1914 and today, and Rotarian Gordon remarked that the more than 700,000 farmers represented a most fruitful market once rural buying power was restored.

He concluded by urging co-operation for the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

Rotarian George A. Gillespie voiced Rotary thanks for Rotarian Gordon's address, and President James Dutton added that he was sure Rotary was sympathetic toward the new organization and would co-operate in every way possible.

Shareholders Fail To Muzzle Post

LEEDS, England, March 14 (CP)—Shareholders efforts to subdue the Yorkshire Post's criticism of Prime Minister Chamberlain and other government ministers has met with a vigorous refusal.

Lord Bingley launched the campaign for greater tolerance for Mr. Chamberlain and his "appeasement" policy, saying he did not want to see an end of the free press but objected to "the policy of persistent disparagement of the present prime minister."

Lord Bingley's sentiments were echoed by several other shareholders who asked assurance of Rupert Beckett, chairman of the board of directors, that the anti-Chamberlain policy would be modified. Mr. Beckett, related by marriage to Anthony Eden, former foreign secretary, replied—

"I do hope you are not serious when you say you want some pledge from me. I will do this. I will certainly say, with the greatest of pleasure, that any personalities that from time to time have crept into our articles should be eliminated.

"But insofar as you ask me to say anything which will tie the hands of this newspaper and prevent it from giving free and honest expression of its views on policy which may be vital to this country, I shall not sit here and consent to that."

He Didn't Wait

MARMORA, Ont., March 14—(CP)—Experts claim a wolf will not attack a human unless cornered but Clifford Gibson, Marmora salesman, didn't wait to find out when one ran in front of his automobile. Gibson said a large timber wolf emerged from beneath a thicket alongside the road, ran across an open field and into another brush pile. Marmora is in Hastings county.

Reduce Varicose or Swollen Veins

A Simple Home Treatment.

The world progresses. To-day many minor ailments that took weeks to overcome can be helped much more quickly. If you have varicose veins or bunches, start to-day to bring them back to normal size and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. In a short time the veins should begin to grow smaller and by regular use soon approach normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or swellings, should not hesitate to try a bottle at once. It is so penetrating and economical that a small bottle lasts a long time.—(Advt.)

Novel Solution For Unemployment

Stealing a leaf from the Oriental system of performing stenographic chores, Mr. Sydney Graham, an enterprising individual in London, Eng., solved his personal unemployment problem to some extent by touring the suburbs on his bicycle, not forgetting to take along his trusty portable typewriter. As he toured he would cry, "Any letters to type?" or some similar interrogation, and then as soon as a customer popped up he'd whip out his machine, set it up on the carrier of his bicycle as shown, and dash off another portion of the day's work. Such goings-on are old stuff in Indian and China, but the Oriental scribes, of course, still wield pens in pursuit of their livelihood.

Crystal Sets Flourish In Germany As Anti-Nazi Pick Up BBC News

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 14—(CP).—Letters written in German or English trickle into the British Broadcasting Corporation's offices day by day, routed from German cities via Shanghai, New York and other far off places, expressing appreciation of the new foreign language broadcasting.

The BBC spent £38,958 ($183,000) last year on reading news in French, German and Arabic, hoping to offset effects of totalitarian broadcasts in which news is slanted for political purposes.

Foreign language broadcasting was started two years ago when Italy was courting the Arabic world with newscasts and lectures designed to discredit Great Britain in the eyes of the Near East. Last year German and French broadcasts were added with the intention of giving Germans "straight" news which they seldom get either in their newspapers or by radiocasts originating in their own country.

Germans who write the BBC say their and their friends listen eagerly to the broadcasts despite the fact the practice is frowned upon by Nazi authorities.

Recent threats by Chancellor Hitler that Germany would "retaliate" if the broadcasts were continued had no effect on the BBC. There was some speculation on the question how Germany could retaliate and it appeared the only thing she could do was seek further means of preventing her citizens from listening.

A Limited Field

One way of doing this to manufacture sets which cannot be tuned to wavelengths other than those used by German stations. Italy was reported three years ago to have presented to Arab communities large numbers of sets which could not raise any but Italian stations.

However, Germans who oppose their country's administration (there were 22,000,000 at the last election before the Nazis seized power) have found means of listening secretly. Manufacturers of crystal sets and head phones are reported to be doing a flourishing business with German buyers. A crystal set will raise the BBC's programs in Germany. It is quiet. Only the listener hears it. It and the phones are easily hidden. It requires no outside aerial.

How many listeners the BBC has in Germany it does not know. But each time the announcer goes on the air he knows that scattered throughout the Reich persons huddle furtively over their sets and listen to him.

Garfield Crowe Is Guest Of Honor

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 14.—Garfield Crowe of Hall's Glen was honored on Thursday evening, when about fifty neighbors and friends, coming by car and sleigh from all parts of North Dummer, gathered at his home in celebratio nof Mr. Crowe's birthday.

During the evening, the guests played euchre and danced. Later, refreshments were served by the ladies, when a birthday cake with candles lighted in Mr. Crowe's honor appeared mysteriously from the region of the kitchen.

Tractor events will be included in the traditional plowing matches in Northern Ireland.

Windsor Employees To Join Martin

WINDSOR, Ont., Mar. 14—(CP).—R. H. McCartney, member of the Windsor Local of the United Automobile Workers of America, said today 150 Windsor employees of a large automobile firm had broken away from the R. J. Thomas faction of the U.A.W.A. and would join the Homer Martin forces.

McCartney said at least 200 men will sever connections with the Thomas faction and ask for a charter from the Martin faction.

All Canadian locals of the union, affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, have voted to remain with the C.I.O.-recognized Thomas faction and agreed to send delegates to a convention at Cleveland on March 27.

Y.P. Executive Plans Sunrise Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 14—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Might were host and hostess to the executive of the Young Peoples' Union at their home, east of the village, on Thursday evening, 17 members being present, and the president, Earle Edworthy, occupying the chair.

The theme of the worship service was "The presence of God," Marjorie McDowell contributing a solo, and Kenneth Kidd leading in prayer. The secretary was instructed to write Rev. M. C. Parr, of Peterborough, relative to lecturing here in April. It was decided to have a special meeting in the early fall when the magician, Giordamaine, will be secured.

It was arranged to leave the play which was in process of preparation until a later date, and Marjorie McDowell, Esther Might, Ken Kidd and B. B. Dawson were appointed a committee to prepare the program for the "Sunrise Service" on Easter Sunday morning.

During the social hour enjoyed at the close, Mrs. Might, assisted by her daughter, Miss Esther, and son, Gordon, served dainty refreshments, the usual votes of thanks for the hospitality extended being passed before the guests left for home.

New Democracy Necessity Says Aberhart

EDMONTON, March 14—(CP)—Premier Aberhart of Alberta said here last night one of the "three things that we need" is the "election of a new and progressive government at Ottawa of the New Democracy type under Herridge and his cohorts".

(Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian Minister to Washington, announced recently at Ottawa a New Democracy movement.)

Mr. Aberhart, speaking at the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference, said the other two necessities are "an excellent crop this year with fairly good prices," and the "guidance and direction of almighty God in the plans and propositions that we are at present negotiating."

Later, Hon. E. C. Manning provincial secretary, read a letter "from an old line party man" which expressed admiration for Mr. Aberhart's "non-partisan comment Sunday evening last on Mr. Herridge and his New Democracy movement."

After referring to Mr. Herridge's "renunciation of a 'birthright' for the sackcloth and ashes" at the Conservative convention last year, the letter declared that "through an alignment of the forces of Aberhart, with the forces of Herridge, destiny would be written into the annals of this country."

Opposition Routed.

Mr. Aberhart then added:

"I am sure that the citizens of Alberta must have noted the complete route of the opposition in the Alberta legislature this year in the discussion of the solution of the problems that face us."

Declaring the Social Credit government's "policies are right—they are effectual," the premier predicted that "five years from now, under the guidance of skillful administration, we shall be able to boast of 12 great achievements."

Mr. Aberhart said one would be "the phenomenal and protected development of our great oil fields with pipe lines delivering the oil both to the coast and to Fort William."

Other "achievements" listed by the premier included: State medicine; "a treasury branch system that will provide the machinery whereby credit may be issued to our people in terms of the country's needs;" enlargement of Alberta to include the North West Territories "north of the 60th parallel and west of the 110th meridian," and "trade agreements with countries that need our surplus."

Many-Headed Tumor Dooms Baby Boy, 2

PITTSBURGH, March 14 (AP).—A many-headed tumor slowly is crushing out the life of a two-year-old boy physicians say may hang on for a week or two but already has lived past his time.

The victim is Harold Holt, in whose body a growth is attacking at the liver, the lungs and the one remaining kidney. Medical skill is helpless for no cure is known.

"The only saving grace is that the dying is painless," said the chief surgeon at Children's Hospital. "There is nothing we can do. The wilm's tumor, as it is called, is always fatal."

Despite this the boy's father, a 26-year-old towboat crewman at nearby Monongahela, pleaded frantically for "somebody, somewhere, to help our boy."

Harold appeared normal in every respect last fall. Then signs of illness developed. The 27-year-old mother brought him to the hospital for examination. Discovery of the tumor followed.

Approximately one child in every 1,000 is born with such a growth, reported the Children's Hospital surgeon.

"We don't know the cause and we can't detect the tumor until the child is at least two years old," commented the surgeon. "It is too late then. If we cut it out it grows up elsewhere."

Toronto-Born Boy's Parachute Bomb Scheme Adopted By Britain For Air Defence

BARRIE, Ont., March 14 (CP)—Mrs. Alex Archer of Barrie said today an air-defence scheme invented by her Toronto-born brother, Robert Milton Ross, has been adopted by the British government. Ross is director of Melton Metallurgical Laboratories, Buckinghamshire.

According to information she received, Mrs. Archer said the invention is a bomb the size of a hen's egg, capable of being fired from anti-aircraft guns. To the small bombs are attached parachutes.

The bombs are fired thousands of feet into the air and float down into the path of invading airplanes. They explode only when coming into contact with an object moving at 300 miles an hour or more. Those that touch no object float harmlessly to the ground.

Ross, whose home is at Chalvey, England, left Toronto as a child with his parents.

Dynamite In Ship Blamed On I.R.A.

LONDON, March 14—CP Cable).—Discovery of explosives in the hold of the steamship Glandun docked at Belfast led to fears today that a renewal of Irish Republican army outrages is likely.

Four sticks of explosive were found in a cargo of coal after the Glendun arrived in Belfast from Garston, England. The explosive was removed safely. Police launched inquiries to establish its origin.

Several of Suffolk's oldest and most beautiful churches were guarded after police received an anonymous letter warning the I.R.A. had singled them out for attention.

Rev. Fountain Page, rector of Lavenham church, a mecca for tourists, received a similar letter warning the church might be blown up. Kersey, Stratford, St. Mary, Bildeston and Middleton were other historis churches named.

During the night a breach in the Leeds-Liverpool canal caused floods near the Aintree course where the Grand National is to be run March 24. But after inquiries police expressed the opinion that the breach was accidental.

Vigilant watch against fresh I.R.A. terrorist attempts in the United Kingdom has been maintained since stiff sentences were handed down at Manchester last Friday on Irishmen convicted of outrages.

HITLER LEADS HIS TROOPS INTO PRAGUE

Britain Asks Germany Explain Move

Action Of Hitler Not In Accord Spirit Of Munich

By J. F. Sanderson
Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 15—(CP Cable).—Sir Neville Henderson, British Ambassador at Berlin, today was instructed to make inquiries as to Germany's intentions regarding Czecho-Slovakia.

The Foreign Office declined to state whether it involved a protest or merely sought information on Germany's actions.

It was believed Sir Neville at least would protest that Chancellor Hitler's action in sending troops into the Czech State was hardly in accord with the spirit of Munich.

Cabinet Meeting.

The decision to send instruction to the Ambassador was taken at a Cabinet meeting, which was held while Germany's steel-helmeted troops took control of what last week was the sovereign state of Czecho-Slovakia.

Although the Cabinet agenda gave first place to Britain's permanent Palestine policy, Prime Minister Chamberlain and his colleagues plunged immediately into a discussion on the disappearance of the Czech State and Germany's economic and strategic domination of Southeastern Europe.

Great Britain and France have watched discreetly from the sidelines as Chancellor Hitler wiped Czecho-Slovakia off the map. The British press and public have accepted it as a natural consequence of the Munich settlement.

No Disarmament Conference.

When Hitler sent his troops into the Czech State he apparently knocked on the head any idea Mr. Chamberlain may have held for a disarmament conference this year. He again demonstrated power politics at their worst and in effect told Great Britain and France he was determined to follow that brand of diplomacy until he had gained his ultimate objectives.

Hitler also impressed on the democracies the necessity of building up their armaments lest he turn westward in his next move. Britain already is preparing to spend £580,000,000 in the 1939-40 fiscal year on air, land and sea defences and, if

King Is Bringing Crown Of State

LONDON, March 15—(CP Cable).—The imperial crown of state, the most spectacular piece of jewelry in the world, will be taken to Canada by the king.

His majesty is taking the crown, valued at £500,000 ($2,350,000), for a formal appearance in Parliament at Ottawa, either to prorogue it or give royal assent to Canadian bills.

The crown of England never before has been taken out of England. For the coronation durbars in India in the past a special crown has been used.

The queen likely will take her crown also. Confirmation of this could not be obtained.

Sovereign's Own Crown

The crown of state is the sovereign's own crown. It was one of the two crowns used, in accordance with ancient custom, at the coronation in Westminister Abbey two years ago.

The actual coronation was performed with St. Edward's crown but immediately after this part of the ceremony it was replaced by the crown of state.

It weighs not more than 10 ounces, much lighter than St. Edward's crown which scales nearly five pounds. The state crown was made in 1938 for Queen Victoria. It contains more than 6,000 precious stones, taken from older crowns. Most notable of these is the ruby of the Black Prince, worn by Henry V in his helmet at the battle of Agincourt. The crown has been refitted for successive monarchs since Queen Victoria.

Detroit Bridegroom Of 2 Days' Standing Has Lost His Wife

Detroit, March 15 (CP)

JOSEPH DILOFF, a bridegroom of two days, sought court action today to force Joseph Stoia, his father-in-law, to return Diloff's bride. Diloff told court officials yesterday that Stoia was holding her captive and would not permit the young couple to meet.

Diloff married Leona Stoia, 17, daughter of Joseph Stoia, a theatre chain owner, Sunday when the pair eloped to Ohio.

Court officials ordered Stoia to produce the girl for an inquiry.

Favored Suspect Twice Beaten, Wins Freedom

TORONTO, March 15—(CP).—For the second time since his release on bail, pending trial on several charges of shopbreaking, along with five others, Joseph Huntley, 23, was assaulted and beaten on the street early today by a gang of men. Injuries he received were not serious, police said.

Huntley is one of five men arrested a few days after nine Toronto shops were broken into in an early morning raid.

During the preliminary hearing of the charges before Magistrate R. J. Browne Feb. 16, a melee broke out in court and the prisoners had to be herded to the cells by police officers.

Later in the same day, Huntley, only one of the accused men freed on bail, was given a brutal beating by a gang of thugs who attacked him on a west end street. He quoted one of the men as saying: "This is only a sample of what you will get if you don't keep your mouth shut."

Wins Freedom

Huntley was discharged today by Judge O'Connell in county judge's criminal court on the break-in charges. Huntley had been charged with John Nixon, Stewart Rowe, Frank Cast and Hubert Hiscow.

Nixon, Rowe and Cast had pleaded guilty. Hiscow and Huntley denied guilt.

Disabled Ship Awaits Salvage

CHATHAM, Mass., Mar. 15 — (AP).—The disabled Norwegian freighter Belnor drifted under a gale about 700 miles east of the Virginia Capes to-day, but the big Italian liner Conte di Savoia stood nearby awaiting the arrival of the Norwegian motor tanker Gylfe.

"Crew is not in immediate danger," Captain Alberto Ottimo of the Savoia radioed. "Will not proceed to New York until captain of Belnor advises that my assistance is not necessary."

His message indicated the crew of about 25 had not been taken off the Belnor as both vessels awaited the coming of the Gylfe, expected early in the day, for salvage duty.

The Belnor radioed for assistance yesterday reporting her No. 1 hatch stove by battering seas and her cargo shifting. The Savoia, carrying a crew of 900 and passengers numbering about the same, turned immediately and sped to the scene.

Business Capital To Be Safeguarded

QUEBEC, March 15—(CP).—Businessmen considering the investment of money in Quebec industry had the pledge today that the entry of their capital was welcome to the provincial government and that it would be "fully safeguarded."

Authority for the reassurance was Premier Maurice Duplessis, who last night told the annual dinner of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy that outside funds coming into this province for development of industry would be "greeted with justice and, even, generosity."

Smokers of Paris averaged two and one-half cigarettes a day last year.

Princess Who First Met Prince 12 Days Ago Does Not Attend Own Wedding Ceremony

Cairo, March 15 (AP)

THE BEAUTIFUL, dark-eyed Princess Fawzia, 17-year-old sister of King Farouk of Egypt, was married today to Mohammed Riza Pahlavi, 20-year-old Crown Prince of Iran, in a simple 15-minute ceremony at Abdin Palace. The bride did not attend. In fact no women were present. The princess, who first met the prince upon his arrival here 12 days ago, in accordance with Moslem custom was secluded in a separate part of the palace. King Farouk signed the marriage contract on her behalf.

As a tangible token of marriage, the princess received a bouquet presented by an eight-year-old girl who headed a floral procession preceding the wedding.

Each guest at the wedding received a jeweled gold box of chocolates costing $1,000.

Slovak Leaders

Joseph Tiso, LEFT, recently deposed Premier of Czecho-Slovakia, and Ferdinand Durciansky, Slovak independence leader, were photographed together at a recent ceremony at Prague. Tiso, after being deposed, journeyed to Berlin for a conference with Chancellor Hitler.

Great Britain Will Not Interfere With German Occupation Chamberlain And Halifax State

LONDON, March 15—(CP Cable).—Great Britain will not interfere in the German occupation of Czecho-Slovak territory, it was indicated to-day in statements by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Viscount Halifax, Foreign Secretary.

Almost parallel statements were read in the Commons and Lords by the two cabinet leaders shortly after it was announced the government had instructed Sir Nevile Henderson, British Ambassador to Berlin, to inquire regarding Germany's exact intentions towards Czecho-Slovakia.

The two statements provided the following features:

1.—The time is regarded as "inopportune" for Oliver Stanley, President of the Board of Trade, and Robert Hudson, Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade, to visit Berlin to further Anglo-German trade discussions.

2.—Since Slovakia has declared her independence and disrupted the Czech state, Britain no longer regards herself bound by any guarantee to maintain Czecho-Slovakia against unprovoked aggression.

3.—Instructions have been given the Bank of England to hold £6,700,000, the balance of £10,000,000 ($46,800) which Britain gave Czecho-Slovakia after the Munich agreement and which had not been transferred from London to Prague.

4.—While no charges of breach of faith were made against Germany, both Mr. Chamberlain and Lord Halifax said they could not believe any of the four signatories to the Munich agreement contemplated what was happening to-day in Czecho-Sovakia.

At the same time, Mr. Chamberlain said he must regard Chancellor Hitler's orders to his troops as a definite breach of the spirit of the Munich settlement.

5.—Mr. Chamberlain regretted the German occupation for its disturbing effect on world peace and shock to economic confidence which had been reviving. He promised it would not deter him from the cause of peace and the substitution of discussion for brute force.

The House shelved a pre-arranged program on naval estimates for a full dress debate on foreign affairs. Mr. Chamberlain's statement drew a few boos and taunts from the Labor benches and when he entered the House, Labor member shouted "You sold a nation into slavery," but the words were almost drowned by the applause of the Prime Minister's followers.

Mr. Chamberlain concluded his remarks by emphasizing the Government would continue in its path and declared:

"So, though we may have to suffer checks and disappointments from time to time, the object we have in mind is of too great significance—the happines sof mankind—for us lightly to give it up or to set it on one side."

He had spoken 32 minutes and sat down to a burst of Conservative cheering.

British ships passed through the Panama Canal at the rate of four a day last year.

Russians Warn Against Seizure

MOSCOW, March 15.— (AP). — War Commissar Klementi Voroshiloff told the 18th Communist Party Congress in a speech published to-day that a vastly augmented Red army and Red air force are ready to punish any aggression against Russian territory.

Apparently no worry was felt, however, over the dismemberment of the one-time Soviet ally, Czecho-Slovakia—which was called a "continuation of Munich," and a matter in which the Soviet Union was not directly interested.

Stalin's Warning.

The changed military situation in Eastern Europe because of Chancellor Hitler's new advance was discounted here and it was recalled that Joseph Stalin last Friday said efforts being made by Soviet enemies to lure Hitler into a war against Russia were "without any visible basis."

Voroshiloff disclosed that fast bombing planes capable of climbing nearly 50,000 feet were ready to swoop down on even a distant enemy and could carry three times the weight of bombs possible five years ago. Soviet planes, he said, could drop an aggregate of 6,160 tons of explosives in a single flight.

Beer And Bullets Go To Germany In Latest Conquest

BERLIN, March 15 (AP)

TWO prized possessions fell under German sway with occupation of Pilsen today—beer and bullets.

After the Munich agreement, many Germans humorously expressed dismay because they didn't get Pilsen.

"What has hapened to Pilsen?" Minister Walther Funk wanted to know last October, as an international commission fixed the boundaries. He was in Ankara, Turkey, at the time.

When told it still was Czech, he bantered "one can tell there are no beer drinkers on the commission."

British Cabinet Accepts Plan Free Holy Land

LONDON, March 15—(CP).—The Cabinet was reliably reported today to have accepted the Colonial Office's plan for Palestine, which would create an independent state under British protection.

The plan was prepared after the London conference, attended by representative Arabs and Jews, failed to reach an agreement. Well-informed quarters said the plan provided for:

1. Creation of an independent Palestine state linked by treaty with Great Britain and with the Arabs in a majority of three to one;
2. Limitation of Jewish immigration to 15,000 a year for five years;
3. Certain safeguards for the Jewish minority;
4. Maintenance of the British mandate for a "transitional period."
5. Creation of an executive council composed of four Arabs and two Jews to help rule during the interim period with the British High Commissioner having veto power.

It was understood that the plan intended that if Jews and Arabs cooperated in governing the country, elections for an advisory council, eventually to rule the country, would be held in two years.

Plebiscite Sought

EDMONTON, March 15—(CP).—A resolution urging a plebiscite on termination of licensed sale of beer by the glass in Alberta was not reached yesterday in the Alberta legislature during consideration of private members motions.

Declaring "thousands of citizens" have requested a plebiscite on licensed sale of beer by the glass, the resolution urged the government consider a province-wide referendum when the next provincial election is held.

BERLIN—Adolf Hitler marches with German army taking over remains of Czecho-Slovakia; Bohemia and Moravia come under rule of Greater Germany.

PRAGUE—German troops occupy Czech capital without resistance; crowds shout "pfui" at conquerors as republic disappears under German dominion.

BUDAPEST—Hungary backs advancing troops with ultimatum to Carpatho-Ukraine demanding complete surrender today; Hungarians near Polish frontier.

PARIS—Germany informs France of absorption of Czech territory with implied warning to keep hands off.

LONDON—Britain, without opposing Hitler's conquest, makes diplomatic inquiries in Berlin as to German plans for old Czecho-Slovakia.

ROME—Mussolini meets with cabinet for discussions believed to include newest Nazi coup.

WARSAW—Poland pleased by prospect of frontier with Hungary but uneasy over increasing German power; formal recognition given new Slovak republic under German control.

Hitler Joins Troops As German Tanks Pass Through Prague

BERLIN, March 15 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler, protector of Bohemia and Moravia, sponsor and guarantor of Slovakia, joined his vast cavalcade of soldiers pouring into shattered Czecho-Slovakia today while Czechs cried bitter "pfuis" at German tanks rumbling through the streets of Prague.

The swastika flies over Bohemia and Moravia, which have become in effect merely parts of the greater German Reich and propably will be less independent than most protectorates. They were shorn of armies and power over their foreign affairs and lacked even a common name.

Before the day is over Hitler is expected to proceed like a conqueror of old into Hradceny Castle, Prague's famous fortress residence of Czecho-Slovakia's presidents and the burial vault of men who made glorious Bohemian history.

His soldiers were in Prague in the snowy morning. They had occupied the castle. Their war machines on wheels pushed through streets packed with hostile men and women who jeered or were grimly silent—and some who cheered.

Hitler planned to duplicate his grand entry into Austria just a year ago yesterday. When he followed his troops in the Austrian annexation he was hailed by Nazis as "the great liberator." Today his avowed role was that of "protector."

Six months ago he made a grand entry into Sudetenland, won from Czecho-Slovakia by the Munich pact.

Goose-Step Through Land

German soldiers already had reached Prague, capital of the fallen republic, and their comrades goose-stepped into other sections of Bohemia and Moravia which formed the Czech part of Czecho-Slovakia.

The Czech government had been dissolved and, as Hitler proclaimed today, placed "under the protection of the German Reich."

The occupation of Bohemia and Moravia was decided on and the proclamation issued at a three-hour conference between Hitler and President Emil Macha of Czecho-Slovakia at the Berlin chancellery.

Hacha, Frantisek Chvalkovsky, his foreign minister, and their party left for Prague by special train at 11:16 a.m. (5:16 a.m., EST).

DNB, the official German news agency, which first disclosed Hitler would make a dramatic entry into the Czech protectorate, announced no specific destination, merely saying the fuehrer was going to join his troops.

Hungarian Troops Move

German troops yesterday had entered Slovakia, which declared itself independent of Prague and put itself under German guidance. Hungarian troops were taking over Carpatho-Ukraine, the third district of what had been Czecho-Slovakia.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels ordered all Germans to hoist flags in recognition of the Nazi troop advance.

The German troops poured into Moravia and Bohemia from all sides, with motorized columns leading the way, the official German news agency reported from Prague.

In the south, the predominantly German town of Brno, six miles from the former Czech border, was occupied. The city of Melnik, at the confluence of the Elbe and Moldau Rivers, north of Prague, was taken over shortly after 6 a.m.

From Melnik one column of troops moved directly south toward Prague. The vanguard reached the Prague Burg, where the Czech presidential palance is located, at 9:45 a.m.

Czech soldiers and officers remained in barracks or at assigned posts.

Seizure of Prague more than any other occupation demonstrated that Czecho-Slovakia as a state is dead and gone.

Recognized Facts.

The precise form the relationship of Bohemia-Moravia to the rest of the German Reich would take was something which Hitler was ponder-

George H. Howson Passes Away After Week's Illness In 91st Year

One of Peterborough's oldest residents and a member of a pioneer family who were among the first settlers in Peterborough county, George H. Howson, died at his residence at 137 London street at 1 o'clock this afternoon, after a week's illness, in his ninety-first year.

Mr. Howson was the son of the late William Howson and Julia Poole and was born in Otonabee. His grandfather, John Howson, left his home in Yorkshire, England about 1816 and came to America, settling first in Virginia. However, his desire to live under the British flag became too strong for him to resist and accordingly he moved north to Canada, coming to Otonabee where his brother George was one of the first settlers and one of the earlier justices of the peace.

Land Still in Family Name

The land on which John Howson settled over 100 years ago is still in possession of a member of the Howson family, Arthur McIntyre.

George Howson as a boy helped his father and brothers clear up the 400 acres on the shore of Rice Lake held by the family. Later he moved to Bobcaygeon, where he resided for a number of years and served the community as a member of the county council and as reeve for two years.

Over fifty years ago Mr. Howson came to Peterborough to reside. He was first connected with the Con-

Two MacDonalds To Stand Trial

TORONTO, March 15—(CP).—Donald (Mickey) MacDonald, 31, and his 19-year-old brother, Alexander, were committed for trial by magistrate R. J. Browne today on charges of murder. Committal ended a four-day preliminary hearing.

The charges were laid in connection with the death last Jan. 7 of James Windsor, 47-year-old bookmaker, shot to death by one of three men who entered his north Toronto home while members of the household were at dinner. As Windsor lay dying, he was kicked and robbed of valuable jewellery.

Five Identify MacDonald

Five eye-witnesses to the shooting have identified Mickey MacDonald as the man who fired the fatal shot. Magistrate Browne said Monday he had heard sufficient evidence to commit the men for trial but the hearing was allowed to proceed to enable defence testimony to be entered.

Detective-Sergt. William McAllister, one of the police investigators of the murder, testified today that four members of the Windsor household had picked out a photograph of Mickey MacDonald and declared that he "looked like the killer."

The fifth, Mrs. Edith Warner, a sister of Windsor, said his profile picture "looked like the profile of the killer," the officer added.

The detective was a witness at the preliminary hearing of murder charges against Alex and Donald (Mickey) MacDonald, charged in connection with the death of the Toronto bookmaker Jan. 7.

Prayer Book Dropped By Peterboro Soldier 22 Years Ago In France, Finds Way Back Through Lakefield Man

Liked The Place

DETROIT, March 15—(CP). — A young bandit who robbed a gas station here of $700 last Friday paid a return visit to the same station yesterday and robbed it of $574. The gas station attendant said the bandit grinned as he displayed his gun and said, "Here I am again." The attendant recognized him.

Circumstance sometimes takes long, roundabout ways to accomplish its more unexpected purposes. That was the impression of Cecil F. Hayes of Western Avenue on receiving last Saturday a prayer book he had lost somewhere in France in the Vimy area.

It was found in the trenches in front of Vimy Ridge by Jim Sherman of Lakefield who had kept it in his possession in the slight possibility that some day he might meet its owner and return it to him. More than twenty-one years passed before the element of chance that dropped the little book in the path of Mr. Sherman on the slopes of Vimy Ridge turned its vagrant attention again to the little detail of restoration.

It transpires that Mrs. T. (Buff) Guerin is the aunt of Mr. Sherman. Only recently in the course of a conversation, Mrs. Sherman casually enquired whether Mrs. Guerin ever heard of a man named Cecil Hayes.

"Why, yes," Mrs. Guerin replied. "he and my husband sometimes go fishing together."

It was then that Mrs. Sherman told of having the prayer book her husband had found at the battle front in those far off days of the Great War. And so, his prayer book came back to Mr. Hayes last Saturday, March 11.

Was Christmas Present

He told the Examiner today that the prayer book had been a Christmas present sent to him by his sister, Marion, Mrs. Wm. Hattrick, and he was at Newell St. Vaast when he received it on December 25, 1917.

The inscription on the leaf inside the cover simply gave Mr. Hayes' name, also his regimental number 536,049, and the fact that it was a gift from his sister.

"If I had put even Peterborough as my home address on it, I would have got it back long ago," Mr. Hayes remarked today. "It did seem a strange happening that of 100,000 or more men around Vimy a Lakefield man should have picked up my prayer book. I suppose it dropped out of my pocket. I know I missed it, but I had no idea how I lost it."

Mr. Hayes was a private with the 13th field ambulance corps in France.

Man Dies At 107

HUNTER RIVER, P.E.I., Mar. 15—(CP). — Prince Edward Island's oldest resident, William Bernard, died in this Queen's County village on Tuesday. He was 107.

His family brought him from his native Devonshire a centure ago and settled here. The house in which he died stands on the site where his father built a log cabin when Bernard was seven.

Conant Probes Red Schools

TORONTO, Mar. 15 — (C.P.). — Attorney-General Gordon Conant said to-day he had assigned Clifford Magone, departmental solicitor, to determine if any laws were being violated by the alleged operation of Communist schools in Toronto.

A committee of the Toronto City Council yesterday was told 40 Communist schools were operated in the city.

"If there are any schools teaching or encouraging sedition or blasphemy there is no place for them in our scheme of things," said Mr. Conant. "They will be suppressed if sufficient evidence can be secured to support such action."

Provincial Police and Toronto city police will assist Mr. Magone's investigation. The question to be decided, said Mr. Conant, is: "Whether there has been or is being committed any offence under existing laws and whether prosecution would be justified or reasonable likely to succeed."

Jitterbugging Picketing Of Home Wins Youth Back His Dancing Partner

Detroit, March 15 (CP)

JOHNNY BIEDERMAN and his dancing partner Dorothy Rellox, both 18, were sweethearts again today after the swing-time romeo won his way back into her affections with a jitterbugging picketing of her house for two days.

The quarreled over dance routines last Saturday as a big bass viol thrummed and the drums beat out a jungle rhythm.

Dorothy told Johnny all was over between them. Next morning Johnny appeared before Dorothy's door and for hours he did his jitterbug dancing along the ice-covered pavement in front of her door, and carrying a sign, "one jitterbug is unfair to another."

Monday he was back again, but there was no picketing. Dorothy decided her Johnny was too sincere in his affection and his jittering to pass up.

War Profits Be Limited In New Bill

C.C.F. Members Urge Greater Measure Gov't Manufacturing

OTTAWA, Mar. 15 — (C.P.). — Under a constant barrage from C. C. F. members urging a greater measure of Government manufacture and stricter limitation of profits on war contracts, the Defence Purchasing Board legislation is making slow progress in the House of Commons.

The Bill was given second reading yesterday and made some progress before the Committee of the Whole House with no members actually opposing the principle involved but many criticizing its detailed provisions.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King made it plain that the Board would not only act to supervise contracts let to private companies for arms and defence equipment and limit profits, but would have power to ascertain whether equipment ordered by the Defence Department was absolutely necessary.

Statement of Policy.

Goaded by declarations from T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn) that the Bill indicated the Government was committed to private arms manufacture as against manufacture in Government-owned plants, Mr. Mackenzie King made the following statement of policy:

"The Government does not propose, with respect to the provision of arms and equipment, to have them manufactured wholly under private industry, nor does it propose to have them manufactured wholly under public ownership. It proposes to distribute the work between the two in the light of the best advice it can obtain as to what would be most in the public interest."

Records of Canadian exports of war equipment, Mr. Douglas said, clearly indicated that Canada was becoming "a jink in an international armament ring."

In committee of the whole house, Conservative Leader Manion attempted to put through amendments to have the board act on contracts of $1,000 or over instead of a limit of $5,000 as proposed, and to have a fifth member of the board a permanent member of the defence council. Both amendments were voted down.

A declaration by Dr. Manion at one time that he would not be "howled down by a bunch of rubber stamps" on the government side, brought sharp interchange between himself and the prime minister, and drew in Thomas Vien (Lib. Outremont) in a discussion of their respective military records.

OBITUARY

ROBERT J. NEITHERCUT

Gone from Peterborough forty-seven years ago, Robert J. Neithercut died Tuesday morning in Winnipeg. He was born in Peterborough in 1860, and had reached the age of seventy-eight years.

In 1891 he left his home town for the west, and set up a hardware and tinsmithing business in Wawanessa, Man., from which he retired twenty years ago and moved to Winnipeg.

Mr. Neithercut is survived by his widow and three daughters at home in Winnipeg and by one son in Oshawa, also two sisters, Mrs. Harry Donnelly of Toronto, formerly of this city, and Mrs. Springer in Belleville.

The funeral service is being held in Winnipeg, and the body is being sent to Peterborough for burial Monday at the Little Lake Cemetery on the arrival of the noon train from Toronto.

MRS. HARRIET A. HARRISON

One of the best-known residents of Emily Township died on Tuesday after a month's illness. She was Mrs. Harriet Ann Harrison, who lived with her son-in-law on Lot 16, Concession 3. Mrs. Harrison was in her 75th year.

Born in Smith township, she had spent all her life there and in Emily, where she became a widely-known citizen, and a very highly respected one. She was a member of Bethel United Church for the past 40 years.

Her husband, William Harrison, predeceased her about four years ago. Surviving are four sons: Wilbert of Peterborough, and Harold, Gordon, and Elwood, al lof Emily; also three daughters, Mrs. Ida Knight of Boston, Mass., Mrs. Grattan Telford of Smith, and Mrs. Elwood Faulkner of Emily. One daughter, Mrs. Joseph Harrison, predeceased her eight years ago.

The funeral service will be conducted from the home of her son-in-law, Elwood Faulkner, on Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock; Rev. Mr. McTavish of Omemee officiating, assisted by Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church. Interment will be at Omemee Cemetery.

DAN MACONOMY ILL.

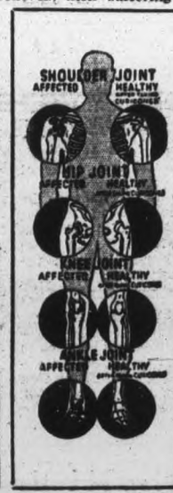
ENGLISH REMEDY ACHIEVES RESULTS

TODAY many who, but a short time ago, were suffers of Rheumatic affliction have had their pain relieved, their suffering eased. They were recommended to try "Uricones" and suffering gave place to joy as stiffness and pain faded away. Grateful letters telling of the relief secured through the use of this remedy is the best indication that "Uricones" does curb the misery of Rheumatic pain, often bringing sought for results after other remedies have failed.



Rheumatic and Arthritic pains lurk at these points. The shoulders, hips, knees and ankles are the points most commonly affected. X-ray investigation often reveals considerable distortion of the bony structure. "Uricones" attack and help round the jagged points of poison crystals and pain-causing excess acids, working to rectify the conditions which so often cause Rheumatic suffering.

LONG STANDING PAINS RELIEVED

The swift and searching action of "Uricones" helps relieve Rheumatic and Arthritic Pains, Gout, Lumbago, Synovitis, Fibrositis, Sciatica and Neuritis. "Uricones" work to tone up the affected tissues and aid in the promotion of comfort and ease.

No Serious Disorders Occur As Armies March Into Once Free Country

German Troops Are Hissed And Cheered While Hungarian Forces Take Over 4,000 Square Miles Of Territory

By Melvin Whitteleather
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

BUDAPEST, March 15.—(AP)—The Hungarian government to-day backed up its army which was occupying Carpatho-Ukraine by sending an ultimatum to the local government of the territory demanding that de facto powers there be given the Hungarian general staff by 8 p.m. (2 p m. EST.) tonight.

Hungarian troops were within 13 miles of the Polish border in Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia) when the Budapest foreign office sent the demand to Augustin Volosin, premier of Carpatho-Ukraine, at Chust, the capital.

Prevent Bloodshed

The ultimatum demanded that he hand over all actual powers to the Hungarian general staff and said that prompt acceptance would "prevent bloodshed."

Hungarian armies sped in Carpatho-Ukraine today, determined to add about 4,000 square miles of territory to their kingdom before nightfall.

From Munkacs and Ungvar, detachments of motorized troops, cavalry, and artillery escorted by warplanes pushed into the area—a part of the Czecho-Slovak republic before it collapsed under German pressure.

Today was a national holiday in Hungary, the anniversary of the great Louis Kossuth's declaration of independence for Hungary in 1848.

Augustin Volosin, the Carpatho-Ukraine president, yesterday declared Ruthenia an independent republic like Slovakia, whose declaration of independence split the Czecho-Slovak state.

But his appeals for aid to Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy, the only men who might stay Hungary's hand, went unanswered.

Withdraw Troops

The harassed Prague government rapidly completed withdrawal of its 10,000 troops and gendarmes from Carpatho-Ukraine in accordance with a Hungarian ultimatum.

The Czech military crossed into Rumania, since they were cut off from Prague by Slovakia into which German troops moved yesterday.

The official reason for massive troop movements was the refusal of Prague to bow to one point in the Hungarian ultimatum—that the Hungarians in Carpatho-Ukraine be allowed to arm themselves.

By taking Carpatho-Ukraine, approximately 500,000 Ruthenians would become Hungarian subjects and Hungary would have her cherished common frontier with Poland, so important to the two allied nations for military purposes.

Rumania On March

Rumanian troops also were expected to occupy a small portion of the eastern part of Carpatho-Ukraine where live 40,000 Rumanians.

Polish armies were at Poland's frontier with Carpatho-Ukraine, pledged to aid Hungary in case of difficulties which Budapest did not expect.

To millions of Hungarians the national battle cry "No, no, never!" drilled into them for 20 years as the right attitude toward the Great War treaties which reduced Hungary, now were bearing fruit.

By Robert Parker
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

PRAGUE, March 15—(AP).—German troops of occupation were hissed and cheered today as they moved into positions of control in the once proud capital of free Czecho-Slovakia.

Cheers of German welcomers were interspersed with the hissing of Czech patriots and cries of "Pfui, pfui, go back home!" Some patriots sang the Czech National Anthem. Two persons were reported struck by German military automobiles. There were no serious disorders.

Huge Crowds Fill Streets.

Huge crowds were massed along the central streets of Prague as the troops, in groups of four, moved in.

At times the "pfui's" were so loud they could be heard blocks away. The crowds grew more demonstrative as the troops increased in number.

At one point along the route the strains of the National Anthem rose above the noisy exhaust of the mechanized equipment bearing the Germans into Prague. Here and there the troops were encouraged by cries from German groups wearing Swastika armbands.

Before the ancient Rathaus (City Council building) a large German delegation had gathered, bearing a Swastika banner of heroic size which the Nazis like to hang from their public buildings. But it was the only one in sight. No flags of any sort decorated the house or streets.

Lifeless Reception.

It was the most lifeless and colorless reception that Chancellor Hitler's troops had received since the Fuehrer started his expansion program.

The crowds were moody. When open disapproval or approval—as in the case of the Germans—was not being freely displayed the people were grimly silent. Armored cars, transport trucks, small cars with light machine guns, mess kitchens and motor-cycle field police formed the bulk of the parade which took 1½ hours to pass.

By 8 a.m. (2 a.m., E.S.T.) roads leading to Prague were being patrolled by field police. Gradually other units arrived and at 10 a.m. commanding officers with their staffs appeared in the suburbs. The officers inspected what the advance guards had done. Light machine guns had been placed along the routes of entry and patrols watched carefully over the roads and streets. Shortly after 10 o'clock the march in force started into the city.

It was snowing hard on the edge of Prague and streets of the capital were slushy. The German habit of driving on the right side caused some confusion until army drivers got used to the Czech left-hand rule of the road.

A curfew was ordered for 8 p.m. (2 p.m. E.S.T.) tonight. After that time no person will be allowed on the streets without a pass. The occupation found many foreign buyers here for the Prague spring fair, including several Canadians.

To feel better FAST cleanse BIG BOWEL!

That's Where Most Constipation Occurs, Where Direct Help is Needed

When you feel draggy, headachy, constipated, think of this before you take any laxative!

Constipation is commonly confined to just one part of the bowel tract — usually the lower colon or big bowel (marked X). Body waste often jams there just when it has almost reached the point where bowels should m-o-v-e. That's where the help is needed.

So why upset the whole bowel tract with laxatives that work elsewhere? Doses like calomel act chiefly near the upper opening of the bowels. Salts flush from end to end. Oils affect the small intestine.

To relieve constipation quickly and easily, make sure your laxative works first where the waste has piled-up! That's the action you get from Chocolate Flavor Cascarets. They move waste those last few inches, bringing blessed relief overnight. They can do this because they contain cascara, said to give nearest to natural action of any cathartic which acts to cleanse the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours!

Try this sensible, pleasant form of relief. Each foil-wrapped Chocolate Cascaret tablet is an effective dose, and pleasant to take because of the fine milk chocolate taste. All druggists, or write Dept. P-15, "Cascarets," Windsor, Ont., for free sample.

ing as his special train sped toward Dresden and thence toward Prague. Government spokesmen made it plain, however, that the following facts must be recognized as irrevocable:

1. Hacha has ceased to be president. Hitler will work in close cooperation with him, however, for the liquidation of the Czech State.

2. The Czech army has ceased to exist. As a gesture of chivalry, however, Czech officers were permitted to keep their sabres and side-arms, and were not compelled to hand them over to German occupation officers.

3. The Czechs and Moravians will be conceded full cultural autonomy. They will be allowed to continue the use of their language, to have their own schools and to preserve their national customs and costumes.

4. They will fly the Nazi Swastika as their flag, but on festive occasions they may also fly their ancient Bohemian and Moravian local flags.

5. Their passports will be German but possibly with a notation indicating that the holder is a Czech by "folkdom." Foreign legations in Prague will be changed to consulates.

6. As Bohemia and Moravia are now part of greater Germany, obviously German money, German postage stamps, German regulation for imports and exports will obtain.

7. Insofar as possible local government will be in the hands of Bohemians and Moravians.

8. Existing commercial agreements with other nations will be handled in the same manner as was done in the case of Austria and Sudetenland—by mutual agreement with the opposite contracting parties.

9. No male belonging to the Bohemian or Moravian "folkdom" will be expected to serve in the army or greater Germany.

10. Whether or not members of either "folk group" can be used as policemen depends on the spirit of loyalty to the new regime which Bohemia and Moravia will show in ensuing days. If accepted, they must naturally swear an oath of loyalty to Hitler.

11. Administrative officials will be allowed to continue to function in so far as they are willing loyally to serve their new master.

Regarding Jews, a government spokesman said:

"The same principles that obtain with reference to Jews in greater Germany will, of course, be invoked in our protectorate also. We don't believe, however, that the problem is formidable. There has been a mass exodus of Jews ever since the Munich accord."

anything, the Fuehrer's bloodless conquest of Czecho-Slovakia will have added impetus to this gigantic program.

Clean Up Southeast Europe.

Some British observers took the view that Hitler has decided to clean up Southeast Europe in a hurry so he can give whole-hearted support to Italy's Mediterranean demands on France when they are advanced. Others believed he merely is taking another step in his march to the east which was the ultimate object of adding to the Reich the wheat lands of the Ukraine.

Whatever the Fuehrer's object may have been the British press takes the view that Britain was wise in letting him alone and not intervening, as she did in the September Czech crisis which brought Europe to the bring of war.

In the Yorkshire Post (Conservative), which is close to Anthony Eden, the "editorial" consisted of quoted statements made by Cabinet members after the Munich settlement that Czecho-Slovakia would enjoy greater security as a result of that arrangement.

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) said nothing could have been done to save Czecho-Slovakia.

"The truth is," said the Guardian, "that Czecho-Slovakia was abandoned to Germany at Munich and what is happening now is merely the consequence of what was done then. If we would not fight then we cannot fight now. The present crisis is rather an opportunity to reflect with shame on the past and prepare with energy for the future." The Daily Herald (Labor) said: "In that part of the world which was at Munich abandoned to Hitler's will, law, justice and mercy do not exist and the sword rules. . . Munich is not enough. The Czechs gain nothing by giving up the Sudetenland. They must cry 'Heil Hitler.' No grievance justifies the latest move. The humiliation of brave opponents is the sole motive."

The Daily Express (Independent) said: "The Czechs are in bondage to Germany. It is a sad, bad, wretched moment. With such speed does misfortune overtake them that the blow must be harder to endure. Their bondage is as complete as that of the Israelites under Pharaoh."

The newspaper added that British subjects were keeping cool heads, "not because our hearts are hardened, or because we have no sympathy for the Czechs, but we are not shocked by stale news. Munich decided that Germany was the boss in Eastern Europe."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 15 — (C.P.). — Unsettled European political conditions had a stimulating effect on Winnipeg wheat futures prices early to-day, but part of the advances made were offset when a wave of selling developed near the close. Final quotations were ¼ to ⅝ cent higher, with May at 60, July 60¾, and October 61½ cents.

Most of the support appeared to be in the nature of shortcovering as prices at top levels showed gains of about a cent. A good share of the late selling was attributed to wheat board offerings. Export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at around 100,000 bushels, worked from both seaboards.

King And Manion Wave The Flag In Hot Debate

OTTAWA, March 15—(CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Conservative Leader Manion climaxed a debate in the Commons last night on the Defence Purchasing Board Bill with a heated exchange regarding personalities and war records.

Dr. Manion, a war veteran with a distinguished record, also got into argument with Thomas Vien (Lib., Outremont), whose war service was confined to Canada and who came to the defence of the Prime Minister. Dr. Manion warned the Prime Minister he 'must stop" personal references.

The sparks started flying after Dr. Manion charged the Government's policy on a defence purchasing board was largely prompted by the outcome of the judicial inquiry into the Bren gun contract.

"May I say to my honorable friend I cannot understand the smallness of his arguments in some of these matters," Mr. Mackenzie King said. "He seems more concerned with seeking to find the meaning of words that had never been given to them or intended, than he does to discuss legislation intelligently."

"I would suggest to the Prime Minister that he be a little less personal in some of his remarks to me," Dr. Manion replied. "I do not need a lesson from him in regard to using intelligence in connection with this question at all.

has thre or four time recently in has three or fou rtimes recently in this House made personal remarks about me and I say to him now that he must just stop it. I can say things just as personal as he can. I can put my record up against his dealing with the war or anything else, now or at any time, any time he likes——"

"Shame," cried several members.

"And a lot of howling from his followers—his rubber stamps, men who simply act as rubber stamps"—continued the Conservative leader.

Mr. Vien interrupted at this point. "The leader of the opposition has no right to call a member of this House a rubber stamp," he declared.

Dr. Manion: "I will withdraw 'rubber stamp' but I do not intend to be howled down by a group of men, no matter who they are."

Mr. Vien: "When the leader of the opposition tried to set up his war record against that of the Prime Minister I think it is unseemly. He left his post at the front to become a Liberal candidate in the 1917 election and when he landed at Quebec he became a Unionist candidate."

Dr. Manion: "I was not comparing war records. I simply said I was willing to stack my record up against the Prime Minister's

"I left the front because I was ordered out by the doctors and I was operated on as a result of my service. I wish to point out to the honorable member I did not stay at home in uniform as he did. I went to the front."

Mr. Mackenzie King: "My honorable friend refers to my war record. I have been before the Canadian people five times in general elections since the war and on four occasions out of five I have been returned as Prime Minister of this country. That is the answer."

Mr. Vien explained that he was in uniform from the start of the war but did not get an overseas appointment. Mr. Mackenzie King poured oil on troubled waters by declaring he had no desire to be persoanl and "if at any time I am personal and my honorable friend will direct my attention to it I will be glad to withdraw whatever is personal in my language."

95 Years Old

Wolves Forced Dad To Housetop Percy Twp. Woman, 95, Recalls

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORH, Mar. 15. — Mrs. Thomas Dennis, one of Percy Township's grand old ladies, celebrates her ninety-fifth birthday on Thursday.

She is a native of Prince Edward County, but at the early age of six weeks she came with her parents, James Henry Houghtailing and Harriett Owens to Percy township where they lived until her father had cleared land to build, then they moved to a farm in Alnwick Township. The farm is now owned by Mrs. William Houghtailing, Roseneath.

Married in 1874.

In 1874 she went to Sarnia and married Thomas Dennis of Seymour Township. Following their marriage they lived for a short time in the State of Michigan, after which they came back to Alnwick Township, later moving to Toronto, where Mr. Dennis died in 1919.

Mrs. Dennis and her only surviving sister, Mrs. Isaac Cornelius, who is eighty-six, live happily together about a mile from this village. The only other surviving member of a family of eleven is Ezra Houghtailing, Cobourg. She has one son William of Toronto, five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Was a Weaver.

In the early days Mrs. Dennis was a weaver, and of course with that trade goes spinning. She said that she has spun seven knots a day, and that is quite an accomplishment. She told of making clothing from cloth she wove and many other interesting stories of days gone by. One incident stands out vividly in her memory, and that was when a pack of wolves came to the barn. Her father, who was at the barn, could not get to the house in safety, so he climbed to the roof, where he remained all night.

Is Still Active.

In spite of her ninety-five years, one would take her to be much younger, as she is so bright and cheery. She does beautiful crocheting, knitting, reads the papers and writes letters and seldom wears glasses. Her hearing is keen and she also takes a keen interest in the news of the day. A host of friends will extend to her best wishes for many more birthdays.

ROSENEATH

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Braithwaite and daughter, Jean, visited Mrs. Braithwaite's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Moir at Campbellford this week.

Lorne Anderson, principal of Roseneath school, visited over the week-end with his parents at Stirling.

Miss Sheila Burrison of Gore's Landing was a weekend guest of her aunt, Mrs. N. W. Sherwin and Mr. Sherwin.

COMBAT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Plan to help prevent rheumatism by keeping your kidneys in good condition. Slovak Legion

BERNE, Switzerland, March 15.—(CP-Havas)—Five thousand Czecho-Slovak workers sent to Germany to find work after the Munich agreement are being transformed into a "Slovak Legion" at Vienna under the leadership of the fugitive Slovak minister of communications, Ferdinand Durcansky, it was reported here today.

The legion is being patterned after the Sudeten Free Corps which carried out operations on the Sudetenland border prior to the Munich settlement.

Farmer Is Robbed By Chicken Thieves

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT JULIAN, March 15. — Chicken thieves are at work again in this district, making the biggest grab yet, on Thursday night, when Robert Wilson, a farmer near Haultain, lost half of his flock of laying hens. The thieves left the door of the poultry pen open but their work was easily accomplished as the farm buildings are situated near the main highway.

Nine tables of euchre were played at Gordon Reid's home on Friday evening. The first prizes were taken by Wilbert Lean and Miss Muriel Northey. Seconds went to Walter Northey and Mrs. Ottis Northey. Next Friday, March 17th, Mr. and Mrs. John Northey are having the euchre at their home.

Mrs. Ephriam Bronson who has been at her daughter's home near Warsaw for the past few months returned to her home here last week.

Mr. William Loney was called to Buffalo last week by the death of his uncle, Mr. A. Loney.

Miss Katherine Reid who has been in Peterborough for some time, spent the past week with her parents here.

Mr. Reginald Deeth and Misses Madeline and Irene Northey, all of Peterborough, visited Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Northey over the week-end.

Can Exist Months Without Meals Doctor Declares

Kansas City, March 15 (AP)

DON'T FEEL SORRY for the fat man on a diet, says Dr. C. C. Sturges—"He's not starving."

Dr. Sturges, professor of internal medicine at the University of Michigan, told the medico-military symposium here last night "It's possible for a person to live four or five months on 100 pounds of his own tissue."

Experiments at the university have convinced him, he said, that four or five pounds a week can be removed by a low-calory diet.

"The way to reduce," he explained, "is to curtail food intake under medical advisement. I've never known a patient not to lose weight and never known one to develop a deficiency disease as a result of proper dieting."

Ukraine Free, Wants Hitler

BERLIN, March 15 (CP-Havas).—Reports reaching here said Carpatho-Ukraine today proclaimed its independence and appealed to Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini for "protection."

The appeals were sent by Monsignor Augustin Volosin, Premier of Carpatho-Ukraine, dispatches said.

Other reports said that Carpatho-Ukraine, which Hungary seeks to annex, had received an ultimatum from Budapest, and that Hungarian troops had crossed the frontier.

BERLIN, March 14 (CP).—Hans Von Moltke, German Ambassador to Poland, arrived here today to confer with German officials after a long meeting with the Polish Foreign Minister, Joseph Beck.

Reports reaching here said railway traffic in the Polish-Czecho-Slovak frontier region had been disrupted by heavy Polish troop concentrations.

Reports here said Beck had informed the Ambassador that Poland opposed creation of an independent Carpatho-Ukraine government. The only settlement agreeable to Poland is incorporation of the Carpatho-Ukraine in Hungary and establishment of a common Polish-Hungarian frontier, Beck was reported to have said.

Situation "Unbearable."

The German Government, a Wilhelmsstrasse spokesman said, regards the Czecho-Slovak situation as so "unbearable" that Chancellor Hitler has determined to bring about a clarification within 24 hours.

Reports of troop movements on a large scale were not denied by official quarters nor was it denied that Hitler was ready to take "strong action."

It had been reliably reported that German troops were being held in readiness to move into Czecho-Slovakia if Slovak separatists failed to win a secession vote in the provincial parliament at Bratislava. The parliament was convoked at the insistence of Hitler.

(An announcement from Bratislava said Slovakia today declared itself an independent state. Dr. Joseph Tiso was named first Premier of Independent Slovakia).

The Wilhelmsstrasse spokesman said two questions were at issue:

1. Autonomy of independence of Slovakia which in turn involves the fate of Carpatho-Ukraine, another autonomous segment within the framework of the Czecho-Slovak Republic.

2. Security of Germans in Bohemia and Moravia which constitute the Czech part of Czecho-Slovakia, the third major provincial division of the republic.

"Germany cannot stand to have her 'Lebenstraum,' or space for living endangered," the spokesman said. "At present Germans are completely at the mercy of the Czechs in Bohemia and Moravia."

Troops movements have been in progress since Sunday night. An informant usually well-informed said an estimated 14 divisions was ready to move, if necessary, as follows:

One group to proceed via Dresden and Aussig to Prague, another from Leipsig via Chemnitz to Pilsen and Prague, the third from Vienna to Brno, and the fourth from Vienna to Bratislava.

Reservists of the class of 1913 in Munich were called on short notice yesterday. Several troop trains left Munich for Vienna. A number of automobiles were commandeered. In Aussig in the former Sudetenland, 26 miles from the Czecho frontier, residents said trains had carried at least 16 carloads of troops toward the border since Sunday.

West Charges Japs With Discrimination

TOKYO, March 15—(AP).—The Japanese Foreign Office confirmed to-day that Great Britain, the United States and France had protested against the outlawing of the Central Chinese Government's currency in North China.

The three powers charged that suppression of the Chinese currency in favor of Japanese-sponsored banknotes, effective last Friday, was discrimination against their commerce.

HARD OF HEARING CANADIAN PRAISES AURINE EAR BALSAM

A simple home treatment which is bringing new hope and happiness to sufferers everywhere. H. E. Blaiklee of New Brunswick, writes: "Have used one bottle of 'AURINE EAR BALSAM' and it has been a wonderful help to me, for some months I have not been able to hear plainly, family talk at the table was a jumble to me, and had to have repeats so often that I feared I would never hear plainly again, have not heard the clock strike for months, the radio was a thing of the past. Now after using one bottle of AURINE EAR BALSAM I can converse with the family as in the good old days, hear the clocks striking and listen in on the programmes presented over the air and beginning to enjoy life as in the past. Would highly recommend AURINE EAR BALSAM to anyone who is hard of hearing for I know it will do them good." Before you invest in expensive hearing devices try one bottle of AURINE EAR BALSAM. See if it doesn't help you too. If you are hard of hearing, have ringing and buzzing in the ear—Get AURINE EAR BALSAM to-day. Relief is quick. Costs only a few cents a day. Money back if it does not help you. For sale by McDermid & Jury's Drug Store.

Flu Claims Aged Man And Wife At Norland Within 24 Hours

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 15.—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hoskin, aged residents of Norland, died this week under tragic circumstances. Mr. Hoskin, who had reached the ripe old age of 94 years, passed away from an attack of the flu, and 24 hours later his wife, aged 74 years, died from the same disease. The family consists of two daughters and one son.

Lindsay town council has granted permission to the local Rotary Club to install a swimming pool in Kawartha Park costing $5,000. Future maintenance of the pool will be assumed by the town. The council has also decided to institute a closer checkup on reliefees. Reports have been received that some men on relief have refused jobs when offered them, and other reliefees are holding down jobs.

Several of the lumber camps in the northern part of this district have closed for the winter. Most of the logs, cordwood and pulpwood cut during the winter months were contracted for, and the result of the winter's work can be seen in the heavy shipments of this material.

Two residents of Red Rock were taken to the Ross Hospital, Lindsay, this week, suffering from injuries. Clifford Stinson, while playing hockey at Fenelon Falls, broke his collar bone in a collision with another player. Garfield Kelly slipped on the ice at his home on Monday and broke a shoulder blade.

Seymour Township Couple Mark Golden Wedding Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 15. — A multitude of friends from all parts of Seymour Township and from Campbellford joined in offering their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. William L. Irwin who on Monday celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home in Seymour.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin were married in Campbellford in 1889 by the late Rev. William Tucker, who was at that time pastor of the Methodist Church here, and since that time have resided on the 10th Concession in Seymour Township, where Mr. Irwin has been engaged in farming ever since. Although he maintained an interest in practically every branch of farming it was the dairy branch of which he was particularly fond and over the period of half a century has won no small reputation as a breeder of Ayrshire cattle.

Born One Farm Away.

Mr. Irwin was born on the farm which now adjoins his own, and is the oldest of the five living children of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Irwin. One brother Robert still operates the farm on the old homestead, while another brother is James L. Irwin of Belleville, who is widely known as Government cheese grader. Of his three sisters, all live in Campbellford and are Mrs. John Younger, Mrs. William Craighead, and Mrs. Thomas Finch. Mr. Irwin will celebrate his 76th birthday in June, while Mrs. Irwin, whose maiden name was Jane Wilson, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson, Cavan County, Ireland, will reach her 77th milestone in April of this year. Though born in Ireland, she came to Canada as a girl of seventeen, and after living in Toronto for two years became the wife of Mr. Irwin.

Both are enjoying good health and live in a wealth of memories of their early days spent together on the farm. They are members of the Zion United Church, and Mr. Irwin has for the past seven years been an honorary member of the L.O.L. Sentinel Lodge at Petherick's Corners, and is past officer of the Stanwood Lodge.

Large Reception.

Four children, Mrs. Garnet Redden, Warkworth, Miss Winnie Irwin at home, Chester Irwin of Stanwood, and Ernest Irwin of Rylstone were all present at the celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin, who count also to their blessings fourteen grandchildren. Perhaps the most beautiful gifts received by the celebrants were from their children who presented their father with a gold watch chain and their mother a gold ring. Other gifts included a mantel clock from neighbors and friends, a bedspread from Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irwin and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Owens, a silver basket of flowers presented by little Billy Scott of town, and presents from J. F. Finch, Mr. and Mrs. William Craighead and family.

Among the sixty-five guests who were present in the evening when a buffet supper was served were: Mr. and Mrs. Albert Petherick, Mrs. John Simpson, Alfred Simpson, Harry Ewing, Thomas Brunton, George and Morris Brunton, Mr. and Mrs. John Dewey and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wright and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Owens, Mr. and Mrs. William Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. George Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. James Irwin, Mr. and Mrs. James Milne, William Finch, Cecil Finch, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnum, Miss Evelyn Barnum, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Barnum, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stewart and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Irwin and family, Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Redden and family, Donald Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Bogart Linn, Mr. and Mrs. William Craighead, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Scott, Mrs. John Younger and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Irwin and family.

$2,800 Fur Theft

TORONTO, March 14. —(C. P.)— Furs valued at $2,800 were stolen during the night from the Hudson Fur Store, at 68 Gerrard Street, east. Ben Mannis, proprietor of the shop, told police two lamb coats and four pairs of silver fox furs were taken.

Mother Spends Son's Millions So Coogan Won't Be Spoiled

LOS ANGELES, March 15—(AP). —Jackie Coogan, who claimed he earned $4,000,000 in "The Kid" and other pictures on the silent screen, will receive only approximately $150,000 under a settlement of his accounting suit against his mother and stepfather, attorneys said today.

The tentative agreement lacks only the signatures of Jackie, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Berstein and officers of Jackie Coogan Productions, Incorporated, and the Coogan Finance Company.

It provides that the actor will get half of about $300,000, more than two-thirds of which is in real estate. Stocks and bonds represent $50,000, and miscellaneous property and cash about $32,000.

Jackie brought suit last April against his mother, Mrs. Bernstein, and his stepfather, the Coogans' business manager, demanding an accounting of the $4,000,000 he claimed he earned as a child star.

His mother said that it never had been her late husband's intention or her own to give Jackie any considerable sum of money, "because too much money would spoil him." She contended a minor's earnings belong wholly to his parents, and declared that of $1,300,000 Jackie had earned, much had been spent for his support during his minority.

Charged with stealing temple treasures, Dr. Kenjiro Kivono, former medical professor of Kyoto Imperial University, was given a suspended sentence of two years in prison with hard labor, in Kyoto, Japan.

Scaring His Wife

LONDON, Ont., March 15—(CP). —Despite his plea that he was only trying to frighten his wife, 27-year-old Charles Thorne was convicted of attempted suicide to-day. Magistrate Donald Menzies released him on probation for one year.

Detectives found Thorne in his kitchen March 3 with the door and windows closed and three gas jets pouring gas into the room. His wife was hysterical in the next room.

"I was just trying to frighten my wife,'" explained Thorse. "I thought it might make her see that she really loved me and then we would be happy together again."

The Little Nation Breaks

Czecho-Slovakia as such has ceased to exist. Within recent months there have been several territorial raids.

Germany took 10,885 square miles with 3,595,000 population.

Poland gathered in 405 square miles and 240,000 inhabitants.

Hungary on the south entered the field and picked off 4,787 square miles containing population of 1,064,000.

Now Slovakia has done what it threatened to do weeks ago; it has declared itself a separate state, independent of the government at Prague. Prague controls now only Bohemia and Moravia, the city having been originally the capital of Bohemia before the new nation was formed following the World War.

The Slovak state comes into existence with the promise of protection by Germany against outside attack, and if such attack were made it would undoubtedly come from the Czechs.

Prime Minister Chamberlain informed questioners in the British House of Commons there was nothing in the situation which warranted intervention by Britain. Some of his critics on the Opposition side appeared by their questions to be indignant that Britain was not prepared to enter the field and put a stop to Germany becoming a protector for the separatists. If they were in control of the situation we doubt very much if they would follow any other course than that set down by Chamberlain, but in the meantime they seek to make it appear they have a form of bravery which would readily seek intervention and war if necessary.

Britain is not bound to protect either the Czechs or the Slovaks. There was mention following the Munich conference that Britain would or should guarantee the altered boundaries of Czecho-Slovakia against unwarranted attack, but there was never any agreement made to that effect nor was such assurance ever requested by Czecho-Slovakia. Certainly there was nothing mentioned about Britain becoming concerned if the constituent parts of Czecho-Slovakia afterward decided to fall apart and continue their way as independent states.

What has happened only serves to make apparent the serious error which was made following the war in creating a small nation out of several racial units which had little in common, and leaving the new creature to do as best it could in one of the most disturbed sections of mid-Europe.

Spending Public Money

Correspondence which was tabled in the House of Commons dealing with the building of a new Canadian National terminal in Montreal revealed a letter from Sir Edward Beatty, president of the C.P.R., in which he submitted the report of engineers that the situation in Montreal could be dealt with by extending the present C.P.R. terminals, and the cost would be much less than the completion of the present plan. He notes that $16,510,000 has already been spent on the project, and it is now planned to spend $12,600,000, and he does not believe that will be the end of the expenditure.

It will probably occur to some folk that Sir Edward is prejudiced in this matter; he is thinking in terms of the C.P.R. But it is a fact that there are many others who believe that the proposed expenditure will not stop at $12,600,000.

This terminal has to do with passenger service, and there are not as many people riding on trains as when the project was first advocated in the more prosperous days of Sir Henry Thornton's regime. There is not a thing to show there will be any more revenue, or that more people will come to make use of the C.N.R. service because the new and separate terminal is completed.

A good deal of the business in and out of Montreal is now done by pool trains, and that in itself suggests that it would be advisable to have a union of terminals.

We have a very old C.N.R. depot in Peterborough, but one would hesitate to suggest that a new one should be erected because business conditions do not warrant such suggestion.

It would not be possible to interest private capital to put something like $30,000,000 into a new terminal in Montreal, and we believe public ownership should be just as cautious at times as the private investor.

Where The Danger Lies

After spending a hard enough day in the Legislature, Col. George Drew found it possible to address an evening meeting held under the auspices of the Toronto Board of Trade Club. In his evening address the Conservative leader was talking about reforming our method of government, but he actually did not say just how it should be done but was more content with pointing to some of the dangers of doing it the wrong way.

One way in which our system of government could fall flat would be "if the young people of the nation became convinced that politicians were a rather low breed of animal, very little concerned with the welfare of the people."

Well then, let us take it on that ground for the sake of argument if nothing else. How are the young people apt to get the impression that "politicians are a rather low breed of animal." Will they hear it when they are in their own homes? Will it be taught to them when they are attending school? Will it be impressed upon them when they become older and join a lodge or some such organization? We do not think there is danger of young people or older ones getting their minds tainted regarding politicians in any of the places mentioned.

But we do believe the thing which Col. Drew fears might come to pass by following closely—

A session of the Ontario Legislature.

A session of our Federal Parliament.

The average political campaign which precedes an election.

The very nature of political organization lends itself to such purpose. The party which is in power wants to stay there, and in office and in election campaigns it will seek to create the impression that any other party is not well fitted to govern. The party in opposition follows the same line by seeking to demonstrate that the party in power is wrong in policy and administration. The result is there is much said which does create the feeling that things are not as they ought to be; there are statements made in our parliaments which broadly suggest graft and incompetence. So it is our firm belief that the thing which Col. Drew fears may come to pass—the belief that "politicians are a rather low breed of animal"—has its chief source and point of danger in what politicians say about each other.

Oliva Has An Idea

Oliva Dionne has been turning things over in his mind and has come to a conclusion. A week or so ago he received a letter from Provincial Secretary Nixon inviting the famous quints and their parents to come to Toronto and meet the King and Queen. Special train, special place to stay in Toronto, special invitation to the Royal luncheon.

But Father Dionne failed to enthuse. He did not go romping about the roads bearing in his hand the invitation which was something akin to a special warrant to appear before Royalty. Rather was Oliva inclined to sulk in his wigwam and say "If they wish to see the children they can journey in this direction."

Now there has come a change and Oliva desires to go, and he is certain all the Dionnes would welcome opportunity to make the journey. There would be Annette, Yvonne, Cecile, Emilie, Marie, Ernest, Rose, Therese, Daniel, Pauline, Oliva, Jr., and Victoria. Then too there will be father and mother, making 14 in all. If the reception at Toronto is going to be a success by reason of the Dionne family being there, then Oliva is going to do his full part in making it even a greater success by having lots of Dionnes on hand.

Whether there are many invitations to the family to "come over and see us" is something about which we know nothing at all. But if the custom grows then those who extend hospitality should now be aware of what to expect and have knowledge of the extent of preparations. They will all come, 14 of them. Not that we blame Oliva in the least. He is doing what every last mother's son and daughter in the country is doing at the moment, seeking a place in the front row when royalty is near. There is a special train, so why not do what he can to fill it? It is 180 miles to Toronto and the same distance home, and if 14 people ride 360 miles it makes a total of 5,040 miles to the credit of the family. As a business man Oliva Dionne is progressing.

The Only Factory Goes

The village of Arkona in Lambton county had a fire, and after that was over it was possible to announce that the one remaining factory in the village of some 500 people had been destroyed. The knitting company was the one sign of industrial life which remained. It had been started there 79 years ago and has been in the hands of the founder and his descendants ever since. In ordinary circumstances it gave employment to 15 or 20 people. It appears to be doubtful if the place will be rebuilt.

The loss of the knitting mill is another example of something which a Peterborough resident was discussing in this office the other day. His father died several months ago and he has been in the village several times in connection with settling some affairs connected with his estate. He has had opportunity to see a good deal of the village and has had time to compare it with the place he recalls as a boy of 15 when he left. His comment was:

"With a couple of friends I was discussing the change that has taken place. We recalled that forty years ago there were 11 places in the village where people were working, grist mills, woollen mill, box factory, carriage shops, foundry and machine shop and so on, and in all there would be close to 100 people working apart from stores or offices. Today there is one grist mill which runs two days a week—and that's all.

"Our conversation naturally turned to something about relief, and of course there never was any such thing in the village of 40 years ago, but there are nine families there now who are receiving that form of assistance. We had no figures showing what wages were 40 years ago, but they were very small, and there would be periods each year when some of the shops would not be operating and the employees would be home. At that time nearly all of them had gardens, chickens and some of them kept pigs. In that way they had two sources of support, their pay envelope and their gardens. When it came to meal time it was not necessary to put the hand in the pocket and find the money to pay for it in cash. Much of it in winter time was in the cellar or in the vegetable pit outside. There was not much money to be had but the people all seemed to be happy and they were getting along in their own way. Today the population is just about one-half what it used to be and nine families are on relief."

There is something to be said for life in a village or town where there is something for the people to do. People have a better opportunity to make use of the land, and as our informant aptly put it, that gave them two methods of support—the land and their pay envelope. When one ran out the other remained and the people were not almost immediately helpless. All over our province we have seen a dwindling of village and town population, and we find it difficult indeed to become reconciled to the fact that it has been for the best. We would be better off today if there were a more general distribution of population and of industry.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Yes, we have seen one—a girl with a skipping rope.

Hon. Dr. Manion says members of parliament are just as honest as editors of newspapers. For the sake of the country in general we hope they are more so.

Paderewski at 79 has so far recovered from the flu that he is going ahead with a concert tour. Might bear that in mind if you are feeling a little limp after a similar attack.

We read some place or other that a luck always walks as though it had just got out of a rumble seat. And that is close enough to the truth to head off an argument.

We read that Einstein has found the key to the universe. Our advice would be to turn it and slip the thing under the door-mat. It would be interesting to notice what happens.

Mother in Chicago rescued her boy from the river by using a garden rake. It is also handy for getting kites out of trees, shaking a limb for early apples, killing snakes and tidying up around the premises.

Kitchener reports that 1,300 workers who had been on strike are returning to work; also that 1,321 scholars in the school there had the flu. They appear to do things on rather a large scale in that town.

Claim is made that one history book for the whole of Canada would do much to bring about unity in the country. Then there are others who hold that what we are doing today is of more importance than what we did in the past.

A correspondent to this paper describes the work of editor as "having an easy chair in an office." We have recognized that for a long time but have always tried to make it appear difficult and tiring.

Objection is taken to a 30 per cent. duty on Highland costumes entering this country. If a man desires to be decked in such a costume why should he pay tribute to a government or any other agency?

The London Star, commenting on the move in the Canadian parliament to limit profits in war contracts, says Britain might well move in the similar direction. Imagine if you will our young land being held up as an example to the old folk at home.

MISTAKE

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Another bandit man's been caught, for whom the village cop had sought, and he'll serve seven years; he was a bold man so he said, who'd spray the constable with lead, and pull him by the ears.

¶ He picked upon a village bank, where he would pull his latest prank, for that place was asleep; he said that he could use a nag, and gather up the village swag, he'd only have to creep.

¶ The village bank was where he struck, he figured 'twas his day for luck, for no one was around; he gathered up nice stacks of bills, and scooped the money from the tills, he left the banker bound.

¶ The village constable drew nigh, just when the bad man hurried by, I'll tell about the rest; the village man moved then so quick, and whacked him with his sturdy stick, then sat upon his chest.

¶ The magistrate, a kindly gent, in two short words said what he meant, he was not moved to tears; the bold bad man looked rather dumb, and wished that he had never come, when he heard "seven years."

¶ The slicker from a big town band, when he set out to spy the land, just pulled one awful bone; he thought the village folk were slow, that he could do his stuff and go—and never would be known.

Our Statesmen At Their Labor

OUT OF ORDER

(From Hansard)

Mr. PERLEY: I should like to ask whether it is not a fact that while the 1935 wheat board was taking wheat from the farmers there was a report made of the sales, the amounts on hand, and so on, and whether that report was not made public.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member is out of order.

Mr. PERLEY: And the amount on hand at the end of each week.

Mr. SPEAKER: This is not the proper time for a discussion of this kind.

Mr. PERLEY: I do not know when we are going to get a proper time for this discussion.

Mr. EULER: I suggest that my hon. friend put his question on the order paper, and he will receive an answer.

DO YOU PERSIST!

Mr. SPEAKER: Is the house ready for the question? Those in favor will please say Aye.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Aye.

Mr. SPEAKER: Those opposed will please say Nay.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Nay.

Mr. SPEAKER: In my opinion the Ayes have it.

Mr. FINN: Mr. Speaker, in face of the fact that I had risen in my place, do you persist in doing what you have just done?

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I did not persist in doing what I have just done. Having asked if the house was ready for the question and if there were any more members to speak, and not noticing the hon. member, I put the question.

Mr. FINN: Then I ask, Mr. Speaker, that the question be withdrawn.

Mr. SPEAKER: Those opposed to the motion will please say Nay.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Nay.

Mr. SPEAKER: In my opinion the Ayes have it. I declare the motion carried.

Motion (Mr. Mackenzie King) agreed to.

ANOTHER POINT OF ORDER

Mr. KUHL: The point of order is that if we are governing ourselves according to the British North America Act, in my opinion this house is not competent and has not authority to discuss the disallowance of provincial legislation. To substantiate my point I should like to quote a few sentences from sessional paper 116 to 1876.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Order.

Mr. KUHL: This is since the passing of the British North America Act.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. There is no point of order in this.

Mr. KUHL: Yes, Mr. Speaker, this is a point of order.

Mr. SPEAKER: The point of order is not well taken. I do not think the hon. member can raise this question now.

Mr. KUHL: The point of order is that the house has not authority to discuss this matter.

Mr. SPEAKER: It is not a proper way to raise the question.

Mr. KUHL: In what way has this house authority to discuss this matter?

Mr. SPEAKER: I do not think the point of order is well taken. If the question raised by the hon. member is to be discussed, it should be in some other manner.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): The point of order being disposed of, I wish to tell my hon. friend who asked the question that I am very busy just now in preparing to give him a definite answer in a very few days.

DO NOT GET EXCITED

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): My friend then will find, if he has that in mind, that I am a pretty weak minister. I would advise him to go to the head of the mounted police and ask him if I as minister in control of the force ever asked him to appoint one man upon the force.

Mr. MacINNIS: I have not said that the minister has.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): The hon. member said it would be a political appointment.

Mr. MacINNIS: I did not. I was referring to what is in the bill. The bill says that the wardens are to be appointed by the governor general in council; and the governor general in council, in this case, will be acting on the advice of the Minister of Justice.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Yes.

Mr. MacINNIS: Well then, the Minister of Justice will make the appointment, and so I do not see the commission saying—

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): My hon. friend does not need to get excited.

Mr. MacINNIS: When the minister says that I say things which I have not said, I have a right to get excited.

Mr. LAPOINTE Quebec East): The hon. member said it would be a political appointment, and I deny it again.

Mr. MacINNIS: I still say it will be a political appointment.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): I still say the hon. member is wrong.

HINT TO SMOKERS.

As we take observation of what is going on around us we see there are many other things that are going too far besides taxation. The smokers have taken possession of all the public places and have driven most of the non-smokers out with their offensive vapor. The non-smokers have no gas masks but the smokers have a mask for the cigarette to prevent throat irritation while they puff their choking fumes on helpless little children. Special rooms are provided to accommodate smokers, but this is not enough. They have converted the restaurants and dining-rooms into smoking rooms, also groceries are tainted with tobacco smoke when they come from the store. The invasion of all these places should be freedom enough to satisfy the smokers.

• When Money Leans On the Shovel

THIS is not an advertisement for Collier's Weekly. Yet we wish our business leaders and our public men would buy the current print of Collier's and read the article in it called "Scared Dollars" by John T. Flynn says the Ottawa Journal. In a vivid, striking way, it tells why money isn't being put to work, why it is lying idle in the banks, and why, as a consequence, business is bad. Says Flynn:

"Jobs just don't happen—someone has to spend money to create them. And while we've as much money as we ever had, it's not working. It's hiding in the banks. Why? Because private investments has collapsed in fear. Make it possible for money to flow from the banks into business, and employment will take care of itself."

And again:

"Men are not the only things out of work. Dollars are out of work too. In fact it's because the dollars are out of work that the men are out of work.

"Recently I ran across a bank in Knoxville, Tennessee. It had $24,000,000 on deposite. Ten million of them were not working. They were lying around leaning on their shovels. The bank had half of its deposits in cash."

Why? The answer, says Flynn, is not the banks. They are not hoarding money. Hoarding money, for banks, is bad business. Their job, as business people, anxious to make money is to lend money. They are waiting for people to come along and get it; to put it to work.

The people don't come along. They go to banks, not to borrow money, but to deposit money. Because they are afraid. Somebody has told them—everybody is telling them—that things are bad; that things are going to get worse; that the whole capitalist system is going to the devil; and that consequently, they are likely to waken up any morning to find that their dollars aren't worth anything. So they hoard; are afraid to start anything, or to buy anything, or invest in anything. Money—and men—remain out of work.

John T. Flynn is writing of the United States. But what he says applies to Canada. We, too, are permitting ourselves to be paralyzed by fear. We listen to radio commentators and read sensational headlines telling of war. We decide, as a consequence, that there is going to be war; that we'd better "get from under." And when it's not war, or war-mongers, it's those modern plagues, reformers; the magic money people, the inflationists; the people who are talking about the "end of the capitalist system"; the Jeremiahs who go about telling us that Canada is "bankrupt."

Such talk is not merely stupid; it's vicious. This country isn't bankrupt, nor anywhere near bankruptcy, and the capitalist system isn't collapsing. Through hundreds of years the capitalists system has stood up under strains and stresses, adapting itself to new needs and conditions. It will do that again. Need there may be for changes, for improvements, but talk about its going down before Communism, or Socialism of Fascism, or some other ism, is foolish talk. There isn't a chance in a million of this country going Fascist, or Communist. This country is going to remain what it is. It is going to stand by the capitalist system. And by democracy.

Canada can' do much about fear propaganda that comes from Europe. It can and should do something about fear propaganda at home by giving short shrift to people who in the role of amateur economists and self-constituted saviours, go about talking "bankruptcy" and predicting disaster unless we take up their pet projects. Most of these people, the majority of them in the kindergarten of politics and economics, betray by ninety per cent of what they say that they don't know what they are talking about. Yet otherwise sensible people listen to them, and repeat what they say as though it were gospel spread the propaganda of fear. That is why, here in Canada our banks are bulging with idle money while people are out of work.

The time has come, we think, when Canada should snap out of this year. The mines, forests, fields and fisheries of this country are as rich as they ever were; richer. And we have but 11,000,000 people. To talk about "bankruptcy" in the light of such things, is as nonsensical as it is cowardly; as betrayal of those who pioneered this country, and built it. Some people are talking, in fact, as though they didn't deserve a country.

• Being Careless With the Truth

SOME time ago the Post had an article, sent in by the correspondent at Uphill, in which it was stated that two men of that community found a big maple tree which yeilded two and one-half cords of wood, five coons, 60 pounds of honey, and that the men shot a weasel and a bear on their way home from cutting the tree. This story was apparently "laying it on a little too thick", because the Post has received a couple of letters from readers who were inclined to doubt it.

"Mind you", writes one man, "I'm not saying those two men lied. I'm not saying they were liars, but I will say that they handle the truth awful careless." This gentleman advances several reasons why he doesn't believe the yarn. He says coons and honey bees don't mix, which is probably fortunate for the coons. He adds that he doesn't think the men were good enough shots to shoot a weasel on the run, and they must have been hearty eaters to be able to carry 60 pounds of honey in their dinner pails, and that bears were in hibernation at that time, and that trees that big grow only in British Columbia.

We bow to a superior authority on such things. When the editor read the story as it appeared from the correspondent, his tongue was slightly in his cheek. It was almost too good to be true. It sounded like a tall tale, but a good one, and as it was about the best "tall tale" we have ever run across, it was given a place of due prominence in this paper. Other papers throughout Ontario thought it good, too, because The Canadian Press sent it to them, and the majority of them liked it well enough to give it front page space. The Post felt at the time it was published that there might be some exaggeration in this yarn, but it was not a story of a type to injure anyone nor cause embarrassment to anyone, but was simply a humorous bit of news that might have been 25 percent. imagination.—Lindsay Post.

HUMAN NATURE.

——I was walking with Sir Herbert Tree one day when my hat blew off. I was about to hurl myself into the thick of traffic in pursuit when Tree restrained me: "My brother, Max, says", he told me gravely, 'never run after your hat. Someone is sure to bring it to you'."

True enough, a moment later a passer-by dashed up breathlessly and restored my hat to me.—World of Action.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And it came to pass, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leprosy: who seeing Jesus fell on his face, and besought him, saying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean. And he put forth his hand, and touched him, saying, I will: be thou clean. And immediately the leprosy departed from him. And he charged him to tell no man: but go, and shew thyself to the priest, and offer for thy cleansing, according as Moses commanded, for a testimony unto them. But so much the more went there a fame abroad of him: and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities. And he withdrew himself into the wilderness, and prayed.—Luke v, 12-16.

PURCHASING POWER.

Practically half the total number of passenger automobiles sold to customers in Canada in 1938 were sold in Ontario: 47,575 out of the dominion total of 95,972 or 49.6 per cent.

Just over half the entire passenger car registration in Canada was in Ontario: 589,213 out of 1,160,978, or 50.1 per cent.

Next to Ontario's 45,575 new car purchases came Quebec's 18,156. Next to Ontario's registration of 582,212 came Quebec's 169,803.

The purchase and possession of motor cars is an important indication of the purchasing power of Ontario's people.—(Toronto Star Weekly).

THE SWEEPS MYSTERY.

As great as the mystery of how the Irish Sweepstakes racket has been getting by so long in this country is the mystery disclosed by the indictment in New York of eight persons said to be the agents of the lottery in this country. This mystery is the six of the eight were similarly indicted two years ago and not prosecuted.

Collegiate Notes

The epidemic of flue which has invaded the old alma mater during the past week or two, forcing the absence of 11 teachers and countless pupils, seems to have abated considerably and school activities are definitely on the up-grade. Quite a few are still away but not enough to force any organizations to discontinue functioning and with the play not far distant and the publication of the Echoes pending, there is plenty of hustle and bustle around the home of the Garnet and Grey. And so to jot down a bit of a word about some of the happenings so numerous around and about.

Hoop Happenings

The all-important triple-header with Cobourg in the school gym last week turned out just about as well as it possibly could have for P.C.I. The junior boys, after getting away to a shaky start and being out-played through the early minutes, began to go to town in a big way in the final three quarters and piled up an impressive wn, 35-15. This victory leaves the Junior Garnet and Grey cohorts tied with Cobourg, each team having won 5 and lost one. These games were, of course, the final ones in the Lakeshore group schedule and probably the final appearances of the three P.C.I. teams on our home floor. The juniors, as we have said, got away to a bad start but warmed up to their tasks considerably as the battle wore on and when it was all over were without any doubt the better of the two junior squads.

Then, Miss Brisbin's senior girls put on a real show, holding the powerful Cobourg lasses to a 21-all tie. P.C.I. looked better in this game than they have at any time this year and it looks certan that if they had got going a bit earlier would be group champions right now instead of Cobourg. However, they lost one game to C.C.I. a few weeks back and tied another with Bowmanville and so must bow out to Cobourg, who finished the season undefeated. Congrats to the classy Cobourg crew and orchids to P.C.I. for their game battle.

Concluding the big evening was an important game with Cobourg's senior boys' outfit. P.C.I. had a 21-16 lead in the even first half of what was probably the best game of the night, and then began to go to town in the final minutes of the last half to win handily, 45-25. This win leaves P.C.I. tied with Bowmanville with 7 wins and 1 loss each and they will have to play off. Both the Garnet and Grey senior battle with Bowmanville and the Junior boy's game with Cobourg are sudden death games to declare Lakeshore league champions, and both the losing teams can hang up their uniforms. Both final games will be played Saturday afternoon in the T.C.S. gym in Port Hope. There was a real crowd out to the tussles Friday night and it does your correspondent's heart good to see the season closed in such a respectable way. And remember to be in their fighting come Saturday, March 18.

Camera Club

Well, last week the Camera Club got back into the swing of things, renewing their weekly meetings. They held their regular meeting on Wednesday night, the feature being an illustrated lecture on miniature camera photography, one of the newer, and more interesting phases of the camera art. Camera club is plenty busy this last week or two (or, has been) working on Echoes pictures, cutting, engraving, etc., to say nothing about their usual duties, distributing school note-paper, etc., etc., and etc. Haven't heard for sure, but more than likely any day how we will have another afternoon movie program, as there hasn't been one for some little time.

Play Postscripts

One of the important affairs going on right now is the preparations for the coming school play, "Dear Brutus." Ticket sale campaign is now on, with something like 1400 tickets out. Of course no one knows for sure just how many of these are sold, but everything seems to be going along nicely. As we said before, everyone selling five tickets to the play will be given a rush seat ticket and anyone selling 15 tickets will receive a reserved seat ticket. Of course anyone who sells 5 tickets and received a rush ticket may get a reserved seat for an addition quarter. Seat plan opens Saturday and just by the way of a surprise, take a glance at the calendar and you will see that the opening date is just one week from tomorrow night, Thursday, March 23 and Friday March 24. Doors will be open at 7 o'clock on the evenings of the play for those holding rush seat tickets. And remember that tickets are going fast and if you don't get yours soon don't be surprised if you just don't get yours at all. We have been reprimanded (very mildly) for our foolish mistake of terming the play an opera. An opera is a play with music and "Dear Brutus" is a play without the music. We are sorry.

Health Department

Tuesday morning of this week we had an interesting talk from Dr. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health for the city, in the assembly hall. His address was by way of introducing a very wise move in the march of health, to be inaugurated in our school before long. Near the end of this month and during the early part of April, in P.C.I., any student wishing to do so and with the consent of his parents, will have the privilege of being tested for that hated and feared disease, tuberculosis. The tests, which Dr. Fraser explained are quite harmless and painless, work somewhat in this fashion. The test shows either a positive or a negative result. If the result is neagtive it shows that you have not been exposed to the tubercular germ and therefore are clear. If the test is positive it shows that you have been exposed to the germ. However, you may be perfectly alright and the positive test may mean nothing. If the test is positive you have the privilage to be X-rayed and definitely find out. An extremely good idea and very definite forward stride in the crusade against the dreaded tubercular germ.

Fight On

Last Thursday in the Auditorium, something happened that should have happened long ago. We had a plea from the platform for more support for our threesome of battling basketball squads. Bill Davidson, better known as Wee Willie, was the instigator and just in case you think it didn't do any good, just think about the fine crowd we had out last week. After a rousing cry and plea for a big crowd, and a little noise from the said big crowd, Bill called upon Ted Clarke and Gwen Bond to come to the stage and lead the student body in a bit of Acka-lacka-chin and Hikety-chike, the two foremost yells, almost forgotten, we fear, from the rugby season. This is good stuff and should have been done long ago, instead of just before the final game of the year. But, nice going Wee Willie, and Gwen and Ted.

Echoes Windups

There isn't much more to add to the comment we've already made about the coming publication of the school year book. We've already given you a complete list of all prize winners in the art competition, photography competition and literary contest, and there is little else to tell. The advance subscription was almost up to a par with other years and the Echoes staff certainly seems to be working hard enough. All the group pictures and individual pictures have been taken, and there now remains the arduous task of cutting, mounting and labelling all of them before sending them away to the printer. Still plenty of work ahead and the publication of the Echoes entails plenty of work. It shouldn't be too long before the book is on the streets, and believe me, this is one fellow who is not sore about that.

Odds 'n Ends

C.O.S.S.A. basketball finals are in Toronto one week from this Friday and Saturday....And the winners of this week's double-header in Port Hope will be there battling for a Central Ontario title....Probably will be played at Danforth Tech....School song contest closed last week. ....Haven't heard for sure when the Echoes subscription contest winners' party will be, but likely will be a dance instead of a skating party....Poster contest also closed a week ago Monday....Basketball teams are practicing hard this week for Saturday....Still think its too bad our hockey club folded up.... It is rumored that the Glee Club will put in an appearance in assembly Friday morn....Individual Echoes pictures will be placed in the Camera Club show case before long. ....Don't forget to buy your tickets right quick....And so Aufwiedesen, my frans....—J.E.C.

LOCAL ACES ELIMINATE MARKHAM IN O.H.A. PLAYDOWN SERIES

Gain A 6-3 Win In Omemee To Take Round

Peterborough Aces eliminated Markham last night in Omemee to advance into the next round of the O.H.A. Intermediate "B" playdowns against Whitby. Last night's score was 6-3, which gave the Aces the series by an 11-8 score, since their previous game in Markham ended in a 5-all draw. Aces play in Whitby this Thursday, and may have Whitby back in Omemee on Saturday night.

Over 400 fans saw an exciting, speedy struggle on a good sheet of ice. It was marked by several fights, one a free-for-all in the second period that saw half a dozen hot fistic duels, with spectators and police on the ice before order was restored. It drew no penalties. A Connelly-Harrison fight in the first frame, and a Wright-H. Lawrie exchange late in the second saw the offenders sent to the cooler.

Ganging-up play by the speedy Aces, with some good combination gave the Williams' bunch the victory. They had a 1-0 margin in the first period and were in front 4-2 going into the third. Markham fought back doggedly throughout but were outclassed in this fray. The game was never dull at any stage and the fans got a big kick out of the Aces' style of play.

Goalies Good.

Both goalies turned in a fine performance, Miller for the losers being especially busy and looking good. The second line of Findlay, E. Beck and Harrison went best on the attack for Markham. While all the Aces sparkled in this victory, Heal, Mortimer and Hill were probably the pick of the Peterborough players.

The first frame was nearly finished before there was a score, both sides checking closely and the goalies hot. Hall notched one on a pass from Wright seconds before the bell. Three penalties were drawn by J. Beck, Connelly and Harrison. Heal scored to open the second on a nice lone rush, and he got another a minute later on an assist from R. Cournyea. J. Beck tallied then for Markham, Harrison aiding, but Hill took a pass from Mortimer for another Aces' score. H. Lawrie got the last on E. Lawrie's aid. O'Leary, H. Lawrie and Wright drew penalties. J. Beck scored from E. Lawrie for the visitors in the third, but Mortimer and Hill counted for the winners, Vitarelli and Heal getting an assist each. Vitarelli, Findlay and E. Beck got penalties in this heat.

The teams:

Markham—Goal, Miller; defence, Hore and Fullen; centre, E. Lawrie; wings, H. Lawrie and Harley; alternates, Findlay, J. Beck, E. Beck and Harrison.

Aces—Goal, Currie; defence, Connelly and Vitarelli; centre, R. Cournyea; wings, Heal and Wright; alternates, Mortimer, A. Cournyea, Hill, Prete and O'Leary.

Referee—Buffer Reeves, of Lindsay.

Summary:

First Period—
Aces, Heal (Wright) 19.45
Penalties—J. Beck, Connelly, Harrison.

Second Period—
Aces, Heal 45
Aces, Heal (R. Cournyea) 1.30
Markham, J. Beck (Harrison) .. 3.00
Aces, Hill (Mortimer) 4.00
Markham, H. Lawrie (E. Lawrie) 6.30
Penalties — O'Leary, N. Lawrie, Wright.

Third Period—
Markham, J. Beck (E. Lawrie) 2.00
Aces, Mortimer (Vitarelli) 9.30
Aces, Hill (Heal) 17.00
Penalties— Vitarelli, Findlay, E. Beck.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

V. Collery, W. Ashby, J. Welsh. T. McArthur, skip.

This is the rink that was proclaimed club champions last night when, only after an extra end was played, they defeated G. Robertson's rink by the score 11-10. This is the same rink that won its group in the schedule with 10 wins and 2 losses and it's the same rink that won the Neill Trophy here a couple of weeks ago in competition with 38 other rinks. A real record by real curlers.

McArthur started off and took a lead of six on the first three ends. It looked like a walk-over, but not so. Robertson's boys kept plugging away until they tied it up and took the lead by one point coming home. He forced Mc. to make a dead draw to the four foot ring to tie it up. On the extra end it was first one and then another that led, and McArthur with his last stone doubled up two of "Catters" stones and lay shot himself. It was squarely up to Robertson to do or die. He made a gallant effort to draw up to Mc's stone but was short about one foot. And a glorious season of curling was climaxed by the best game of the season.

In the semi-final of the vice-skips' competition another extra end game was played. This game was skipped by Ross Williamson and Tippy Balfour (subbing for H. Dulmage). The game was close all the way through and was only won when Balfour missed with his last stone.

The final game will be to-night between R. Williamson and S. Valentine.

The second half of the Bottum-Fitzgerald cup will be played this evening.

Dislocated Shoulder

(By The Associated Press)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Don Padgett, the outfielder St. Louis Cardinals are trying to convert into a catcher, probably will be on the sidelines about 10 days as a result of one of his early efforts behind the plate, he dislocated a shoulder yesterday as the Cards were taking a 10-2 thumping from Cincinnati.

Advance In O.H.A. Playdown Series

Peterborough Aces rubbed out Markham in their O.H.A. intermediate "B" series and now meet Whitby in playdowns. First game is in Whitby on Thursday, return likely on Saturday. Above is shown the local squad, back row (left to right): Doc McCallum, trainer, P. Vitarelli F. O'Leary, J. Connelly, J. Hill, J. White and Manager Bud Williams; front row (left to right): W. Wright, R. Cournyea, A. Heal, J. Currie, D. Mortimer and A. Cournyea. Coach Eddie Williams is absent. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

"Grudge" Series Opener Ends In Draw

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 15. — Campbellford Oilers battled to an 11-all tie with Marmora last night in the first game of an exhibition "grudge series."

Oilers played minus their regular goal tender, Ralph Turner, and with Wilkes missing from the defence line and Robinson absent from the forward line.

It was not until the first period drew to a close with the visitors leading the way, 6-2, that Donald, in the nets, began to warm up to the occasion. He was carried off the ice with a head injury in the second frame, result of stopping one with his head.

Leonard, Johnson and O'Neil were the leading snipers for the visiting sextette; Phillips, Blake and Couch for the Oilers. After Donald was taken out of the local net he was replaced by Jim Saunders, who had been handling the ball up to that time, and he let only two get by him. C. Couch, right winger for the local squadron, turned in one of his best games of the season. He opened the scoring for the locals and found his mark twice in the second, the first on a pass from Atkinson from behind, and the second on Phillips' pass.

Leonard and O'Neil got the only penalties of the struggle, and both of these came in the final period. The return game will be played here on Thursday evening.

Summary:

First Period
Marmora—Leonard (O'Neil) .. 2.33
Marmora—Leonard (O'Neil) .. 3.15
Campbellford—Blake 6.50
Marmora—Leonard (Kerr) .. 14.00
Marmora—Kerr (Johnston) .. 16.10
Marmora—Johnston 15.30
Marmora—N. O'Neil (Leonard) 17.45
Campbellford—Atkinson (Phillips) 19.20
No penalties.

Second Period
Campbellford—Phillips (Blake) 3.23
Marmora—N. O'Neil 4.27
Campbellford—Phillips (Couch) 5.16
Marmora—Kerr (Leonard) ... 11.10
Campbellford—Blake (Atkinson) 12.30
Campbellford—Atkinson (Free) 13.20
Campbellford—Blake (Phillips) 15.45
Marmora—Leonard 18.20
No penalties.

Third Period
Campbellford—Phillips (Couch) 2.21
Marmora—N. O'Neil (Shanon) 8.00
Campbellford—C. Couch..... 10.30
Marmora—Johnson 16.47
Campbellford—C. Couch 17.37
Campbellford—C Couch (Atkinson) 19.25
Penalties—Leonard, O'Neil.

The teams.

Marmora: Goal, Hollingsworth; defence, C. O'Neil, N. O'Neil; wings, E. Leonard, T. Kerr; centre, G. Leonard; alternates, Shanon, Johnston.

Campbellford: Goal, S. Donald, (third period, J. Saunders); defence, D. Couch, D. Free; wings, Blake, Atkinson; centre, Phillips; alternates, F. Free, F. McArthur C. Couch.

Referee—Bud Davidson.

Doing No Boasting

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Since that no-hit loss to the Reds the other day, Brooklyn Dodgers aren't boasting about their hitting, but they can point with some pride to the pitching they had had in grapefruit league games. In 37 innings so far, the Dodger mound staff have allowed only 38 hits, given 15 walks and hit two batsmen.

Plenty Of Hitters

LAKE CHARLES, La.—A sudden resurgence of batting power has struck Philadelphia Athletics, who couldn't bat at all in recent exhibitions. It came to light in yesterday's camp game with Bob Johnson, Dick Siebert, Wally Moses and Lou Finney leading the way.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

And so tonight we have Waterloo Tigers and the Petes mixing it up at 8.30 in the Brock St. Winter Gardens,a chomming spot to spend an eve in the colder weather. This is the final O.H.A. senior "B" round-robin fray for this town—the Petes maybe making playoffs but maybe not having ice for 'em at home. With the Tigers having two wins and two losses to date, and the locals having one win in three starts, this tussle tonight is as important as a boost in pay. A win for the Buckland battlers will elevate them to a second-place tie with Waterloo — in fact, a bit better than a draw as the Tigers have played one more game. A local loss will put the Petes back of the w.k. eight-ball, or deep in the dog-house, with a bare mathematical chance left to make a money berth.

* * * * * *

If the Petes should put the clamps on the boys from the German centre this e'en, they have but to win one of their next two games to be about in. A flock of "ifs" and "maybes" in this serial yet, but things are looking fairly bright for the Petes at present. We heard last p.m. that there was some Waterloo money around at two to one on the Tigers. That's a lovely price and we'd like to have some of it—though not too much as the insurance is due and the missus is staring at Easter bonnets in the George St. windows lately!—but 'tis probably merely a rumor. The game is a good even-money proposition, and we like the locals' chances on home ice.

* * * * * *

Swell Hockey Dish

They had tough luck to lose to the Waterloo hustlers down in Kitchener and claim they'll even that up tonight here. But they'll have to hurry-hurry-hurry as those Tigers tramp on it all the time and are the sort of forecheckers who give rivals a nasty headache and fans, if they're against Waterloo, some anxious moments. Best game we've seen so far in this senior "B" series was that Waterloo-Petes' thriller in Kitchener, ending 5-4 with the last goal pitched in with 40 seconds of play left. Extra fast, clean, exciting all the way—and the squads will probably do a ditto here. And in case these teams are tied for second place, the one with most goals scored goes into the playoffs, so goals are quite important in the tilt.

* * * * * *

This is the likely Petes' lineup, one change being made: Goal, Ray Harding; defence, Lorne Gray and Jack (Smoke) Gardner; centre, Bun Kingdon; wings, Eddie Starr and Honey Tompkins; alternates, Archie Weir, Don Crowe, Shrimp McDougall, Red Creighton and Don Coughlin. With Gord (Doc) Nichol on the sidelines with a bad knee. Waterloo Tigers may line up like this: Goal, Voll; defence, Couch and Clair; centre, Bauer; wings, Vrooman and Grau; alternates, Hause, Smith, Kropp, Hinschberger and Krueger. Watch this Bauer at centre of the first line—he's a brother of the Boston Bruins' player—and Grau on the right wing; they're the real snipers of the club. The fray should pack in the fans as it's a natural, with good ice promised, and heaps of hot hockey action in an important senior contest.

* * * * * *

Looks like the Peterborough Aces snuck in the back door to get into O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns, and made better headway than Lakefield, Lindsay and other squads which played O.H.A. all winter—but where are they now? The Aces were in a district loop at Omemee, along with Millbrook and a Scugog squad; Aces winning out and going into O.H.A. playdowns. Well, they beat Markham 6-3 last night at Omemee to win the round, 11 to 8, and now meet Whitby—the team which won the group composed of Lakefield, Sutton, Lindsay, et al. Aces go to Whitby tomorrow and expect to have the return tilt in Omemee on Saturday, though local fans might like a chance to see 'em. Over 400 saw a good tussle last p.m. in the O's arena, with the locals earning the decision handily.

Art Heal was the sparkplug, figuring in on four goals, while Hill and Mortimer were hot, too. Whole gang clicked okay. Several fights in this fracas, one a pipperino—which is first cousin to a lallapalooza—with guys strewn all over the ice, fans and police mixing in, and not a penalty drawn! Aces play a scrappy, speedy brand of hockey, ganging-up just any old time they feel like it, regardless of the score. They've done fine to date, but meet some real opposition now—the good Whitby club looking like 1939 provincial champions to us.

Back To The Pond

Sarnia voted against an artificial ice arena the other day in a sizzling campaign, losing the deal by 150 votes. It was a $75,000 rink with 10-year debentures, so Sarnia won't be in the Mich.-Ont. puck circuit for another year. Chatham, on the other hand, recently voted $80,000 for a new arena, and Waterloo a few weeks ago voted a new rink, though Kitchener has an artificial one close by. Talk here continues of a good arena at a pretty stiff price, and we believe a fine artificial rink at a moderate cost—compared with others springing up in Ontario — can be built without trying to rival a pro centre. Red Wilson of the Sarnia sheet packs a lot of disgust in a brief message to surrounding villages like this: "Move over, Camlachie and Wanstead, we're back with you again!"

Three gals' cage games Friday eve at the new Y.W. gym. Unbeaten Quaker Aces play St. John's at 7.30, Westclox meet Debs at 8.30, and C.G.E. plays "Y" Gym at 9.15. This trio ends the schedule, top two teams meeting in senior playoffs, loser getting the runner-up trophy; while bottom two teams battle for the junior title. St. John's can go into a second-place tie with Maids if they beat the Aces, forcing a playoff betwixt St. John's and the Maids for the right to meet Aces in finals. C.G.E., Debs and Westclox have two wins and three losses each, and are after junior playoff spots. C.G.E. can cop it by beating "Y" Gym, trying for its first win, though the "Y" gals lost several tight ones by single points—so C.G.E. will have to be hot, as a loss means elimination. Westclox-Debs' tilt is important as a loss means a fadeout for one, and a win gives a team a swelegant chance of a junior playoff berth. And that's the setup as it now stands.

Waterloo Here To Play Petes Here Tonight

Second place will be at stake in the O.H.A. senior "B" round-robin series when Waterloo Tigers and the Petes tangle here tonight (Wednesday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. With the top two teams in this series going into the playoffs, tonight's game is of the utmost importance to both squads and it'll be a grand battle. The Falls have four wins in as many starts, while the Tigers have two wins and two losses to date. The Petes, with one win and two losses can move half a game up by winning here tonight—then having two and two, while Waterloo would have two wins and three losses. Chatham is in the cellar with three straight reverses. This is the last home game for the Petes, who go on the road Friday, playing then in the Falls and moving over to Chatham on Saturday.

Waterloo took a 5-4 win over the Petes in Kitchener, but the locals feel they can take the Tigers here tonight and move up behind the Niagara outfit. It promises to be a wide-open, thrilling tussle all the way with both clubs battling for keeps and flashing some fine hockey from start to finish. A good sheet of ice has been promised at the Brock, and the biggest crowd of the year will likely jam the place this evening. Not only is it an important and classy contest, but likely the last seen here this year.

Whitaker's Club Holds Meeting

The sixth annual meeting of the G. Whitaker C.C. was held at the Hotel Champlain on Monday night with the president, Gordon Monkman, in the chair. An enthusiastic attendance included J. Wild, A. Hamilton, C. V. Elliott, W. A. Brown, J. Wheater, G Colbran, F. C. Roberts, B. Roberts, T Jones, G. Haig, R. Parks, E. Curtin, A. Paget, R. Howarth, B. Bailey, and A. Radford, secretary-treasurer.

The following were appointed as the 1939 executive: Hon. presidents, G. Whitaker, R. R. Whitaker, and A. P. Whiteley (all of Bradford, England); president, G. Monkman; vice-presidents, C .V. Elliott, C. A. Farnham, and J T Hornsby; captain, J Wild; vice-captain, A Hamilton; secretary-treasurer, A Radford; entertainment, F. C. Roberts; grounds and equipment, G. Haig and R. Parks; transportation, T. Jones, G. Colbran, and R. Howarth; auditors, W. A. Brown and H. Willis.

Satsifactory reports of the club's standing and activities were received. The club played 13 matches, won 7 and lost 6, and wound up the season by winning four consecutive matches against strong opponents, and hope this season to get a longer fixture list against stronger opponents and so provide an attractive card for the club's supporters.

Routine business and votes of appreciation for various services rendered closed a very encouraging meeting. Well led and with a fine team spirit they can look forward to the coming season with confident hope.

Sydney Outfit Passes Out Allan Cup Race

MONTREAL, March 15 (CP) — Passing of Sydney Millionaires from the picture left nine teams ready to fight it out today for the right to represent Eastern Canada in the Allan Cup final. Thirteen outfits still are in the eastern chase for the Memorial Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior hockey supremacy.

Millionaires bowed out last night by dropping a 3-2 decision to Saint John Beavers, thereby losing 6-5 on a two-game, total-goals count. Beavers, Maritime titlists, now engage the winner of the Ottawa and district crown which may be decided tonight in a fourth meeting between Hull Volants and Arnprior.

Volants presently hold a one-game edge. The teams played to a 4-4 draw in their first contest, Volants took the second 1-0, and then they played again last night to a 2-2 tie.

Third Game

Kirkland Lake Blue Devils will try to get back into the title hunt on home ice tonight when they play Toronto Goodyears. Touted as one of the strongest aggregations in the Dominion, the Blue Devils ran into more than they bargained for and dropped the first two contests at Toronto of a best-of-five series with the Goodyears.

Carrying as much interest as the Goodyears-Blue Devils clash will be the first meeting tonight of the powerful Montreal Royals, champions of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, and Valleyfield Braves, Provincial Senior Hockey League titlists. They start a best-of-five series in Montreal for the provincial senior title.

In the first of a two-game, total-goals series for the Quebec intermediate title, St. Jerome defeated Windsor Mills 6-2 last night to take a stranglehold on the crown.

PACED BY NICK METZ, MAPLE LEAFS DEFEAT THE AMERICANS

Victory Costly To Leafs Who Lose Boll

TORONTO, March 15.—Unleashing full might of their power in an impressive display after two of their players had been put out of action early in the first period, Toronto Maple Leafs swamped New York Americans by 7 to 3 in an exciting and important National Hockey League fixture at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Paced by Nick Metz, who chalked up four goals and an assist in the scoring splurge, the Leafs once again rode into undisputed possession of third place. Amerks can regain the third rung by a single point if they defeat the Rangers on Thursday in New York in the A's last game of the regular schedule. Leafs have two week - end games left against Rangers. If Amerks lose Thursday's game, Leafs will have third place and choice of ice clinched for next week's playoff series.

Nick Metz

Last night's game was witnessed by only 8,951 cash customers—smallest crowd of the local N.H.L. season. Those who stayed away, while probably figuring that the teams would give a safety-first display, were fooled when the contest produced a little bit of everything.

Boll and Jackson Hurt.

The decisive victory, however, was costly for the Leafs, because both Buzz Boll and Busher Jackson suffered knee injuries before a goal had been scored in the first period. Boll is probably out for the rest of the season with badly-wrenched ligaments in the knee other than the one he hurt in the first game of the season and which kept him out of action until just a few weeks ago. Jackson has a severely-bruised knee that may or may not respond to treatment before the first game of the playoffs here next Tuesday.

Hooley Smith of Amerks was in the penalty pew when Leafs got the only goal of the opening period. Chamberlain did the sniping, with Apps and Kampman assisting. Horner was sitting out in the third minute of the middle session, when Carr tied the score. Stewart and Anderson got assists, and Stewart's assist was his 501st point in N.H.L. competition. Art Jackson of Amerks was in the box when the Maples really began to barge in and get hot.

Metz got the first of the four goals that earned him seasonal rating with Apps, Roy Conacher and Toe Blake as four-goal gunners. Chamberlain and Drillon earned assists on Metz' goal that put Leafs ahead.

Apps Makes It 3-1

Jerwa joined Jackson in the penalty box, and Apps promptly made the count 3-1 with the help of Metz and Chamberlain. Jerwa still was off when Metz came back again to sink another shot, aided by Kampman and Fowler.

The shifty and hard-shooting Carr netted another for Amerks about three minutes later, when two Leafs and an Amerk were serving penalties. Schriner gave him the pass. But before the hectic period ended Metz got another goal, and he did it while Leafs themselves were shorthanded. Kampman had been thumbed into inactivity when Metz and Kelly broke loose from Amerks' ganging.

Leafs had the verdict well in hand as the third period opened, but when Gallagher of Amerks drew a penalty, Metz banged in his fourth goal. Drillon and Kelly built up the play.

The sides were even just before the fifteen-minute stage, and Amerks were not putting up much of an attempt to pull down the score when Romnes, who had been doing a lot of superfine playmaking, clicked for Leafs' seventh goal off Hamilton's sparkling rush and pass. Marker also assisted.

Then with only ten seconds left on the big clock, as Hooley Smith, in a never - say - die effort, skated through the Leafs on a clever solo to rap the rubber behind Broda. Bob Davidson and Art Jackson had staged a fistic fracas, and both were in the penalty box when the Hooler made his goal-getting rush.

Oshawa School Beats Norwood In Closing Minute Of Playdown

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 15.—A fast stepping Oshawa Collegiate team, winners of the Lakeshore division in the C.O.S.S.A., squeezed out a narrow 6-5 victory over Norwood High School, champions of the Bay of Quinte group, in a lively match at the Norwood arena last evening. Oshawa by their win grabbed off a one-goal lead to carry into the second of the home-and-home series to determine the C.O.S.S.A. champs. This game will probably be played in their city Thursday night, although no definite date has yet been set.

There was a good crowd of supporters present to witness the school's last local game, and although the Norwood line-up was hard hit by the recent flu epidemic, the boys came through with a great display. At least five members of the home squad were just recently able to return to school after a siege of sickness.

Six of the eleven goals were scored in the initial stanza, three apiece to each side. Oshawa notched the only tally of the middle frame to go into the lead. Two quick goals by Norwood going into the final period reversed the count, but Oshawa retaliated in the last few minutes of the session, with a pair of goals to take the game by a close 6-5 score.

Efficiently handled by referees G. Pollard of Oshawa and R. Ennis of Norwood, the game was fairly clean throughout, with seven penalties being handed out in all. Five of these went to the visiting team.

Trecise Stars

Grabbing most of the limelight during the evening was Trecise, youthful red-headed member of Oshawa's second line, who captured the fans admiration with his smooth-skating style, and smart stick-handling. Wilson and Kellerman composed the visitors' effective defence pair, while Daniels, Sawyer and Furey were best among the rest of the line-up.

Les Bongard, Norwood netminder was the standout member of his squad turning in a smart effort in the cage. Gill with two goals, and Puffer, Petticrew and Buck with one apiece were the local goal-getters.

Oshawa broke loose in the first frame and on their first sally into the enemy's end of the rink, Kellemen sank one behind Bongard for the first goal of the game. Three minutes later Gill retaliated for Norwood to tie it up. Working in alone on Bongard, Trecise scored the prettiest goal of the evening, to put Oshawa again in the lead.

Sawyer made it 3-1 on a pass from Daniels shortly after, all three of Oshawa's goals being scored from close quarters. A penalty to Sleep for for cross-checking Petticrew, gave Norwood the advantage, and they made good with a tally by Puffer. Another penalty to Kellemen of Oshawa paved the way for Norwood's third and tieing counter, Petticrew notching this one on Puffer's pass. The period ended thus with the count deadlocked at 3-all.

Oshawa Takes Lead

After five minutes in the middle frame, Sawyer combined with Daniels for Oshawa's fourth goal, the only scoring done this stanza.

Picking up a loose puck in Oshawa territory, Buck coasted in on Monahan to deposit the puck in the cage, deadlocking the count for the third time, soon after the start of the last frame. Three minutes later Gill nabbed Godin's pass on the far left wing to drive one past the Oshawa goalie, putting his team one up. Oshawa started to press the attack and Daniels once more tied it up on Sawyer's pass. With less than a minute remaining, Furey on a solo effort snatched a victory for the visitors, beating Bongard from close in. The teams:

Oshawa: Goal, Monahan; defence, Wilson, Kellemen; centre, Daniels; wings, Furey, Sawyer; alternates, Andeley, Leach, Trecise, Sleep, Sajac, Brisbois.

Referee—R. Ennis, Norwood, G. Pollard, Oshawa.

Still In Race For Canadian Hockey Honours

ALLAN CUP SURVIVORS

Sydney Millionaires, champions of Nova Scotia, passed from the Allan Cup picture last night, leaving the field open to 16 teams to succeed to the title won last year by Trail Smoke Eaters. The Millionaires lost 3-2 to Saint John Beavers, titlists of Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick, and dropped a two-game, total-goals series 6-5. There are nine teams from the east and seven from the west still in the running for the title going undefended by Smoke Eaters.

East:

New Brunswick — Saint John; Quebec—Windsor Mills, St. Jerome, Montreal Royals, Valleyfield; Ontario — Hull, Arnprior, Kirkland Lake, Toronto Goodyears.

West:

Ontario—Port Arthur; Manitoba—Stonewall; Saskatchewan—Moose Jaw, Saskatoon; Alberta — Lethbridge, Drumheller; British Columbia—Kimberley.

MEMORIAL CUP SURVIVORS

Four of the 21 teams still in the running for the Memorial Cup, emblematic of Canadian junior hockey supremacy, saw action last night with Dartmouth defeating Charlottetown 5-4 in the first of a two-game, total-goals series for the Maritime crown and Prince Albert trouncing Moose Jaw 5-1 in the first of a best-of-three round for the Saskatchewan title. The east has 13 teams left in the hunt, and the west eight.

East:

Prince Edward Island — Charlottetown; Nova Scotia — Dartmouth; Quebec—Montreal Royals, Verdun, Ste. Anne De Bellevue, Notre Dame De Grace, Sherbrooke, Quebec; Ontario—Perth, Ottawa, Oshawa, Toronto Native Sons, North Bay.

West:

Ontario—Fort William Maroons, Port Arthur, Fort William Columbus Club; Manitoba — Winnipeg, Brandon; Saskatchewan — Moose Jaw, Prince Albert; Alberta—Edmonton.

Hawks Put Out Of Playoffs

BOSTON, March 15. — (CP).— World champions a year ago, Chicago Black Hawks dropped from the National Hockey League playoff contention last night when they fell 4-2 before a third period drive of the league leading Boston Bruins. Hawks' defeat automatically qualified Montreal Canadiens for the playoffs.

The Bruins used a three-goal burst in the final period to overwhelm the Hawks before a crowd of about 7,000 at the Boston Garden.

The Hawks, beaten in their seven previous starts against the Bruins, led until the tenth minute of the final, when Bill Cowley deadlocked the game, after Ab Demarco and Joe Cooper had scored for Chicago, and Roy Conacher had rapped in the first Boston tally.

Conacher Gets 24th Goal.

Conacher, outstanding Boston rookie, ran his string of goals to twenty-four in forty-seven games by caging another tally during the last minute of play, after Ray Getliffe had put the Bruins into the lead with an unassisted counter.

The Bruins, guilty of much ragged play during the early stages, settled down to serious business after Eddie Shore drew a ten-minute penalty for fighting with Bill MacKenzie, a rival defenseman, in the second period.

All Star Team

Following is the 20th in a Canadian Press series of National Hockey League all-star team selected by hockey writers in N.H.L. cities. A consensus will be prepared later.

Detroit Wings Defeats Rangers 3-2

DETROIT, March 15.—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings defeated New York Rangers 3-2 last night to strengthen their hold on fifth place in the National Hockey League standings. Red Wings, with a game to go, hold a three-point lead over Montreal Canadiens who have two games left.

The Red Wings combined three goals in the opening period and an alert defense to win before a crowd of 5,200.

Penalties Hurt Rangers

Two of Detroit's goals came while the Rangers were short-handed. With Dutch Hiller off for high sticking, Detroit connected on a power play, Gus Giesebrecht taking a pass from Marty Barry and beating Dave Kerr.

Throne Speech Debate Will Be Short

TORONTO, March 15 (CP) — Possibility the throne speech debate may be concluded with a division Thursday was seen today following Conservative Leader George Drew's announcement in the Ontario Legislature yesterday he would be the only Conservative spokesman.

"Dictator" was a Liberal's cry at Col. Drew as he made his announcement. The leader retorted that his course was the decision of the men behind him who were bent on getting down to the business of the house and ending time-wasting.

Col. Drew charged that Premier Mitchell Hepburn's repeated attacks on the federal Liberal government and on Prime Minister Mackenzie King were not true expressions of the will of the people of Ontario. They wanted national unity.

Challenged To Resign

The government was challenged to resign and go to the province in a general election on the issue. Premier Hepburn retorted that an adequate test would be for Col. Drew to resign his Simcoe East seat in which the Liberals had given him an acclamation and try public opinion in that riding.

The Conservative amendment to the address in reply to the speech from the throne was moved by Col. Drew and seconded by Dr. Harold Welsh (Hastings East). It read:

"This house regrets that the speech from the throne contains no statement concerning the past failure or future intention of the premier of Ontario to confer with the prime minister of Canada for the purpose of considering joint action to increase employment and reduce the cost of government."

Ontario was doing her full duty by Confederation and paying more than her share of federal expenses, answered Premier Hepburn to Col. Drew's statement the King-Hepburn exchanges had created a national issue on whether or not the provinces were ready to yield jurisdiction in matters that could best be dealt with by the federal government.

Claims of provincial sovereignty were based on narrow textual interpretations of the British North America Act, said Col. Drew. Ontario's duty was to find a way to make the act more workable, not to seek further inheritances of power.

Demonstrate Independence.

There was a demand rising in all parts of Canada that legislators should be freed from party shackles and made free to vote according to their consciences, said Col. Drew. Liberal members of the House had a chance to demonstrate their independence and to do publicly what they were doing private; that was, protesting against the Ontario attacks on Prime Minister King and the Federal Government.

Premier Hepburn said Ontario was bearing more than her share of federal expenses. Wheat growers in the West and steel makers in the Maritimes were bonused and Ontario paid half the cost. Ontario farmers had no bonuses and the province subsidized steel production out of her own treasury.

In her problem of power surpluses, Ontario received no help, but rather hindrance, from the Federal government. A permit to export power could not be had from Ottawa. On the matter of diversion of waters in the Ogoki and Long Lac areas into the Great Lakes, Prime Minister King rejected the request and registered President Roosevelt's opposition "without even consulting him."

The Ontario Government had been busy reducing expenses and where debts were created there were assets to cover them. Such was not the case in Federal financing. Huge loans were made to the western provinces with no expectation they would be recoverable and Ontario would be taxed to reimburse the Federal treasury.

Dust Proof Surfaces.

On highway policy in the north, Premier Hepburn said Highways Minister McQuesten had the idea of putting dust-proof surfaces on the roads. They were needed to encourage tourist traffic.

The Premier reiterated his government's opposition to the deepening of the St. Lawrence river. This was a matter of policy and for that reason a Federal invitation to discuss the details of the projects had been rejected. There was no purpose in discussing details when the fundamental project was rejected.

There were few taking up the cudgels on behalf of the Federal government, said Premier Hepburn, and he was glad to see Col. Drew doing it. But Col. Drew came to the Legislature with the purpose of "wrecking anything we have in the way of provincial rights."

Cases Laid Over

COBOURG, Ont., March 15—(CP)—Adjournment to the fall assizes today was made in Supreme Court of three actions, Healey v. Crane; Crane v. Healey; and Eastwood v. Healey.

The three cases, damage actions arising out of an accident, involved claims totalling $40,000. The adjournment came at the last moment, and as solicitors in other cases to be heard today had not expected to go on so early, the docket schedule was thrown into confusion.

Enjoyable Meeting Of Slumber Seekers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 15.—Members of the "Slumber Seekers" Club of Lakefield held their sixth meeting at the home of Miss Ethel Blakely, Lakefield, on Thursday evening last when seven members and one visitor were present.

During the evening Miss Eva Higgins instructed the members in the proper method of making bound buttonholes. Each girl showed what progress she had made on the kimono or house coat she was working on, and it was decided that the garments would be completed and exhibited at the next meeting, which is to be held at the home of Miss Phyllis Webdale.

During the series of meetings held during the winter, the girls all have made either a pair of pyjamas or a nightgown, and a kimona or housecoat.

Priest, Farmers Shot To Death

BUDAPEST, March 15. — (CP-Havas)— A Hungarian Orthodox priest and two Hungarian farmers were shot down to-day by Czech soldiers on the border between the two countries.

The priest was killed by a Czech soldier near Perecseny. The two farmers were shot down by a Czech patrol near Ormod, south of Munkacs.

The official Hungarian News Agency reported fighting occurred in several points on the Hungarian-Carpatho Ukraine frontier between Hungarian and Czecho-Slovak forces.

The Agency said Hungarian detachments had taken Podhering and captured a Czech detachment, which it blamed for starting the fighting.

Agency reports from Munkacs said Czech border forces began unexpectedly to fire across the frontier. The Hungarian border troops returned the fire and then crossed the frontier. At 11.20 a.m. (6.11 E.ST) the Agency said fighting was still in progress

Hungary Next?

Private information reaching Budapest said Hungarian troops advanced about 20 miles in Carpatho-Ukraine, one of the three districts comprising Czecho-Slovakia. This could not be verified officially.

Behind the expected emergence of Slovakia as a virtual German puppet state, Hungary sees the latest move in Chancellor Hitler's push to bring all Central and Eastern Europe under German control was foreseen frankly by Hungarian leaders.

"Hungary may well be next," they said.

A Nazi-supported Slovakia was seen as ending the cherished Polish-Hungarian dream of a common frontier where now lies Carpatho-Ukraine (Ruthenia), easternost part of Czecho-Slovakia.

Hungarian leaders said Hitler now has complete control of "what was once the Czecho-Slovak Republic"—a corridor to the geographical Ukraine constitute by parts of Poland, Soviet Russia, Rumania and Carpatho-Ukraine.

The Ukraine is an era which Hitler hopes some day to "liberate."

Specifically, increased German pressure was expected against the Hungarian government of Premier Count Paul Teleky which, in the Berlin appraisal, is "lukewarm." The more pessimistic Hungarians expected renewed activity by Hungary's recently dissolved Nazis, the Hungarist party.

Today Hungarian troops were occupying 20 miles of former Slovak territory, part of the territorial settlement Hungary gained after the Munich dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia.

MORE ABOUT—
War Profits

international "racketeering" in arms were heard repeatedly as C.C.F. members hammered at the government to remove the profit motive entirely from the armament industry.

David Spence (Con. Toronto-Parkdale) said there were "still some honest men" and believed manufacturers, if given an opportunity, would turn out defence equipment at a profit of even less than the five per cent limit to be fixed by the defence purchasing board.

Support of the measure was promised by M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) but he warned the government the measure should contemplate supervision of the profits that may be made by any one company. He urged a government policy of public manufacture of arms and munitions.

Manufacturers of arms should be as ready to operate without profits as members of parliament were ready to serve the public at personal sacrifice, in the opinion of A. A. Heaps (C.C.F. Winnipeg North). Members of parliament sacrificed opportunities of making a great deal more money than their sessional indemnities.

There were officials in the service now who would be able, if permitted, to do everything in the way of safeguarding war contracts that it was now proposed this board would do, Mr. Heaps said.

Nationalization of armaments was too much to hope for but would be a good thing if it could be achieved without involving too great a capital expenditure in the opinion of Dr. Manion.

He looked upon the measure as an attempt by the government to control and limit profits and he approved although he was not sure how effective it would be. He suggested a committee of both houses should be appointed to study in private the whole question of Canadian defence.

Mr. Douglas declared the government had given no good reason why the government should not manufacture the bulk of its defence requirements.

Budgets For Deficit In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX, March 15 — (CP). — After reporting a surplus for three successive years, Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia has estimated a deficit of $182,572.02 for the fiscal year ending next Nov. 30 but he hoped that, as in the past, the province's financial position will turn out better than he anticipated.

On the heels of a 1937-38 surplus of $146,137 reported last week, the premier made the budget forecast in the legislature last night. A year ago he budgeted for a surplus of $7,898.64 which was far exceeded when he tabled public accounts for the period last Thursday.

The premier, also provincial treasurer, estimated 1938-39 revenue at $12,126,105.44 and expenditure at $11,850,075. Both exceed the 1937-38 figures which set an all-time high. On the basis of those figures there would be a surplus of $276,029.64 on ordinary account but the premier provides $458,601.66 for sinking fund, $97,020 more than last year, which wipes out any surplus.

The Polish Supreme Court has ruled that a man who promised another man $200 to marry a certain woman need not pay his debt on the grounds that the "impropriety of the contract renders it null."

DIES IN WINNIPEG

Robert James Neithercut, 78, died in Winnipeg yesterday after a long illness. Born in Peterborough, Mr. Neithercut went west in 1889. Survivors include a son, J. C. Neithercut of Oshawa, and two sisters, Mrs. M. R. Springer, Belleville, and Mrs. H. Donnelly, Toronto.

GEORGE WHITE IMPROVES

Many friends in Hastings and Peterborough counties of George S. White, Madoc lawyer and Conservative candidate for Hastings-Peterborough riding will be pleased to know he is improving after an operation on his elbow.

CAR TESTS RAILS

A Sperry car at the C.P.R. station Tuesday afternoon and evening attracted considerable attention. It is gasoline powered, and is equipped with apparatus for testing rails for any defects such as cracks or breaks. It remained here over night and continued on its periodic way to Toronto this morning.

U. OF T. STUDENTS AT C.G.E.

Members of the graduating class of the faulty of engineering of the University of Toronto were visitors to the Canadian General Electric Company's plant yesterday. The student party of sixty-three was conducted by Professor Zimmer, and included four lecturers. They arrived in the morning, and spent the day in the factory with luncheon and dinner at the Kawartha Club.

TWO SUSPECTS ARRESTED

Joseph and Thomas Sopha of Marmora township were arrested Monday by Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond of Madoc and Chief Percy Gray of Marmora on charges of breaking and entering the home of Russell Peever, Marmora township, and also with stealing a brown and white bull dog. The two suspects were caught near Kemptville by the officers who had trailed them into that district.

OFFICE ENTERED

The office of McCarthy and Johnston in East City was broken into during Monday night by forcing the back door. However, there was no evidence of anything being stolen by the invaders.

FINE IS PAID

On a plea of guilty to driving a motor vehicle without the necessary license Raymond St. Louis was fined $10 and 75 cents costs by Magistrate Gee in police court this morning.

ANOTHER OFFICER ILL

The flu epidemic continues to claim its victims among members of the police department. Although those first hit by the current scourge have returned to duty, Constable Leo. Murphy is now confined to his home through illness.

A GOOD RECORD

The accident near Whittington's service station on Sunday was the first that Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure has had to investigate on his section of Highway 28 since before Christmas. A stretch of nearly three months of winter driving without a major mishap must be somewhat of a record on Ontario highways.

A NEW BUILDING

Apparently well authenicated reports have it that Charlotte street will soon have a new business establishment added to its growing list. The story is that the buildings east of the Hotel Champlain are to be razed and in their place will be erected a modern grocery store to be occupied by the A. and P. company while upstairs there will be a block of thirty bedrooms for the hotel.

GETS A BREAK

The breaks in police court do not always go against the prisoner. A local man found that out this morning when after having had repeated adjournments in a drunk charge, he asked for another one today and was informed that the police did not propose to enter any evidence against him. "He has been working steadily and has not been drinking since," Chief Newhall stated, "and we are willing to give him a chance." Magistrate Gee dismissed the case. "Do not go out and celebrate your getting off," he advised the accused.

T.B. Test For Pupils Of High Schools

A health campaign that will have far reaching benefits not only from the standpoint of human values but economically will be launched this month by the local Board of Health, with the tuberculin testing of pupils in both high schools of the city.

The service is absolutely free and the officials require only the approval of the parents for the work to make headway. It is beyond doubt the most praiseworthy and beneficial health venture inaugurated within the city since health work began.

For the past few years the local Board of Health has made a determined effort to check the spread of tuberculosis in the city. Segregation of active cases, examination of contacts, and supervision of suspected and quiescent cases have been the principal activities. Naturally the prevention of tuberculosis is of the utmost importance. Discovery of the disease in its early stages, prior to the development of symptoms, is essential in the practice of preventive measures.

It is the intention of the Board to conduct a clinic for the tuberculin testing of the pupils in the secondary schools. Arrangements have already been made for each pupil who shows a positive reaction to the test to receive x-ray of the lungs, and no charge whatever is made for this work.

Assent of Parents

No child will be tested or x-rayed without the written consent of the parent or guardian, and each pupil in the Collegiate and at St. Peter's High School will receive a letter form which the parent will sign if they wish the child tested.

The test is positively harmless and hurts no more than a mosquito bite. If it turns out to be positive then the person has tuberculosis germs in the body.

A positive test is much like a red light in that it is not dangerous in itself but warns that one must look for danger. That is to say, a person who shows a positive reaction to the test, need not have tuberculosis but merely may have germs in the body because of contact with a person who is afflicted. A positive test does mean that the person should be examined by a doctor and have the chest x-rayed. If a person on being x-rayed is found to be free of the disease two things are done to prevent the person contracting serious tuberculosis. The first is that he must be given a chance to build good health and the second it must be made certain that he is no longer in contact with some one who has tuberculosis.

Pupils in high schools are at the dangerous age when tuberculosis strikes hardest.

Symptoms Revealed.

A child with a positive tuberculin test gives a clue to the source of the tuberculosis germs. By following that clue officials often find persons who do not know they have the disease. They may not complain of being sick. Some admit that they save colds often, or a cigarette cough, or bronchitis. Others complain only of a tired feeling, poor appetite or just a hangover from the flu, when they really have tuberculosis. Some have a pain in the chest when they take a deep breath and some spit blood. These symptoms should put people on their guard as they may be caused by tuberculosis.

Each week tuberculosis kills 130 people in Canada, and for each person who dies there are at least nine others who are ill.

Any person with these symptoms noted above who cannot afford to have an examination by the family doctor should consult the Medical Officer of Health of the tuberculosis association.

Engaged By Concert Association For Next Season

Four concerts will be presented by the Peterborough Canadian Concert Association during the season 1939-1940. The galaxy of concert stars selected for this new series includes Argentinita (UPPER RIGHT) and her Spanish Dance Ensemble; Mischa Levitski (UPPER LEFT), "a pianist endowed with the priceless gifts of the gods"; Hertha Glatz (LOWER LEFT), distinguished young Viennese contralto, formerly of the Salzburg but now of the Chicago Opera Co.; and Raya Garbousova (LOWER RIGHT), one of the greatest of living 'cellists. Each of these artists stands pre-eminent in his or her chosen field, in the world's important musical centres and their engagement for next season is made possible through the continued and successful growth of the Canadian Concert Association as a whole in which the success of the Peterborough Association has played an important part.

$25 Reward Posted For Desperado Who Robbed Boy 10

Brantford, Ont., March 15 (CP)

A REWARD of $25 was offered today for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the thug who slugged 10-year-old Donald Haye on the street Saturday night and stole the boy's earnings from sale of newspapers.

Donald, who was left unconscious on the street near his home, suffered a slight head concussion. He was reported to be recovering today.

Seek To Unite Presbyteries In This District

Amalgamation of the two Presbyteries of Peterborough and Lindsay was suggested in a letter read at the quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church held in St. Paul's church this week. The letter from the Commissioner on Synod boundaries was laid over pending further investigation and the question will get attention at a joint meeting of the two Presbyteries at Omemee on March 21st.

Rev. Dr. Stuart C. Parker of Toronto was nominated as Moderator of the General Assembly, which meets in Midland next June and Rev. S. B. Jamieson of Brighton was nominated Moderator of the Synod of Kingston and Toronto. This synod meets in Toronto in May.

An application from Mr. Jamieson from the active ministry was approved at the meeting and his nomination as Moderator came as a fitting honor to one who has given forty years of intensive and successful service as a Minister of God.

Commissioners appointed to the General Assembly are Rev. G. R. Duncan of Warkworth and Rev. G. Graham of Colborne, with the lay appointees being J. McLean of Colborne and R. Thompson of Port Hope.

The Home Mission committee with Rev. Dr. A. T Barr of St. Paul's, Peterborough, as chairman, asked for approval of grants of $200 to Bowmanville and $400 to Lakefield. He also asked for the usual weekly grants to the mission fields of Brighton and Buckhorn.

The Presbytery approved of the appointment of Russel Gordon, student at Knox College to the Buckhorn mission field.

Ketchecum Club Organized 38 Years Ago

The Ketchecum Hunt Club of which the late W. G. Morrow was captain for many years was organized in 1901 by a group of Peterborough professional and business men who had a common interest in hunting and outdoor life.

Many of the originals are dead, but their memberships devolved to others. Harry Winch was the first Captain of the Club who had selected as their headquarters Lake Catchecoma beyond Cochrane's on the road from Buckhorn to Gooderham. For some years the members sheltered themselves under canvas with a series of tents, including cookhouse and dining tent; but as they became established they invested in a commodious lodge which can be glimpsed across the lake from Cochrane's.

When travel was by teams over rough roads, the trip from Peterborough required a long day, and it was usually after nightfall the advance party reached the familiar and heartening camp site. Nowadays the members motor up in about an hour and a half of motoring at moderate speed.

E. A. Peck, K.C., was appointed the first secretary of the club, and the members have retained his services in that capacity year after year up to the present. Others of the charter members were: Judge R. M. Dennistoun of the Appellate Court of Manitoba, a former law partner of Mr. Peck and F. D. Kerr, K.C., John J. Lundy, J. D. Collins, William Irwin, R. A. (Bertie) Morrow, Peter Campbell, Harry LeBrun, Robert G. Kingan, T. E. Bradburn, Wm. H. Hill, Robert Fair, G. W. Hatton, K.C., A. L. Davis and Hazen Ritchie. That was nearly the complete list.

In the following year, 1902, the membership was increased by the admission of W. G. Morrow, T. H. G. Denne, Robert Hicks, T. F. Matthews, John Crane, Vincent Eastwood and Robert Stuart of Chicago. Since then the members have come and gone, but the Club retains its vitality and zest for the great outdoors and the scenery of the Catchecoma country.

The present members of the Club are: Mr. Peck, Mr. Kingan, Mr. Eastwood, Harold A. Morrow, Webber Turner, W. J. Thompson, W. H. Bradburn, Dr. A. W. McPherson, Chris Hughes, Mayor Hamilton, W. C Ackerman, R. L. Dobbin, A. L. Killaly, Dr. H. M. Yelland, T. F. Matthews of Toronto, and George A. Macdonald of Chicago.

The late W. G. Morrow succeeded Harry Winch as captain of the Hunt Club and retained that position until his death. The property the club acquired on Lake Catchecoma, including the site of the lodge and two adjoining points, was bought from the Ontario Government years ago for five dollars.

One of the original members was the late Alex. Elliott.

Surviving active members of the club from the incentive years of 1901-02 are E. A. Peck, V. Eastwood, T. F. Matthews, V. Eastwood, R. G. Kingan and T. H. G. Denne. Two others living, whose claims were assigned, are Judge Dennistoun and Robert Hicks.

Membership Campaign Planned By Children's Aid Society

The suggestion that a membership campaign be started immediately was made at Tuesday's meeting of the Children's Aid Society by Rev. R. T. F. Brain, and endorsed by Alderman Dutton after Dr. A. T. Barr, president of the Society, had announced a present membership of sixty-eight. Alderman Dutton stated that in his opinion the small membership was largely due to lack of publicity. "I certainly think we should do something to familiarise the public with our desire to solicit their active co-operation," he said. A committee to arrange such a campaign was appointed, with Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt as chairman, assisted by Rev. Brain, Dr. P. J. Kelly and R. L. Dobbin.

Reporting for the life membership committee, Dr Kelly outlined a plan for membership, and after some discussion it was decided to give a life membership for fifty dollars; a sustaining membership for ten dollars, and an annual membership for one dollar.

A report submitted by R. L. Dobbin in connection with sick leave by members of the staff stated that up to fourteen days' absence on account of sickness in any one calendar year be paid for on the recommendation of the superintendent. After this period a report must be made to the board, which would then take such action as it deemed best.

Students To Aid.

Approval of a student coming from the Department of Social Science, University of Toronto, to work in co-operation with Miss Rachael Young, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, was registered by the board members. Much credit is reflected on the local society and its superintendent by this action, as such students are allowed to go only to a society where it is known that the principles as taught by the Social Science Department would be carried out.

The annual meeting of the society is to be held in the Public Library on Wednesday, April 26. The motion was made by Alderman W. Stocker that Mr. E. Humpage be appointed as auditor at the same salary as last year. A committee to make the necessary arrangements for the meeting was appointed, with Alderman Dutton as chairman, Miss M. Morrison and Dr. A. T. Barr.

A total expenditure of $417.67 for mileage, which includes the amount allowed by the department grant, was announced. Total mileage travelled in the interests of the society since February 14, 1938, amounted to 8,197 miles.

A motion that the mileage allowance of three hundred dollars be increased this year to four hundred was passed on the suggestion of Rev. Zufelt. Following the Shelter report by Mrs. E. F. Lawrence it was decided to purchase a rug for the hall of the Shelter. All members were in agreement with the suggestion that the time of meetings be changed to the hour of four o'clock p.m. instead of three p.m.

Work of the Month.

The superintendent's report revealed that 113 office interviews had been made during the month of February; 131 visits; 135 telephone calls; 160 letters had been sent out, and 3 addresses given. "Miss McCabe, the Field Supervisor, has made her final visit to our society for the year 1938-1939," Miss Young said. "I do not want to be discouraging, but Miss McCabe cannot help but realize that much work must be left undone with the size of the present staff. In fact she has intimated this several times. Lest you be too hopeful that our grading be increased, this factor will certainly enter, in no small degree, in the department's decision."

The Matron's report showed that there were 11 children in the Shelter February first; 2 children admitted during February; 2 children placed out in February; 11 children in Shelter March 1; 1 court attendance; 3 children made permanent wards; 4 doctors' examinations; 1 having dental work done. The Pollyanna Class of St. James' Sunday school gave free passage to the girls and boys for a play; donations were as follows: 1 carton corn flakes, P. Gosselin; cake and sandwiches, Westclox; cake and sandwiches, Pollyanna Class St. James' S.S.; used linen, Y.M.C.A.

Shelter accounts for February were as follows: Walker's Bread, $11.46; Edwards' Meat Market, $12.11; Mrs. Johnston, eggs, $5.50; Cleanrite Company, 60 cents; E. F. Mason, $20.71; Merritt's Hygiene, $32.60; F. W. Woolworth Company, $1.50; Richard Hall Company, $4.37; C.D.S. $1.20; Grafton and Company, $2.69; Can. Nat. Inst. Blind, $3.80; H. Chown, hardware, 40 cents; Scarfe Co., $12.36; H. R. Scott, Ltd., 80 cents; Peterboro Examiner, 54 cents; Elliott Stationery Co., $3.51; S. J. Black, $1.00; Telephone, $9.92; E. L. Payne, $2.25; Dr. Clark, $3.00; Dr. R. F. Knott, $5.00 Total $135.21.

Theft Charge Is Dismissed

A charge against William Dwyer of stealing a windbreaker, suitcase and lunch box from Ernest and Garnet Davey was dismissed before Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning when the crown offered no evidence.

When the case was called Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., explained that Dwyer was related to the complainants and had been living at their home for some time. He had borrowed the articles he was accused of stealing and had gone to Trenton to work and had not returned the windbreaker, lunch box or suitcase. If this property were turned over now to the complainants he said the crown would offer no evidence.

Dwyer agreed to handing over the articles, explaining that he had been working in Trenton for some time and had been using them.

"Were you not before me one time in Haliburton?" asked Magistrate Gee.

Dwyer admitted that such was the case.

"You had better be careful," the magistrate warned. "The police court is no place to be meeting people."

The case was dismissed and after the complainant had pointed out that the windbreaker had been practically worn out. Dwyer was ordered by the court to replace it within a week.

INOCULATION STARTS.

Inoculation of pupils against scarlet fever will be started in the Separate Schools on Thursday morning. The work will also be done on any children of pre-school age by Dr. Fraser, Medical Officer of Health.

Club Bag Is Given Constable Rogers

Members of the police department said farewell Tuesday night to Constable John A. Rogers who completes his service with the local force this evening at 6 o'clock and reports to the headquarters of the Ontario Provincial Police on Thursday morning.

Practically all the members of the department assembled in the police court Tuesday night and showed their appreciation of the work of Constable Rogers and of his association with them by presenting him with a club bag, the presentation being made on behalf of the force by Constable John Stevenson. Chief Constable Newhall wished Constable Rogers every success in his new duties as a member of the provincial police and Provincial Constable David Silvester on behalf of that body welcomed the new member of the provincial force.

Constable Rogers acknowledged the gift in a neat speech in which he referred to his associations with the local department during the past two years.

HOLIDAYS ALREADY.

Carl Duffus and George Cook took the day off to-day and hopped the train for Bethany for a day's skiing in the hills. They took a lunch with them and intend to arrive on the train to-night. This is just another day off Carl's summer holidays, but he has taken so many days off, he has lost count, and hopes the boss does not keep an accurate check of his many holidays.

Charlie McCarthy, Bergen's Dummy, Stolen, Taken From Hotel Room While Owner Out

NEW YORK, March 15 (AP) — Charlie McCarthy has been kidnapped.

The most famous piece of wood in the country is definitely missing, on the word of no less than Edgar Bergen, the famous dummy's creator and "voice."

Authorities of the East-51st Street police station—convinced it was a gag on someone's part—were considering a roundup of press agents.

Detectives said Charlie, star dummy of screen and radio, was last seen in the company of Frank Brown, a diminutive Negro bellhop at the Belmont Plaza Hotel.

Brown was found trussed up with towels at 37th Street and 11th Avenue last night. He told police two men registered at the hotel and told him to go to the 17th floor of the nearby Waldorf-Astoria and pick up a large brown case.

Ethel Mulhern, a desk clerk at the Waldorf, where the ventriloquist was staying, said a man who telephoned and said he was "Mr. Bergen," told her to go into his suite, get the case containing McCarthy, and give it to the bellhop.

When he left the hotel with the case, Brown told detectives two men pushed him into a taxicab, bound him and later threw him out and drove off with Charlie.

Bergen, questioned by Detectives James McGowan and Frank Crimmins, said he had not discovered Charlie was gone until he returned to the hotel after attending a Broadway show with friends.

The detectives said the ventriloquist appeared upset and remarked the kidnapping is the kind of publicity I don't want."

Bergen said Charlie was insured for $1,500 and that he might be forced to cancel his Sunday evening broadcast if he is not returned. Charlie has no brothers.

Police, uncertain just what sort of a dragnet to throw out to snare a missing dummy, said that so far no ransom demands had been received—not even from W. C. Fields.

February Customs Revenue Declines

OTTAWA, March 15 — (CP). — Customs and excise revenue in February was $19,787,951, a decrease of $1,869,718 from the figure for February, 1938, the national revenue department announced today. Collections for the 11 months ended February 28 were $265,232,917, a drop of $31,957,247 from collections in the same period a year ago.

Large crowds are attending ice hockey games in Moscow, Russia.

FINED FOR SPEEDING

There was an aftermath of Sunday's accident on Highway No, 28 in police court to-day when Leo Murphy, taxi driver of Kirkland Lake entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of speeding and was fined $5 and $3 costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee. The information was laid by Provincial Traffic Officer Lloyd A. McClure and it was stated that Murphy had been travelling at the rate of 58 miles an hour.

Trustee Charges Immoral Books Circulated By Toronto Library

TORONTO, March 15.—Charges that immoral books were being circulated by the Toronto Public Library were made by Trustee W. J. Daly last night when the Separate School Board was discussing the appointment of a successor to the late Judge W. T. J. Lee, who was its representative on the Library Board until his death.

"What is being done to clean up the mess of immoral books in the libraries?" Mr. Daly demanded. "I have to censor every book which my children bring in from the public library and let me tell you many of them go right back."

The subject arose when Mr. Justice McTague was mentioned as the appointee. Mr. Daly stated he thought that while he had every respect for Mr. Justice McTague, a layman's mind might be better than a legal mind to decide on the standard of books. The board, however, referred the matter of the appointment back to the executive.

Inquest Is Ordered Into Woman's Death

Coroner Dr. H. N. Young has ordered an inquest into the death of Mrs. Hazel M. Ferguson, 293 Bethune street, widow of the late Sydney Ferguson who died on the operating table at Nicholls Hospital on Monday during the course of an operation for goitre.

A jury was empanelled this morning and the inquest was set for 4 o'clock this afternoon in the police court. Eight witnesses, including four medical men will be heard.

It is understood that Mrs. Ferguson suddenly collapsed while in the operating room and died in a short time.

Boy Appears For His Father

Like Banquo's ghost, that raid on a George Street gaming house nearly two months ago keeps bobbing up again in police court, largely through the fact that one of the found-ups has ever since the round-up been asking and receiving adjournments

This morning, after a month's delay, his case was called again before Magistrate Gee and the accused's young son was present on behalf of his father, whom he said was ill. The boy asked for another month's adjournment, stating that he thought by that time the money for the fine could be raised.

Chief Newhall stated that the man once had a prosperous business but the gambling craze had got the better of him, and he was now down and out.

Remarking that the fine was only $10 and that the accused could surely raise that amount from some of his friends, Magistrate Gee adjourned the case for a week, declaring that it would have to go on then.

"Friends are not very plentiful when you want to borrow money," the boy pointed out.

Campbellford Plans Large Delegation

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 15.—At least fifteen delegates from here will attend the Lenten Rally which is being held in Lakefield next Monday, it was announced at the meeting of the A.Y.P.A. held here on Monday. It was decided during the short business meeting which followed the devotional period that the play, "Aunt Susan Goes to Town," which members are rehearsing, would be presented immediately after the Easter holiday.

Earl Wood, the president, presided for the meeting at the conclusion of which a brief period of games was enjoyed.

Y.P.S. Meets

Members of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. were urged to attend the quilting which is being held at the home of Mrs. Irvie B. Hutcheon on Thursday and Friday of this week. The invitation to attend a joint meeting as guests of St. John's Y.P.U. was accepted and Miss Dorothy Reynolds, the literary convenor was appointed to arrange the program for the next meeting.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

BEING A shadow is sometimes lots of fun. At any rate, Knarf and Hanid the shadows of the two children who lived in th ewhite house at the foot of the hill, had a favorite game which no one but a shadow can play.

It was called "Little People."

This is how the two shadow children played it. First they would make themselves small—very small, no bigger than the end of a little pencil or the head of a clothes-pin. shadows can make themselves almost any size they please. Just watch your own shadow sometime and you will see how many times a day it changes its size.

Hiding game.

Then, after making themselves small, Knarf would say to Hanid: "Run and hide! I'll count ten." He would hide his head and begin counting while Hanid would run as swiftly as her tiny legs would carry her.

Now when you are your regular size, it is no trouble whatever looking for someone hiding in a room. But when you are tiny it is a different matter altogether. Everything looks changed. The carpet on the floor looks like a great patch of colored grasses in a huge meadow which stretches on and on as far as the eye can see. The legs of the chairs and the table are like enormous trunks of trees. A cushion is like a hill, a little standing lamp is like a lamp-post and the ceiling is so high overhead that it might be the sky.

Hanid Was First.

One day while Knarf and Hanid were playing their game of "Little People" Hanid ran off first and hid herself. Then Knarf finished counting and ran after her. He climbed on top of a playing block which had fallen from the table. He gazed all around the carpet.

"No," he sad to himself "she's not hiding in the carpet."

Then he climbed the leg of the table. It was very smooth and he slid down several times but finaly he reached the top. It was covered with glass and looked like the pond when it is frozen over. She wasn't there either. But at the other side of the table, near the edge was something which looked at first like a giant box. It was long and also wide. The top was blue and the bottom was blue and one of the sides was blue. But the other three sides were white. He slid over to it as swiftly as he could without falling.

Sides in Layers

And now he saw that the white sides were made up of layers like white sheets laid one on top of the other. They were pressed pretty tightly together but finally he managed to crawl between two of them. And there he found his sister, Hanid lying on a line of words. He read them. They said: "Little Bo-Peep has lost her sheep." And on the other side was a picture of a little girl standing on a grassy hilltop, looking for her sheep.

Hanid laughed when Knarf found her.

"I never thought you'd find me here in this book!" she said.

While There Are Exceptions To The Rule, It Is Always Safer To Keep Within An Equal Financial Bracket If You Want To Avoid Unpleasantness

ISN'T it just terrible what an old marplot Cupid is? They call him the little blind god. They had better call him Old Man Trouble because it looks like he just can't let any love affair run along smoothly and happily. He is just bound to throw a money-wrench in the works.

Now here is the case of a young man of fine character. College bred. Comes of good family. Has a promising future with the big firm with which he works. Makes enough to support a wife in comfort who has been brought up in his financial brackets.

But here is where the rub comes in. He is madly in love with the sweetest girl in the world and, alas, her father is a millionaire. She wants to marry him and her family approve, but he feels he cannot ask her to give up the luxuries to which she has been accustomed. Neither is he willing to give up his career and his independence to become a rich wife's pet poodle and a hanger-on of her father. He wants to know if there is any way to adjust this situation in fairness to both parties.

I am afraid not. It would take a miracle-worker to iron out the wrinkles that mar the romance of Johnny Poorman and Gladys Millionbucks.

King Cophetua may marry the beggar maid and lift her to his high estate and all is well. But just reverse the process and let the heiress marry the errand boy and there is grief a-plenty for both of them. Many poor girls have married from rags to riches and been happy and snooty in their new station in life. But nothing short of the grace of God can make the poor husband of a rich wife look and feel like anything but a parasite, and from being regarded as such.

This is the law of Nature that makes man the provider. When he relinquishes this role and lets his wife support him, no matter how generous she is and how able she is to do it, it puts a blight upon their relationship as husband and wife. The man who has to ask his wife for cigarette money never feels toward her the same way as the man who gives his wife candy money feels toward her. It makes a lot of difference which one is on the receiving end in matrimony.

But because a girl is rich does not keep her from being good-looking, clever, sweet and desirable. Nor does it keep a man from falling in love with her. Nor does it prevent her from perceiving in some impecunious lad all of the fine qualities that she wants in a husband. Nor does it save them from trying to work out some formula by which they can make the oil of riches and the water of self-respect mix.

And that is where Old Man Trouble gets in his work. For here is a boy who is sturdy and strong and able to stand on his own feet, whose self-respect and ambition make him want to keep on with the work for which he has fitted himself. He loathes the thought of being one of the men whose rich fathers-in-law make jobs for them and pay them salaries they do not earn and who are nothing but glorified office boys.

But how can the poor man expect the rich girl to live in the only style in which he can afford to support her? What sense would there be in her cooking and scrubbing when she has the money to pay a retinue of servants? How could he expect her to walk when she had a limousine in the garage? How could he even refuse her when she wanted him to drop his occupation and go and play with her when they had money to burn?

The answer is: He can't. Because when his wife is so generous to him the only way he can repay her is to do what she wants him to do. But in the end that makes neither one of them happy, for always in the back of the man's head is the dream of his ambitions that were smothered in money, and a little feeling on the wife's part that she has bought her man, which isn't fair nor just, but love never is. No doubt there are many exceptions to the rule that the marriage of a poor boy and a rich girl is seldom successful but no one will deny that it is a dangerous experiment.

* * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Just before my wife and I were married she informed me that she had indulged in an illicit love affair. Nothing could have wounded me more deeply, for all of my life I had cherished the thought of marrying a pure and virtuous girl. I couldn't conceal my disappointment and disillusionment, but I loved her so much that I couldn't think of giving her up. I wouldn't even give her up now for anything in the world, but still there remains that persistent, gnawing, heart-rending thought that she has been the plaything of some man, and this terrible sickening feeling will not let me go. There are nights I cannot sleep for brooding over it. When I meet a man with whom I know she has gone I wonder if it was he and I am filled with hate. This thought is eating out my strength like a disease and I fear it will kill me. Is there any way I can heal my hurt? Why, oh, why, did she tell me?

AN UNHAPPY HUSBAND.

ANSWER:

Perhaps your wife told you of her indiscretions from a sense of honesty and with the idea that she would give you a chance to withdraw from your engagement if you did not want to marry a girl whose skirts were not clean. Perhaps she subscribes to the new school of thought among women, which thinks no more of a girl casting her cap over the windmill than she does of throwing away her last Summer's hat, and she expected you to put no more stress on her escapades than she did. Or perhaps her conscience troubled her and she sought to ease its burden by laying part of the load on your shoulders.

One can only guess at why a woman tells her future husband of the things that are bound to wreck his faith in her, and give him something to torture himself with in futile jealousy if he loves her, and which furnishes him with a bludgeon with which to beat down her self-respect every time they quarrel. Such secrets should be buried beyond resurrection in a woman's soul.

Small Attendance At W.A. Meeting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, March 15—The attendance was small at the regular meeting of Centenary United Church W. A. which was held in the church. Road conditions were responsible for the small attendance, which however did not dampen the spirits of those attending, when following a brief business session, an enjoyable programme was presented.

During the business period the treasurer Miss Hilda Arthur reported expenditures of $4.28 for quilt materials and other incidentals, and the quilt committee announced one quilt completed and ready for sale.

The programme was arranged and presided over by the convenor, Mrs. Delbert Sherwin.

Miss Luella Timlin reading, "The Birth of St. Patrick," and the president Mrs. N. Lean, contributing a poem "The Shamrock," made appropriate reference to the patron saint of the month.

Little Misses Lois and Blanche Arthur sang sweetly, "God is Love;" Miss Emmma Sherwin read a story, "The Wonder House"; Mrs. M. Brown read "The Reason", and Miss Hilda Arthur effectively described the place of the Bible in every day life "A Good Rule", a poem read by Mrs. Brown, and a contest, all about the things our grand-mothers missed, arranged by the convenor, concluded the programme period.

A social half hour followed while afternoon tea was enjoyed.

LOOKING BACK ON THIS DATE

Sixty years ago today Canada entered upon a new fiscal era. When the customs houses of the then sparsely populated and yet geographically disunited Canada opened for business on the morning of March 15, 1879, it was to administer a new tariff introduced into the House of Commons the previous afternoon by Sir Leonard Tilley, the National Policy tariff.

Sir John Macdonald, always a little inclined to the dramatic, took advantage of that characteristic, because it was just a year and a day since, in that very same House of Commons, the Liberal majority had voted down his proposition that the time had arrived for the introduction into Canada of a national policy to tariff and administration which should bring prosperity to the country.

In his budget speech on March 14 Sir Leonard Tilley had reviewed the campaign in which John A., Charles Tupper and others had for three years urged the adoption of a protective tariff. It was on March 14, 1878, that John A. had, for a second time, asked the House to change its policy; and it was on March 15, 1879, that the new tariff went into force, the electors having, on Sept. 21, 1878, endorsed the policy.

A well preserved copy of that N. P. tariff, covering some 26 pages of dutiable goods and seven of free goods, includes many items not popularly heard of in these days when women's clothing is reduced to a minimum and the old decorations of the "parlor" have been discarded. For example, under "cottons" appeared such forgotten items as woven regattas and galateas, cotton prunello, gambroons, cottonades, cotton huckaback, mulls, tarlatans, crinoline, granadine, mechlin, stelltins (plain or beetled) chanans, wigans and antimacassars. The woollen schedule contained many names now seldom used, such as baratheas, areens, paramattas, henriettas, debeiges, delaines, rape, woollen bareges, several kinds of wincys, balmoral crepes, Persian and Grecian sedan cords—all names then well known to the customer, but now used only, if at all, by the trade.

A host of articles which used to be considered necessary for the "sitting room", or the more elaborate "drawing room" are included in the dutiable lists, most of them would not be recognized now save by old-timers.

Sixty years have passed; the old N.P. has grown into a complicated system of taxation, at which both John A. and Sir Leonard Tilley would have sat aghast, and the cry is still for more and more taxation. Perhaps 1879 was in the "good old days" after all!

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 16

THE LUNAR transits for this day point to some rather drastic activities which may have peculiar or unfathomable phases. Deep undercurrents seem to be moving affairs in rather unusual channels, with possibly mystical, metaphysical or other singular influences at work behind the scenes. A keen alertness to these may turn the trends into progressive culminations

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves at the brink of rather peculiar or dramatic crises, in which hidden, occult or psychological factors call for great precaution and sagacity. Some sort of drastic action may be needed, but in all exercise restraint.

A child born on this day may have a peculiar endowment, with leanings to the unusual, metaphysical or revolutionary, which may on occasion incite it to drastic activity.

TAKE THESE PRECAUTIONS

When Contagious Colds and Epidemic Winter Ailments are Menacing You

DIRECTLY you begin feeling "groggy" with depressive pains and aches, or if you feel the first symptoms of an epidemic cold, follow the doctors' oft-repeated advice and go to bed. Meanwhile, you can check further advance of the malady and hasten complete recovery by using mustard either as a poultice or as a mustard bath.

The advantage of mustard is its stimulating action and the fact that it is an outward application. It does not interfere with nerves or digestion nor increase depression. By inducing active circulation it brings you relief.

MOTHER OF EIGHT CHILDREN RELIED ON MUSTARD TO OFFSET CHILLS AND WINTER ILLS

"I have raised four boys and four girls," says Mrs. E. Wilkins of Ottawa, "and mustard has been my standby whenever there were colds, inflammation and especially bronchial conditions. Furthermore, mustard poultices never fail to relieve my husband's lumbago pains."

Thousands of people, your own neighbours amongst them, use mustard for relieving common colds, chills, bronchitis, sore throat, catarrhal conditions and other contagious Winter complaints. For these everyday aches and pains, mustard is indeed your reliable home treatment. But when symptoms or pain are unusually severe, be sure to get in touch with your physician at once.

SEND FOR OUR FREE BOOKLET ON MEDICINAL USES OF MUSTARD

Salmon Casserole

JESSIE READ'S OWN RECIPE FOR LENT

Youngsters love it!

AN EXCITING NEW IDEA!

● Jessie Read created this lovely, easy-to-make Salmon Casserole. It's something entirely new. It's economical, practical and delicious!

Free! at your Grocers

The recipe awaits you on the Nestlé's Display at your Grocer's. That's the only place to get it —it has never appeared in a cook-book or newspaper. That's how new it is!

... and no wonder they do! It looks gorgeous and it tastes even better. It's wholesome, too—with milk and eggs and salmon and bread! Make it a feature for Lenten meals!

● Once you have a can of Nestlé's Evaporated Milk in the house you'll find dozens of uses for it. Nestlé's, you know, is just pure cow's milk concentrated by the removal of nearly two-thirds of the normal water content. Nestlé's is rich in butter-fat — it's creamy and smooth and ideal for cooking. It's homogenized, sterilized — and irradiated to increase the valuable Vitamin "D" content.

Mrs. A. Wilson Is Mission Circle Hostess

Mrs. A. Wilson, Westcott street, was hostess last night to the girls of the Jean Wagar Mission Circle, who gathered in goodly number for their monthly meeting.

With the president, Effie Rowe, in the chair, the program opened with brief devotions and the business session, which included the reports from treasurer and secretary. Plans were made for a special Easter meeting, and the supply secretary brought in the requirements of the bale, which were promised by the various members.

"Learning to live together" was the theme for study under the capable leadership of Zetta Wood, who introduced the chapter by means of a splendid poster and a chalk talk. Using the question and answer method, the leader assisted by Marjorie Sedore, Jean Hammond, Pearl Butler, Eleanor Fife, Gladys Rutherford and Connie Wagar pointed out to what a marked degree the people of Canada are divided into antagonistic groups, discussed our personal prejudices and their cure. the work of the United church in this respect and closed with a sincere determination to understand other nationalities and to live on friendly terms with them. An appropriate prayer closed the very enlightening study period.

As temperance secretary, Gladys Langton then brought a real plea for the cause, as well as some startling information regarding the extent of the liquor traffic.

The closing worship service directed by the president was an impressive climax to the program and included the Scripture story of the Good Samaritan by Jennie Cuffe, hymn and benediction repeated in unison.

A jolly social time followed when refreshments were served by the committee in charge. Vera Leggett, Dorothy Drysdale and May Welch. The appreciation of the members was expressed by Gladys Langton to the hostess and her assistants for their gracious hospitality.

"Dorothy Dix" Question Box Is Meeting Highlight

Eighty-five young people attended the weekly George Street United Church Y.P.U. meeting on Tuesday evening. The program was presented by the Missions group with the group leader, Miss Dorothy Smith, in the chair. A short sing-song opened the meeting, and the chairman gave the call to worship. The Scripture was read by Miss Lottie Leggett, and a fitting poem was read by Miss Leona Harris. Prayer was led by Miss Genevieve Armstrong. An interesting story in connection with the theme of "service" was told by Miss Ruth Parnell.

The Dorothy Dix question box was again one of the highlights of the program, with Mr. Harold Rogers as impersonator for the discussion.

Mrs. C. R. Wasson, president, announced that the Y.P.U. would present next Tuesday's meeting in Havelock, where they are to be the guests of the Havelock Y.P.U. A short recreational session led by Miss Loretta McDougall, and the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," brought the meeting to a close.

Murray Street Y.P.U. Are Entertained

Park Street Young People's Society entertained at a jolly St. Patrick's party Tuesday evening for the Murray Street Young People. A highlight of the evening was the debate, "Resolved that early to bed and early to rise makes us healthy, wealthy, and wise," with the Park Street members taking the affirmative. The Murray Street young people won the debate after a lively and amusing discussion on both sides.

Worship services were conducted by the Park Street Union. Taking part were Miss Margaret Batley, who read the scripture, and Mr. Harold Campbell who gave a reading. Mr. Roy McCabe, president, was in the chair. Mr. Stewart Young assisted the president in a program of games.

Green candles and shamrocks decorated the tables from which lunch was served by the social convener, Miss Helen McFarland, assisted by members of the committee. A vote of thanks to their hosts was moved by Mr. Verne Whatley, president of the Murary Street Union.

Rev. J. R. Sutcliffe sang a solo during a sing-song period in which Irish songs were led by Mr. McCabe. God Save the King, and the benediction pronounced by Rev. C. C. Boyter brought the evening to a close.

We Noticed

....After glancing about through the shops, we've discovered a little piece of informatoin that is worthy of passing on—skirts are not as short as they have been predicted, and in many cases are the same length as they were last spring. This news will be read with relief by many, since a too short skirt length is seldom becoming to the average figure.

....Many of the spring suits have backs gathered into a flat hipline, resembling the stylized Norfolk jacket. Others are of the dressmaker variety, buttoning up in front with patch pockets at both waistline and bust.

....Ashes of roses and nigger brown are a good combination of colors for the matron, their soft tones blending perfectly with the mature figure and lending it grace and distinction. Jumper dresses are popular with sleeveless jackets in a contrasting tone.

... The new fashion silhouette is wider hips and accentuated bustlines. It is not a reason for the flat-hipped round-shouldered girl. Paris creates wide pleated and flared skirts to enhance the hip measurements, and women will wear the horizontal stripes they have shunned in other years.

"Canada Program" Feature of W.M.S. Meeting

With Mrs. W. Rose the president, in the chair, St. James' W.M.S. auxiliary presented its March program, taking as the theme, "The Church of the Warm Heart," as suggested in the Missionary Monthly.

Quiet music opened the meeting and the group leader, Mrs. H. F. Doig, recited a poem describing the church toward which the W.M.S. is striving. She also led the worship service which followed with hymns and prayer.

The scripture lesson, read by Mrs. R. B. English, was "The parable of the great surprise," taken from St. Matthew's gospel. Following along the line of the day's text, was the little dialogue well carried out by Eleanor McIlmoyle and Mary Morrison as they told "What makes a Canadian." A delightful solo, "I'm a Pigrim," also fitted in with the "Canada" program, and was sung by Mrs. J. M. Arnold, accompanied by Mrs. Doig.

Mrs. McAdams, the leader of the study group, brought the highlights gleaned from their intensive study of the opening chapters of the book, speaking of "The World in Canada." She told of the author of the book, Rev. John McKay, and gave a word picture of Canada as a land whose people have come from many parts of the world, making their contribution to the life of the nation.

The benediction closed this part of the program.

The business session, led by the president, represents a month of many activities, the first of which was deciding upon the date for W.M.S. Sunday. This will be on April 2nd, with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Craik, as speaker. The music for that day will be in charge of Mrs. A. Davis and Mrs. B. Pitchford, while Mrs. W. K. Sloane will look after decorations. Mrs. English will appoint the ushers and Mrs. Craik and Miss Deyell will give out the Easter envelopes.

The members will sit in a body and shut-in members will be remembered with cards. Plans for "Minister's Night" were discussed and left to a later decision.

Many splendid reports were given by superintendents and secretaries of departments. A list was read for needed supplies by the supply secretary, and an appeal that each group pay in its quota for the bale.

A list of all group leaders with their committees, date of meeting and subject of study was distributed to the leaders. The roll call was responded to by a good representation of members and the meeting closed with prayer and the benediction.

Saint Patrick's Supper Is Colorful Event

St. Patrick's Day colors, the yellow daffodils which decked the tables, and the waitresses in white with shamrock aprons and hats, provided a colorful Irish atmosphere Tuesday night for the St. Patrick's supper which about seventy members of the Ladies' Chapter, Loyal Order of the Moose and their friends attended in the Moose Hall. Mrs. M. James, senior regent, and Mrs. Fred Roberts, recorder, received.

Mrs. J. Glaum was chairman for the occasion, and presented Mr. Norman G. Heyd of Toronto, regional director of the Moose for all Canada, who gave an intersting outline of the benefits derived from belonging to a chapter such as the Loyal Order of the Moose.

An interesting and varied program followed the banquet, with the following artists taking part: Guitar solo, Billy Rayner; recitation, Miss Queenie Hope; two vocal solos, Gladys Mills; tap dancing number, Shirley Garner and Kenneth Simmons; vocal solo, Jimmie Cross; guitar selection, Shirley Garner and Kenneth Simmons.

A vote of thanks to the artists was moved on behalf of the ladies' chapter by Mrs. Glaum, who also expressed appreciation to Mrs. B. Jones, program convener, and to the ladies of the lodge who had contributed to the success of the evening.

Braille editions of seven one-act plays by popular authors have been made in England.

Home and School Association News

Members of May's Home and School Association voted unanimously that a contribution be forwarded to Toronto for a gift to be presented to the retiring president of the Home and School Federation, Mrs. E. Reece, at the Monday night meeting at which the president, Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, presided The meeting opened with the hymn "Blest be the Tie that Binds," and the Lord's Prayer in unison.

During the business period reports were read by the treasurer and secretary and the relief convener, Mrs. Meeks Correspondence with regard to the twentieth Home and School convention to be held on April 10, 11, 12 and 13 in the Royal York Hotel was read, and several questionaires were partly filled in and the remaining questions left in the capable hands of the recording secretary.

The resolution from the Federation of Home and Schools, Toronto, petitioning the government to allow a quota of selected refugees into Canada was unanimously turned down on the grounds that Canada has already enough problems of her own. An executive meeting, to be held at the home of Mrs. W. Shepperd on March 22, was announced.

The meeting was brought to a close with the National Anthem, and delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. Albert Lee, assisted by Mrs. W. Carter and Mrs. R. Leach.

CONFEDERATION SCHOOL

A very delightful musical program was given by pupils of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Searles on Monday evening at a meeting of the Confederation Home and School Association, at which Mrs. T. Monk, president, presided.

The meeting opened with the Home and School creed repeated in unison. Business was held over until after the musical program. Mrs. F. Hopkins, secretary, read her report, and the treasurer's report, given by Mrs. Millard, showed a substantial bank balance. Because the next meeting night falls on Easter Monday, it was decided to hold the meeting one week earlier, on Monday, April 3rd. An election of officers for the next season will take place at this meeting.

Arrangements for a hobby show for the children of the school, to be held on March 31, were discussed. The next afternoon meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. F. Hopkins, 52 St. James street, on Tuesday, March 21, to which all members are cordially invited. The attendance banner was won by Mr. Thexton's room.

The musical program included the following numbers: Piano solo, Gloria Wilson; violin solo, Jack Harris; piano solo, Ethelwin Gibson; orchestra selection; piano solo, Gordon Thexton; violin solo, Joyce Wilson; piano solo, Henry Robinson; piano solo, David Potter; recitation, Mary Pitchford; piano solo, Dorothy Taylor; orchestra selection.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Searles and the children by Mrs. T. Monk and Mr. Potter.

QUEEN ELIZABETH SCHOOL

The March meeting of the Queen Elizabeth Home and School Association was held at the school on Tuesday evening under the leadership of Mrs. A. Brown.

Dr. A. Knott was the guest speaker. His talk on the principles of first aid in the home was highly appreciated, and should prove of practical value to the members.

Following the usual business half hour, Trevor Davies and Stewart Brown gave two musical selections. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

The new association is very grateful to the Queen Alexandra ladies for the cup and saucer shower which was held recently.

Decorative Skill Is Shown By Mrs. Chamberlain

Here are some of the ideas in decoration adopted by Mrs. Chamberlain at one of her political At Homes at No. 10 Downing Street.

Mrs. Chamberlain likes to have flowers in the same colors as the furnishings of her rooms. Dark green glossy camellia leaves arranged in a tall vase struck a new note. They stood against the off-white wall of one of the drawing-rooms.

Lilies of the valley were placed in a low trumpet-shaped crystal vase on a small table. Pastel-toned tulips and daffodils stood in tall tumbler-shayed vases of crystal and white pottery. Their colors blended with the rust and pale green curtains of the drawing-rooms.

Pale apricot blossoms, in the same shade as the window curtains, were massed on the square mahogany table of the little off-white painted dining-room.

On the landing outside the drawing - rooms tawny colored tulips, daffodils and feathery tufts of willow herb were grouped in a low shallow oval bowl which stood on a small mahogany table.

Do You Know?

Boiled potatoes often become watery because they are allowed to remain in water after they are cooked? Test them with a fork, and as soon as they are tender, drain and shake them for a minute over low fire.

The correct way to brush your hair is to part it a lock at a time and brush it up and out from the part? If this is done regularly, it will keep the hair young and shining.

If a cardboard picnic plate is placed under the can of paint when painting around the house, it will catch up the drippings and you will also have a place to put your brush when the paint can is moved from one place to another?

Are You WEAK, PALE?

IF you are weak, pale, thin or have no appetite, you need a tonic to build you up. An excellent tonic to take is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which stimulates the appetite and tends to improve the digestion of food — the natural body-builder. Mrs. Adelaide Mundy, 229 Talbot St., London, Ont., says: "I was very thin and pale. I was so dreadfully weak I could do very little. I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and my appetite improved just wonderfully. I gradually gained weight and strength and felt like my normal self again." Get it from your druggist today.

IS YOUR BABY GETTING A TOOTH?

YOUR BABY must "get a tooth". But he need not get a fever with it—if baby's mother is wise he won't.

Here is what one wise mother, Mrs. Archie Begbie, of Comecon, has to say: "We have not lost one night's rest through teething as I always use my old standby, Baby's Own Tablets. They are worth their weight in gold."

And Mrs. B. A. Sebine, of Galt, Ont., says: "I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby girl since she was three weeks old and, although she cut her teeth rapidly (all four molars at once) she has never yet wakened us at night. I would not be without these tablets."

Give these safe, sweet-tasting tablets at the first sign of teething fever. Easy to take, prompt in action, yet safe. Analyst's certificate in every package.

Also effective in Constipation, Simple Fever, Diarrhoea, Upset Stomach, Colic, Simple Croup and Fretfulness. Get a box today. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Primo Carnera and Ray Impellittiere, two of the biggest fighters the modern ring has seen, clashed at New York four years ago tonight. Former heavyweight champion Carnera pounded the "Imp" severely until the South American giant's manager entered the ring to stop the slaughter, Carnera taking credit for a ninth-round technical knockout. Carnera, after a few more bouts, returned to Italy, a physical wreck.

English Team Victors Over South Africa But Visitors Only Won One Test Match

DURBAN, South Africa, Mar. 15—(CP Cable.)—England's cricket team headed for home to-day, victors over South Africa in one of the most unusual test series on record. The Mother Country won only the third match with the other four encounters ending in stalemates.

Rain and necessity of the visitors to catch a boat for home forced abandonment of the fifth match yesterday and ended the last hope of the Springboks for victory. The match was to have been played to a finish, but after it made a new record of nine days' play, the rival captains and the South African Cricket Association Control Board agreed to call a halt to enable the English players to make boat connections at Cape Town.

Far behind after the first innings, England was conceded little chance of avoiding a draw in the series but a mammoth score of 654 runs for five wickets left only 42 runs to be made for the invaders to carry off a two-match margin.

South Africa piled up 530 runs in their first innings in the game which started March 3 against 316 for England, but the Springbroks' total of 481 in their second attempt was overshadowed by the world's record count amassed by the series winners. Highest mark ever previously made in a fourth innings, was 572 by New South Wales against South Australia at Sydney in 1908.

Aggregate runs for the match of 1,981 was also a new world's record, topping the total of 1,929 compiled by New South Wales and Australia at Sydney in 1926. Best previous test match aggregate was 1,815 made by England and West Indies at Kingston, Jamaica, in 1930.

Tigers Shaping Up

(By The Associated Press)

LAKELAND, Fla. — Manager Del Baker has been receiving compliments from all observers on the way he's getting Detroit Tigers into condition, but some of those from his players are a trifle left-handed after one of the long, hard workouts, Boots Poffenberger remarked, "I'm glad they don't have arc lights in this park." And Vern Kennedy added, "it gets kind of monotonous after the first 10 hours."

Basketball is becoming popular in rural districts of Russia.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Morris O'Neill of the champion Hudson team in the Automobile League, set the pace for five other 700 men in last night's league bowling. His count was 774 (303); Cliff Curtis of the Chrysler team, knocked off 700; A. Morrison, Raybestos-Nashua, 700; Ken Lee, of the Mercantile 723; S. S. Shaughnessy and G. Cameron of the C.G.E., 743 and 723 each. The other good scores included:

The Mercantile League 683: Bill Moorhead 643; H. Corner 637; W. Callan 632; Margaret Wyllie 515 (211); Mrs. Hendry 501; Margaret Parker 462.

The C.G.E. League, T. Glover 693; P. B. Munro, 680; and V. Craig, 623.

The Western Clock Girls (2 games).—J. Hunt 361; M. Snowden 356; B. Blade, 352; G. Brand, 337; I. Vivash, 324; M. Wildman, 323; M. Elliott, 301.

The Raybestos-Nashua League.—W. Crary, 638; R. Lewis, 629; A. Vannest, 629; R. Martyn, 629; Burton 624 (326); H. Davis, 622; James, 621; P. Collins, 613; H. Ellison, 612; and Haines, 430 for two games.

The Automobile League—J. O'Dette, 640; W. Inch, 625; E. Nickson, 617; M. J. Duffus, 615; C. O'Toole, 604; A. Watson, 600.

The complete results of last night's Automobile League play-off will not be available until the Nash and Automotive No. 2 teams bowl their games.

Mr. Caffeine-Nerves meets his match

MANY people can safely drink tea and coffee. Many others—and all children—should never drink them. If you are one of these, try Postum's 30-day test. Buy Postum and drink it instead of tea and coffee for one month. Then, if you do not feel better, return the container top to General Foods, Limited, Cobourg, Ontario, and we'll gladly refund full purchase price, plus postage. Postum is delicious, economical, easy to prepare, and contains no caffeine.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

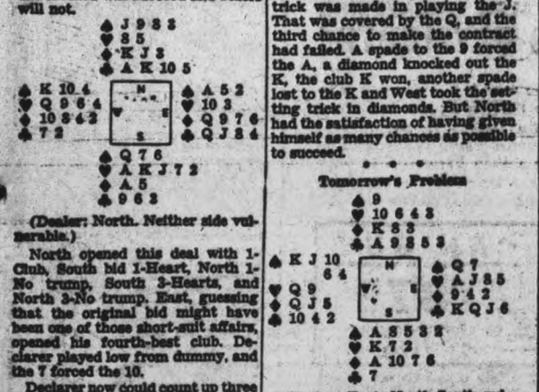
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

STRINGS TO YOUR BOW

IT IS WELL TO have several strings to your bow. In playing a no trump contract especially, you should select the order of events that will enable you to preserve other possible ways to build the extra tricks needed for your game. If the first effort fails, you try the next one, and so on, in the hope that if any of the various methods will work, you are safe. By this procedure you avoid guessing that some one method will succeed and others will not.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North opened this deal with 1-Club, South bid 1-Heart, North 1-No trump, South 3-Hearts, and North 3-No trump. East, guessing that the original bid might have been one of those short-suit affairs, opened his fourth-best club. Declarer played low from dummy, and the 7 forced the 10.

Declarer now could count up three sure tricks in clubs, two in diamonds, two in hearts, and needed two more. Places to build extra tricks existed in every suit, even clubs if East had led from a short holding. The logical spot to begin was with hearts, where there were a couple of chances to develop both of the extra tricks. So the heart finesse was tried first. When that failed and West returned a club to the A, North laid down two top hearts, but the suit didn't break. Next he led another heart to West, building up his last for one of the extra tricks needed.

When West switched now to his diamond 2, a third try for the needed trick was made in playing the J. That was covered by the Q, and the third chance to make the contract had failed. A spade to the 9 forced the A, a diamond knocked out the K, the club K won, another spade lost to the K and West took the setting trick in diamonds. But North had the satisfaction of having given himself as many chances as possible to succeed.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: East, North-South vulnerable.)

What bidding would you recommend on this deal?

Girl As Counsel For Negro In Murder Hearing

NEW YORK, March 15.— (CP).—In a downtown law office today, a 23-year-old girl lawyer is poring over her law books, preparing to match wits and legal knowledge in two weeks against Government Attorneys in attempt to win acquittal for James Pryor, 23-year-old negro charged with murder.

She is Miss Estelle Barr, a graduate last year from Brooklyn law school, who created a stir in court yesterday when she stepped forward to announce she was representing Pryor, accused of shooting and killing another negro last January. The court adjourned the case two weeks to give the young attorney time to prepare for trial.

"The defendant pleads not guilty, your honor," she answered the court's query, in a confident voice.

The court, seemingly unable to believe she was appearing as counsel for Pryor, called Miss Barr to the bench for consultation.

"All are you appearing for this man?" he asked, incredulously.

"I am," the young woman told him, "I wouldn't undertake this case unless I thought I could do it justice." tice.

Says Gamblers Control Slot Machines

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 15. — A contributory plan of unemployment insurance similar to the legislation brought down by R. B. Bennett was envisaged as the only means of solving this country's relief problem, by Rev. J. R. Muchmore, who was guest speaker at the Rotary Club on Monday.

Speaking on the moral issues and social problems which confront Canada, Rev. Mr. Muchmore, secretary of the board of evangelism and socialism for the United Church, emphasized the harm done by gambling, drawing attention to the recent gang killing in the north part of Toronto which was attributed directly to this cause. "The Anglo-Saxon and Scandinavian people have a greater tendency to gamble than have any other races, but it is particularly with the commercial side of gambling that the church is concerned. The slot machine which looks so innocent in the corner store takes on a completely more ominous aspect when it is known that it is controlled by a large gambling syndicate with headquarters in New York and Chicago." There is a plan now to legalize federal sweepstakes and since this is one of the moral issues in our country we are making every possible effort to combat it and "we hope that all ministers will oppose the plan."

No More Liquor Ads.

Speaking of temperance and the advertising of beverage alcohol, Mr. Muchmore recalled that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporataion would discontinue all liquor advertising over its networks from April 1. His Grace the Cardinal of Quebec was opposed to the present system of advertising and his efforts played an important part in bringing about the Commission's decision, according to the speaker. "Recently, Gene Tunney who heads the National Liquor Advertising Commission in the United States warned the men engaged in the business that they must not do what the tobacco industry has done—they were forced to create a demand for their product following the war when large surplus stocks of their products had to be disposed of by creating a demand for the product by advertising. He also held that the figure of a woman should not be used in any advertitsement for beverage alcohol.

Employment Insurance.

There are some industries in which there are as many employed as in '29, particularly in the textile industries, but we must get some form of social insurance in Canada to solve our problem." The speaker offered the suggestion that everyone should begin to contribute twenty-five cents a week to unemployment insurance as soon as they begin to work and recalled the Bennett plan by which the employee would contribute five-twelfths, the employer five-twelfths and the State two-twelfths. "We think that this is a good idea" went on the secretary of the Board of Evangelism, who has recently returned from a tour of Nova Scotia where he has studied at first hand the conditions there.,

"Each municipality should look after its own relief problem, but the Federal government should set a standard for all such relief. The great fault with the present system is that the large urban areas where there are many citizens on relief, the poor are forced to keep the poor. The speaker drew attention to the municipalities of Westmount in Montreal, and Tuxedo in Winnipeg where the wealthy citizens live and contribute not one cent towards relief. A most notable case is that of the proprietor of one of Toronto's largest evening newspapers who lives in Forrest Hill which has no relief problem at all, yet the paper devotes considerable space to the problem.

"The whole question should be handled by a non-partisan committee since if politics is allowed to enter into it the votes will be affected." Mr. Muchmore outlined the relief allowance made in Trenton which is part of the New Glasgow coal and steel area in Pictou county in Nova Scotia. Here a family of nine is allowed $7.20 a week; a family of 10, $8.00; of eleven $8.40; of twelve $9.00. Single unemployed men are given $1.50 a week with no allowance for fuel and electric light bills are not paid by the relief committee. "Don't be fooled by talk of Federal responsibility for relief. Ottawa raises money chiefly from the impost of the excise tax and tariff. Increase the tax on liquor and you'll increase the amount of bootlegging. Increase the tax on cigarettes and the amount of smuggling will increase. There will be organized gangs smuggling cigarettes into this country just as they have been in the past. The only other chance for Ottawa to raise more money is by increasing the sales tax and it is already a burden.

Collective Bargaining.

Collective bargaining is the only answer to the labour problem, recalling that Ontario and Quebec have nearly eighty per cent. of all industry in Canada. Britain faced the labour problem long ago and she leads the world to-day because she solved that problem. In England, labour is at peace and as a result she is able to win the markets of the world while during the past year the United States lost much of her trade due to the strife between the C.I.O. and the A.F. of L."

The Christian church is firmly convinced that the system of collective bargaining is a sound procedure and we have also the testimony of C. Evans Hughs and Lord Baldwin, who have both said the principle is sound. Industrial peace will be more certain if ways and means of collective bargaining are made in this part of Canada."

A vote of thanks to the sepaker was moved by Rotarian N. Alex McColl. W. F. Scott was introduced as a new member of the club. Guests at Monday's luncheon included Rev. B. Simpson Black, Rev. T. H. Gault, Rev. Dr.. C. S. Reddick and Capt. D. Sharpe.

Japs Surround 2,500 Chinese Top It And Corner 10,000

Shanghai, March 15 (AP).

JAPANESE authorities announced today that their forces had surrounded 2,50 Chinese troops in northern Kiangsu, the province in which Nanking and Shanghai are located.

In Shansi province, to the northwest, the Chinese said they were making enveloping movements against the invaders and that 10,000 Japanese had been encircled northwest of Taiyuan, where they said the Japanese supply and communications lines had been cut.

Traffic Blocked By Rising Water

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Mar. 15. — During the week Ennismore was again threatened with complete isolation from the outside world, but this time not by blocked roads which had already been open to traffic after much hard labor. The great depth of water rising on the lake made it impassable for motor traffic, the famous world-renowned floating bridge piled high with snow, ice, and rising water has necessarily been closed to traffice for months; that long trail around the head of the lake was not passable for cars. The result was that the Ennismore-Lakehurst stage driver travelled to Chemong Lake by snowmobile, walked across the lake carrying the mail bag (fortunately there were no passengers), and continued his journey from Bridgenorth to Peterborough by car. We wonder that he did not lose some of his transfer tickets.

Would Invite M.P.'s To Lindsay Arsenal

LINDSAY, March 15.—The Town Council Monday night decided to ask Bruce McNevin, M.P. for Victoria, to invite the public accounts committee of the House of Commons to visit the Federal Arsenal here while on their way to inspect the Inglis plant at Toronto.

"We should do all in our power to see that it is operated at full capacity," said Alderman Charles Ferguson, in sponsoring the motion.

Alderman Ferguson said he had received reports that relief recipients were imposing on the welfare board. "I know of one man who has refused two jobs, and another who is working on the railway and both are receiving relief," he said. Council will take action to see that such impositions are curbed.

Convalescing After Sickness

After many severe illnesses such as influenza, scarlet and typhoid fever, pneumonia, etc., or an operation, the patient is usually left in an extremely weak, nervous and exhausted condition.

To all those convalescents who need a tonic to strengthen and build up their weakened system we would recommend Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills to assist them back to the full enjoyment of robust health. They supply the elements so necessary to build up the shattered nervous system, and bring back bodily strength and vigor.

A trial will convince you of their merits.

FRASERVILLE

The monthly meeting of the Women's Association was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. P. Moncrief. Owing to the flu epidemic in these parts the attendance was not as large as usual. There were 12 ladies present and a busy afternoon was spent in quilting. Due to the absence of the president and other members of the executive the devotional service was withdrawn. A delicious supper was served at the close of the afternoon. Those present included Mesdames Horton, Pue, Ouellette, Seabrook, A. and L. Hewitt, Waterman, Colon, K. and W. Moncrief, Moffatt and Mrs. W. Garner of Bailleboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Syer of Cavan were Friday visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Moncrief.

Miss Eleanor Pue of Peterborough spent the week-end at her home.

Mrs. Kidd has been spending a few days in Peterborough at the home of her son. Mr. Orville Kidd.

Miss Mary Lawrence of Ennismore was a week-end visitor at the home of her parents here.

Mr. Robert Holden and Mr. B. Seabrook are in Cobourg this week attending the jury.

The friends of Mr. A. Wood were sorry to hear he was confined to his bed this week owing to illness and are now pleased to learn he is somewhat improved.

Rev. J. R. Mutchmoor Is Guest Speaker

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, Mar. 15 — The congregation of the United Church who braved the elements to attend the Sunday afternoon services were repaid for their efforts by hearing an inspiring address delivered by Rev. J. R. Mutchmoor of Toronto, newly appointed secretary of the Department of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada. In his introductory remarks the speaker said the Department was operating twelve institutions for boys and girls, two for young women, and one for aged women. The Board has certain social problems to deal with—a question of penal reform, moral issues, questions of temperance, gambling, sweepstakes, and advised electors to write their Federal member of Parliament at Ottawa as these questions are now being dealt with there.

Speaker's Message.

Rev. Mr. Mutchmoor chose his text from Hebrews 11, 6: "He that cometh to God must believe that He is." The elemental in Christian faith—we in the church of God today, notwithstanding struggle, have to be strong and true to our faith. The church must sound the note of hope and Christian victory. We think of the prodigal coming to God. Are we something else, like the elder brother? The dangers of the church to-day is spiritual pride. On the brink of war, God kept us from it for the time. If we are to be in security to-day in old Ontario, we have to get down on our knees to God. We have cars, radios, chesterfields, frigidaires, good roads, etc., and hold our heads up and say, "How fortunate we are!" but have we come to God? Let us come with contrite hearts to God. If we have failed the church we have not been good enough. Let us come to God for help from on high, thus by faith whether in elemental form we come by faith to our Heavenly Father and that right early, God grant we may turn to the Father for help.

During Sunday afternoon church service the members of the congregation voted to send their expression of deepest sympathy to Ed. Fennell of Havelock, recording secretary and member of the Board of Session at Havelock, in the great and sudden loss of his wife, Mrs. Fennell, during the past week.

Rev. A. McLauchlin is resuming his Bible Forum on Wednesday night at Havelock United Church.

OBITUARY

EDGAR GEORGE MOORE.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 14. — Edgar George Moore, an employee of the Canadian Nephalene Company for the past few years died early this morning in St. Joseph's Hospital. The late Mr. Moore had been operated on a week ago Monday and appeared to be making progress until last Friday when he took a bad turn and never rallied. He was 52 years of age, and has lived in Lakefield for the past twelve years. He is survived by his wife, formerly Margaret Tighe, and seven children, William of Toronto, Ellen of Peterborough, Thomas, Charles, Orville, Evelyn and Hazel at home. Funeral announcements later.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLES, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUN-DOWN CONDITION

EVERY PERSON who suffers can have a special introductory bottle of SYNTONA to try for ONLY 25 CENTS.

Simply read the offer below. Do this in your own interest.

This new and scientific medicine, known as SYNTONA, has helped so many people whom the readers of this page know personally. Therefore, we offer the first trial bottle at 25 cents, because we believe the people who are benefited will keep on using it. The offer is good for Friday and Saturday of this week only.

Science brings us methods of preparation and preservation which enable us to bring this famous medicine within easy reach of all sufferers. Permits hundreds to get away from the habitual use of nerve-deadening tablets and harsh drugs.

What It Is!

This is no salts or pill, nor is it a powder, capsule or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves headaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

NOW, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or week—remains to be seen. But in light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good Friday and Saturday ONLY, so read the rest of this announcement and act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe), and tone them into daily action.

It will bring out awful gases and impurities (frequently from the first dose) which may have been inside of you a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and lazy, drowsy, tired feeling.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give grand relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath, and dyspepsia.

IT WILL improve your appetite and promote proper assimilation of food for ENERGY and RESISTANCE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to sluggish kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have become dammed up inside, causing BACKACHE, SHARP PAINS anad RISING AT NIGHT.

It will make your liver more active, thus relieving spells of billousness and sick headache.

Relieves those with rheumatism and neuritis, by ridding the system of excess acidity and irritating waste matter.

IT WILL clean up skin eruptions caused by the impurities in the organs, will overcome the sallowness of "muddiness" that is due to sluggish liver.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you FEEL like a DIFFERENT MAN or WOMAN, younger than you may have felt in YEARS.
